Store Hour Changes Opposed

Belleville Downtown Stores Want New Plaza to 'Play by Rules'

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Belleville's retail merchants won't formally oppose establishment of a new shopping plaza, But they will wand their new rival to play the commercial game according to established rules.

A combined meeting of Belleville Downtown Businessmen's Association and the Plaza Merchants Association at Columbus Hall last night voted to stay out of the controversy flickering around rezoning of a North Front Street land bloc to permit building the new shopping centre. The city and the big suburban Towers store are readying for a fight before the Ontario Municipal Board.

Simultaneously, the merchants will strongly oppose any changes in the city bylaw governing store hours.

This means if the downtown merchants are successful, the new plaza could operate with the same advantages as other city retailers with permission to stay open only two nights a week.

Hours of operation are now the crux of the matter for the city retail establishment, still mindful of the big business advantage gained by Towers.

Thriving outside the western limits of Belleville — beyond the writ of city hall and its store hour ordinance — Towers opens six nights a week and on statutory holidays.

Last night's meeting was unanimous that the retailers now ignore the conflict between the city and Towers — which precipitated the OMB hearing Nov. 4 by challenging the city's rezoning move.

DBA president Ben Corke revealed the association executive did discuss filing an objection to the rezoning before the OMB.

But, he indicated, there now was insufficient time to organize a protest.

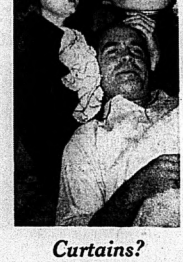
CORINTH (CP) — Thirty-four persons were killed and at least 150 injured when a train plowed into the back of another near this southern Greece city Monday night.

Dockers In U.S. Walk Out



NEW YORK (AP) — The longshoremen's union went on strike at U.S. Atlantic and Gulf ports at 12:01 a.m. today, but President Johnson had already moved to cut short the walkout under provisions of the Taft-Hartley Act.

The strike by 75,000 dockworkers was ordered by the AFL-CIO International Longshoremen's Association after negotiations with the Shippers' Association broke down Monday.

Hours later President Johnson invoked the Taft-Hartley Act, setting up a three-man board of inquiry to hold hearings today to take action by Wednesday that could lead to an 80-day cooling off period.

The White House action came with approximately 160 ships immediately threatened by the tieup of ports from Searsports, Me. to Brownsville, Tex. Union president Thomas W. Gleason said military cargo would continue to move.

Gleason said he expects an 80-day injunction later in the week.

'Fireside Chat' Held

French Premier Denies Conflict

QUEBEC (CP) — After "a fireside chat" with Prime Minister Trudeau, French Premier Maurice Couve de Murville said Monday that France's interests do not basically conflict with Canada's and relations could only improve because of the high-level talks.

The French premier made the comments at a news conference following a 95-minute meeting at the Citadel with the Canadian prime minister. The session, 35 minutes longer than scheduled, ended with both men in smiles.

Mr. Trudeau, who escorted the French premier to a limousine, told reporters:

"We sat by the fire and had coffee. We had a fireside chat."

He said he might make a statement today in the Commons.

The meeting followed a 45-minute session between the two men at Montreal International Airport Sunday when both were en route here for the state funeral of the late premier Daniel Johnson.

At the news conference, the French premier was asked if the talks would help settle what a reporter described as "the cold war" between the Canadian and French governments. He replied, smiling:

"I didn't get the impression at any moment that I was involved in a cold war with Mr. Trudeau or that my country was involved in a cold war with Canada."

The French premier also said he does not think "this sad event"—the death of Mr. Johnson—would modify "the nature of relations" between France and Quebec.

"The French president's invitation to Quebec's premier for a visit in France Oct. 11-16 still stands, but in the circumstances the new Quebec premier would have to decide when he could make the trip."

During the talks, Mr. Trudeau did not tell him that France was trying to destroy Canadian unity and, if he did, "I wouldn't have had any trouble in showing him that it is an illusion or gossip."

Hees Willing To Mediate

By DONALD MacKENZIE

Speed in settling the Procter-Silex — IUE dispute is of prime importance according to George Hees, MP for Prince Edward - Hastings.

Mr. Hees has been urging the Ontario department of labor in ask action from the owners of Procter-Silex in the U.S. to use their influence to advance the date for the negotiation meeting now scheduled for Oct. 10.

"I think the delay between now and Oct. 10 is ridiculous," said the MP this morning, "there should be no reason in the world why the two sides can't get together sooner.

However U.S. company officials said there was nothing they could do to advance the date.

Mr. Hees said he made the request once more and that department of labor representatives would try again, emphasizing the importance of holding a meeting soon.

Canadian IUE president, George Hutcheson, was told by the member for Prince-Edward that he (Mr. Hees) would be willing to act as mediator for the two sides.

Members of the striking union said today that 10 workers arrived at the plant. However, a plant spokesman said 15 employees were on hand, "an increase of three over yesterday.

Pickets are limited to three by a temporary injunction obtained last week at the request of James Findlay plant manager.

The injunction is being appealed today in Toronto's Osgoode Hall by James Donnofrio and the union's lawyer.

Union to File Complaint Against Picton Police Chief

A complaint will be filed against Picton Police Chief George Pitt with the Ontario Police Commission, said union representative Jim Donnofrio this morning.

"It's in the hands of our lawyer now and it will be filed with the commission," he said.

The union's action is the result of the first outbreak of violence at the Procter-Silex plant on the weekend of Aug. 17. At that time, strikers spent at the scene, including local president George LeBlanc, say they saw Chief Pitt strike a woman, knocking her to her knees.

Plan Applauded By Ted Kennedy

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Vice-President Hubert Humphrey says if elected president Nov. 5 he would stop the bombing of North Vietnam as an "acceptable risk" for peace — if Hanoi showed willingness to restore the demilitarized zone separating the two Vietnams.

Senator Edward M. Kennedy, whose late brother, Robert, was a Humphrey rival for the Democratic nomination, immediately sent a congratulatory telegram which said:

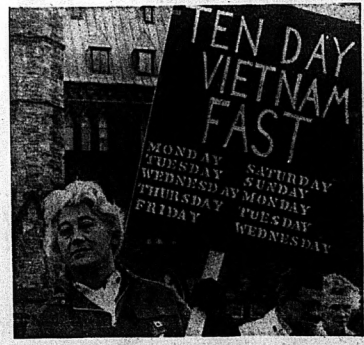
"To all who look for peace in Vietnam, you have given great encouragement and hope. . . . You are the only candidate for president who has offered the American people proposals for ending the war in Vietnam. . . .

In his first paid television broadcast Monday night, the Democratic presidential candidate said:

"As president, I would stop the bombing of the North as an acceptable risk for peace because I believe it could lead to success in the negotiations and a shorter war. This would be the best protection for our troops."

The vice-president placed a qualification on his proposed bombing halt, saying that before taking action he would "place key importance on evidence—direct or indirect, by deed or word—of Communist willingness to restore the demilitarized zone between North and South Vietnam."

His language suggested this was a specific condition but Humphrey aides insisted it was only one example of possible steps Hanoi could take or signal —directly or indirectly—as the pathway to halt the already-limited bombing of North Vietnam.



Humphrey added: "If the government of North Vietnam were to show bad faith, I would reserve the right to resume the bombing."

The vice-president said "peace would not be served by weakness or withdrawal" in Vietnam.

"Nor would I escalate the level of violence in either North or South Vietnam. We must seek to de-escalate."

Offer Dismissed As Vote-getter

PARIS (Reuters) — North Vietnamese sources here today dismissed as an "electoral manoeuvre" Vice-President Hubert Humphrey's statement that, if elected president, he would be willing to halt the bombing of North Vietnam.

Bills Pile Up

Returning Workers Needed Pay

By DONALD MacKENZIE
(Staff Reporter)

"I needed the money" was the reason one Proctor-Silex worker who crossed the IUE's picket line gave for returning to work.

"After 10 weeks of no work, almost no strike pay and plenty of bills what can you expect a man to do — he has to live."

If you can't have your cake and eat it too, 12 people who crossed the line to work in the Silex plant in Picton feel they at least have a piece of it.

According to two of the workers, one a female and the other a male worker who do not want their names given, most of the 12 workers who went back to work returned for the same reason.

"Besides," said the woman, "it didn't look as if the strike was ever going to end and I'm not ready to retire yet."

For many of the strikers, whether they're working now, the 10-week long walkout has posed problems financially.

Bills keep coming in and the strike pay paid by the union "was not that high".

A married man with a family and a non-working wife received the highest allowance at $15

Some of the strikers were able to find other jobs, working in the canning factories or on farms picking tomatoes. Others were not so fortunate.

Missing the picket line at all times was also time consuming and during some periods there were over 25 picketers on duty

If money was one factor the strikers had to make so was the possibility of losing their jobs completely

"There is not that much industry in Prince Edward County and around Picton that jobs are plentiful," especially unskilled or semi-skilled jobs calling for a female worker, said one returnee

"I figured Mr. Findlay meant it when he said his company had to and would go back into production," said one of the workers. "He wrote us a couple of letters telling us, asking us to come back to take last ay increases made."

"We just wanted to work and now we are."

Students Aid Strikers

PICTON (Staff) — Picton strikers received unexpected support this morning when six students from Queen's University arrived here to donate $22.42 towards the strike fund.

The students are members of the Students for a New University, a student political organization.

President-ial nominee George Wardell, told The Intelligencer yesterday the move was made in support of what was felt to be "just demands on the part of the union."

He said: "students in the organization feel they should become more aware of themselves in society as opposed to remaining as robotals as university graduates."

Plaza

"At this late date we would need very substantial and almost unanimous support from leading businesses, the Chamber of Commerce and the citizens at large . . . This we didn't feel we have."

Several merchants noted ready support for the new plaza at city hall.

Joseph Burke, representing east-end plaza merchants, came with a prepared statement that expressed similar reservations.

There had been no collective objection to the rezoning primarily because Mayor Scott and city council "for some reason, have been so adamantly in favor of this project that any objection may well be futile."

"It is not our intention to stand in the way of this project," said Mr. Burke. ". . . As progressive merchants, we fully appreciate the necessity of advancing with the times and conditions."

However, he wondered if conditions were favorable to another shopping centre — and what hardship it posed for smaller merchants.

One downtown businessman pondered the possibility of eves bringing Targets to bed — by annexation. This would bring the big merchandizing operation within the grasp of our customers.

However, Mr. Corke demurred at precipitate action.

Annexation of this specific built-up area had been under review by city hall for some time, although he was uncertain of present intentions, he said.

Therefore, the merchants could be "talking in circles" by discussing the issue.

"Perhaps, I'd better make an inquiry or two — and bring it up for discussion at a directors' meeting," he concluded.

Industrial Commissioner Ray Brown got on a bulldozer this morning on the Charles Parm industrial tract of land in Belleville's Industrial Park to help remove a hill. The large piece of land is being leveled with earth from the hill to make an ideal industrial location.

Hillcrest Seeks Sewers

For Hillcrest residents the name of the game is suburban living — and being organized to win all the innings needed to raise living standards in their north Belleville suburb.

Last night, after a boom year of wrestling victories from city hall, they readied for another round.

Hillcrest Ratepayers Association, convening for its second annual meeting, decided to press for extension of city sewers in their zone.

The suburb is now the only city area without such facilities, (Its former residential companion-in-distress, Foster Ward, now is on its way to having city sewer service).

A main trunk sewer may be planned along the nearby Moira River in the near future, association president Gordon Harris told the meeting, and this likelihood gives Hillcrest residents the opportunity of finally unloading the suburbs present cumbersome sewage disposal device — nightsoil collection.

The ratepayers agreed they should now press city hall for link-up lines to the river trunk.

They also re-elected the executive which helped spur much residential improvement action during the past year — including city water installations, better roads and street-lighting, thawing of a by-law which had frozen home construction and the conversion of an old church into a citizen operated community centre.

Continuing on the executive with Mr. Harris are: Bert Trice, vice-president and Mrs. Ruby Stapley, secretary-treasurer.

GEORGE A. HOPPING

DESERONTO — Memorial services for George Alexander Hopping who died suddenly at his Thomas St. home last Thursday, were held in the White and Morris Funeral Home Friday evening by members of the Volunteer Fire Department, the Legion, and the Odd Fellows. Sunday morning prayers were said for him at the beginning of the morning service in the St. Mark's Anglican Church, and a minute's silence was observed in his memory. At the organ was Charles Knight, who had joined the choir at the same time as George Hopping, in April 61 years ago. He played Handel's Largo instead of the usual processional hymn.

The funeral service, held in the chapel of the White and Morris Funeral Home, was widely attended, as Mr. Hopping had a wide circle of friends and was held in great respect because of his war services, his services to the church and the community, and his kindly nature.

The pall-bearers were: Arthur Allan, Albert Clark, Al Fraser, Donald Hubble, Wilson Marlow, James Mercer, James McVicker and William Miller.

Interment was in the Deseronto Cemetery.

MRS. FREDERICK MITCHELL

(Toronto-Rawdon Twp.)

RAWDON — Mrs. Frederick (Mabel) Mitchell died on September 23rd at Providence Villa Hospital, Toronto.

The funeral was held in the chapel at the Sherrin Funeral Home, Toronto and cremation in St. James' crematorium.

Pile Driver Has Heavy Blow

Modern day construction technology has been put into use by Lightfoot Construction Ltd to speed up the job of driving piles for the new CPR-Bay Bridge Road overpass.

Instead of using the conventional "drop" hammer pile driver a "new fangled" diesel hammer is being used to drive 30-foot steel piles to bed rock through land fill area at the north end of Zwicky's Island.

The diesel pile drivers have been in use in the building trade for up to 30 years, but usually on the bigger construction jobs.

They're believed the first time such units have been used in the Belleville area.

The advantages of the diesel pile driver hammers over the conventional "drop" hammers is that they are faster in operation and can be more quickly set up. They depend on an explosion of diesel fuel for their driving force.

Although exerting a driving force of 9,000 pounds with each explosion, the diesel hammer in use at the Bay Bridge Road project is a comparative baby in the business. The manufacturers make three other models — all bigger.

Overpass Takes Shape

After more than two months since the commencement of operations, construction of the new CPR — Bay Bridge Road overpass and approach ramps have progressed to the stage where the end result can be visualised.

Column supports for the railway overpass have been completed and most of the 48,000 cubic yards of fill required for the approach ramps have been placed.

This week Lightfoot Construction Ltd. is driving piles to support the overpass apron structure and is excavating and backfilling at the south end of the approach ramp where it will intersect with Bay Bridge Road.

To provide a solid base for the approach ramp where it joins the Bay Bridge Road, a complete section of the roadway is being dug out and backfilled with gravel.

On completion of the project Bay Bridge Road traffic will be directed up over the new overpass to intersect with West Dundas Street just west of the Devil's Elbow Hill.

The end purpose of the overpass construction is to eliminate the present level crossing on the Bay Bridge Road over the CPR tracks.

It is all part of the three-phase construction project calling for a new bridge over the Moira River connecting East and West Dundas Streets and the rebuilding of West Dundas Street from the river to west of the Devil's Elbow Hill.

Tractors Here

Approximately 100 farmers from South Western Ontario on their way to Ottawa by tractor cavalcade will stop over in Belleville tonight.

The tractors will be parked on the Belleville Fairgrounds for the night and the drivers will be fed an billeted by Quinte area farmers.

The cavalcade is expected to arrive at the fairgrounds about 7 p.m.

Corn growers are asking $1.50 per bushel for their corn and say if they don't get that price they will lose $20 per acre.

Mrs. O. Rollins, secretary of the area Ontario Farmers Union group said it was possible some local growers may join the tractor parade.

Belleville Gets Plug in Newspaper

Belleville's concerted campaign to attract new industry — appropriately dubbed "Operation Industry" — has been given a full page spread in this week's edition of the Daily Commercial News and Building Record.

Pictures of many of the city's main industrial plants, together with details of the city's industrial commission program to attract new industry are included in the article.

The streamer headline on the story says chemical, textiles and electronics are the type of industry being sought in Belleville's industrial drive.

"No fewer than 25 brains — members of the Belleville Industrial Commission — have been drawn on to develop an effective program and determine which direction future industrial development should take in this important LODA community," the article says.

"They have decided that the logical and most ideal industries to attract are the chemicals, textiles and electronics industries."

City council commended for its decision to provide money for land acquisition and for extension of services to its 700 - acre industrial park.

It says services for the industrial park, half of which lies in a neighboring township, are to be completed by December 1970.

However, Ray M. Brown, Belleville industrial commissioner is quoted as saying that the city needs to make more land available for industrial development and that Belleville is not content to let industry find its way to the region.

"We are going after it," he says.

The provincial Equalization of Industrial Opportunity program has been a great help to the city in starting its "Operation Industry" program according to Mr. Brown.

Industry is attracted to environments that are as near as possible to the "total environment" of areas with sufficient services, labor supplies and other attributes.

Belleville has always had plenty of people but too few job opportunities and is now concentrating on serviced land to attract industry.

And the program is paying off. Last year the city picked up International Cooperage employing 20 people and involving a $400,000 capital outlay and Superior Electric, to employ 125 with a $1,500,000 investment.

This year Allied Chemicals have been added and their $2,500,000 plant is nearing completion and will employ about 40 persons.

In addition five existing industries expanded last year, providing 77 jobs and spending $3,400,000.

The article lists the availability of housing in Belleville, along with transportation and recreational facilities of the city and district.

H. R. Hennessey

Income Tax Head at Work

The new director of the Belleville Income Tax Office, H. R. Hennessey, has arrived in Belleville to begin the tasks of his new position.

Mr. Hennessey has now been on the job about a week and he has just taken up residence here.

He comes to the area from the Charlottetown District Office where he held the position of director-taxation.

His service in National Revenue-Taxation includes 11 years in the Charlottetown office, from 1947 to 1958, three years in the management audit branch in Ottawa, and two and one half years as supervisor of administration in Saint John, New Brunswick.

Mr. Hennessey is a member of the Institute of Chartered Accountants of Prince Edward Island and is its immediate past president.

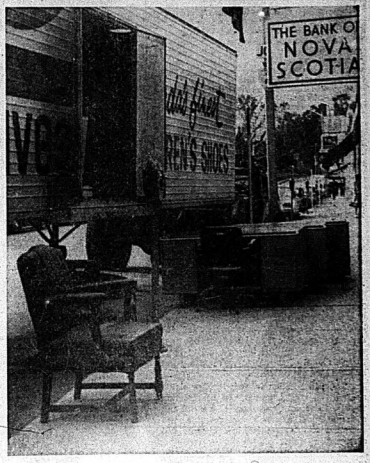
He has served two years on the council of the Canadian Institute of Chartered Accountants.

His military career spans 31 years including six years active service in England, Italy and Northwest Europe, and he has been commanding officer of the Fifth Signals Regiment of The Royal Canadian Signals for the past three years.

Mr. Hennessey is married, with wife Shirley, and four children, Pamela, 21, in Charlottetown; Bill, 20, a third year engineering student at the University of New Brunswick; Tim, 17 and Alan, 12.

Buy into Canada.

There are probably as many good reasons for buying Canada Savings Bonds as there are Canadians here are the hopes, plans and ambitions you have for yourself and your family. There is the desire, which all of us share, to play a part in building the future of our country. The simple, safe, profitable way to help realize these goals is to buy Canada Savings Bonds.



They offer an excellent return. The average yield to maturity is 6.27%, a year. There are fourteen annual interest coupons which begin at 5.75% and rise to 7.00% for each of the last nine years. These can be cashed each year as they become due. Better still, if you choose to keep these coupons uncashed, you can earn interest on your interest. Take full advantage of this option and, when your Bonds mature, your total interest earnings plus your original investment will amount to $250 for each $100 invested.

They are available to everyone. Canada Savings Bonds are available to every Canadian resident in amounts from $50 up to $50,000, for cash or on instalments, wherever you work, bank or invest. Adults, children, businesses and institutions—all may buy them.

They are instant cash. You can cash them any time at any bank in Canada at their full face value plus earned interest.

Few investments are so profitable. None builds more surely for the future. Buy into Canada today. Buy Canada Savings Bonds. It pays.

It pays.

Office on the Street

No, the scene isn't quite what it seems — and Moore Business Forms expect to be around Trenton for quite awhile yet. The town's new big industrial acquisition is moving in — not out. Furniture was scheduled yesterday for personnel office now being opened to recruit initial work force for plant.

Trenton Lends Its Support To Restore Winter Works

TRENTON — The town of Trenton will sign a petition, the aim of which is to persuade the federal government to restore its winter works aid project.

The request came from the city of Peterborough which, in a communication to council, labelled the discontinuance of the project as a "hardship to the labor force."

The letter stated that without the project, labor will drop off in the winter months and as a result welfare costs will rise.

For this reason Peterborough passed a resolution that it, along with other towns, should petition the government to start the project again.

Councillor Ed Todd agreed by saying "I can't see any reason why we shouldn't go along with it."

Mayor James MacDonald labelled the winter works project as "an incentive to labor" but pointed out "it is best when our own crews handle the work."

But it was pointed out to council the danger of renewing the project.

Councillor Gerald Weaver explained there had been a tendency for projects which had been planned for the summer to be "put off until the winter when the aid was in effect"

"This was done frequently, to take advantage of the financial aid," he said

Council agreed to the petition as long as the original purpose of the project was maintained.

Trenton to Investigate School Safety Patrols

TRENTON — What began as a discussion by council concerning the need for an additional school monitor at Sidney and Kidd Streets here could result in a school safety patrol system being initiated in Trenton schools.

A petition, signed by 23 persons, was read at council last night in which parents were requesting a school monitor be hired to handle the school crossing at Sidney and Kidd Streets.

While council agreed something must be done, it was councillor Ted Parker who suggested that the idea of school safety patrol be investigated.

"Would it not be reasonable to employ school guards on all such corners," asked Councillor Parker.

He went on to label the problem of safe school crossings a "matter of great concern to every parent" and cited the city of Oshawa as an example of the effective use of such an operation.

Councillor Duncan McDonald said the idea had been brought up previously but the parents objected to their children taking part in such a patrol.

It was agreed that a joint committee of the traffic and protection to persons and property committee would look into the matter along with the board of education.

Court Costs Mounting For Town

TRENTON — Town council last night discovered that going to court can be an expensive undertaking.

A case between B. W. Powers and Sons Ltd., and the town of Trenton has cost the town approximately $6,000 in court costs to date.

Last night council received a bill for some $2,000 to cover the cost of printing and filing the case for Supreme Court of Canada action.

At the centre of the dispute is the right of ownership to Ontario St. Both parties contend they are the rightful owners.

It was four years ago that the town opened the closed street and the dispute began.

The case has been presented before the Supreme Court of Ontario and the court of appeal. In both instances the town lost the case.

With the recent bill agreed to be paid by council the case is scheduled for the winter session of the Supreme Court of Canada.

Preventive Program Planned In Trenton Fire Protection

TRENTON — For the Trenton Fire Department the upcoming fire prevention week means an opportunity to emphasize "preventive control" and allow its record of few serious fires during this year to continue.

Fire Marshal Bob Haker said the week of Oct. 6-12 will be taken up mostly with the inspection of factories and outlying businesses.

"We will not have any practical demonstrations because we just don't have the time—we'll be to busy doing other things," said Mr. Haker.

The busy schedule includes fire drills at schools and the showing of 18 films throughout the areas' learning institutes.

According to Mr. Haker the fire department is "very well received during our inspection tours."

"They (managers of factories) realize it is to their own benefit to run a clean shop."

And the whole program works.

"It has been a long time since I can remember when we had a bad fire."

He labelled the most noticeable improvement on the part of the public as "their quick action to call us.

"It used to be persons would try to put out the fire themselves but now the phone us right away."

But the week will also have a bit of flamboyance.

There will be a parade on Sunday which will leave from Middleton Park at one o'clock and will head for the Community Gardens.

It is expected to travel along Dundas to Division to the new fire station.

The Economic Scene

Economic surveys are not like the glossy magazines with their attractive blend of reading matter and color pictures.

The former tend to be all graphs and statistics under such headings as Short and Long-term Outlook . . . Structure and Performance of the Economy . National Income flow . . Balance of International Payment . . . and International Investment Flow.

The current issue of the Commercial Letter of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce is in this tradition. Its cover however does present a cross-section of the country's economic and industrial life that reminds us that behind the cold and unimaginative recital of facts, figures, market prices and the like, are people.

Thus, in addition to such familiar sights as tractors, trucks, cranes and construction workers there are illustrations of a nurse and a teacher, and a switchboard operator. And there is a trio of executives in conference and a research chemist.

In the best tradition of the professional illustrator, the characters in these little scenes, both male and female, are all smiling, handsome people. That in real life the executives may have ulcers, the nurses may be harassed and the teachers close to nervous breakdowns is another matter.

Thus, from the cover to the information inside on The Canadian Economy in 1968 we learn, in the bank's estimation, that business activity in this country showed considerable strength through the first six months of the year and that the increase in the gross national product from the fourth quarter of 1967 "was probably more than $3 billion measured in terms of seasonally adjusted rates." This represented an increase of about five per cent with two per cent of the increase accounted for by higher prices.

Perhaps the bank is trying to crowd all it can into the letter but the subject of strikes, which have been such a drag on the economy this year is dismissed briefly with the observation that "the index of industrial production dipped slightly in the first quarter of 1968 as the result of a number of strikes, notably those in the automotive industry." (No mention of the rash of other stoppages of late — the Seaway workers, grain handlers and mailmen for instance).

The tone of the bank's survey is one of cautious optimism, as when it notes that taking all f a c t o r s into consideration, "economic conditions in Canada at the midpoint in 1968 were reasonably favorable.

"Business activity had considerable momentum, monetary conditions were more settled, productivity performance seemed to be improving and there were a few signs that price pressures might be easing slightly."

Now if everyone were happy going about their work, smiling like the illustrators have them doing, and if strikes could be done away with — then the economy would really move!

Restless Students

Members of the rising generation may be in a continual state of revolt, as Dr. Wilson Head, research director for Toronto's Social Planning Council, suggested to Belleville Rotarians recently. But they still need an education.

The students of Glendon College, a residential school affiliated with York University, are aware of this but they are trying to get away from traditional methods of learning. The college's student union recently asked its 900 members not to register for courses this fall, and to replace the formal curriculum with "people-generated classes" — i n f o r m a l discussions about anything, with faculty serving as advisers.

Perhaps it will come to that one day, but surely the time-honored means of imparting and receiving instruction are as sure and effective as any? Idealism and fresh ideas are all very well, but when they are unsupported by knowledge and experience they are of little avail.

College authorities reacted sharply to the "student manifesto." College President Escott Reid warned students that Glendon would be destroyed if such a program were adopted. Another faculty member, Professor A. V. Tucker said continued introspection by students as well as faculty was "limiting" intellectual development at the college.

All of which is a reminder that students should bend most of their energies toward obtaining the education that is the prime purpose of their attendance at college. That done, they may then be in a position to indulge their penchant for change. Unless of course their ideas change a bit in the process. With the coming of responsibility, anarchy falls into the realm of the absurd.

Ottawa Offbeat

Trudeau Most Lionized Figure In Canadian History

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — You never saw anything like it.

Not on Parliament Hill anyway.

The crowds. Especially the kids.

Prime Minister Trudeau keeps saying he wants public involvement in national affairs . . . more people caring . . . m o r e following and understanding the policies ' and programs of the government . . . more watching and keeping the parliamentary score . . . more even participating.

How much participation can he want?

If many more try making The Hill scene, the old sandstone walls of the Centre Block of Parliament may not stand the strain.

There are daily lineups — come early if you have any hope of getting in — for seats in the several galleries of the Commons.

Even an official parliamentary guest card signed by an MP — up to and including a member of the cabinet — only $at year the never-failing key to the guarded doors of the gallerie, no longer is dependable.

For it to work, you have to be somewhere reasonably near the head of the queue.

Those in the long lines wait their turn, going in by shifts as one group exits and another enters.

The seats never have time to cool.

It has not been really all that good a show to justify the panic at the box-office. Not with the throne speech debate, still the same old groan and drone, filling the opening pages of Hansard.

It is the prime minister.

The tip-off comes in the news pictures of him, especially those of women swarming about like bees around the honey pot.

Young or old, it makes no difference . . . as you must have noticed in the photos . . . for the same gleam of adoration lights alike the eye of the teeny-bopper and the matron.

It is the style of the man.

Who else but Trudeau would have thought of bringing to life the old Commons' practice — discontinued — tradition of a new Commons Speaker being ' so modestly reluctant to accept the throne as to have to be almost dragged to it!'

But there he was, gay with an orange-hued r o s e in his morning coat, patting a wrestler's arm-lock on Mr. Speaker, and marching him with Conservative Leader Stanfield's deadpan assistance, in nonsense fashion up the centre a i s l e of the House to the chair.

The women may adore, but the kids — by their daily hundreds, coming in an endless procession of civics and history classes — do nothing less than worship.

Clearly he is the first Canadian politician of our time to make such an impact on t h e young.

There could be a parallel here with the Kennedys, Jack and Bobby, who had the same fascination for the American kids, and sure, admit it, for Canadian too.

Of course Canadian youngsters have always seemed more conscious of American political and folk heroes, the Washingtons, Lincolns, Daniel Boones, Davey Crocketts and the others of that hand of glory.

But now Trudeau has made Canadian kids suddenly acutely aware and gloriously proud of their very Canadianism.

Remember how it used to be when you were young?

You used to consider yourself a Scots, or Irish, or English, or "new" Canadian. Always the hyphenated.

Now it isn't. The kids of the Trudeau age speak of themselves — English, French and all the rest — as Canadians, period. And speak passionately, make such an impact on the young.

Just listen to them in the corridors of power here and you know with what passion.

Disillusionment may c o m e later. As it surely must, for who can be forever the Golden Boy?

But meanwhile, he is the greatest thing that has happened since Sir Galahad.

He was no matter that while the election campaign lasted, the CBC, for the sake of political neutrality had to limit the use of the song hit "Go Go Trudeau" on its stations.

Trudeau pendom, Trudeau dresses, Trudeau ties are still sellouts in the boutiques. And Trudeau posters outsell t h e "Sock it to me, Bob" pillows maybe 1,000 to one.

And poor Tommy Douglas. His posters are collectors items but the 'kids aren't collecting them.

It all makes you wonder . . . does Trudeau know how great it is with the kids . . . and realize the awesome responsibility of being the first living folk hero of Young Canada?

At the regular meeting of the YPSCE in connection with Emmanuel Church a high grade club bag was presented to the Rev. A. M. Hubly who, after 14 years service as pastor of the church is leaving to reside in Toronto. An address was read by A. E. Barlow and the presentation was made by Miss Curtis.

"Bouncer" Brouse has returned to the city after spending some time in the eastern part of the province.

TODAY IN HISTORY

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Oct. 1, 1968 . . .

T. E. Lawrence, Lawrence of Arabia, leading insurgent Arab forces, formally occupied Damascus during the fighting against Turkey 50 years ago today—in 1918. Commanding Arab recruits, Lawrence, a British Army officer, recorded remarkable successes in the desert, particularly the disruption of railway communications.

1918—A Canadian field artillery brigade arrived at Archangel, Russia.

1934—A British Labor party convention rejected a sweeping socialization plan advanced by Sir Stafford Cripps.

First World War

Fifty years ago today—in 1918—fierce fighting took place in the Cambrai-St. Quentin area as French forces captured St. Quentin and British and Canadian troops took Cambrai; British troops occupied Crevecoeur, Rumilly, Lecygnies and Joncourt.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1943—the Anglo-American 5th Army occupied Naples, the biggest city and most important port to fall to the Allies to date; American heavy bombers attacked Munich and Vienna; RAF and RCAF planes made a night attack on the Ruhr industrial centre of Hagen; reinforced Japanese divisions launched a new attack in southeastern China.

An Odd Double Standard at UN

Toronto Star

Secretary-General U Thant has not enhanced his reputation and authority, or that of the United Nations, by the extraordinary double standard of behavior he is applying to the United States and the Soviet Union.

The secretary - general has long been critical — and with good reason — of U.S. operations in Viet Nam. In an interview this week, he declared that there was "a general feeling among the international community' that U.S. bombing attacks on North Viet Nam should be halted.

In the same interview, however, U Thant pointedly refused to condemn the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia. Instead he tried to draw a distinction between this action and the American intervention in Viet Nam.

In the Czechoslovak case, he noted, "there is a kind of implicit contractual relationship among Warsaw Pact countries for collective security."

This is an extraordinary argument. It means, persuasively that the strongest member of a military alliance has the right to invade and occupy the territory of the other member nations in the name of collective security. Would U Thant, we wonder, be equally tolerant if the United States attacked one of its allies in NATO?

He also suggested that the conduct of the Soviet government was less blameworthy than that of the United States because it hadn't used bombs and napalm on the people of Czechoslovakia.

The secretary - general must be aware the only reason napalm and bombs were not in evidence in Czechoslovakia last August 20 was that the Russians massed such overwhelming forces the Czechoslovaks had no chance to resist. Does he mean to say that invasion and conquest are all right so long as they are swift, efficient and relatively bloodless?

The Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia was as flagrant an act of aggression against an independent state as has been committed anywhere since World War II. No sophistry about the Warsaw Pact or the absence of napalm can conceal that fact.

Long Hair and Politics

The Globe and Mail

Before and after his recent haircut, Douglas Hamburgh could fairly be describes as one of Toronto's more level-headed young people.

As a student at Castle Frank High School, he chose to wear his hair on the long side — a style that was viewed with considerable uneasiness by Principal Wilbert Bush. Rather than accommodate this attitude, Hamburgh refused to have his hair cut and was thereupon suspended. His absence from the classroom was an affront to the stubborn stiffness and narrowness to which some educators seem strangely prone.

The youth's subsequent conduct was even more impressive. It became apparent to him that his dispute with school authority was to be made the pretext for a much more ambitious assault on the school, led by members of the Ontario Union of Students. Not to be outdone, the Canadian Union of Students got into the act at the weekend with a speech from president Peter Warrian about the "violence" of the school system.

The boy decided to have his hair cut — a calculated rejection of the wild-eyed agitators who succeeded in gathering about 85 students and former students for a sit-out by the gates of the school.

His intelligent assessment of the situation and his refusal to allow himself to be used (even with the prospect of embarrassing the authority with whom he was in conflict) lent new dignity to his original stand.

Reds Get The Bird In Sweden

Montreal Gazette

Swedish Prime Minister Tage Erlander's socialists outmaneuvered the politicos and backed a trend which was seen in Norway and Denmark in recent elections, by winning the general election by a wide margin.

Most every poll taken before the election predicted the socialists would lose to the center right-liberal opposition forces, as socialist governments had done in two of the other Scandavian countries recently. The fact that Mr. Erlander is 67 and the socialists had been in power for the past 37 years were among the factors working against him, it was said.

Instead, the social democrats increased a one-seat margin held before the vote to 12 seats. Although there was no coalition between Mr. Erlander's party and the Communists, the social democrats depended on the Communists in many votes before Sunday.

In the end, the social democrats gained at the expense of the Communists, who saw their total of eight seats reduced to three. The main reason for the setbacks suffered by the Communists was the invasion of Czechoslovakia.

Altogether it was a remarkable vote of confidence for the social democrats and certainly for Mr. Erlander who has led the country for 22 years.

Letters to the Editor

More on "Trudeaumania"

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

All through the dog-days, I smiled with lazy indulgence at the remarks of my old betenoire, Richard Jackson, but now that there is a tang of Autumn in the air, his curious mixture of statistics and supposition begins to irk me again.

The latest column, entitled Trudeaumania Falls to Alter Deadly Pattern, is undeniable thy of a comment or two.

Mr. Jackson seems to share the opinion of Mr. Robert Stanfield, who surely brought amusement to many with his ridiculous diatribe on behalf of, not the Opposition, but those poor, innocent, deluded young men and women at heart. Liberals who would not, after all, see the House of Commons converted to a discotheque!

What these gentlemen failed to realize is that by the time that the d a s h i n g Frenchman was also a canny Scot.

We knew too, t h a t things would be off to a slow start. I let the war with my husband go on.

"Before a house can be built, the site must be cleared." Well, the site is being cleared and already the cement mixers are turning and what is more important is that the architect has an eye for beauty and symmetry as well as durability.

No. Mr. Jackson, our Man from La Mancha does not have feet of clay, but he does have an Achilles' heel — he is incapable of betraying those who have put their trust in him.

Perhaps, after all, Trudeaumania was just another word for patriotism, perhaps we should mention the absence of reference to Queen, Commonwealth, Governor, in the throne speech. From the point-of-view of someone still British enough to double Union Jack, Heaven preserve us from as many as meaningless and nauseating as an American Pledge of Allegiance. Loyalty to the Queen? By George, cela va sans dire n'est — ce — pas?

BETTY SADLER.

Picton's Economy at Stake

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Proctor-Silex is a subsidiary of a large American firm that caused here in Canada to reap a harvest from Canadians. Where did they locate? Picton, the small town. Where the wages are small and a millionaire owns the factory and the land about. Some of the people in this town bow down to this man — but not the working man or woman.

We in the Quinte area are in sympathy with the strikers of Proctor-Silex. Picton will be no thing more than a small place as long as you have the employer that is running it now.

Think small and be small. Think big and grow.

Canada Needs Own System

Two Sets of Rules in Labor Disputes

Arbitration in Australia and established union - management machinery in Sweden were recognized means of settling strikes in those countries, but where Canada was concerned labor and management should evolve their own system of preserving industrial harmony, a union official told Belleville Rotarians yesterday.

Eamon Park, assistant director in Canada of the United Steelworkers of America, suggested that a respected body like the Economic Council of Canada, could act in an advisory capacity for both union and management to help bring about strike settlements.

"We have not yet been able in Canada to develop any common criteria by which we can make judgments of issues before us. We cannot agree, for example, on what constitutes productivity and the parties do not discussions with completely different sets of rules.

Mr. Park said the development of common criteria was one of the reasons for the success of the Swedish system. Researchers from both unions and management in Sweden join the economic field . . ."

In Canada, Mr. Park suggested the Economic Council could go into such subjects as wage parity between Canada and the United States, welfare and insurances programs.

The union official cited the difficulties caused by multiple bargaining situations as occurred with Domtar when there were 108 bargaining units represented by 27 national and international unions. There was difficulty in coming to grips with the problems, although we did devise a technique in the end."

In an oblique reference to the Procter-Silex dispute, Mr. Park said: "There is a need for common ground — the sort of common ground which might have prevented the kind of strike we have at Picton . . . You can then afford to be objective, whereas if you sit down as union and management you are subjective."

Mr. Park claimed informal negotiations between unions and managements have led to better understanding between them in the last five years. What was needed was "formalization" and a transference of this trend to the economy as a whole.

The Irish-born steelworkers' official, a former NDP parliamentary candidate, said it was always strikes that hit the news, but not the settlements. "There are always more settlements than there are strikes taking place."

Of the arbitration system in Australia, Mr. Park said it had been found over the years that per capita there had been more strikes and more days lost in that country than in Canada.

"The situation there became so grim some years ago that the whole system of arbitration nearly broke down under the threat of a general strike."

The Swedish system, said Mr. Park, was devised by management and labor themselves and was accepted by the government. "One of the things that is very good about the Swedish system is that it involves individual unions and managements giving up a part of their respective authority to central bodies representing each and letting them make the decisions."

Mr. Park said he thought a similar plan could evoke interest in both labor and management circles in Canada if it were put forward here.

Book Bargain Bonanza

Prince Edward County's University Women's book sale cleared mountains of literature at bargain basement prices. Proceeds from the sale go towards scholarships for two county students.

Proceeds Provide Bursaries

PICTON — Books are dispensing knowledge in more ways than one in this town.

Last week the local University Women's Club netted $375 from its annual book sale that draws buyers from as far away at the Niagara Peninsula.

The proceeds are awarded as scholarships to high school students.

Club president Mrs. Gordon Walmsley reported sale returns increased about $50 over 1967.

Two high school graduates now at Queen's University receive $100 scholarships. They are Lindley Baxter and Henry Wemekamp.

Greta Wemekamp, sister of the present recipient, receives a $50 scholarship as a top Grade 12 graduate.

Around the "Cat"

The women's section of the Lawn Bowling Club closed a successful season on Saturday with competition for the Bradley Cup, a pot luck supper and the election of officers for the ensuing year.

Several reports were given by the various committee chairmen and the financial report showed the section in excellent condition.

Phyllis Graham presided at the meeting following the supper and after the new slate of officers were selected, Anne Watkin thanked the president for her efforts during the year.

The slate of officers proposed by Grace Clapp of the membership and were, presendorsed unanimously by the members hip and were, president Miss Marg Fairburn, past president, Phyllis Graham, 1st vice president, Thelma Fitzgibbon, secretary, Anne Avery, Treasurer, Joan Gray, House committee, Flossie Coleman and Grace Clapp, women's tournaments, Betty Vince, Thursday games, Irene Trudeau, Tuesday games, Marg Fairburn, special tournament committee, Marg Sherman, Publicity Thelma Fitzgibbon, Sunshine committee, Irene Trudeau, Telephone committee, Kay Doherty, Nominating committee, Grace Clapp and auditors, Anne Watkin and Cleta Gilbert.

The winners of the Brading Cup were Dorothy Price and Grace Clapp and in second place a rink of Helen Darrah, Irene Trudeau with Milla Smith as skip and in third place Louise Summers, Anne Avery with Phyllis Graham as skip. Three games were played.

A local rink of John Sager, Wally Lawrence and Bill Fuller as skip won the Snowbird tournament in Kingston on Saturday. Sixteen rinks from the district took part. Another local rink of "Jerry" Hyde Jr., Roy Hall with Gerald B. "Jerry" Hyde as skip won the one-game high score.

Ed Dennison's rink from Kingston was the two-game high winner.

Another rink from the local club of Art Bradden, Ken Ashley with Frank Morrell as skip failed to get into the prize list.

A successful White Elephant Jitney was held at the bowling greens on Friday evening with a large number in attendance. The Jitney was in charge of Bob Semple. At the conclusion of the games the bowlers enjoyed a feed of southern fried chicken.

Hasty Pees Reunion Oct. 12-14

Veterans of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment will hold their 24th annual reunion in Belleville on the weekend of Oct. 12-14.

The qualifications for membership to the reunion have been extended to ensure continuity.

Anyone who has an unblemished military record, is over 21 years of age and who has served at least three years with the regiment (reserve unit), is now eligible for membership.

Farley Mowat has been slated as guest speaker.

Highlights for the weekend include a Saturday evening dance at the armory; the annual meeting of the association on Sunday; a church parade to the cenotaph at noon Sunday and a regimental banquet.

Key To Feminine Response In Marriage

Over the centuries, millions of words have been unsuccessfully devoted to unravelling the mystery of woman. New facts about a hidden masculine fear that affects the sexual performance of two-thirds of all women, and a simple exercise, provide startling confidence to countless women who've never known it before. Here are the little known findings from Ronald M. Deutsch's current book—approved by 5 leading gynecologists. One of 35 articles and features in the October Reader's Digest, including:

- How to say "No" to your children.
- The Bible: A good book for our times.
- "To the Last Heartbeat" by Dr. Philip Blalberg.

Night School:

Moira Still Open...at Trenton 500

Registration for night school courses at Moira Secondary School is down from former years.

Total number registering Monday night was 211.

"Wednesday night will tell the story," commented principal Linton Neal. "We shall hold all registration open until 9 p.m. Wednesday. Latecomers will still have a chance to enrol in one of our courses."

Courses that definitely will be held are mathematics for grades 11 and 13, physical fitness for women, elementary sewing, conversational French, public speaking, the English refresher course, and welding.

A few more registrations are needed for advanced auto mechanics, elementary bookkeeping, wood working, the English refresher course, elementary typewriting, welding, elementary art (Mrs. Scrubby), advanced art (Mrs. Philippa Faulkner).

Asked for the reason for the drop in enrolment, Mr. Neal said: "For the first time in 20 years, the fee was raised, but even $10 a course is one of the lowest rates in the province."

Loyalist College is offering 40 courses that have attracted many interested citizens. In all honesty, Belleville has never been a night school city compared to other centres of similar size.

"It may be that this year we have reached a plateau. Perhaps people are too involved in other interests at the moment. There is no simple answer to this kind of problem."

Registration for night school courses will be held tonight at BCIVS and again Wednesday at Moira.

TRENTON — Trenton adults last night proved they want to better themselves as over 500 registered for night school at Trenton High School.

The registration was down 50 from last year but, Thorne Spear, night school principal said he was "greatly pleased" with the turnout and that a staff of 30 teachers will instruct the classes.

The staff will consist of high school teachers and outside instructors from other schools and from Canadian Forces Base Trenton.

"The classes average anywhere from 15 to 40," explained Mr. Spear.

He said if the classes exceeded 40 persons they would have to be split into smaller classes.

Mr. Spear expects an additional 100 persons to register throughout the term which will continue until Easter.

The classes are formed according to those subjects which receive the most interest and present studies range from typing to welding.

The night school operation at Trenton High School began in 1958.

Council Briefs

CAMPBELLFORD —Campbellford Council was asked for and granted a $2,000 loan to the Community Centre Board. This is to be short term, three months — to be paid back by December 15th when the arena board hopes revenue will be available to the Centre.

Dissatisfaction was expressed a year ago with the cement construction of the arena floor. Cracks had shown on Monday evening. Its engineering firm Totten, Sims, Hubicki Associates responsible suggested Council accept the offer of subcontractor Dorex Limited to repair the floor at no expense to the town.

Ameliasburg Council Buys Oil Paintings

AMELIASBURG — The Rev. Bowen Squier collection depicting life in Canada in the early days has been purchased by council for the township's museum here.

Reeve George Cunningham said council voted to pay $1,500 for 12 oil paintings and the Rev. Squier agreed to throw in a wide assortment of artifacts and Indian relics for good measure to seal the bargain.

This winter the Squier acquisition will be stored pending opening of the museum in the spring. Pieces of the collection may be loaned to other museums if there is not room available on the present premises to display all of the specimens together.

The museum board recently reported council attendance at the museum since it opened in July was nearing the 2,000 mark.

Last Sunday the 2,000th visitor was honored with a presentation of candy, flowers and a permanent pass to the museum.

Three sisters from Brighton, Virginia, the Brenda, 11 and Nancy, 8 daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Colsher held the museum register while nurse C. Shesnick of Trenton signed in.

Trenton Evacuation Zone In Event of Nuclear War

TRENTON — The town of Trenton has a specific role to play in the event of a nuclear war and the co-ordinator of the Emergency Measures Organization last night told the Rotary Club here just what that role was.

Angus B. Duffy labelled a nuclear war as "something which cannot be ignored."

"I am against it like everyone else, said Mr. Duffy, "but we must be ready if it realistically — it could happen."

According to the emergency measures co - ordinator it would be impossible for Canada not to be involved.

"We in this country, due to our position, are geographically involved and we must accept this fact."

The province of Ontario is divided into seven zones in relation to emergency measures in case of such a war.

"Trenton is in zone four and as such is responsible for welfare reception of evacuated persons," explained Mr. Duffy.

"You must be prepared to accept over three times your present population."

To do this effectively, Mr. Duffy emphasized the need for continuity of authority and maintenance of effective emergency services.

"The reception of evacuated persons is a big job and we will use the present civic centres."

To handle the job he estimated a staff of 50 persons would be needed. Mr. Duffy emphasized that it will not be "get too technical."

"It is survival we're after, and all we need are the basics in food, clothing and shelter."

A medical centre would be set up in each area away from the schools which would be used as reception centres.

"But it is all to plan," emphasized Mr. Duffy, "if you do not realize that such a war can break out."

He continually stressed the need to take the warning siren seriously.

"When you hear them turn on your radio to find out if there is a potential attack — this is the most important step as you then know action must be taken."

Quebec Group Objects to Expelling Pregnant Teen-age Students

OTTAWA (CP) — Schools should stop expelling teen-age girls when they become pregnant, the royal commission on the status of women was told Monday night by a group of Quebec psychologists.

"This policy hinders the immediate advancement of the pregnant girl's studies and seriously impairs her scholastic training and preparation for a career, and therefore her future," the Corporation of Psychologists of Quebec said in a brief.

"The young unwed mother should be able to complete the academic year in her own school . . . or after her confinement to resume her studies at the school regardless of her plans for her child."

The psychologists asked for a reassessment of "the system of values which decrees that certain types of sexual behavior are illegal and abnormal for women, yet tolerated, if not accepted, for men."

The brief asked for more sex education for adolescent girls and for consultation services that would help young unwed mothers during their pregnancies.

Earlier in the public hearing, the commission was told that many girls found wandering city streets are picked up by police and convicted of vagrancy even though they have committed no criminal offence.

Mrs. George Olden, chairman of the Ontario Elizabeth Fry societies—voluntary agencies working with female offenders —said most big cities have built hostels where men can go when they find themselves homeless. But such provision is seldom made for girls, who are branded with criminal records arising from vagrancy charges.

In their brief to the commission, the societies appealed for different and more humane treatment of women criminals, who too often are shunted to one side in a court-and-jail structure designed for men.

Rosemary Hodgins of Toronto told the Commission:

"Our male legislators, judges and police seem to have a mental picture of a criminal as a man or a boy

"We can no longer excuse their stubborn refusal to look at the well-documented differences between male and female offenders."

Another society worker, Mrs. R. J. Booker, said courts dealing with non-violent women offenders should make greater use of probation services and should consider sending women alcholics and addicts to hospital rather than to jail.

Church Groups

HOLLOWAY ST. UNITED CHURCH WOMEN

The general meeting of Holloway St. United Church Women was held in the Education Hall on Sept. 24th. Mrs. Leonard Reid's unit was in charge of the devotional.

Mrs. Harrison from Plainfield was the guest speaker and gave a talk on Christian Citizenship and Social Action. She said that first we should look for the need in our own community, then to the National affairs with our Eskimos and Indians and third at World affairs by giving donations to help in Biafra and Viet Nam.

Mrs. White sang a solo accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Hubbs. A report on the School for Leaders held at Albert College in June was given by the two delegates Mrs. Henderson and Mrs. Richardson.

October is a very busy month with several important dates to remember. Oct. 10th Hastings County Home Bazaar; 27th, Anniversary Sunday; 28th, UCW Rally in Grace United Church, Trenton; 30th, our own Church Bazaar being held afternoon and evening.

After the conclusion of the meeting, lunch was served by Mrs. Coulter's Unit.

CLUB 4-H NOTES

The first meeting of the Wallbridge 4-H Club was held at the home of Mrs. Don Shorey, on September 4. The leaders for this project are: Mrs. Shorey and Mrs. Evens.

Officers elected were: president, Susan Evans; vice-president, Judith Loshaw; press reporter, Deborah Parks. Following a discussion on "why we eat fruit," Mrs. Shorey demonstrated the proper equipment and the method used for measuring both dry and liquid ingredients.

The September 11 meeting of the Wallbridge 1, "Fruit Cubes," was held at the home of Mrs. Evans.

Several topics on the subject of fruit were discussed. As a home assignment, members were told to list the fruit grown in their area and to prepare and serve apples some way for supper.

This third meeting of the Wallbridge 1 was held at the home of Mrs. Evens, on September 18. The major discussion topic was "Fruit all year round". Demonstrations were given on how to make an oven-steamed fruit pudding. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Evans.

The Melrose Cheerie Cherries held their third meeting at the home of Mrs. McLaren on Sept. 23.

The meeting was opened with the 4-H pledge. The minutes of the last meeting were read by Sandra Weese. At this meeting Mrs. McLaren discussed the different types of canned fruits and their grades.

Mrs. McLaren demonstrated how to make oven mixed steamed pudding with the aid of the 4-H girls. Next meeting is to be held at the home of Mrs. Sherman on Sept. 30.

MR. AND MRS. GARRY L. WOODCOX

Woodcox – Rice

Bridge St. United Church was the scene of the September 21 wedding, when Rev. H. Davis united in marriage Kathleen Lynda Rice, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. W. Rice, of Belleville, to Garry Lee Woodcox, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. Woodcox, of Stirling. Mr. Gordon rendered the traditional wedding music.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a mini dress of textured peau de soie, featuring long lace sleeves with scalloped edges. Her headdress featured two flowers, adding to the effect of the shoulder length veil. She carried a bouquet of orange delight roses surrounded by green and white 'mums.

Maid of honor was Miss Grace Clemens, who was attired in a pale orange, crepe dress enhanced by a square neckline and long sleeves. Her headpiece, gloves and shoes were in pale lime green, complemented by the nosegay of green tinted 'mums which she carried.

Attending the bridegroom was Gerald Langman; while the ushers were Howard Van Volkenberg, Belleville and J. Barron Jr., of Stirling.

For the wedding reception held in the Tops Motel, the mother of the bride received her guests wearing a two piece beige jacket dress with matching accessories, and a turquoise feathered hat. A corsage of turquoise tinted 'mums completed her outfit. Assisting her, the mother of the bridegroom was attired in a two piece green and white jacket dress with brown accessories and a complementing corsage of bronze tone 'mums.

For the wedding trip, the bride donned a long sleeve psychedelic mini dress with a scooped neckline, accented by green accessories. Upon their return, the couple will reside in Trenton.

NO ONE SEES HER

VANCOUVER COP — Patsy Mallek, 21, has a job that allows her to work with stars in the dark. She began this month as Canada's first planetarium lecturer at the H. R. MacMillan Planetarium here. "It's a shame people won't be able to see her," said David Rodger, the curator. "For Canada's first, she's most attractive."

Local Music Teachers Plan Coming Season

The Belleville Branch of the Ontario Registered Music Teachers' Association opened its fall season with a meeting held at the home of Mrs. G. S. Martin, 23 Southview Ave. Seventeen teachers from this area were in attendance.

The meeting, conducted by new president, Mrs. D. Wall, opened with expressions of appreciation to Mrs. Rennie, past president, for her service the past two years.

Following adoption of the minutes of the May meeting, plans were made for the fall season. A workshop is to be held and discussion of membership in the Quinte Arts Council was held. It was decided that a representative of the council come and speak regarding status of active and non-active membership. Unanimous consent to continue with the student recitals was given.

There was a discussion on scholarships and it was decided that scholarships for all grades from five through ten would be raised. In order to provide funds for this purpose the admission price at recitals will in future be adults 50 cents and children not playing 25 cents.

A report of the activities of the Belleville Music Festival, sponsored by the Business Guild was given by Sister Mary Avila, who reported that the syllabus was nearly ready and should be in print soon.

The teachers were asked again to support this festival to be held the last week of February, 1969.

Following adjournment, members expressed regret at the illness of former secretary, Mrs. Townsend and voted to have Miss Wardhaugh write her a letter of appreciation for her work as secretary over the past few years.

GIRL GUIDE, BROWNIE NEWS

BELLEVILLE DIVISION COMMITTEE

The Division Committee for the Guides and Brownies of Belleville met recently at the home of the Division Commissioner, Mrs. T. R. Colden, with the Commissioner in charge.

The area dinner will be held in Trenton on Oct. 17. All Round Cords and Gold Cords, as well as other awards, will be presented at that time.

Mrs. A. Bannon, Camp Advisor, reported that 168 girls attended the area camp at Waupoos this summer. Each girl is asked to support this camp with a donation of 25 cents per year. Belleville's contribution was $170.25.

Mrs. Ashley of St. John Ambulance, will register older guides on Oct. 12 for a course on Child Care, to begin Oct. 26.

A training for new Guide and Brownie leaders will be held in Trenton in November.

SOCIAL

Prior to her marriage, Mrs. Garry Woodcox (nee Kathy Rice) was presented with a gift from her co-workers, of the Toronto Dominion Bank in Toronto; also, a miscellaneous shower was held in her honor at the home of Mrs. Fred Deacey, with Miss Gracie Clemens of Belleville as hostess.

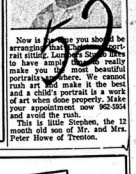
Two Deseronto Residents Honored At Farewell Parties



DESERONTO — Last Friday two farewell parties were held for ladies who are moving away in the near future. Mrs. Vernon Boomhour was the hostess, and Mrs. James Gaylord was joint hostess when a number of friends gathered to honor Mrs. Gerald Moody, to express their regret that she is leaving Deseronto after such a short stay.

Mrs. Moody and her husband are leaving in October to return to their home in Hagersville. Mr. Moody came to Deseronto in January as Chief of Police, and resigned recently. Mrs. Moody was presented with a farewell gift by her friends.

Mrs. Roy Robertson, a long time resident, came several years ago when she and her husband retired from farming. The couple intend to take up residence in Napanee. She leaves many friends behind her, several of whom met Friday evening at the home of Mrs. Ethel Vandewater and Mrs. E. L. Tunnicliffe to bid her farewell, and present her with a gift.

SWAM TO SAFETY

HONG KING AP — An 18-year-old Chinese girl and her 19-year-old friend swam a mile from Red China to win sanctuary, authorities reported. They were plucked out of the water by Hong Kong police on the British side.

Here's Help With Hallowe'en Plans

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: My sister and I want to have a Hallowe'en Party with the new gang at school.

These kids are really super and we want to put on something they will enjoy. We haven't much money and not very much room, but Dad says we can crowd them into the living room and dining room and that he and Mom will make themselves scarce in the kitchen. Except that they will help with the food. They are super too! — Twins.

Dear Twins: If you've got the right fun-makers, you can put on a party in a tent. It's the spirit that counts, especially on Hallowe'en.

"Hallowe'en, A Night That's Meant For Fun", is my latest leaflet of Hallowe'en games and refreshments. I am sending this along with the basic one: "Throwing a Hallowe'en Frolic", which supplies ideas about invitations, weird sound effects, ghostly games, food and drink.

(Both may be had by sending in 10 cents for each one, specifying what is desired, and enclosing a large stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

* * *

Dear Doris: We have a 16-year-old grandson who is troubled with nerves and gets very sudden at times, in his head. He also cannot seem to concentrate at school and failed his year. He is big and tall.

I see where you have a leaflet on Schizophrenia. Now, I do not know what ails the boy but their doctor advised them to take him to a psychiatrist for skilled help. But our son says he is not crazy and won't take him.

Would you please send me the leaflet, also any help the boy could get, perhaps on his own. — Sincerely and Upset.

Dear Upset: What makes Pop think being crazy is the only reason for consulting a psychiatrist?

We humans are such mixed up bundles of mental, physical and emotional factors that sorting them out is a challenge to the best informed. This goes for social workers, doctors, psychiatrists, ministers and anybody else who struggles away at it.

If the boy's father refuses the medical advice he is getting, don't for goodness' sake compound the insult by doing an amateur and highly unlikely diagnosis of schizophrenia.

I take a dim view of a father's mental balance when he refuses to enlist what help there is in his son's behalf.

* * *

Dear Doris: We are engaged. He is 22 and I am 18. For the past couple of months he has been going away early in the morning or late afternoon and he never returns until late at night. I just sit in and wait for him.

When I tell him I am going somewhere he says "No, you don't need to." I am going nuts just sitting in the house all the time. I do really love him and I don't want to break up with him. I know that I couldn't live without him. — Can't Take It.

Dear Can't: But if he is gone all the time, wouldn't you be living without him, even after the wedding ceremony?

The crux of the matter is, where does he go? Is he working late and building a future for you to share? Or living a double life?

A girl has to sacrifice sometimes. If the present set-up continues without any explanation, I'd say he is a poor bet for marriage.

(Don't just muddle along. Do something about what's troubling you. A letter to Doris can put you on the way to more Successful Living.)

Kitchen Tested Recipes

A Continuation of Pudding Recipes

By MARY MOORE

Yesterday, I gave you recipes for making Vanilla, Chocolate and Caramel Pudding Mix and also told you how to make up the Vanilla Pudding Mix and promised to give directions for making up the Chocolate and Caramel mixes today.

CHOCOLATE PUDDING (MIX (Serves 6)

NOTE: The Chocolate Pudding is the most popular. Add 2¼ cups hot water, and cook and stir over boiling water until thick. Cover and cook 10 minutes. Remove from heat and add 1 tbsp. butter. Pour some over 1 (or 2) slightly beaten egg, return to double boiler and stir 1 min. Remove from heat and add ½ tsp. vanilla. Pour into serving dishes and chill.

CARAMEL PUDDING (Serves 8)

Add 4 cups hot water, stir well, and stir over boiling water until thick. Cover and cook 10 minutes. Remove from heat, add 1½ tbsps. butter and pour a little over 1 (or 2) slightly beaten egg. Stir, then return all to double boiler and cook, stirring 1 min. Remove from heat, add 1 tsp. vanilla. Pour into serving dishes and chill.

Suggestions for additions when serving:

Serve the Vanilla Pudding with milk or cream or fresh or frozen strawberries, raspberries or peaches or any fresh fruit in season. Smashing with fresh blueberries. Or top with whipped cream and some chopped nuts.

Serve the Chocolate Pudding with milk or cream or whipped cream topped with coconut or nuts, or green-tinted, mint-flavored whipped cream or commercial whipped topping.

Serve Caramel Pudding with milk or cream (pouring or whipped) and fresh sliced bananas or chopped almonds or walnuts or pecans.

I have been thinking that the 20 servings that this total mix makes would be a dandy and economical dessert for a party of 20 people. If you make the three variations and serve them in skeramed dishes they are three different colors. At a church supper, if these were placed in alternate groups of three each at the table settings, or on a buffet table, you would have a pretty color effect.

We will make extra copies of these two columns giving Pudding Mix. Anyone requiring them should enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope and 10 cents with their request, mailed to this news. paper.

Locked Bedroom No Place to Study

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Usually I agree with your advice but this time your old-fashioned rigidity has turned me against you. I refer to the teen-age girl whose father blew up because she and her boyfriend were studying in the bedroom. You agreed with the parent.

Why all the fuss over a bedroom? Sex occurs on beaches, in haystacks, in cars, on back porches, in telephone booths and just about any place you can name. Sure, there's a bed in the bedroom, but if sex is what people have in mind they don't need a bed. A girl won't do something in her bedroom that she hasn't already done somewhere else.

My bedroom happens to be the best place in the house to study because it is quiet, private and has a desk in it. Thanks for letting me blow off a little steam. — FITCHERBERG, MASS.

* * *

DEAR FITCH: You are a persuasive young lady. — but you left out a vital part of the father's complaint. The girl's bedroom door was locked. I wish you kids who write as well would read a little better.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: To the guy who signed himself "Artistotle's Brother-in-Law" and wondered what women do all day beside drink coffee and talk on the phone — I found out when my wife had to go to the hospital. It was during my vacation so I had a real opportunity to play housewife full time.

I cooked three perfectly rotten meals every day, did nine loads of laundry, tried to iron some shirts and work shirts — scorched the shorts and knocked the buttons off the shirts. I gave up trying to clean the house or make the beds. No sooner did I get one room in shape when the kids tore up the one I had just finished.

How my wife manages to keep up the house and yard, garnish, cook, wash and iron, take the kids to the dentist and Scouts, sew costumes for them, bake cakes and pies, do club work and drive her mother around, is beyond me.

The average American housewife is a miracle worker. Any guy who doubts it should try to walk in her tennis shoes for a couple of days. — SMARTER NOW.

* * *

DEAR SMARTER: That sound you hear is millions of women blowing you kisses.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: For five years, ever since Jean and our son Rob have been married, they have spent Mother's Day, Father's Day, Thanksgiving, Christmas, Easter and the 4th of July with the other grandparents. We get them on St. Patrick's Day and Labor Day.

This year we want Jean and Rob and the grandchildren with us for Thanksgiving or Christmas. My husband had a heart attack in April and his health is not good. Jean's parents are much younger than we are and they will probably have many more years to enjoy the little ones. Shall I speak to Jean's parents about releasing them? — WISHING FAIRNESS

* * *

DEAR WISH: Releasing them from what? Did they sign a contract in blood? Talk to your son and Jean. Tell them how you feel. If they are interested in being fair, they will agree to alternate the Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays — one with you and the other with Jean's parents.

Wallace Moves Into Michigan After Drawing Chicago Crowds

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) —Presidential candidate George C. Wallace stumps through Michigan today, a state he predicts he will win in November if the mail he has received from voters is an accurate indication.

Wallace speaks in Grand Rapids, Kalamazoo, Lansing and Flint today.

He spoke to 10,000 persons Monday at an open-air rally in Cicero, a suburb of Chicago.

Earlier Monday, he was greeted by tens of thousands who lined the sidewalks of State Street to see the former Alabama governor. Police estimated the crowd at 50,000.

Wallace said he hoped to name a vice-presidential candidate "within the next day or so."

Meanwhile, Glen Parker, the Connecticut co-ordinator of the Wallace for President Committee, said in New Haven the former Alabama governor would name retired Air Force Gen. Curtis E. LeMay as his running mate.

LeMay is the retired air force chief of staff, and once headed the Strategic Air Command. He is currently a consultant with a California Aerospace firm.

Wallace said the American independent party platform will be announced this week during his swing through Ohio, Pennsylvania, Indiana, New York and New Jersey—states thick with electoral votes which he needs to boost his drive to the White House.

In Cicero, a working-class white community of 60,000, Wallace drew loud applause when he denied open housing, lawlessness and proponents of submission in Vietnam.

In 1966, National Guard troops were called to preserve order in Cicero when Negroes marched through the community in support of legislation to open housing to Negroes.

Wallace touched on various subjects, saying:

—He could not judge whether a bombing halt would be desirable in January after the new president takes office, but he said he would be for it if a halt helped the peace negotiations.

—He remained firmly against the use of nuclear weapons.

—He is sorry that Negroes believe he is a racist and he will try to dispel that image in his campaign.

Grace MacInnis Calls For 'Just Society' Now

OTTAWA (CP) — For some Canadians, the "just society" just can't be postponed, the Commons' only woman member told her colleagues Monday.

Grace MacInnis (NDP—Vancouver-Kingsway) called for creation of a human research council to concentrate especially on city problems.

At present there is a scandalous waste of "human energy" in treating social ills caused by bad housing, bad town planning and pollution, she said.

Research could help take people off the welfare rolls and onto the taxpayers' rolls.

Mrs. MacInnis spoke just before the Commons passed a supply bill releasing $3,776,197,000 for the government to pay its bills.

Later it also adopted a resolution setting up a 12-member committee to look into the exercise of power by government boards, commissions and the government itself, when it acts through orders-in-council.

By the end of the sitting the House had turned to a series of measures designed to produce more money for farm loans—with higher interest rates set by the government.

MPs were to return to this subject today after dealing with one resolution on publication of statutes side by side in English and French and another authorizing a CNR line to petroleum properties in western Alberta.

A highlight of Monday's sitting was an announcement by External Affairs Minister Sharp of a $1,500,000 sale of surplus Canadian corn to France—designed to safeguards against use of the material for nuclear weapons.

The House was also informed by Postmaster-General Kierans that a study group has been set up to study the feasibility of turning the post office into a Crown corporation.

In the supply debate, the spotlight was shared by Mrs. MacInnis, Creditiste Leader Real Caouette, who had some pointed remarks about France and a visit there with a parliamentary delegation.

The six-member delegation was royally and tactfully treated, he said.

"But before trying to solve our problems, they should look after their own."

France didn't have enough capital to prevent last week's takeover of its Citroen auto company by the Italian Fiat concern, he said.

French wages were half those in Canada, with an auto worker earning $2,300-$2,400 a year, and butter cost $1.35 a pound.

At the Royale Hote where he stayed, Mr. Caouette said, the toilet was at the end of the hall.

"From the point of view of modern living they have no idea what it is all about."

Canadians were told that France is coming to their salvation, the Creditiste leader said.

"It is far more probable that Canada will have to save France."

Mrs. MacInnis, however, sketched a picture of grim living conditions for many Canadians.

Half the population is living in "varying degrees of insecurity and frustration," she said, while one in five lives in poverty.

"I am afraid this government does not realize that there are in our country people for whom the just society cannot be put off until next year, the year after that or the year after that. . . .

She noted that more than $27,000,000 has been set aside this year for the Medical Research Council and wondered why money couldn't be spent on a human research council.

"I wonder whether we have any idea of the cost of poor housing across this country.

"I wonder if any estimate has been made of how much taxpayers' money is going into the cost of physical and mental illness, delinquency and crime, family breakdown, divorce and all the other social ills which stem from bad housing.

"I think there is a scandalous waste of taxpayers' money in these directions."

The biggest single waste of human resources is in the waste of woman power, Mrs MacInnis said.

Housewives who had to go out to work had no adequate care facilities for their children and couldn't be trained under manpower legislation because they were married.

"Women scorned are notoriously apt to turn on the people who do the scorning," Mrs. MacInnis warned her male colleagues.

"I feel sure that the women of this country are just beginning to get well organized. I should like to see this woman power harnessed."

Mexican Students Renew Their Call For Wide Reforms

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Striking students moved back into the University of Mexico Monday night after the army moved out and they vowed to continue a campaign against the government for reforms.

A call for support from students abroad to help in a fight against "30 years of political demagoguery and corruption of the Mexican government" raised anew the possibility that student strife could interfere with the 1968 Olympics which open here Oct. 12.

It was a fear that students would upset the Olympics that brought about the army's occupation of the university Sept. 18.

Olympic Stadium is across the way from the university campus and Olympic Village, where the athletes are staying, is just two miles away.

Eight hours after the 1,300 army troops started their withdrawal from the campus, the students' council met and drew up a statement saying they would stick to their original demands for settlement of their strike.

"Here in Mexico we plan to keep opposing army violence and police clubs," one council member said.

The students' demands include firing of top police officials, disbanding of the riot police force called Granaderos, repeal of subversion laws and indemnity payments for those injured or killed in the rioting that began July 26.

Police action in dispersing students involved in an original outburst in mid-July brought charges from students of police brutality and subsequently their demands.

One of the speakers at the council meeting denied the students plotted against the Olympic Games.

Government spokesmen have said that troops were sent into the campus, violating 40 years of autonomy, because a plot had come to light to seize Olympic Stadium.

Catholics Told to Try To Understand Atheists

OTTAWA (CP) — The Roman Catholic Church calls on all Christians in a booklet issued today to seek understanding with atheists.

The 32-page publication, Dialogue with Non-Believers, was issued in Ottawa by Most Rev. Emanuele Clarizio, apostolic delegate in Canada. It was also being issued in Rome.

The Vatican-published booklet, a guide for clergy and laity, was written by the church's secretariat for non-believers established in 1965 and headed by Franziskus Cardinal Koenig, archbishop of Vienna.

The guide describes non-believers as those who deny the existence of God, as opposed to those who believe in God but not in the mission of Christ such as Jews and Moslems.

Delegate Clarizio described the booklet at an introductory news conference as "a very liberal document."

Christians are encouraged to approach non-believers with "respect and love" and enter into dialogue designed to create "an atmosphere of deeper understanding and mutual esteem and respect."

"Willingness to engage in dialogue is an aspect of the true renewal of the church, which also calls for a more positive appreciation of human freedom," the guide says.

Proposing dialogue both between individuals and between groups adhering to different doctrines, the booklet adds:

"Dialogue is not simply a confrontation of views, because it implies on both sides a movement of rapprochement and a deeper understanding."

The booklet makes formal for laity the approval of discussions with atheists already indicated by such private meetings as a conference of Christian and Marxist thinkers in April, 1967, at Marienbad, Czechoslovakia.

It says discussions should be conducted in "complete freedom."

However, the booklet cautions that the aim of dialogue with non-believers "must be good in itself or reducible to good, and therefore, should be based on values which are more fundamental, such as integrity of doctrine and the rights of human person (such as civil, cultural and religious liberty)."

Further, it suggests private talks are preferable to public dialogue — which could deteriorate into "unseemly argument" and the Christian part should be taken by experts who enter in "doctrinal preparation . . . moral authority, efficacy of speech and presentation."

Written dialogue, through newspapers and other publications, should be handled cautiously "because of the greater repercussions and wider diffusion of the written word."

Sharp Off to Join In UN Receptions

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp arrives from Ottawa this afternoon to join the swelling ranks of political figures attending the 23rd United Nations General Assembly.

Sharp will deliver a speech Oct. 9 setting forth Canada's views on world affairs. It will be part of the 125-nation assembly's general debate, which will last most of October. Possibly 80 ministers, ranging from prime ministers down, will be here at some time or other during the month.

Busy on the UN scene Monday was State Secretary Dean Rusk of the United States who conferred separately with Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban and Secretary-General U Thant.

The Israeli minister, after his 75-minute conference with Rusk, told reporters a four-power guarantee of the sovereignty of Israel could not substitute for a settlement of the Middle East conflict based on direct Israeli-Arab negotiations.

A Big Four guarantee was part of a peace plan promoted by the Soviet Union and already rejected by Israel.

Eban said he will give the world body Israel's "detailed view of peace" Oct. 8.

In June, 1967, Israel seized chunks of Egyptian, Jordanian and Syrian land which it contends is owning pending a peace settlement.

Sharp has two receptions on tap tonight. He is attending one given for Rusk by George W. Ball, who last week resigned as the chief U.S. delegate at the UN in order to take an important part in Hubert H. Humphrey's campaign for the U.S. presidency.

The second reception, at the home of Ambassador George Ignatieff, Canada's permanent UN representative, will allow him to meet most members of the Canadian diplomatic "family" in New York.

On Thursday, Sharp will be host at a luncheon in honor of Emilio Arenales, Guatemalan foreign minister who is president of the 23rd assembly. The guest list will include Rusk, Foreign Minister Corneliu Manescu of Romania, External Affairs Minister Paul Hasluck of Australia, and a dozen other foreign ministers.

Private meetings also have been or are being arranged between Sharp and foreign ministers from Japan, Nigeria, France, Nationalist China, Britain, Tunisia and other lands.

Other luncheons which he will attend will enable Sharp to confer with almost all political figures here. These include one next Monday by Thant for all the foreign ministers.

On the eve of his assembly speech, Sharp is to be guest of honor at a reception given by Sydney Freifeld, counsellor and press officer of the Canadian mission.

U. S. Tells Russia To Take Plan to UN

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has told the Soviet Union it should take any Middle East peace solutions to the UN General Assembly, and not seek bilateral talks.

This, officials say, is the gist of a U.S. reply to a four-point plan proposed to the United States by Moscow two weeks ago for ending the state of war between Israel and the Arab nations.

The U.S. called for revitalization of the effort to find a solution though Swedish diplomat Gunnar Jarring, who was appointed by UN Secretary-General U Thant more than a year ago to mediate the dispute.

A high-ranking U.S. official said today no "side pocket" talks between the United States and Soviet Union should confuse the issue.

President of SIU Comes Under Fire

TORONTO (CP) — Roderick Heinekey of Vancouver charged Monday at a news conference that Leonard McLaughlin, president of the Seafarers International Union of Canada, and his associates, have expense accounts that make former union leader Hal C. Banks "look like a piker."

Mr. Heinekey today starts a campaign to challenge Mr. McLaughlin for the union presidency.

A former executive vice-president with the Seafarers, Mr. Heinekey resigned in 1966 with $20,000 severance pay after a fight with another union member in Vancouver.

Mr. Heinekey accused Mr. McLaughlin of bad administration practices and condoning poor collective agreements with ship operators.

He criticized the SIU pension plan, which he claims results in higher benefits for executive board members.

He said Mr. McLaughlin would be able to draw $720 a month after 20 years, compared to $100 a month after the same length of service for other union members.

Home-owning Desires Conflict With Economic Facts of Life

TORONTO (CP) — How to balance the average person's desire for his own house with the economic facts of life in the years ahead is becoming a key issue in the Hellyer housing inquiry.

Prof. Albert Rose of the University of Toronto, for instance, said that the single-family home with its own fence and garden is the most wasteful way of housing people today.

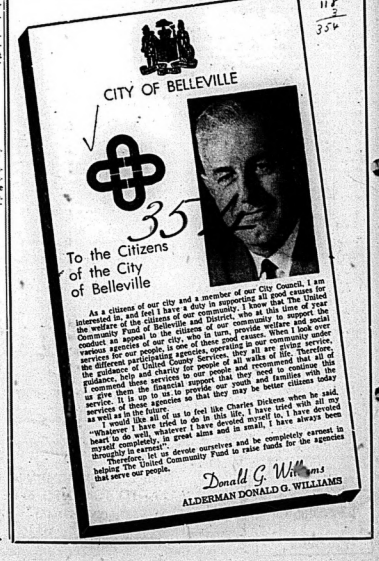
But, at the other end of the scale, a meeting of 125 residents of the Regent Park low-rental housing project here voted overwhelmingly on a show of hands for home-ownership — if they could afford it.

The difficulty, they said, was that they are never likely to be able to afford a house as long as they are locked into a public housing project in which rents are geared to their incomes.

They cannot save enough to make a down payment.

Transport Minister Hellyer, who flew here from the Quebec City funeral of Premier Daniel Johnson, returned to Ottawa Monday night for a cabinet meeting today, but planned to catch up with the inquiry this afternoon.

Today's program calls for presentation of nine briefs and a tour of affected housing developments in the Metropolitan Toronto area.



Mr. Hellyer Monday night defended his inquiry's decision to hear spokesmen of only 23 of the 50 briefs filed for the three-day session.

To call all those who wanted to speak would be time-consuming for a group that wants to tour 25 cities and complete its report by the year-end.

He said, many of the briefs were being put in by political groups who could be heard through members of Parliament in Ottawa.

The committee should be listening to people facing the housing crisis day-by-day, or those with fresh ideas for its solution.

Driver Burned, He Checked Gas By Using Match

COBOURG, Ont. (CP) — Truck driver Bertram Ayton will probably use a flashlight the next time he wants to check his fuel tank.

He used a match Saturday to check the fuel level in his truck. The fuel exploded and the 40-year-old driver, from the Toronto suburb of Scarborough was burned.

Cobourg is 35 miles east of Oshawa.

He is in satisfactory condition in hospital.

Police believed gasoline had been left in the tank earlier instead of diesel fuel, which is not normally explosive.

Don't Talk to Mayo Smith About Pitching Duels!

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Denny McLain, with 31 victories, is the American League's biggest winner in 27 years. Bob Gibson, with an earned run average of 1.12, is the National League's stingiest pitcher ever.

They'll face each other Wednesday when Detroit Tigers take on St. Louis Cardinals in the first game of the World Series, but Mayo Smith isn't impressed.

"You put two good pitchers against each other, and everybody builds them up as the biggest thing since gaslighters," said Smith, who managed the Tigers to 103 victories this year.

"Then the whole thing ends up disappointing. All pitching duels do. Often one of the pitchers gets bombed out."

However, Gibson has yet to be bombed out. He lost his first Series start, Oct. 8, 1964, to New York Yankees. Since then the right-hander has posted five straight series victories two over the Yankees and three over Boston Red Sox last year.

And in those five games, the 31-year-old fireballer allowed an average of only six hits and less than two runs a game.

A victory over the Tigers Wednesday would vault Gibson into a tie for the most consecutive games won in a Series, a mark shared by Lefty Gomes and Red Ruffing, both of the Yankees.

McLain, on the other hand, has no Series history. He was only one year old in 1945, the last time the Tigers were involved in a Series.

He did slice off a piece of history this season by winning 31 games which made him the first pitcher to win that many since Lefty Grove in 1931.

Despite what his manager says, the match-up is one of the most glamorous in Series play.

Both pitchers should be well rested. Gibson pitched Friday night when he shut out Houston Astros and McLain just missed hi. 32nd victory against Washington Senators Saturday.

McLain will be facing the same Cardinal line-up that won the National League pennant by nine games.

The three outfielders—Lou Brock, Curt Flood and Roger Maris—will come first, followed by first baseman Orland Cepeda, catcher Tim McCarver, third baseman Mike Shannon, second baseman Julian Javier and shortstop Dal Maxvill.

For Gibson, the Tigers will have a slightly revised line-up. The revision revolves around the insertion of Mickey Stanley at shortstop. Smith wanted to get Al Kaline into the line-up, and the only way he could do it was by bringing Stanley in from centre field.

It is in the public interest that the Intelligencer sports department exposes a secret romance involving the Quinte area's foremost athletic export, Robert Marvin Hull.

Sorry to do this Bobby, but we feel your prominence as an example to the youngsters of the land forces us to reveal the whole torrid affair.

Our evidence is irrefutable — a hand written note, adorned with an arrow-pierced heart, no less, which for the sake of authenticity, happens to be green.

We're sorry for the effect this may have on your career, Bobby, but this indiscretion just couldn't be overlooked.

The evidence:

"To my love (illustration of heart) —
These card is a love card
For my best one
And I love you my Loverone
And so it happnd
When we met at the ballgame. (Editor's punctuation)

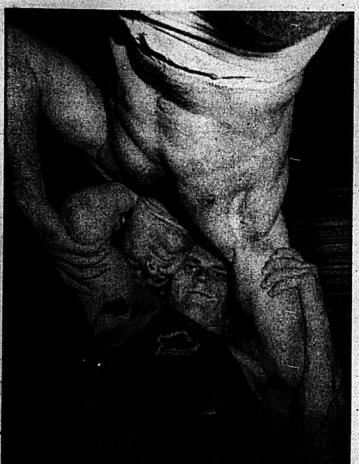
From Kim to Boby Hall.

Shame, shame, Bobby Hull. To have taken advantage of some awe-struck young lass — it's even more despicable that you have obviously memorized an unsuspecting new Canadian ingenue.

We'll have you drummed out of the hockey hall of fame before you're even drummed in; we'll have your horsefeeds declared unfit for human consumption, we'll have your Charles Atlas Club honorary life membership revoked, we'll. . . .

FLASH ! ! ! — With no more than 14 seconds remaining before press time, we have learned from a usually reliable source that the notorious "Kim" is actually a seven-year-old member of the Deslke family of Chatham St. here in the city.



What we took as proof positive of a seething passion-parley apparently was a school composition by Kim, prompted by her first impressions of Mr. Hull at the Sept. 4 Shriners' fund-raising exhibition softball game.

Uh, sorry about that, Bobby.

But we'll make it up to you — we'll use mug-shots of you with at least every other Black Hawk game result, we'll press for Point Anne to qualify under the province's equalization for industrial opportunity program, we'll recommend you for a seat in the Senate, we'll . . . .

Tícats Claw Lions For Boost in Standings

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Lions looked great in the statistics column Monday night, but Hamilton looked better on the scoreboard—and that's where it counts.

The Ticats, defending Grey Cup champions now in third place in the Eastern Division of the Canadian Football League, defeated the Western Conference Lions 16-13 before 25,165 fans.

"Statistics don't win football games," said Hamilton coach Joe Restic.

"I'm getting tired of losing games that we win," countered Lions coach Jim Champion.

The Lions made 20 first downs compared with 11 for Hamilton. The B.C. offence totalled 254 yards while Hamilton rang up 193 yards.

But one of the telling statistics, as it turned out, was interceptions. The Lions had three for 37 yards, the Ticats five for 134.

One Hamilton interception —by Bob Richardson—prevented a possible touchdown as he snared a pass in his own end zone and ran the ball in the Ticat 45-yard line. Another—by tackle Wilbe Scott, his first as Ticat—set up a brilliant 70-yard scoring play in the dying minutes.

With less than four minutes remaining, Scott yanked down a Jackie Parker pass at the Ticats' 40. He lateralled to Henley who zig-zagged downfield to score.

Tommy-Joe Coffey kicked the convert and a 30-yard field goal. His convert attempt on Hamilton's first touchdown was no good.

GARNEY HENLEY

Hamilton scored three plays after the opening kickoff when quarterback Joe Zuger capped an 81-yard march with a 62-yard pass-and-run play to Dave Fleming.

The Lions held a 13-9 lead in the fourth quarter.

Pete Ohler started at quarterback for the Lions and did a good job until he aggravated an ankle late in the game. Paul Brothers came in to replace him, but two consecutive pass interceptions sent up the signal for Parker.

Parker was performing brilliantly until he too encountered two big interceptions. Just before the one by Scott, Parker scored on a one-yard plunge which he set up on a long pass to Jim Young after a Ticat fumble on their 25. Ted Gerela, who kicked first-half field goals from the 48 and 11, converted.

Gerela caused plenty of excitement. He twice kicked into the opposition line and once he tried a 57-yard field goal, one-yard short of the world record, which hit the cross-bar.

With five interceptions to their credit, Hamilton's defensive backfield drew Restic's praise.

"They played as well as they have in any game this season, and it came at a time when our offence couldn't get rolling again after a quick start."

Restic said a bomb scare regarding the team's flight from Edmonton had delayed their arrival until game day.

"We didn't have time to hold our regular meeting or our film session," said Restic.

"I'm happy to be going home with four points off this road trip."

PORT ARTHUR (CP) — Harry Ganja, his two children and a hunting companion parked their camper vehicle near Whitefish Lake Sunday and were preparing to eat lunch.

A bullet smashed through the front of the camper, missed Mr. Ganja by inches, ricocheted off the roof and tore out through the back.

Despite shouts of "hold your fire" six other shots were fired in the direction of the camper.

Later investigation by provincial police disclosed other hunters had been target shooting on a nearby road.

Their target was a folder bearing the 1968 Ontario hunting regulations, which contains a warning against shooting without an adequate backstop.

Sports in Brief

TORONTO (CP) — Jockey Richard Grubb, Canada's leading stakes-race winner, was disqualified Monday for interference in the fourth race at Woodbine race track. Grubb may not be allowed to ride Viceregal in the $44,000 Cup and Saucer Stakes at Woodbine Saturday. The stewards will decide Wednesday if Grubb will be suspended. Grubb has ridden Viceregal, Canada's best two-year-old horse, in eight consecutive victories.

CHICAGO (AP) — Major league umpires met Monday and decided not to hold a World Series strike but agreed on a general strike next spring unless two discharged American League umpires are reinstated. Al Salerno and Bill Valentine, both recently fired by American League president Joe Cronin, prevailed on the group not to hold a World Series strike.

Healey Grabs Berth in Niagara

STAFF — Belleville's Mike Healey is on his way to the top.

The 17 year old, six foot-three, 200 lb., defenceman has just been signed by the Niagara Falls Flyers — the Boston Bruins' farm club.

Three weeks ago, Healey was just one of 90 boys who were invited to the club's tryouts. The squad has now been cut to 24 with Healey and Don McFall of Trenton (also 17) the youngest players on the remaining squad.

McFall's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. T. McFall, 361 Dufferin report that their son "Slim" has not yet informed them whether or not he has been signed.

"He was really tickled," Mike's mother, Mrs. Jim Healey, 67 Humewood Drive, said.

And well he might be. This is the first tryout for the young hockey player whom Belleville Junior "B" club executive Red Mavety described as "a youngsine with a lot of ability."

Young Healey will live in Niagara Falls for the season and continue school there. "He's been going to school there for a couple of weeks now," his mother said.

"He'll live there until this summer, then he'll come home. It's kind of rough losing your boy even before he gets to college," she said. "But Mike seems to get along with the boys and he likes it there.

"And they did say he could probably come home for Christmas," she smiled. "It's a hard life, but I think it will do him good. I hope it will. He seems to like it now."

If it has to do with hockey,

MIKE HEALEY

Healey should like it. He's been around the ice since he was seven.

The young defencemen began his career at that age in the Peterborough, Ont. minor hockey program. He played his way through the minors and midgets and came to Belleville in 1965. He played with the Junior "B" club in Belleville in 1966 on the midget option, then joined the older boys full time in 1967.

"He's a big boy and has what it takes," Mavety said. "Mike's a good scorer and was in the top six on the club last year even playing defence. We did use a little at forward, too, but most of it was defence."

"He's a big boy who works well and has the stuff to work with," Mavety continued. "I think he'll make good if he really wants to."

Sawchuk Says It's Last Year

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Goaltender Terry Sawchuk of Los Angeles Kings announced Monday that this will be his last season in the National Hockey League, but coach Red Kelly still hasn't made up his mind to use Sawchuk.

"I'm counting the time till I can quit," said Sawchuk, an 18-year veteran who has four Vezina trophies to his credit. "I make it six months, or a few days longer if we make the playoffs."

Kelly has four days in which to decide who to put in the nets —Gerry Desjardins, Wayne Rutledge or Sawchuk.

"If I had to make a decision right now, I guess I would just close my eyes and pull two names out of a hat," Kelly said at the Barrie, Ont., training camp.

Sawchuk, 39, won the Vezina three times with Detroit Red Wings and shared it once with Johnny Bower of Toronto Maple Leafs.

He was the Kings' first choice in the expansion draft last year, but is listed as trade material now. There has been one nibble —from the Leafs, but only if they can get him for cash.

Born in Winnipeg, Sawchuk started his NHL career with the Red Wings and moved to Boston in 1953 and then back to Detroit in 1957. He joined Toronto in 1964 and played three seasons before moving to Los Angeles.

In other NHL developments Monday, Los Angeles and Toronto combined in a four-for-one deal.

Toronto gets Grant Moore, 26, a right winger who played with Toronto Marlboros of the Ontario Hockey Association senior series last year.

In return, the Kings picked up Louis Deveault, 22, right winger with Trois Rivieres last year; Gary Croteau, 21, left winger for St. Lawrence University; Brian Murphy, who scored 38 goals for London Nationals of the OHA Junior A series in 1967; and Wayne Thomas, a goaltender from Michigan Tech.

The four will all work out with Tronis Riverois last year; Gary Croteau, 21, left winger for St. Lawrence University; Brian Murphy, who scored 38 goals for London Nationals of the OHA Junior A series in 1967; and Wayne Thomas, a goaltender from Michigan Tech.

The four will all work out with Trois Rivieres

Readying to Ring Up the Curtain!

Belleville Theatre Guild is in the final rehearsal phase for Thursday night's opening of Mary, Mary at Centennial Secondary School. Guild's first resident director Richard Howard (right) checks out backstage cues as comedy action proceeds onstage with (left) Denise Rainbow, Gerry Tinlin and Roy Hunt.

Guild's Mary, Mary Opens Season

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Belleville Theatre Guild — ready to light up the most auspicious program in its 20-year career — has itself received some brightening news.

The organization has been awarded a $1,000 Ontario Arts Council grant to aid its work in raising community theatre standards.

Almost immediately, Belleville will have an opportunity to view the Guild's first venture aimed at its community guest.

Thursday, the stage lights of Centennial Secondary School will flood the opening night of the new season's first production, the sparkling Jean Kerr comedy Mary, Mary.

For the Guild, however, much of the focus is behind the scenes — on the person of Richard Howard, now its first resident artistic director as a graduate of the Ontario government's directors' training scheme in Britain.

Mr. Howard's fulltime capacity and capabilities are the core of the Guild's active theatre program for the new season.

At the moment, his energies are concentrated on finishing-touch phase of the Mary, Mary debut, a production that has combined new and familiar faces to Guild audiences.

Playing the title role is Lois Summerville, who recently took up residence in Belleville, coming here with much theatre experience gained in New England groups.

Lead actor is Gerry Tinlin, Kingston radio personality and a veteran of summer and little theatre in the Limestone city. Actually, he has played the role twice before but Mr. Howard's direction has evoked a new interpretation.

Others in the cast include 18 year-old college student, Denise Rainbow, Peter Kitchener, veteran of many Guild productions and Roy Hunt.

Thursday opening night also is being marked by a civic night which sees a roster of special guests at the initial performance.

Don't Neglect Slipping FALSE TEETH

Do Denture Sore, Irritating When you talk, eat, laugh or sneeze? Don't be embarrassed and suffer! Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH (non-acid) powder on your plates. Holds dentures more firmly and more comfortably set. Gives confident feeling. Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). Dentists test and approve. Contains no zinc. Is safe! Is dependable! Insist that FASTEETH be essential to health. See your dentist regularly. Get FASTEETH at all drug counters.

Ask Uncle Ed

DEAR UNCLE ED —

They say 'a stitch in time saves nine.' My question is 'saves nine what?'

Yours Tenderly
PROBLEM SOLVER

DEAR PROBLEM SOLVER —

I don't know — maybe it saves nine fingers. Anyway I think that question should crop up when every person reaches something of ripe old age. Now, nobody knows anything — not even me. But next time you have a question like that, why don't you save your stamp.

Yours Truly,
UNCLE ED.

If you have a fowl question to ask send it to Uncle Ed's Take-Out — Home of Dixie Lee Fried Chicken.

Intimate Pictures Printed

Queen Asks British Editors Not to Copy French Photos

LONDON (AP) — The Queen has asked British editors to refrain from publishing "personal and intimate" photographs which appeared today in a French news magazine, Buckingham Palace said.

The 16 black and white photographs include six of the Queen sitting up in bed in the royal bedroom. In four she is holding infant Prince Edward, born in 1964.

It was understood in London before publication in the magazine Paris Match that some pictures showed her nursing the infant, but no such pictures appeared.

"The Queen has requested that because of the very personal and intimate nature of the photographs they should not be shown in this country," said a palace spokesman.

"No one at the palace has any idea how they came to be available to the French magazine."

A Paris Match spokesman in London said the photographs were "in perfect taste. . . . They are all very delightful pictures which tell their own story of the life of the Royal family at the time of the birth of Prince Edward."

He said the pictures were handed over to the magazine by an Englishman "whose identity is not being revealed." He said they were copies and that the magazine did not have the original negatives.

He said the photos appeared to have been taken by an amateur, and sources close to the royal court regarded it as inconceivable that any professional cameraman would have been present at such intimate family moments.

There was immediate speculation that the pictures were made by members of the Royal Family and belong to the Queen's private album.

Besides the set showing the Queen sitting up in bed, one set of five are labelled as including Queen Elizabeth and Queen Ingrid of Denmark at "an intimate reception." The other blurred figures are said to include King Constantine and Queen Anne-Marie of Greece, Don Juan Carlos of Spain and Queen Mother Frederika of Greece. Most of the figures are standing holding cups.

A third set of five show the Queen in coat and head scarf; Prince Andrew and Princess Anne standing up against what appears to be a stone garage; the Queen's husband, Prince Philip, in a swim suit; Prince Charles holding two large fish; Charles and Andrew in a plastic wading pool, and Edward, with his nurse, Andrew, Charles and Anne.

The royal request not to publish the photographs in Britain is not binding on editors, but they would be likely to respect it out of courtesy to the monarch.

Thousands Pay Last Respects

Cardinal Eulogizes Johnson for Courage in Political Life

MONTREAL (CP) — A hushed crowd of tens of thousands formed a solemn eight-block queue Monday night to pay last respects to Quebec Premier Daniel Johnson, lying at state in the Montreal courthouse.

Mr. Johnson is to be buried today at St. Pie de Bagot, 40 miles southeast of here.

Inside the courthouse, friends of the late premier and members of the Union Nationale party maintained an all-night vigil as an estimated 3,000 persons an hour filed past the coffin.

Mrs. Johnson and her four children, whose long day began at 10 a.m. Monday with funeral services at Quebec City's Basilica, remained near the premier's casket until after 10:30 p.m.

A 70-car motorcade brought the body of the 53-year-old premier the 150 miles from the provincial capital to Montreal Monday afternoon. He died of an apparent heart attack last Thursday.

Mayor Jean Drapeau met the cortege at the courthouse.

The Quebec City services Monday were attended by an estimated 3,000 people, including Prime Minster Trudeau and French Premier Maurice Couve de Murville.

The services were preceded by a 35-minute cortege from the Quebec legislature where Mrs. Johnson and her children Diane, 16, Marie, 15, Daniel Jr., 23 and Marc, 21, came to claim the body of Quebec's 20th premier.

A solemn procession on foot proceeded from the legislature to the Basilica where Maurice Cardinal Roy, archbishop of Quebec and primate of the Roman Catholic Church in Canada, led the requiem mass.

Justice Minister Jean-Jacques Bertrand, Mr. Johnson's likely successor, was the only layman to participate in the mass, with a reading from the second epistle of St. Paul to the Corinthians.

Nine clergymen participated in the services which were carried nationally on television. Besides Cardinal Roy, who led the service,there were Msgr. Paul Gregoire, archbishop of Montreal; Msgr. Irenee Lenonyne, parish priest at St. Hyacinthe and a schoolmate of the dead premier; an Anglican bishop; monsignors of the Greek Orthodox and Armenian churches and a protestant minister.

In a eulogy delivered partly in French and partly in English, Cardinal Roy said Mr. Johnson died given the best of himself in service to his country.

"He held no position a charge heavy with responsibility.

"The man for whom we pray today found in political life the opportunity to show his courage in the face of great fatigue and difficult tasks and at the same time to show his affection for all whom he was called to serve."

After the funeral, the cortege began its three-hour journey through the light rain to Montreal. Hundreds of people gathered at the overpasses along the Trans-Canada Highway, some holding Quebec's five-day tricolor flags.

Demand Outstrips Supply

Foreign Holdings Only Outlet for Stock-starved Investors

TORONTO (CP) — Demand for Canadian stocks during the next few years is likely to be almost double the available supply of new issues, says a York University study of the Canadian equity market.

The report says the shortage of new issues will be so acute that major investors may soon have to place at least half their money abroad to find suitable stocks.

Commissioned by the Toronto Stock Exchange in July, 1967, the survey was prepared by Professor G. R. Conway with the help of a wide range of government bodies and public companies. A 45-page summary now is available and the full text will be ready by December.

John Kimber, president of the Toronto Stock Exchange, said the need for detailed information about supply and demand in the equity market and the trend in share ownership became urgent last year when the exchange began developing new procedures for handling block transactions.

He said that although this was not the first time that gaps in market information had become apparent, it led to the first-ever comprehensive study.

Since research was based on statistics up to the end of 1967, the report makes no reference to the record demand for Canadian industrials in the current bull market.

The study points to two major trends:

Canadian companies are unlikely to rely heavily on the sale of common stock to the public in the immediate years ahead.

New issues, therefore, are expected to average only $700,000,000 a year — demand may soon be running at $1,300,000,000 annually.

—Financial institutions may have to keep at least half their equity holdings in foreign stocks through the lack of Canadian alternatives.

These foreign holdings, especially those of mutual funds, are already substantial and could reach $5,000,000,000 by the early 1970s. They grew to 24 per cent from 10 per cent of all institutional stock portfolios between 1960 and 1965.

The study says two other factors exaggerate the shortage of Canadian equities to have almost half the largest corporations in Canada controlled a publicly traded stock issue," says the report.

The study estimates the potential supply of new equities which would be available if all the existing private companies with assets over $25,000,000 went public as being worth $12,000,000,000.

This would raise the amount of stocks on Canadian markets by about one-third. At the end of 1966 the market value of all shares listed on Canadian stock exchanges was $36,000,000,000 representing 1,251 companies.

The total value on U.S. exchanges was about 15 times greater.

The study says that foreign interest in the available supply of stocks is running at about 40 per cent of market value. financial institutions another 15 per cent, while the balance is divided fairly equally between financial institutions and listed holding companies.

Referring to the major problem of future supply, it says that although the rate of new financing is relatively higher in Canada than in the United States, the quantity of new stock appearing each year is nominal.

This is because for a long time Canadian companies have preferred to raise extra cash at the bank. In the nine years between 1953 and 1964, the study says, loans and similar short-term debts were the major external source of funds. Retained earnings and internal sources provided just over 40 per cent of the money needed for expansion and renewal.

Although it gives no comparable figures for equity issues during the same period, it says new issues between 1952 and 1966 amounted to only $1,900,000,000, half of which came from only six companies.

Wilson Fights Rearguard Action

BLACKPOOL, England (AP) — Prime Minister Wilson set out today to restore the unity of his restive Labor party while fighting off a bid to bring his government more closely under party control.

Wilson's appeal for unity came as the party's annual convention moved into its second day at the Winter Garden on the Irish Sea.

The prime minister was reporting on the work of the party in Parliament and the government's action since the last party conference in Scarborough a year ago.

But his most urgent task was to repair the damage to his government's public image inflicted by the convention's rejection Monday of his efforts to curb wages—despite the admission of the nation's entire economic strategy.

Delegates had on the agenda a separate closed session to debate proposed amendments to the party constitution. The amendments are aimed at bringing Labor legislators and thus the government more closely under party control.

Informants said the government will fight the move. In the past such proposals were defeated by the leadership backed by the large block votes of the trade unions.

With trade union delegates up in arms over the government's wages policies, however, some ministers fear that delegates may succeed in ramming the amendments through.

The proposals provide:

—That MPs should not fill more than 25 per cent of the seats on the party's executive committee. At present there are 19 MPs, including 10 ministers, on the 29-man committee.

—That the executive should have the authority to advise members in Parliament "on the implementation of the decisions of the annual conference and the national executive on party policy."

—That the executive should call an extraordinary party convention if asked by two-thirds of the 544 local party organizations "on the grounds that a policy decision of conference has been consistently disregarded by the parliamentary Labor party."

'Timely Disclosure' Guide Expanded

TORONTO (CP) — All companies listed on the Toronto Stock Exchange will be expected to maintain a strict internal rule prohibiting "insiders" from trading in their own stock before confidential corporate information has been released to the public.

In addition to the "timely disclosure" policy first issued in November, 1965, the exchange said Monday that this rule will apply to any company activity which might affect the market value of its shares.

John R. Kimber, president, said a revised timely disclosure guide has been drawn up which "places particular emphasis on the proper timing of information releases.

"In the past three years, we generally have had excellent co-operation from our listed companies. However there has been apparent that in some instances, disclosure has come too late.

"In these circumstances the market has already discounted the news before it is officially announced."

He said that unusual price movements or heavy trading volume prior to the revelation of important company developments is both embarrassing to the company's management and damaging to the reputation of the stock market.

Mr. Kimber said the exchange's revised policy recognizes that are occasions when inside information has to be kept secret. But, in these cases, he said, the company should watch its shares on the market and make a disclosure if they become active.

If rumors create activity in a stock, the company should issue a clarifying statement.

The guide says trading in a stock can be suspended for a suitable period to allow the news to reach investors. It can also be suspended when a company refuses to make a statement.

The Ontario Securities Commission is expected to issue a similar guide.

OFF THE RECORD BY ED REED

"Is the lady of the house in?"

MR. TWEEDY by Ned Riddle

"Tell Mrs. Milburn there's a gentleman here to see her on business."

Canadian View of Vietnam War Undergoes Shift of Emphasis

OTTAWA (CP) — There has been a marked shift in the official Canadian position on Vietnam, but government officials insist that the shift has been one of emphasis rather than policy.

It was signalled by External Affairs Minister Sharp last week when he told the Commons that in the Canadian view a halt to the bombing of North Vietnam is "one of the essential first steps" required to end the war.

Such steps, he made clear, would have to be taken by both sides.

Mr. Sharp was replying to David Lewis, the NDP parliamentary leader, who queried him on Secretary-General U Thant's statement that a majority of UN members would endorse a resolution calling for a cessation of the bombing.

Mr. Lewis asked whether Canada, "in view of the opposition of the last government to the bombing in Vietnam," would take the initiative in proposing the kind of resolution U Thant had suggested.

"In our view, a balance would have to be kept in such an appeal if it were to be made," replied Mr. Sharp.

Mr. Sharp said the idea of a bombing halt as "one of the essential first steps" had been expressed by the government on a number of occasions.

In fact, however, it represented a noticeable departure from the position taken by his predecessor, Paul Martin, now government leader in the Senate.

Addressing the UN General Assembly one year previously, Mr. Martin said he had not the slightest doubt that the first step in the direction of peace negotiations involved the bombing of North Vietnam.

"It seems clear that all attempts to bring about talks between the two sides are doomed to failure unless the bombing is stopped."

He described a bombing halt as "of first priority if we are to start the process of de-escalation and to open the door to the conference room." He called it also a "first step," and "the key to a solution, the starting-point in the process of solving the Vietnam problem."

Mr. Martin emphasized that responsibility for making concessions should not be placed on the Americans and South Vietnamese alone. He reiterated the four-point peace plan he had outlined April 11, 1967, calling for concessions by both sides.

But in his formula, a halt to the bombing stood by itself as the essential first step.

Despite this, an external affairs department spokesman maintained Monday that Mr. Sharp's reference to a bombing halt as "one of the essential first steps", represented no basic change in government policy.

He called it a shift in emphasis, an "adaptation", to the fact that only 20 per cent of North Vietnam's territory now is subject to U.S. bombing and that preliminary peace talks are under way in Paris.

Reminded that according to some reports the U.S. is delivering as much bomb tonnage as ever, he said the Americans are clearly concentrating on military targets in the southern part of North Vietnam.

The government appears to have been impressed with steps taken by the U.S. to de-escalate the conflict.

Expansion of Toronto Airport More Likely Than New Field

TORONTO (CP) — Expansion of Toronto International Airport rather than construction of a whole new airport seems to be the department of transport's answer to Metropolitan Toronto's air traffic needs.

After hearings here Monday, two plans emerged that suggest the department has virtually abandoned ideas to build either a second major airport in southern Ontario or an air facility off Toronto in Lake Ontario.

The deputy minster of transport, John Baldwin, unveiled two proposals for enlarging the capacity of Toronto International. One involves the acquisition and reclamation of 3,000 acres of the town of Mississauga, west of International Airport.

A second, smaller-scale plan, requires the acquisition of 1,500 acres east of the airport.

Baldwin said that passenger traffic at the airport is expected to reach 19,000,000 passengers by 1985. The airport handled 5,000,000 passengers last year.

If the bigger plan is implemented, three new terminal buildings will be built by 1985. If the smaller plan is adopted, two new buildings would be constructed.

Expanded cargo space is provided in both plans.

Both plans also provide for a new runway and lengthening the two existing runways.

Long Store Hours May Thin Crush

TORONTO (CP) — The answer to the mounting problems of traffic jams at shopping centres may eventually be solved by the shopper himself, a transportation engineer said Monday.

R. C. Gem of Chicago told the annual convention of the Canadian Good Roads Association that with more leisure time people will want to shop at night and on weekends.

Stores will have to stay open longer, reducing the amount of daytime traffic at shopping centres.

Strictly Personal

Diversity Protects Man

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Many animals don't recognize their own young. It takes them a long time to distinguish between their own children and other babies of the same species.

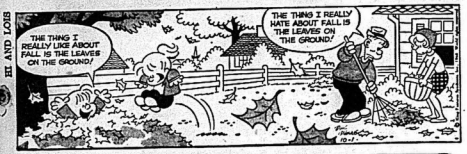
The most obvious fact about the human species stares us in the face so freely that we fail to see it. And that is the utter diversity and individuality of each member of the human race.

No two persons — except twins from the same egg — really look alike. Every fingerprint in the world is different. So is the precise composition of blood. Nature has made us the only individuated species in the world.

Almost nothing in nature is without a purpose. There must be some reason that the highest member on the evolutionary tree is also the only species in which individual traits are more distinguishing than generic ones.

The reason is not far to seek nor hard to find. Among humans alone, it is diversity that protects and perpetuates the species. While among the lower animals, it is blind uniformity that keeps them going. They adapt to their environment; we are made to change ours. And if all of us were more alike than different, we would become extinct when conditions drastically change.

Thus, there is a biological as well as a moral imperative against all forms of racism in the human species. We need millions of different kinds of persons in order to ensure our survival; reducing the species to one particular kind — whether white, black, yellow or speckled — would sharply lower the odds for our continuance on the earth.



All foxes behave like one fox, all cats like one cat, all owls like one owl. Only man runs the gamut of actions and reactions. And, just as nature may produce a million spermatozoa in order that only a few may turn into living forms, so it provides us with the widest diversity of individuals that a few might survive the most cataclysmic changes in the environment.

Those who prate about "pure blood" and "race lines" are as ignorant as they are dangerous. We are all of one blood and of one ancestry, and our family ties as a species are far more significant than our superficial differences of ethnic background.

The paradox in this whole matter is that we are created so highly individualized in order to secure the welfare of the species; yet unless we place the welfare of our species above our own partial loyalties, we will lose our individuality and the earth along with it. The only effective way to guard our differences is to affirm our unity.

Five Babies Alive

British Woman Has Sextuplets

BIRMINGHAM, England (CP) — A 30-year-old woman gave birth to sextuplets at Birmingham Maternity Hospital today. One of the six babies died shortly after birth.

The mother, Sheila Ann Thorns, had received hormone drugs for sterility.

First reports said Mrs. Thorns, the wife of a draftsman, and all six children were well. The babies were four girls and two boys.

Within an hour, however, one of the girls died.

The couple have been married 10 years. They have no other children.

"We were expecting a multiple birth, but this was a shock," said Mrs. Thorns' mother. "We thought it would be twins."

The babies were two months premature. They weighed between two and three pounds each.

The babies were delivered by Caesarian operation.

The hormone treatment, pioneered in Sweden, has led to a number of multiple births in recent years. But in most cases of five or more births all were still-born or died within a few hours.

Mrs. Thorns was attended by one of the biggest and most combined medical and nursing teams ever assembled in Britain for a birth. They included seven anesthetists—one for each child and one for the mother.

The hospital team was led by Dr. A. C. Crook, one of Britain's foremost authorities on fertility drugs, and by Margaret Shotton, 53-year-old obstetrician.

The operation took place at Britain's newest and finest maternity hospital, built at a cost of nearly $7,000,000 and opened only a month ago.

Excitement had risen at the hospital after x-rays had showed that six babies were on the way.

The children now are under the care of Dr. Ben Wood, a consultant pediatrician at the hospital.

The babies are believed to be the first sextuplets born in Britain, medical experts said after a quick check of records here.

World records show there have been reports of about 20 previous sextuplet births since 1900, but many of these reports were not confirmed.

Sextuplets may be becoming less rare because of the effects of modern fertility drugs, doctors said.

The natural chance of sextuplets being born is put by medical experts as less than 2,000,000,000 to 1.

The chief obstetrician, Miss Shotton said: "We do not hold out any hope for the babies until they have lived for a week."

"Sorry dear! I forgot your pills again!"

Russian Invasion Planned?

BONN (AP) — The Bonn government has secretly warned the Western allies of a Soviet plan to invade West Germany and Holland, the Munich newspaper Bayern Kurier reported Tuesday.

It said the warning was issued by State Secretary Karl-Guenther von Hase of the West German defence ministry in a Sept. 19 speech to the defence committee of the Western European Union.

The newspaper is published by West German Finance Minister Franz Josef Strauss in his capacity as Bavarian leader of Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger's Christian Democratic party.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Another sunny day with afternoon temperatures near 80 is expected for southern Ontario today. In the North, there will be considerable cloudiness with a few showers and afternoon temperatures in the 55 to 60 range. Rain and cooler air will spread across the North tonight. Southern Ontario will get cooler air accompanied by some showers or thundershowers Thursday.

U.S. Cardinal Penalizes 39

LONDON (Reuters) — Fifty five Roman Catholic priests today publicly defied Pope Paul's ruling on contraception in Britain's biggest single rebellion so far against the encyclical.

The priests signed a letter published in The Times newspaper refusing to accept that "all contraception is in all circumstances wrong."

The Pope's ban on all artificial birth control has resulted in controversy throughout the world Roman Catholic Church.

Tuesday Patrick Cardinal O'Boyle, Archbishop of Washington, D.C., withdrew the authority to exercise certain priestly functions from 39 priests because of their dissent on the birth-control issue.

In London the priests said:

"We feel our duty to Catholic people compels us to bear witness to the truth as we see it."

The priests said their consciences would not allow them to obey the Pope's teaching.

"We respect the decision on birth control made by our holy father the Pope according to his conscience. We realize the possible grave dangers that can result from the indiscriminate use of artificial means of birth control. We deeply regret, however, that according to our consciences we cannot give loyal internal and external obedience to the view that all such means of contraception are in all circumstances wrong."

The birth control dispute in Washington goes back for weeks with originally 47 priests taking a dissenting stand on full acceptance of the Pope's encyclical.

Cardinal O'Boyle said that although some of these priests accept the encyclical, they insist on adding a qualifying sentence:

"Spouses may responsibly decide according to their own conscience that artificial contraception in some circumstances is permissible and indeed necessary to preserve and foster the values and sacredness of marriage."

Proctor-Silex Has 19 Working

By DONALD MACKENZIE
Staff Reporter

PICTON — For the sixth day straight since workers first crossed the IUE picket line at Proctor-Silex, the company has noted an increase in the number of people showing up for work.

This morning 19 workers went into the plant, an increase of five over yesterday and 13 since the plant went into production a week ago today.

Some of the employees at present in the plant are new, according to manager J. V. Findlay, but for the most part, he said, they were former workers.

Mr. Findlay, although he emphasizes that he will get the plant back into full production, still would like to have the former workers, now strikers, back on the job.

"After all," he said this morning, "they're my people — they don't really belong to a union. They work here and they're mine."

"I've heard rumors," said Findlay this morning, "that there are more that would like to return. Maybe they're frightened but I think they'll finally come around."

The strike is now exactly 11 weeks old and many of the workers, with very little money coming in, are feeling the pinch.

Harriman Urges Hanoi Agree to Limit Fight

PARIS (AP) — U.S. Ambassador W. Averell Harriman called today for a North Vietnamese pledge to refrain from exploiting any American bombing halt and so open the way to serious peacemaking.

Harriman's statement, made to reporters before entering the 24th session of the peace talks, appeared to take account of Vice - President Hubert Humphrey's drive of campaign promise to end air attacks on the North.

Without commenting on Humphrey's proposal, Harriman said:

"It would be very easy for North Vietnam to bring this conference to fruitful discussions. All they have to do is to indicate they are prepared to restrain the military advantage that might come to them from the cessation of the bombing."

Harriman sidestepped directly answering a reporter who had asked if the United States in recent days had received a reformulation of its orders from President Johnson.

Harriman's reply: "There isn't anything new that I can say. In fact, if I did have anything we would have to ask you to restrain your impatience until we discuss it with the other side."

Rusk Addresses UN

UNITED NATIONS (Reuters) — U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk called on the Soviet Union today to get its troops out of Czechoslovakia and demanded an explanation of Moscow's new doctrine of the right of intervention.

In his first, and probably last, policy address to the United Nations General Assembly, Rusk also reaffirmed NATO's determination to resort "immediately to self-defence measures" if West Germany were attacked.

He warned that there is danger that the Middle East "would slip back once more towards chaos and war" unless the parties to the conflict move resolutely towards a settlement.

He referred to remarks made at a Sept. 21 meeting of the Indian-Eskimo Association of Canada at London, Ont., by Yvonne McRae, a member of the Lakehead branch, who said Armstrong Indians are denied access to public schools, and debt and alcoholism are chronic problems.

Mr. King said at a church panel discussion Tuesday he had been battling white bureaucracy for 10 years as unofficial spokesman for Indian and Metis families at Armstrong before being elected association president last spring, and has a filing cabinet filled with "their talk."

Mr. King was one of a group of five going to Ottawa today to present a proposal for a pilot development project for Armstrong Indians to Jean Chretien, Indian affairs minister.

"Now we are going to them with definite proposals to give them an alternative to the welfare system that's so degrading," he said.

"We have listened too long to their talks—talk that leads only to more talk."

If the project works in Armstrong, it should become the basis for developing dozens of Indian communities with similar problems in housing, welfare, schooling and alcoholism, he said.

ENJOYING EVERY MINUTE of the trek is Mrs. Durwood Siple, St. Thomas, lone female driver in yesterday's farm tractor parade, which stopped here overnight on the way to Ottawa.

Tractor Cavalcade Spends Night Here

Western Ontario farmers who last night stopped over in Belleville on their way to Ottawa to seek high corn prices are both optimistic and determined.

They are optimistic about results of their 100 vehicle tractor cavalcade and at the same time are determined that they will get these results.

The farmers, described by Ontario Farm Union President Walter Miller as "top farmers from Ontario's most productive farming area" are asking an embargo on American corn imports and a $1.50 floor price for their corn.

Mr. Miller says the farmers will continue their quest for higher corn prices through collective action.

In the meantime their Friday morning arrival in Ottawa will mark the first time in history that farmers have driven up to the parliament buildings in tractors.

Arctic Rescue Planned

LONDON (CP) — A small Canadian aircraft is awaiting clearing weather on the edge of the Arctic Circle to make a daring attempt to pluck an injured British explorer from an Arctic ice floe before winter darkness makes the operation impossible.

Pilot Weldy Phipps, who runs a charter service from Resolute, Cornwallis Island, plans to fly to the camp of the British trans-Arctic expedition almost 1,000 miles out on the polar ice cap.

The expeditions headquarters here has decided to evacuate geophysicist Allan Gill, 27, who suffered a slipped disc in a fall last month. The headquarters says the injury forced the group to camp and delayed plans for the first surface crossing of the Arctic Ocean via the North Pole.

Union Denies Strike "Test Case"

Ontario Inspector OK's Proctor-Silex Wage Scale

By DAVID LEES
Staff Reporter

PICTON (Staff) — A government inspector has given "a clean bill of health" to Proctor - Silex wage standards, a company spokesman claimed today.

James Findlay, plant manager, said that as Ontario labor standards officer visited the plant yesterday. A report submitted by that officer said in part, according to Mr. Findlay, "the basic incentive rate of 93.2 cents has a daily make - up feature to equal or exceed the minimum wage rates."

Minimum wage standards are set by the province.

Meanwhile union officials have returned from Toronto.

Both plant and union officials say they have been supported by Supreme Court hearing at Osgoode Hall regarding the temporary injunction issued against the union last Friday.

It was decided at the hearing to limit pickets on the line to six but to allow two pickets across the street. The names of James Donnofrio, union representative, Fred Blower Local 585 vice - president and Irene Kraglund have been removed from the injunction.

Still named are Kenneth O'Neill and Wayne Breakenridge, both of whom have been charged with acts of violence.

Mr. Donnofrio flatly denied a report Tuesday that the Proctor-Silex strike was being used as a test case by the union.

The report said the international union of the IUE hoped to establish a beachhead in the Smith Corona Marchand American industrial complex, parent company of Proctor-Silex, by early success in Picton.

He said "certainly we are going to organize unorganized shops — that's our job."

Mr. Findlay however maintains the report to be true and says he told "his people" nine months ago that the union was prepared to sell his plant down to river to get into SCM.

Union officials say they have far from given up with the struggle here. Sometime today a trailer is expected to arrive and will be set up on adjacent property to the plant's entrance to be used as union headquarters.

The Balloon Goes Up!

Employees of Garage Supply Ltd. on Harriett Street, have the honor of being the first to achieve 100 per cent participation in the commercial section of this year's Belleville United Appeal. Campaign chairman Mrs. Betty McFarlane and Mark Haslett, chairman of the "in house" commercial canvass are seen helping Oriliff "Boiler" Lloyd, (left), Garage Supply president and general manager, hoist the 100 percent participation balloon.

Fund Hits $45,000

As of this morning the United Community Fund of Belleville and district has reached $45,000.

Campaign chairman, Mrs. A. H. McFarlane was confident of success.

"The campaign is in its eighth day," she said," and is moving along very well. Every division has reported significant increases across the board."

This morning, three foot meteorological balloons were flown over Garage Supply Ltd. and Electric Motor Sales and Services whose canvasses were 100 per cent successful. S i r Winston Churchill School also had 100 per cent participation.

Farmers Meet Tomorrow

PICTON (Staff) — The Ontario Farmers' Union in Prince Edward County meets tomorrow in Bloomfield to consider two problems.

Ontario president, Walter Miller, will speak about nationalization of the union and a discussion will be held afterward to consider the Proctor-Silex labor dispute.

A county union spokesman said that members had misgivings and doubts about the National Farmers' Union.

"In any case," he said, "the meeting Thursday will let us know where we stand."

Regarding the Proctor-Silex dispute he said that an executive motion passed some time ago pledged sympathy and moral support for the strikers.

The meeting will be held at eight p.m. at the Bloomfield hall.

Centralized Parking on Market Square

Parking Lot to Open Soon

TRENTON — The construction of meters on Trenton's new, market square parking lot began today and it is hoped the new, hitherto capacity parking lot will be in operation within three days.

Currently the lot is getting a workout as motorists use the parking. A single entrance at King St. near Elgin has created some confusion to newcomers but motorists are slowly getting used to following the painted arrows on the lot.

The overall effect is one of more centralized parking with the new layout providing parking spaces for 78 cars in the centre of the market place. The old setup was limited to 45 meters.

The parking area itself is enclosed by new curbs with steps leading to the parking plateau. Ramps facilitate the easy handling of grocery carts.

Arie Hoornweg, commissioner of works, said all is ready except for the meters. "The lot will operate without its lights for about eight weeks", added Mr. Hoornweg.

The light standards are on order and underground wiring for the system was completed last week.

The farmers' market, which has become a traditional Saturday pastime for Trentonians, has been moved to the rear of the police station.

The whole project, aimed at helping the average motorist obtain a place to park downtown, was made possible by the demolition of the old fire hall.

The Trenton Parking Authority will contribute $30,000 towards the cost of the new fire station to pay for the land.

Chambers Food Club to Open New Plant in Industrial Park

Ever heard of a food club selling shirts and socks.

Well, one of Belleville's newest additions to the Industrial Park, Chambers Food Club, does.

Naturally the apparel is just a sideline for one of the country's largest food services which already has over 200 subscribers in the area.

"That's one of the reasons we expanded here," said local manager John R. LaFleur talking about the expansion program the company has undertaken.

The new Belleville manager also had praise for the Industrial commission and the city of Belleville.

"They opened all doors to us, located our building and helped us in every way." Mr. LaFleur indicated that the location of the industrial park near Highway 401 has been absolutely essential.

Now, with the building completed interior renovations are being made and the company will have its official opening on Nov. 2.

The 10,200 square foot plant will provide jobs initially for seven people but within two years there should be 25 employees according to the manager.

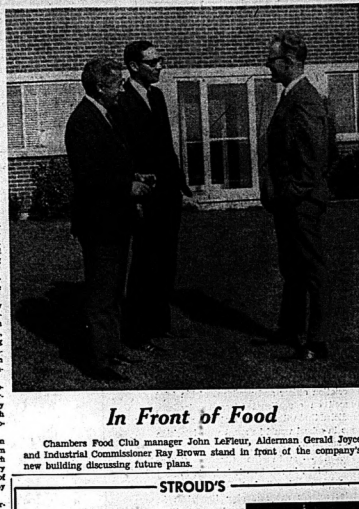
"Most of our plans average 20 to 25 employees," he stated.

Belleville was eventually chosen for the site after expansion investigation began over a year ago. Trenton, Kingston, London among other cities were also investigated but the fine reception and Belleville's central location won out said LaFleur.

The well-organized company has plants all over Ontario and provides high quality meats and groceries with brand names to its subscribers.

Many firsts in the frozen food business also came from Chambers. Freezing french fries, orange juice, pastry dough and the refreezing of meats were all firsts made by Chambers.

The home delivery food service run by Chambers is quite large in the Quinte area and the company is also affiliated with the acceptance company to help finance the purchase of freezers and appliances for its subscribers. Members can buy as much food or as little as they like and there are no contracts with Chambers.



The company, besides trailing and using local manpower also buys much of its goods locally. Both Vagden Mills and Baxter Canning and other companies are suppliers to Chambers.

The company now supplies over 25,000 families with groceries and is growing at the rate of 3,000 families a year. Any orders over $25 are delivered free of charge.

The Belleville plant will be a distributing centre for all area subscribers.

"This area is going to grow," said Mr. LaFleur, "and our company realizes it and intends to grow with it."

Chambers Food Club will certainly prove a welcome addition to Belleville's industrial family and especially to the families who really enjoy eating.

In Front of Food

Chambers Food Club manager John LeFleur, Alderman Gerald Joyce and Industrial Commissioner Ray Brown stand in front of the company's new building discussing future plans.

Night Classes

Registration Down Slightly

Registration for night school at Belleville Collegiate and Vocational Institute will be held again Thursday night.

Principal W. R. MacKay said this morning that more registrations are required before some courses can be offered.

Department of Education regulations specify that a minimum of 15 people must be enrolled in a course before it can be conducted by the schools.

First night registrations, accepted at BCI last night, are down slightly from last year. About 287 registered for courses. First night registrations last year totalled 298.

However, before registration closed last year, the number enrolled for night school classes at BCI had jumped to 436. Mr. MacKay expects a similar increase in registrations this year as late comers arrive to place their names on the rolls.

Most popular course this year, as in the past, is advanced sewing. One hundred people applied for the classes last night, but because of lack of space, only the first 50 to register could be accepted.

More people are required in the following courses to bring the enrolment up to the minimum of 15 required: auto mechanics, millinery, shorthand, grade 13 geography, grade 13 biology, and senior typing and office practice.

Twenty-seven people enrolled for conversational French, but the teachers would like to see three more sign up for the course so that two classes (beginners and advanced students) can be formed.

The same situation applies to the course in English as a second language. Twenty-two enrolled last night, but if the enrolment reaches 30 the classes can be split into two smaller groups.

Three people interested in a flower arranging course are trying to find 12 more women in the city to enrol with them in classes on the set.

"If any group of 15 people comes to us with a request for instruction, we'll find a teacher and give the course," promised Mr. MacKay.

Scouting activities

At a recent meeting of the work and service committee, plans were finalized for the waste paper drive to be held on Saturday, Oct. 5. Each group participating will cover the various districts of the city to pick up old newspapers, returnable bottles and fruit baskets.

Money received from the sale of these articles will be distributed equally between all the groups taking part in the drive.

The Boy Scout apple day, planned for Oct. 18 and 19 will raise capital funds for the improvement of Camp Sagonaska — a 25-acre site in Vanderwater Park leased from the provincial government in 1959.

It is planned to erect several buildings for sleeping quarters for cubs. These will later be set up for winter camping. Also included in the list of improvements is the levelling of ground, planting of grass and trees, a sleeping quarters for ladies and kitchen facilities in the main recreation building.

A long range plan for swimming facilities will be started and gradually developed to completion.

The 21st (Handicapped) troop consisting of 12 handicapped boys, has been meeting regularly under the leadership of scoutmaster Donald Allan.

The troop has taken part in several district events during the past year and many troop activities.

Mr. Allan deserves great credit for his work with these boys. Church parades, hikes, plays, handicrafts are on the program for the coming season.

Educational Explosion

Once it was the "population explosion" that occupied the minds of people professing to be concerned about the fate of the world at large. The subject is still an important one, but nowadays it seems to have lost something of its note of doom.

Today there is not so much talk of "standing room only." There are other more immediate issues and many of them are concerned with education. Recently we mentioned the idea of "people-generated classes" — informal discussions about any thing, with faculty serving as advisers.

This idea of Glendon College students ran into opposition from college authorities who told them they were indulging in too much introspection and too little study. And there the matter rests, for the time being at least.

The educational scene at large however is still hopping, as reports from coast-to-coast indicate. In Halifax teachers at an international conference on communications media in education were told they must exert some control over the content of educational television and teaching machines or become cogs in the new electronic age of education.

Harold E. Wigren, national education association officer and president of the joint council on educational telecommunications, predicted that within ten years half a student's time in school would be spent with television and machines.

And — with the Glendon College students idea in mind — it is ironic to note Mr. Wigren saying that already some United States schools are scrapping timetables in favor of individual work and consultations with teachers.

In Vancouver a commission recommends year-round use of schools, a revamping of teacher education and more student voice in the running of schools. The commission also suggests that education should not be confined to school buildings but expanded to make more use of art galleries, museums, parks and recreation facilities, as well as community experts in various fields.

So the educational ferment continues. This, that and the other idea presents itself. As we have suggested before, however, the traditional methods of teaching and learning have worked well. If there is any real substitute for the teacher-student relationship, it has not yet been fully perfected. Meanwhile, let the students have their say, but don't let them rule the entire show.

Beach Access

The Outlet and Sandbanks are still attracting a sprinkling of visitors, even though the season is officially over and there is some chill in the air.

Where the Sandbanks are concerned some thought should be given next year, if not earlier, to the provision of easier access to the dunes. There is the recognized route into the park and beach area but from there to the Sandbanks proper is something of a trek.

There is the back entrance, just beyond the turnoff for The Outlet, but it is banned to public use by commercial interests using a corner of the sand area. There is the sandpit where a youngster recently lost his life and there are appropriate warning signs. Nonetheless, it is unfortunate that the public should be barred from using the path that skirts the sandpit and affords access to the banks well out of harm's way.

A Picton jury which investigated the youngster's death found that fencing around the pit was incomplete and signs in the immediate vicinity had been buried by drifting sand. If this situation were remedied, safe access by the general public to the banks would be facilitated still further.

It appears the only access to the banks at this point is through the Sandbanks Forest, identified only by an aging Department of Lands and Forests sign just this side of the gateway into the pit area. The sign is halfhidden in the bush and its presence would not be known to anyone driving along the main highway a short distance away.

The Sandbanks is an area of rare interest and beauty. It has been there since long before any private or commercial development of the area. Subject to proper safeguards, access to it should be made as easy as it is to any of the other provincial recreation areas.

High Taxes... But Good Value

Sweden's Gross National Product Tops U.S. and Canada

Letter in The Globe and Mail

It gets a little tiring and vexing to see this paper publishing the sort of nonsense about Sweden that appeared in no less than two separate articles in the Sept. 14 issue. I am referring to Oliver Clausen's collection of distortions and half-truths about Sweden, and a second article quoting Dr. B. T. Dale, Medical Officer of Health, who recited the most-often-heard misconception that Sweden leads the world with the highest suicide rate. Let us hope that some of the 95 post-graduate students that Dr. Dale addressed know more than Dr. Dale does about Sweden.

The suicide rate list per 100,000 inhabitants, from United Nations statistics, is as follows:

	Rate	Date of last known statistic
East Germany	28.4	1958
Hungary	26.8	1963
Austria	21.7	1963
Czechoslovakia	20.6	1962
West Germany	19.3	1963
Finland	19.2	1965
Denmark	19.1	1963
Sweden	18.5	1963
Switzerland	18.5	1962

Mr. Clausen's article on Sweden is very shallow. High taxes, the cost pricing, and the housing shortage, may be problems in Sweden just as they are in every other country where the economy is expanding rapidly. However, it is very doubtful if the situation is any more acute than it is here in Canada. From my experience as a visitor to Sweden, prices are no higher than ours, with salaries just about on par with Canada. Swedish apartments are certainly no smaller nor less grand than in Canada — only the rents are smaller because Sweden has rent controls. Although there is a waiting list for new apartments, you will not find Swedes living in the sort of slums or ghettos that blight the cities in North America.

The taxes in Sweden may be made to sound high, but taxes in Canada are high too. In order to make a fair comparison, a Canadian must add to his bill the cost of his contributions to private insurance plans covering medical, dental, drugs, United Appeal payments, as well as the high cost of sending children to university. In Sweden, all higher education is available to those with ability, for there are no tuitions. A working man in Sweden can deduct the cost of his work clothes and his property taxes from his income taxes. You cannot do that in Canada.

Sweden has overcome many of the problems that plague Canada — unemployment, poverty, and regional disparity. Sweden is the only country in the democratic world where it is written into the Constitution that every citizen is guaranteed gainful employment. Consequently, the Swedish unions sit down with management and plan industrial automation, unafraid of making certain jobs redundant, knowing that no Swede shall suffer from unemployment. Swedish workers receive full pay while retraining, receive full pay while retraining for the costs of relocating to a new job. This fact helps explain why Canadian labor loses over 100 days a year in strikes (per 1,000 workers employed) for every 1 day lost in Sweden (per 1,000 workers employed).

The Swedish system of security and incentives works so well that Sweden has overtaken Canada in Gross National Product per capita and the rate of growth of the Swedish GNP exceeds Canada or the United States. Even with a war in Vietnam to stimulate our economies we cannot keep up with the world.

The Swedes lead the world in longevity, they lead the world with the lowest infant mortality rate, they lead the world in the social insurance, welfare, child care, pensions, penal reform. Also, they lead the world in readers of newspapers, in many fields of industrial design, technology, engineering and automation.

The Swedes still have their problems, but no one else in this world has solutions as effective as the Swedish solutions.

Negative Income Tax Plan Is Ruled Out

Montreal Gazette

Suggestions have come from a number of sources, most recently from the Economic Council of Canada, that the federal government should consider the negative income tax as one means to eradicate poverty in the country. All Canadians would make out income tax forms. Where incomes fell below the official minimum, a "negative tax payment" by the government would make up the difference.

Prime Minister Trudeau has ruled out this approach for the present. He was right to rule out a solution which has not proved itself, and which has many inherent inconsistencies.

The idea of raising every person's income up to what is termed an acceptable standard sounds ideal. But as the Prime Minister pointed out, few people realize how costly it would be.

Then there is the question of how effective it would be. The main aim of any anti-poverty program must be to root out the cause and halt the vicious circle which has kept a great many of the poor families in that condition for decades.

The negative income tax would do nothing except raise the income level. There are cases of persons who because of mental or physical infirmities must have a certain level of income to exist. But these are special cases.

A negative income tax would tend to fossilize poverty in most cases, rather than root it out.

The churches in the Province of Ontario will be requested to co-operate in conserving the available coal supplies. The new fuel controller, R. Ross Smith, has already laid before representative clergymen of all denominations a suggestion that church services be curtailed or combined in a way that will effect a saving of 50 to 60 per cent in the consumption of coal. The controller believes that three churches can arrange to hold their services in one building and when union services are not favored the congregations might meet at different hours in one building. The suggestion is meeting with approval.

TODAY IN HISTORY

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Oct. 2, 1968 . . .

Ferdinand Foch, supreme commander of the Allied armies at the end of the First World War, was born 117 years ago today—in 1851. Author of military texts, Foch proved to be a practical general at the Marne in 1914 and Ypres in 1915. When, faced with German successes, the Allies unified their general staff, Foch was chosen commander. He won the second Marne battle to halt a German advance.

1871—Mormon leader Brigham Young was arrested for polygamy.

1893—The first Pan-American conference opened in Washington.

First World War

Fifty years ago today—in 1918—German forces began a retreat from the Amiens-Armentieres area; Australian forces took La Bassee and Aubers and Canadian troops held the suburb of Neuville St. Remy; British, Italian and American cruisers successfully raided the Albanian port of Durazzo.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1943—the famed Australian 9th Division, which fought at El Alamein in Egypt, captured the Japanese air and sea base at Finschafen in northeast New Guinea. United States heavy bombers attacked the German port of Emden in a daylight raid.

Whither the Monarchy?

Orillia Packet and Times

The long, often furtive but always deliberate, campaign waged by a succession of Liberal governments to divest Canada of its last ties with the traditional monarchy, was culminated recently by Prime Minister Trudeau's declerion of any reference to Queen or Commonwealth at the opening of Parliament. This studied slight made an anachronism of the so-called Speech from the Throne, but years of denigration had done their work, and the insult, which once would have roused the indignation of Canadians from coast to coast, passed without comment.

It is a curious paradox that the Liberal establishment which now dominates almost every aspect of Canada's political, educational, artistic and journalistic activity, and which is so quizzically anti-American in its every attitude, should have been the instrument to divest this country of the one institution which comprised its principal difference from its great neighbor. There is surely irony in the spectacle of these professed super-Canadians destroying the last link which for so long conferred a distinctive Canadian identity, for the concept of parliamentary monarchy was the principal difference which sundered Canadians from the great mass of their fellow North Americans. Is it, perhaps, poetic justice that the bitter Canadian intellectualism which satirizes Americans as "The Ugly Canadians" should be the means of Americanizing this country?

Given the background of geographic, economic and military pressures in a world of power politics, it was inevitable that Canada would become, first a satellite, then an integral part, of the enormous neighbor with whom she shares a common language, culture and outlook. Yet for all of that there is something sad about her progressive abandonment of a concept of constitutional monarchy, which was perhaps the most precious part of her heritage, in favor of the sort of "personality cult" one-man rule that has become as fashionable with the New Left of today as it once was with the extreme Right yesterday.

Critical Citizens

U.S. Dilemma: Law and Order—or A Police State?

Providence Journal

The term "law and order" is being badly abused, and that is unfortunate because the concept of "law and order" is essential in a democracy. But the term is being abused by extremists who mask an appeal to racism behind its words; it is being abused by other extremists who charge racism against honourable men who use the words in their best sense.

George C. Wallace, former governor of Alabama and candidate for the presidency as leader of his own American Independent Party, perhaps has done more than any other public figure to invoke the term in a way which suggests to his listeners a determination to crack heads indiscriminately — all kinds of protesters, demonstrators, and militant groups.

When he calls for "law and order" in his context he is calling for a blind crackdown. His audiences understand what he is aiming at, and they respond to his get-tough-with-them policy enthusiastically. For them, "law and order" equates with the peace and quiet on streets kept that way by force of arms.

There is no doubt that the preservation of law and order sometimes requires the use of force. When Americans demonstrating in whatever causes they support in an exercise of their right of free speech and assembly interfere with the rights of others, then the need to restore law and order may require the use of force in the public interest.

Unfortunately, there are extremists of another group who are beginning to identify as racist any man, such as Gov. Spiro T. Agnew of Maryland, Republican candidate for the Vice-Presidency, who calls for law and order on the streets. For these extremists, the term becomes a slander to hang on a public figure with the courage of his convictions.

A decent and honourable term then, is becoming for some a cue to the arousal of mass fury against anyone who does not conform to Wallace-style stereotypes. At the same time it is becoming for others a term to blacken the name of anyone who upholds law and order as pre-essential to the functioning of a democracy.

Americans need to remember that a man or a woman can fight in the cause of civil rights and simultaneously insist on law and order. Without law and order, there can be no fruitful exercise of any of our civil rights; without civil rights, law and order will come to mean the deathly quiet of a police state.

Family Holds Flag

Johnson Is Buried in Adopted Village

ST PIE, Que (CP) — Dusk was falling as Joseph Francis Daniel Johnson was laid to rest Tuesday in his adopted village.

The 20th premier of Quebec who had led his province for only two years, was buried in the Bagot riding that kept him in power for 22 years as a Union Nationale member of the legislative assembly.

The Premier had requested that he be buried here where his family maintains a summer home. Most of the town's 4,000 residents were either at the graveside or in the small church where Bishop Albert Sanschagrin of St. Hyacinthe delivered the Libera—a short prayer.

Crowds, mostly from outside the village, jammed the streets of the community 40 miles southeast of Montreal and filed past the coffin at the rate of 1,500 an hour to pay their final respects before the interment services.

Premier Johnson, who died last Thursday at 53 at Manicouagan, 250 miles north of Quebec City, was described as a man "faithful to Quebec" by Quebec Justice Minister Jean-Jacques Bertrand, who delivered the graveside eulogy.

Mr. Bertrand, who is expected today to be named interim leader of the UN by a party caucus in Quebec City, said of Mr. Johnson:

"Because of you, Quebec has progressed. You have been faithful to Quebec.

"He (Mr. Johnson) belongs to the annals of the province."

Mr. Bertrand called the dead premier "a faithful servant of the people and a loyal Canadian."

Most provincial cabinet members who shook hands with the Johnson family shortly after the ceremonies closed were weeping.

The body was taken from the parish church to the St. Francois Street cemetery a mile away.

Mrs. Johnson choked back tears throughout the graveside ceremony. Handed the fleur-de-lys flag of Quebec which had covered the coffin, she kissed it and joined hands over it with her four children—Marc, 23, Daniel Jr. 21, Marie 15, and Diane, 18. Mrs. Daniel Johnson Jr. was also with the family.

The body had been borne here from Montreal where it had lain in state since arrival from Quebec City Monday.

Senate Will Not End Fortas Filibuster

WASHINGTON (AP) — Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, bucking time and strong opposition, says he will decide by week's end whether to try to overturn the Senate vote against Abe Fortas's nomination to be chief justice.

The Senate dealt Fortas and President Johnson a prestige-crushing blow Tuesday when an attempt to end a filibuster against the appointment failed.

Mansfield, who is under strong pressure to end the Senate session soon because of the Nov. 5 general election, said after the vote: "I am thinking the whole picture through and trying to decide on my next move. I want to assess the lineup of the Senate and see what the prospects and possibilities are."

If he can't drum up support for the nomination will be dead, for all intents and purposes.

Fortas opponents were confident that there will be no shifts from the vote, which was 45 to 43 to kill the filibuster—14 votes short of the two-thirds margin needed to limit debate and bring the nomination to the floor.

Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen, a key opponent of the effort to kill the filibuster, said he doesn't know of a single man likely to change from his position.

Despite the rebuff, President Johnson served notice he's not about to withdraw the nomination of Fortas to replace Chief Justice Earl Warren.

"The nomination is still there," said a White House spokesman.

Dirksen urged Johnson to withdraw the nomination.

Senator James Eastland (Dem., Miss.), chairman of the Judiciary committee, said it was apparent that Fortas's nomination had been defeated.

He called Tuesday's vote a clear indication of the will of the Senate and predicted the leadership will "abandon a hopeless fight and take the nomination down."

On the roll call, 25 Democrats and 10 Republicans voted for debate-limiting closure Tuesday. Nineteen Democrats and 24 Republicans voted no.

Of the 12 senators not recorded on the vote, two announced they would have voted for cutting off debate and four that they would have voted against. Had they voted the count would have been 47 to 47.

The other six who did not vote did not make their positions known.

Only one nominee for chief justice has been refused confirmation. That was in 1795, when the Senate rejected George Washington's nomination of John Rutledge 14 to 10.

Czech Refugees Likely to Exceed 2,000 Expected

OTTAWA (CP) — The steady flow of Czechoslovak refugees to Canada will likely push the final total well above early estimates, informants say.

Government officials thought at the outset that anywhere from 1,000 to 2,000 might choose Canada as a new homeland because of the Russian occupation Aug 20.

But about 700, most of them on airlifts sponsored by the Canadian government, have already arrived. And the sponsored charters continued to arrive from Vienna every few days.

The next two are due Oct. 4 One plane load of 196 will land passengers at Winnipeg, Edmonton and Vancouver The other, with 132 aboard, will land at Montreal and Toronto.

On Oct. 6, another flight arrives in Toronto. On Oct. 9, one flies to Winnipeg, Edmonton and Vancouver. Flights are also tentatively booked for Oct 13—Montreal and Toronto—and Oct. 16—Toronto and other eastern points.

Besides the charters paid for by the Canadian government, there is a trickle of refugees entering on regular commercial flights. There are usually at least one or two aboard each incoming flight from central Europe.

Canadian officials expect at least 2,000 immigrants in Canada by the end of October, and there is no sign the flow is abating.

It is anybody's guess on just how high the total will go.

Most of the 100,000-or-so Czechoslovaks on holiday when the Russians came are still biding their time, waiting to decide whether to return home or go to Canada or some place else. Some are going to the United States and Australia.

Officials say the publicity surrounding the exodus has led to many job offers for the new arrivals. Most of them are highly qualified.

A check of the manifests of a couple of the early planeloads showed the adult male immigrants to be doctors, dentists, scientists, technicians, university students, members of the arts and so on. Sometimes the wives are also professionally qualified. There were no laborers on board in the planes checked.

Gas Blast Damage Is $50,000

TORONTO (CP) — Damage in a natural gas explosion early Tuesday which ripped out the side wall of a drug store and an upstairs apartment, burning two women tenants, has been estimated at $50,000.

The blast, which damaged three units of a shopping plaza on Bloor Street West near Dundas Street in suburban Etobicoke, occurred less than an hour after a construction grader apparently cut a one-inch gas service line.

Dorothy Walsh and Lorraine Chapman, burned on the face, neck and hands in the brief fire that followed the explosion, were in satisfactory condition in hospital.

C. C. Leslie, superintendent of construction maintenance for Consumers' Gas Co., said the company was called about 7:30 a.m. by the paving firm which severed the line, and gas workers had capped the leak by 8.05 a.m.

The explosion occurred minutes later, apparently after one of the injured women lit a cigarette, police said

It knocked out a 35-by-10-foot section of the brick wall of their apartment, leaving furnishings exposed, damaged two neighboring buildings and snapped a hydro pole like a toothpick.

About 25 tenants of neighboring apartments above the row of stores fled to the street, many still wearing pyjamas.

Door-to-door Sales Under New Regulation

TORONTO (CP) — Anyone in Ontario who signs a contract with a door-to-door salesman has a two-day cooling off period during which he can cancel the deal, in a new provincial law effective Tuesday

The law also requires that all itinerant salesmen or companies employing them register with the consumer protection branch of the department of financial and commercial affairs

The legislation provides a fine of up to $25,000 for companies and a $2,000 fine or a year's imprisonment for individuals. Salesmen will not be required to carry proof that they or their companions are registered, but registrations will be lifted if sales are made fraudulently.

S. D. Turner, director of the branch, said about 1,000 registrations have been received so far

If you have a shopping problem, a suggestion or a complaint Hilda wants to hear from you. Write to her at Loblaw Groceterias Co., Limited, 545 Lake Shore Blvd. West, Toronto 2b.

HILDA'S COLUMN

"It's all very well," a customer writes, "to try and get people to come back to Loblaws, but what about all of us who never left?" She's right, of course, and Loblaws is grateful to the thousands of loyal customers who have called Loblaws "home" for years and years. Here are some other letters:

Dear Hilda:

They've taken all the fun out of my weekend shopping—no green stamps. We used to buy your specials with the extra stamps although we had some very peculiar menus. Many things got into my kitchen cupboard that never would have.

Why is it always the woman who is supposed to economize? They never seem to cut liquor, cigarette or gas prices. Always the woman who has to worry about the pennies.

I must admit your prices are coming down but just thought I'd let you know how uninteresting I'm finding my weekly shopping.

Mrs. R. H., Brampton

P.S. I told Mr. Weinstein I wanted stamps, but I guess majority rules.

DEAR MRS. R. H.—YOU KNOW WHAT THEY SAY, AN ECONOMIZING WOMAN IS A JOY TO AN ENTERPRIZING MAN.

Dear Hilda:

I am sure you would like to hear from a happy, or shall I say, more satisfied customer. Well, that's me.

For many months I could not shop at Loblaws even though I did save green stamps, but straight cash looked better in my purse, so with the price of so many products higher than elsewhere, I shopped elsewhere.

Now the prices at your stores are quite tempting again so once more I will be a Loblaw customer.

Mrs. A. M., Toronto

DEAR MRS. A. M.—THAT'S EXACTLY WHAT WE HOPED YOU'D SAY. THANKS.

WEDDINGS

Hannafin – Pascoe

St. Charles Borromeo Church, Read, was the scene of the September 21 wedding when Father R. J. Ferguson officiated at the double-ring ceremony when he united in marriage Linda Marie Pascoe, daughter of Mr. W. M. Turner of Belleville and the late Ernest Pascoe to Ambrose Vincent Hannafin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Hannafin of Marysville. Organist Miss Ann McAlpine rendered the traditional wedding music, while the soloist was Mrs. Jack Sexsmith.

The bride, given in marriage by her stepfather, Mr. W. M. Turner, wore a floor length gown of nylon lace over taffeta, featuring a full skirt with an overlay of lace ruffles. The gown featured long lily-point sleeves, with a high neckline accented by patterned lace. Her fingertip headdress was of seed pearls with tiered illusion net veil. She carried a bouquet of red roses.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Joanne Ryder, sister-in-law of the groom. She was attired in a floor length sleeveless gown of yellow silk chiffon over taffeta, which featured fitted sheath underskirts and a high round neckline which was adorned with tiny embroidered daisies. A floating panel of silk chiffon highlighted the skirt. Bridesmaids, Miss Janice McFarlane, cousin of the bride, Mrs. Shirley Jones and Miss Suzanne Pascoe, sister of the bride, were attired in gowns similar to that of the matron of honor, except in peppermint green chiffon. Headpieces were of matching petals with double layers of nylon tulle. All carried bouquets of white and tinted mums to match their dresses.

Flower girl was Miss Annette Jones, niece of the bride, who wore a long white cotton brocade dress, which featured a yellow panel of lace down the front. Her yellow flowered headband matched the nosegay of yellow mums which she carried.

Attending the bridegroom was his brother, Edmund Hannafin; while the ushers were Charles Callahan, Norman Rider, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, Ronald Pascoe, brother of the bride.

The wedding dinner was held at Melrose Hall followed by a reception, which was held in the Read Parish Hall. To receive the guests, the mother of the bride wore a mauve crepe dress in a sheath style, featuring a mandarin collar and lace sleeves. Her accessories of mauve and black were complemented by a corsage of yellow sweetheart roses. Assisting her, the mother of the bridegroom was attired in an attractive grey textured forted dress with black accessories contrasted by a corsage of red sweetheart roses.

For the wedding trip to points west, the bride donned a brown and beige hooded orlon knit dress with beige accessories, completed by a corsage of pink mums. Upon their return, the couple will reside in Woodstock.

Manor Auxiliary Will Attend Bancroft Opening

The library of Hastings Manor was filled to capacity recently when the Auxiliary met for the first meeting of the fall season.

The president Mrs. F. Davidson conducted the business portion and reports were given.

Mrs. Kilburn reported there had been 282 visits made to the Manor during the months of July and August. Mrs. Kingston reported that 28 rose bowls had been sent to residents who were ill in the Belleville Hospital during the summer months. Mrs. Davidson gave a report on the progress of the new coffee shop and thanked all who had donated various articles toward same.

Mrs. Yorke welcomed all present and thanked those who have helped in the tuck shop and also the coffee shop. The Auxiliary will purchase four walkers and two footstools for the comfort of the residents.

It was unanimously voted to charter a bus for the purpose of attending the official opening of the Bancroft Home for the Aged on October 18. Mrs. Bertrand will be in charge of hiring the bus.

At the close of the business the members met with the residents in the dining-room for the customary birthday party. It was a gala celebration for those having birthdays in both August and September, of which there were 30. The large birthday cake was cut by the eldest guest present, Mrs. Elizabeth Martin 91, and Mr. Stanley Shaw 77, for the month of August. Those for the month of September were Mrs. Mary Jackson 89, and Mrs. Joseph Doxtator 98.

A social time was spent over lunch, with Mrs. Domney and Mrs. F. Gunsolus pouring tea.

EDMONTON CP — Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Dextrase, who returned from doing volunteer work in Guyana, said projects often fizzle out because the natives haven't been trained to take over after volunteers leave. Mrs. Dextrase said Guyanna needs long-term volunteers rather than vitamin pills to cure the country's ills.

'Cities, Old and New' Topic at Study Guild

"Cities, old and new," proved to be an interesting topic to start off the new term of the Women's Study Guild. Mrs. H. G. Wylie did Mrs. G. E. Adams divided the material into four parts — cities of old, modern cities, problems of today's cities, and cities of the future, or new towns as they are called.

This, the first meeting of the new season was held at the home of Mrs. G Maybee with the new president Mrs. Jerry Cochrane presiding.

In dealing with the topic Mrs. Wylie emphasized that "City planning is not a new phenomenon" and said that "One of the oldest cities of about 6000 B.C. discovered by archaeological diggings, displays a definite plan in the outline of its homes, buildings and public areas." In tracing the history of cities through the ages, Mrs. Wylie spoke of the beauty of the Greek architecture, and the layout of the cities around the acropolis (the high part of the city), and the agora (the market place); the great engineering prowess of the Romans and their adoption of the gridiron pattern; of the early Celt hill fortresses in Britain which developed into many walled cities which had many health, sanitation and fire hazards.

Speaking of cities that have grown up today, Mrs. Wylie contrasted those of the U.S.A. and Canada which are mostly of the gridiron type, having home lots large enough to provide front and back yards, with those of many European cities which are crowded with street - front houses with only the back yards.

The modern trend is towards the suburbs, leaving the inner city to become a slum. Mrs. Adams showed that this moving from the inner city to avoid traffic, noise, pollution etc. has caused many problems. In fact, when rural areas were flourishing, the natural flora and fauna maintained an even balance of nature. With the spread of urban areas and the resulting pollution of air and water in streams and lakes, the natural resources are being used in ways which do not serve man well.

The cities of the future hope to separate man from the automobile, creating minor streets and squares where no cars are allowed, and having different levels for pedestrians and cars.

Mrs. Adams showed pictures of three of these new cities, one in Pakistan, Eastwick in Philadelphia, and Reston in Virginia, showing how city planners are meeting the problems of modern day traffic, densely populated areas, green belts and pollution.

Mrs. Wylie spoke again of the problems of pollution, garbage disposal, sewage and industrial waste, and pointed out that cities must cooperate in pollution control. "Urban development is destroying the beauty of the countryside," remarked Mrs. Adams, "with cheap discount houses, liner, billboards, car graveyards etc. Communities must be made aware of the difficulties and must become involved in urban renewal." She concluded by showing plans for the "Magic Circle" for the city of Belleville.

Mrs. R. H. Roulet, in her devotional, mentioned the building of cities in Biblical times, and of the importance of the temple, synagogue or church which dominated the skyline of the older cities. Today, high rise apartments obscure the church spires, which fact is an obvious commentary on today's world.

Three letters received since the June meeting from the newly-adopted child, Marylene Cohen of Marseille, France, proved interesting to the members. Mrs. L. N. Fortin and Mrs. R. Bettle served lunch at the conclusion of the meeting.

Ann Landers

Husband in Favor Of Adopting Child

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My wife and I have been married for seven years and we have no children. We have both been to several doctors and the reports are contradictory. Two specialists told us we would probably never have a family because of my wife's underdeveloped female organs, but two other specialists said there is no medical reason for her childlessness.

My brother and his wife have two adopted children and they are a wonderful family. The next-door neighbors just adopted a baby girl and they seem to be in seventh heaven. She is 100 per cent against adoption because she says she isn't sure she could love someone else's child.

ANN LANDERS

Please, Ann, print your views. You must receive many letters from people who have had some first-hand experience with this problem. — WANT TO BE A DAD.

DEAR WANT TO: The following letter crossed my desk within five minutes of your letter. It is the perfect answer for your wife.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This letter is for the woman who signed herself, "Va. of Va." — and all the rest like her. It makes my blood boil when I hear women say, "The tragedy of our lives is that we were never blessed with children."

Surely these people know there are thousands of homeless tykes waiting to be adopted. Every youngster needs love, affection and guidance, and there are a great many more homeless children in the world today than there are places for them.

I have yet to encounter a set of adoptive parents who didn't feel as warmly about their children as if they had given them life. In fact, parents who went out of their way to adopt youngsters often seem to love and appreciate them more.

I have decided that people who are unable to have families and do nothing but moan about the "tragedy" are too selfish to make the move. — ADOPTED AND PROUD.

* * *

DEAR PROUD: Strong words, but there's a lot of truth in them.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Print my chief gripe and make a friend for life, will you please?

I have worked with the public for 20 years so I know how impatient, inconsiderate, rude and downright guilty people can be. Since going to work as a telephone operator, however, I have developed an emotional allergy to pet names. I can tolerate vulgarity, but I loathe being catered to. When strangers call me Sweetie, Sugar, Hon and Dear, I get so mad I want to plug them out.

I know several operators who feel as I do. Will you do us all a favor and print this complaint. — DIAL O.

* * *

DEAR O: Over the years I have received many letters from telephone operators, and the vast majority of them would prefer Sweetie, Sugar, Hon and Dear to the obscenity and profanity that sometimes sears their ears. Settle, Baby.

* * *

Confidential to COLD FEET, WARM HEART: This sounds pretty chummy to me, friend. Cool it. You're too young for such testing.

Successful Living

Wife Snaps at Husband for No Apparent Reason

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: In 15 years of marriage, my husband has never spoken an unkind word to me and neither drinks nor smokes. He has never been unfaithful to me. The problem is that I just seem to snap at him all the time for no apparent reason.

Doris, he is one in a million; and I feel a wife should be more than a spotless housekeeper. She should be a loving and an understanding wife. I'm just a fat zero in the personality department. My husband must have the patience of a saint because he is the only one who can tolerate me. I have few friends because I'm so quick - tempered and don't hesitate in being critical of them.

Do you think I require the help of a psychiatrist? — High Strung.

Dear High Strung: Look, a man like yours could be twice the person he is if you would call off all the carping. He must use up all kinds of energy and patience in treating you gently; energy which should be going into creative living.

Somewhere away back you got that chip on your shoulder. To get rid of it now will take piles of resolution; and skilled help from outside would make it easier. Social workers help with this kind of personality change; didn't you know?

* * *

Dear Doris: I entered high school in September and will be 13 in November. I look older than I really am but I am scared of the reactions that the other students will give when they find out my age.

I wonder if you could give me some advice on how to act and dress. — Panicky.

Dear Panicky: I know. When your high-class brain advances you too quickly beyond your chronological years, panic is likely to set in. It seems just too big a step from little kid school to that big girl collegiate.

But you'll make it o.k. Keep in mind that others who stand

Dear Doris: Could you tell me how to wear my hair? I am tall, thin and I wear glasses.

If I wear it in a pony tail or French roll I always get two sore spots on my head. What is this caused from and what can I do about it? I am 14. — A Reader

Dear Reader: Go easy! You must be pulling and pinning the hairs too tight and putting a strain on the scalp. If you sleep on bobby pins you are asking for sore spots.

Hairdos are coming in curly, short, feminine. Just the thing to round out a tall thin face. Try light feathery bangs for a finishing touch.

* * *

When writing in, allow Doris is four weeks for private reply which will be sent if a five-cent-stamped, self-addressed envelope is enclosed.

Reports Given At Red Cross Branch Meet

Reports received by President, G. R. Cameron at the September meeting of the Belleville Branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society showed that committees continued to be active during the summer months.

Mrs. A. H. Ketcheson stated that the Homemakers worked 1350 days.

Archie Lewis is hoping for a successful blood clinic, Thursday, October 10. The senior students of the secondary schools are being contacted in regard to this clinic.

Treasurer Newton Thompson reported receipts of $1079. Included in this was a cheque from the United Community Services.

CLUB 4-H NOTES

The second meeting of the Foxboro Tulli Fraliers was held on September 17 at 7 o'clock at the church hall.

The meeting opened with the 4-H pledge and the minutes of the last meeting were read by Janet Skinner. A discussion and business was then conducted. Shirley Peate brought a fruit salad for a demonstration.

The next meeting will be held next Thursday at the same time and same location.

Stuffed Green Peppers

By MARY MOORE

Bright and early on Saturday morning my two guests from Espanola went to our famous market with me. I bought tomatoes for 50 cents for a ½-six-quart basket and fancy Lorie peaches at $2. This last was an extravagance but I wanted the best for the Peach Chutney I was planning to make (see early September, 1968).

The green peppers were abundant and at different prices at nearly every stall. To make the Stuffed Green Peppers below I bought five at five cents apiece.

MAIN COURSE STUFFED GREEN PEPPERS (serves 5)

5 medium-large green peppers
1 pound sausage meat (or skinless sausage)
One-third cup long grain rice
1 cup boiling water
½ teaspoon salt
One 7½ - oz. can tomatoes sauce
¼ teaspoon oregano (optional)
1 teaspoon minced onion (raw or bottled)

First cook rice in boiling water with salt, covered, until tender — about 25 minutes.

Wash peppers, put in large saucepan and cover with boiling water and parboil 5 minutes to soften them to a leathery texture only. Drain.

If you leave your peppers whole, to stuff them trim off stem end and with curved grapefruit knife scrape out seeds and ribs. If you cut peppers in halves it is easier to remove seeds and ribs.

WEDNESDAY

Dinner Menu

Main Course Italian Minestrone; Italian Bread Sticks; Corn on the Cob; Tossed Greens with Italian French Dressing; Warm Custard Pie; Tea.

Mix together the sausage meat, cooked rice, tomato sauce, oregano and onion. Fill whole peppers or pepper halves and stand in large shallow baking dish. Add about ¾" hot water to bottom and bake covered at 375 deg. Fahr. for 45 or 50 minutes until peppers are just tender but not collapsing.

NOTE: If you wish to extend the filling to fill six peppers increase amount of rice to ½ cup and boiling water to 1½ cups and salt to one-third teaspoon.

Five Generations

A happy event took place at the weekend in Montreal when five generations were present for a family get-together. The centre of attention of course was the youngest descendant, baby Pamela Carey of Kingston, whose grandmother is Mrs. Bernie (Helen) Balyx, (extreme right), of Belleville. Also pictured are: the mother, Mrs. Sandra Carey of Kingston (standing), the great grandmother, Mrs. Boleslawa (Bobbie) Switetansel, (left), and the great, great grandmother, 95-year-old Mrs. Barbara Goralczyk, both of Montreal.

Electrical Hazards to be Reduced

Hazards caused by overloading kitchen appliance circuits will be reduced in homes and apartments wired or rewired after Jan. 1, 1969, Ontario Hydro announced today.

This is the date of an important change in Ontario electrical requirements calling for a three-wire circuit to each twin (duplex) kitchen receptacle. This means that each outlet will be on separately fused 15-ampere circuits. To permit safe repair and replacement work, the circuits will be interlocked for simultaneous disconnection.

"It's virtually impossible to overload a three-wire circuit with two conventional kitchen appliances," says Hal Wright, Hydro's assistant chief electrical inspector. "Each outlet will carry any Canadian Standards Association-approved portable appliance at the same time with complete safety.

"With present wiring systems," he explains, "two high wattage appliances in the same duplex receptacle often exceed 1500 watts and the fuse blows. After continual re-fusing, the homeowner often puts in a 20 or 25-ampere fuse, which is less sensitive to overheating and is a definite hazard."

The change, which will also apply to summer cottages, was recommended by the provincial committee on the Ontario Electrical Code. The committee includes representatives of municipal utilities, fire and electrical inspection authorities, contractors, manufacturers and distributors, all of whom have a common interest in greater electrical safety.

Home and School News

(Queen Mary School)

The first meeting of the Queen Mary Home and School Association was held the last Wednesday in September. Safety Officer Robert Hall of the Belleville Police Department spoke on traffic safety and child molestation. The new principal, Ron Caswell, introduced "the teaching team," and outlined the teaching and report techniques that will be used this year.

According to Mr Caswell, a system is being inaugurated which will attempt to place the child where he will receive more individual attention. "There may be times when your child will come home and say 'I was in the room across the hall today. And we had two (or three) teachers.'"

The children will be moved up, down and across class lines, depending on their abilities in a given subject. A cracker Jack in math may need more grounding in English for example. Which could mean that a grade three child would go into Grade four for math for a short while. At the same time, the child may spend a similar temporary period in Grade two English.

Group teaching is also to be used. This will provide differing points of view and differing teaching techniques on the same subject. Homework will be reduced but "there will be projects to be completed or carried out at home." He made a definite point of library membership, outlining the value of having one "and using it." Narrative style "progress reports" will be used again this year. Two will be comprehensive (November and March) and combined with parent - teacher interviews. Two "ticky reports" (January and May) will complement them.

Safety Officer Hall stressed the need for safe traffic habits, particularly in the area of Queen Mary during the construction going on on Bridge St. W. He spoke of the need for signals, while riding in a car or riding on a bike. And if the parent doesn't use signals when driving, the child is less likely to consider it necessary to do so when riding a bike. Good habits can be learned as well as bad ones.

Officer Hall, who was introduced by the new president, Paul Clare, showed a film "Say NO to a Stranger" and distributed pamphlets also dealing with the subject of child molestation.

A membership drive was started, by membership Convener Mrs. E. Francis. Social Conveners Mrs. Gilbert and Mrs. Annis supervised the bake sale as well as preparing the lunch.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

Previous to her marriage, Mrs. Ambrosa Hanoulis (nee Linda Pascoe) was guest of honor at several showers. A miscellaneous shower was held at the home of Mrs. John McFarlane with Janice McFarlane as co-hostess; also a miscellaneous shower was held at the home of Mrs. Marvin Miles. Fellow employees at Zeller's Ltd. honored the bride-elect with a shower at the home of Mrs. Sandy Hughes.

TO FLY FOOD

PARIS AP — The United Nations Children' Fund has put two helicopters to work and plans to airlift food to starving Biafran children from Calabar, where about 1,000 tons of concentrated food is stored. Five pilots and ground crews accompanied the two leased craft in a cargo plane from Long Beach, Calif.

Points for Parents

By MARY BEYSON

Mother: "Don't cry just because those snobbish girls didn't ask you to join their club. You're just as good as they are. They're not not worth bothering about."

Mother: "I'm sorry you're disappointed about the club, but you know you have many other good friends, and you will enjoy doing things with them."

Let your daughter know you understand she is unhappy, but don't encourage her to be bitter over a real or imagined rebuff.

Underdevelopment Canadian Target

Benson Moves Into Big League with Talk to Bankers

WASHINGTON (CP) — Finance Minister Edgar J. Benson of Canada moved amiably into a bankers' big league Tuesday.

He delivered a major speech to a world monetary conference, held a private discussion with U.S. Treasury Secretary Henry Fowler, and reflected casually on his legislative plans at home.

In this trip to the annual meeting of the World Bank and International Monetary Fund, Canada's views have been almost indistinguishable from those of the United States.

Benson and Fowler agree that the main project of the IMF—creating an additional form of monetary reserves called "special drawing rights"—must go ahead at full speed.

They prefer not to act now on proposals to help stabilize the prices of primary commodities exported by undeveloped nations.

They want to see a proposed $1,200,000,000 injection of aid funds into the soft-loan agency of the World Bank group. That decision, however, hangs on the mood of the U.S. Congress, which appears unlikely to approve the 40-per-cent American share necessary to make the operation go ahead.

They see no change necessary in the two-price gold system.

Finally, they support bold plans for reform and expansion of development programs of the World Bank as envisaged by its new president, Robert S. McNamara.

That support extends to the application of birth-control measures in developing countries.

Benson said Tuesday that one important element of Canada's aid program, now running at $350,000,000 a year, will be the International Development Centre forecast in the Sept. 12 speech from the throne. The centre, possibly located at the site of Expo 67 in Montreal, will "focus the resources of science and technology on specific problems of underdevelopment."

France, West Germany, Italy, India and Japan were the other industrial nations that addressed the gathering of 3,500 delegates from 107 nations Tuesday.

Agitation, particularly by South Africa, to permit sales of gold at $35 an ounce for the IMF appears to have little hearing.

Canada would benefit by such a condition if the free price of gold drops below $35, but Benson said Tuesday he believes this to be unlikely. Gold mined by subsidized Canadian companies is purchased by the Royal Canadian Mint and sold in New York now that the two-price system has insulated monetary stocks from private stocks.

Historical Society Work Outlined

NAPANEE — The emphasis was on local history when the history teachers of this area met last Wednesday afternoon in the historic Allan Macpherson house. The attendance of 18 was most gratifying, including not only history teachers from the public schools, but also several principals, and a few history teachers from secondary schools. There were two representatives from the North Addington High School in Cloyne, five from Deseronto, two from the Tyendinaga Indian Reserve and two from the Napanee District Secondary School.

Mrs. N. W. (Helen) Hutchison outlined the work which had already been done by the Lennox and Addington County Historical Society, of which she is president, spoke of its plans; and pointed out the resources of the Society which would aid teachers of local history. She introduced James Eadie, head of the history department of the NDSS, and a student of local history.

Mr. Eadie had brought with him documents which illustrated the type of material to be found here, and distributed typed copies of a brief. He dealt in particular with the Stevenson - Roblin papers. The Stevenson - Roblin papers deal principally with lumbering and with the building of the Grand Trunk Railway.

Harry Jacobs, from the regional office in Kingston, set the ball rolling for a second history fair in this area. Last year's, which was displayed in shop windows of Napanee and, in part, in Deseronto, attracted provincial attention. Such questions as a theme and the location of the fair, were discussed, and a committee was appointed to bring a report to a meeting of the history teachers alone to be held in October.

The Historical Society served coffee and fruit bread in the spacious dining room.

Excavating Started on Addition

NAPANEE — Waller Hill, chairman of the North Frederiksburg area school board, announced Monday afternoon that excavating for the addition to the H. H. Langford School began that morning. Total cost is estimated at $100,000.

Architects for the two-roomed addition are Watson and Wirgand of Belleville, and the contractor is Maurice Rollins, also of Belleville. The contract calls for the building to be completed by January 1, 1969.

The addition will be built on the south side of the existing school, and will consist of an auditorium with a retractable stage, and a classroom for special education.

Grade five is now being taught in the annex, the former Little Creek School, in order to have a classroom for special education in the H. H. Langford School itself.

8th Tyendinaga

8TH TYENDINAGA — Mrs. Ezra Cross, Cheryl and Donna spent the weekend with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. Smith at Stirling.

Mrs. J. Cross spent a few days with her daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. Stan Watson.

Several from here attended the Maple Fair on Saturday.

Master Bobbie Wilder of Plainfield spent the weekend with Armour and Richard Watson.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Cross and also Mrs. J. Skelly spent Saturday evening with Mrs. J. Cross.

Belleville Fairgrounds was turned into overnight parking lot for close to 100 tractors forming Ottawa bound cavalcade.

Local farmers provided an overnight watch on the tractors.

Farmers on Tractors Hit Quinte Area ...They're Protesting Low Corn Prices

Following an overnight stop in Belleville close to 100 corn growers from South Western Ontario this morning continued their tractor march on Ottawa in support of demands for higher corn prices.

Headed by their Ontario Provincial Police motorcycle escort, the tractors passed through the downtown area shortly after nine o'clock.

They will travel along highway 2 to Kingston, then take Highways 15 and 7 to Ottawa.

And despite a statement from Capital City RCMP that there was no place where tractors could park legally on Parliament Hill, the farmers said that Friday morning they would drive up in front of the Parliament buildings.

One militant Chatham district corn grower said they would "turn the Parliament Hill grounds into a cornfield if necessary," to support their demands for a $1.50 per bushel minimum price for corn.

As things now stand they could be forced to accept as little as 80 cents per bushel for this year's crop.

But when the approximately 90 tractors pulled into the Belleville Fairgrounds last night, drivers were advised by Walker Miller, Ontario Farmers' Union president, that nothing encouraging had come out of a meeting Tuesday between Federal Agriculture Minister H. A. Olson and Ontario Agricultural Minister William A. Stewart.

But the corn growers are determined to get what they feel is a fair price for their crop and Mr. Miller says they are prepared to spend some time in Ottawa seeking changes.

"There's lots of space on Parliament Hill to pitch tents," he said. "We could stay in Ottawa until the snow flies.

"There's no use of them (Ottawa agricultural officials) telling us that Western Ontario corn growers are inefficient," Mr. Miller said.

"These men are Ontario's top farmers with corn acreage ranging from 50 to 1,000 acres each," he continued.

In particular the growers are protesting the import of large quantities of United States corn which is sold at lower prices than Ontario grown corn — thus deflating prices for the local product.

Two years ago corn growers received from $1.30 to $1.56 per bushel for their grain corn.

This year, according to Mr. Miller, they feel they may be lucky to get 80 cents per bushel.

The farmers want an immediate embargo on all corn imports and a floor price of $1.50 for their corn.

Federal Agricultural Minister Olson says he is prepared to greet the farmers with breakfast or coffee on their arrival in Ottawa Friday morning. There was no immediate word on what government action would be taken with respect for higher corn prices.

But OFU President Miller said the tractor cavalcade was but the opening gun in farmers' demand for better corn prices.

He said they could continue through collective bargaining in an effort to achieve their demand.

One Paris area farmer with 200 acres of grain corn said the low price for corn was putting farmers in a financial squeeze.

"We buy our farm machinery and fertilizer at a price set by the supply companies, and then have to take what is offered for our corn," he said.

He said that the big corn buyers bring in lower quality American corn to escape the five cents per bushel import duty and use this to depress the price of Ontario grown corn.

"When we go to sell our crop the buyers say they don't need corn right now."

"But farmers have machinery and fertilizer payments to meet and have to accept the depressed price to get money."

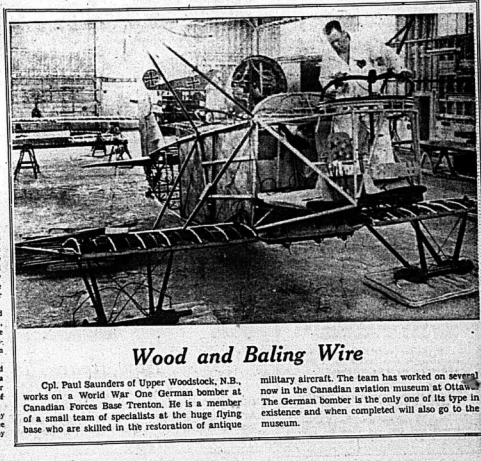
For this particular farmer this year's experience with corn prices is the second time in recent years that he has been caught in the financial squeeze.

For some years he was a wheat farmer in the Canadian West but unable to make ends meet on his quarter section decided to move to Ontario.

"And here I am again right in the same boat," he said.

No Compromise

Walter Miller, president of the Ontario Farm Union, tells tractor marching Western Ontario farmers there will be no compromise on request for higher corn prices.



Dinner Is Served

These women belong to Hastings and Prince Edward County farm union groups who pitched in to serve evening meal to the tractor travelling farmers.

That's the question being checked by these Western Ontario farmers following yesterday's drive from Toronto. The group is following Highway 2 to Kingston.

Women Provide Dinner

Hospitality Marvellous: Visitors

Tractor marching Western Ontario farmers driving to Ottawa in support of demands for higher corn prices, learned one thing yesterday during their overnight stop-over at Belleville.

That was that the hospitality of Quinte area farmers rates high up the scale.

Interrupting their 100 mile drive from Toronto, the parading farmers parked their tractors overnight at the Belleville fairgrounds, and were provided with an honest to goodness farmers' dinner beneath the grandstand.

Then, about 50 of the group accepted the invitation to stay overnight with Quinte district farmers. The remainder spent the night at a local motel.

"People along the route have been simply marvelous," stated one appreciative farmer, "Especially this side of Toronto."

Yesterday at noon the cavalcade stopped in the Port Hope area for their midday meal which was provided by a group of farmers' wives in that area.

But local farm union members' wives here were caught a bit flat-footed by the early arrival of the tractor parade at Belleville.

The schedule called for the farmers to arrive some time between 7 and 7.30 last night. Instead they rolled in a few minutes after six.

"It really took some scrambling" said Mrs. Bill Rollins of Plainfield, woman director for the Hastings County Farm Union group. "But we made out fine and the farmers were really appreciative."

Farm union group members of Hastings and Prince Edward counties provided the supper and arranged for the overnight billetting.

"We had never seen any of them before, but that didn't matter. They were a fine bunch of fellows," Mr. Rollins said.

On their arrival the visiting farmers were welcomed to the city by Belleville Mayor J. Russell Scott.

This morning the tractor cavalcade was again on its way toward Ottawa and were joined by at least two local tractors. One was driven by farm union representative Harold Murphy and the other by a Marysville woman.

Actually two women joined the cavalcade at Belleville, providing company for the lone female taking part in yesterday's tractor march from Toronto.

Yesterday Mrs. Durward Spie of the St. Thomas area was the only woman driver and "enjoyed every minute of it."

Today, she was joined by Mrs. Bill Langdon, wife of one of the parade leaders, and by a Marysville area woman.

Cepeda and Stanley Having Series' "Fidgets"

ST. LOUIS (AP) — While Bob Gibson and Denny McLain squirmed in the World Series spotlight today, another Cardinal and another Tiger fidgeted with their own problems.

Orlando Cepeda, the St. Louis first baseman, is a lusty hitter during the season but a failure during Series play.

Mickey Stanley, the Tiger rated for his defensive ability in centre field, suddenly must star at shortstop.

In today's first game of the World Series, Cepeda will try to help power 13-shutout Gibson past 31-game-winner McLain. Stanley, on the other hand, is responsible for not letting any Cardinal hits get past him.

Cepeda, the National League's most valuable player last year after batting .325, managed only three hits in 29 at-bats against Boston Red Sox, in giving him a two-Series total of 6-for-46, or .125, and three runs batted in.

This year has been a lot different for him because he plummeted to .248.

Meanwhile, today is only the ninth time Stanley has played shortstop.

He is there because Tiger manager Mayo Smith wanted to get Al Kaline's bat into the lineup. With Kaline going to right, Jim Northrup switched to centre and Stanley to the infield.

The 26-year-old Tiger first played short in late August, then worked there the last six games of the season.

Second baseman Dick McAuliffe has been spending extra time working with Stanley on various plays.

Mayo Smith has indicated that if anything goes wrong, he'll move Stanley back to centre and put Ray Oyler at short.

For Thursday's second game, the last before the teams move to Detroit, Smith plans to use Mickey Lolich, 17-9, as his pitcher while Cardinal Manager Red Schoendienst is ready with Nelson Briles, 19-11, winner of last year's third game.

This year's third game pitchers on Saturday will be Earl Wilson, 13-12, for Detroit and Ray Washburn, 14-8, for St. Louis.

By that time, it should be established if Cepda is a World Series hitter and Stanley a World Series fielder.

W. B. Prentice is mad at me.

"W. B." — (his first name may never be known) — (he's one of those nebulous public relations types for whom everything is considered in terms of initials or sentences starting with "basically") — got into hot dither when his clipping service (no less) served up this writer's recent opinion of a CBC contract agreement.

Mr. Prentice's clients — the Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union — wangled $100,000 of the taxpaying-public's money out of the CBC in return for which the network got "exclusive rights" to televise "all major university athletic events."

You may recall this column said, firstly — most Canadian sports enthusiasts didn't want more college coverage; secondly — even many Canadian college students could care less about their respective varsities; and thirdly — the CBC, in coming up with the coverage "coup," is merely trying to cover up for the fact it is all too frequently outbid for the sporting events most Canadians WANT to see — the mid-week hockey and football games.

Well that was the last straw for "W. B."

"Did you know that the Simon Fraser vs. University of British Columbia game had your audience the BC Lions game held during the same week?" he queried.

No, to tell you the gosh-honest truth, I didn't "W. B." But then, the way the Lions have been playing the last few years, I wouldn't be surprised that some days you'd find more people at a touch football game in Algonquin Park!

"Did you know that one million spectators will attend college football games this year," came the next statistical flurry from the "Canadian Advertising Agency Limited" letterhead.

No, and until it's an accomplished fact, neither do you, "W. B."

But leaving your job aside, "W. B." — because, after all, the only real difference between the basis of your opinion of college sports and mine is that you're being paid for yours — forgetting all this, do you really think 1,000,000 is such a fantastic figure when one totals up the thousands of POTENTIAL spectators from university student bodies for all the college games across Canada this fall.

That's a statistic I would have appreciated seeing in your indignant epistle.

You can recite the statistics till you're blue in the face "W. B." — sure last year's Vanier Cup college final had a tremendous Nielsen rating (so did Gilligan's Island) — I'm sure you would be absolutely right in assuming that there might be some interest across the nation in the grand finals of the college football year.

Don't forget, some people never watch a "Game of the Week" all summer, or a "Hockey Night in Canada" all winter, but you'd never catch them missing a World Series or Stanley Cup game.

And sure, new varsity stadiums are built in Antigonish and Halifax, "W. B.", but where would the boys play if they weren't? Nova Scotia hasn't exactly been Canada's hotbed of football, you know.

You did say one thing I can agree with wholeheartedly, "W. B." — "CBC has made a marvelous deal in our view . . . from a purely commercial standpoint."

Yes sir, $100,000 is nothing to sneeze at. But I'm not talking about the CBC's deal, I'm talking about OUR end of the deal — you know, we the taxpayers.

It was also nice to see you admit that "your view" — you are, after all, a "P.R." man, "W. B." — is strictly a commercial one.

Am I "another Canadian that knocks his own country without even knowing what's going on?"

Now, now, "W. B.", let's not be vindictive about this.

You sound like someone who'd accuse left-handed people of being Communists!

Just because I'm not being paid for my opinion about college sports, doesn't mean it's any less valid than yours, now does it, hmm?

I could even be accused of being unbiased in the matter, "W. B." — how about you?

What I am is a Canadian who wants to see the public-owned CBC give the majority of sports-minded Canadians what they want.

They pay for the privilege.

In all your stuistic-talking, "W. B.", did you once walk out onto the street and ask the first 25 sports buffs you met if they wanted more college athletic coverage?

If you had, you'd have received comments ranging from "ECCH" to "I didn't know we had any in the first place."

And was my reference to many college sporting events as second-rate "unworthy of any sports writer"?

Nuts to you, "W. B." — program that through your IBM and watch the lights twinkle!

Stinsons Collect Commercial Bacon

Blank Belvedere For League Title

By MAURICE-SWITZER
Sports Editor

A rumor around Commercial Softball League circles had it that Stinson's Construction intentionally jockeyed for fourth — rather than third — place finish in the standings this summer to avoid a series against the powerful Belvedere Hotel penman-winners.

The Stinson crew proved to themselves — and everybody else at the Alemite diamond last night — that they had little reason to shy away from any league opposition.

A 3-0 shutout by Stinson hurler Scott Reid gave the Builders the Black Diamond Cheese Trophy and the Commercial League championship, and ousted the Belvedere Hotelmen in the sixth game of the best-of-seven series.

Hustling Stinson centrefielder Rick Locke continued his fine playoff performance, giving the Builders a vital 1-0, first-inning lead when he legged out an infield hit, scooted to second on a passed ball, and scampered all the way home when Belvedere fielders threw the ball away twice after a routine outfield fly.

That was all Reid needed, as the 17-year-old threw a three-hitter at the Hotelmen, striking out 11 without giving up a free pass.

A second run-yielding, individual effort by Locke in the sixth-inning touched off the only distasteful episode of the hard-fought series.

After walking and going down to second while catcher Cliff Hineman bobbled with the ball, Locke raced home as the Belvedere infield batted around Ron Fuller's bust.

The combination of the run, and some harsh razzing from the Stinsons' bench sent an enraged Wayne McConnell in that direction with fists flying.

Umpires intervened before matters got out of hand, and McConnell and Belvedere shortstop Dale Duvall were ejected from the game for their part in a scuffle at the Stinson bench.

In giving up two Stinson runs, McConnell had yielded but three hits, struck out five, and walked one batter. After reliever Sonny Gray took over, Stinsons got their third run when Ron Fuller scored on Bobby Boyle's sacrifice fly.

Sloppy ball - handling meant the scoresheet difference between the Reid and McConnell three - hitters.

The Hotelmen committed four miscues, all of them figuring in the Stinson three - run total.

Meanwhile, the lone Stinson error didn't yield such fortunate dividends for Belvedere.

After Hotelman Paul Goodfellow singled through the infield in the fourth, Stinson second - sacker Ron Fuller booted Cliff Hineman's grounder to put runners on first and second, with none out.

The only serious Belvedere threat was squelched quickly by Reid, who proceeded to fire third strikes by Wennamaker, Lloyd, and Duggan.

Bob Smith's scratch third - inning single, Goodfellow's hit in the fourth, and a last - ditch, seventh - frame double by Wennamaker were the only safeties recorded off Reid deliveries.

Locke contributed a double and single to the Stinson cause, with Bob Boyle's single the other Builders' safety.

Stinsons earned their berth in the final series by whipping last year's Commercial titlists - City Hotel - in a six - game semi-final. The Belvedere crew knocked off Black Diamond Cheesemen in a see-saw, seven - game set.

Czechs "See Through" Soviets

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Czechoslovakian and Soviet athletes are maintaining a cool aloofness from each other—but they can't hide the sparks of bitterness—in the Olympic Village here.

"The Russians!" one Czech athlete reacted to a query. "We look at them and we see only air."

Since Soviet tanks moved across the Czech border a month ago, organizers of the Olympic Games have kept the two Communist teams as far apart as possible.

Originally, they were scheduled to occupy adjacent quarters and to eat in the same dining room as the East Germans and the Poles.

A discreet change was made. The Russians remained in dining room 1-A, where the main Communist nations eat. The Czechs were transferred to dining room 4-B. They eat with the Hollanders and the French. The Americans are next door.

There are more than 400 Russian athletes here, all wearing red. The 117 Czechs have blue and red attire.

The Czechs announced that their national sports hero, Emil Zatopek, winner of three running gold medals in the 1952 Games at Helsinki, will arrive here Thursday.

There had been reports that he had gone into hiding and may have sought sanctuary elsewhere.

"That is not true," a Czech official said. "Zatopek was very unhappy at first when the Russians invaded. He refused to leave his apartment. But now he is coming to the Games. He is coming at the request of the International Olympic Committee."

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Norm Van Brocklin, one of pro football's most colorful characters, Tuesday was given the job of building the hapless Atlanta Falcons into a National Football League contender. MEXICO CITY (CP-AP) — Nine members of the Canadian women's track and field team spent Tuesday settling into their apartment and strolling around the Olympic Village. They were part of a Canadian contingent that arrived from Toronto at 8 a.m. Monday. The Games open Oct. 12.

LOOKING FOR BUSINESS is Robbie Cousins, batboy for the Branch 99 Legion Bantams. The Legionnaires hope to keep Robbie busy when they tangle with Niagara Falls in Leaside Sunday for the all-Ontario OBA championship.

Bus With Us!

The Branch 99 Legion Bantams are soliciting fan support as they prepare to carry Belleville colors into their championship-stake game this weekend.

The Legionnaires journey to the neutral ground of a Leaside diamond Sunday, where at 2 p.m. they clash with Niagara Falls in the third and deciding game of the Ontario Baseball Association's bantam final.

Fresh from their 2-1 triumph before hometown fans at that Parkdale diamond last Sunday, the Legionnaires are out to taste the provincial glory that many of them sampled last summer as members of the city's Holy Rosary All-Ontario peewee championship entry.

Initial game in the best-of-three final pot saw the locals blanked 5-0 in the Honeymoon City.)

Any fans desirous of cheering the Legionnaires to an Ontario title should contact Rawson Bus Lines, who are running a 45-seat charter coach (possibly another, depending on the response) to Leaside, leaving Parkdale at 10.45 Sunday morning. Return fare is $3.45 per person.

The more rooters the Belleville youngsters have in the stands Sunday, the less "neutral" the Leaside diamond will seem.

Green's Ultimatum: A Raise or Retirement!

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ted Green says he's ready to retire—one report says he already has—from the National Hockey League if he doesn't get a raise in pay.

The 28-year-old defensive standout walked out of Boston Bruins' training camp at London, Ont., Sept. 18. He said Tuesday night at his Winnipeg home he would leave for good rather than return at last season's pay.

The London Free Press quotes him as saying he had advised Charles Mulchay, the Bruins' legal adviser, Sunday night of his decision.

"I told him I decided to retire and he said okay—that's all there was to it." Green was quoted as saying.

Green was seeking to have the last year of a two-year contract renegotiated. He was turned down by general manager Milt Schmidt and Mulchay.

Green, who ran up more than 100 penalty minutes in each of his first five seasons with Boston, after joining the team in 1960, said he and a partner have bought 15 acres in greater Winnipeg. He said they are going ahead with development plans he had not say what they were.

Another NHL star also was in the news Tuesday. Andy Bathgate, leading scorer in the NHL's Western Division last season, left the Brantford, Ont., camp of Pittsburgh Penguins. Club officials said they were trying to arrange a trade for the veteran forward.

Bathgate, 36, who played with New York, Toronto and Detroit before joining Pittsburgh, scored 29 goals and 30 assists in the 1967-68 season.

Pittsburgh general manager Jack Riley said Bathgate was offered a coaching job but wants to play in the Vancouver area.

"Andy hasn't had a particularly good training camp and after meeting coach Red Sullivan and me, Andy decided to go home," said Riley.

Bathgate is fifth on the league career scoring list, with 344 goals and 595 assists.

Other clubs also trimmed their player lists. Oakland Seals announced at Oshawa, Ont., the release of seven players to reduce their training camp roster to 22.

Defenceman Aut Erickson and Stan Fuller were assigned to Cleveland Barons of the American Hockey League and centre Mike Laughton to Vancouver of the Western Hockey League. Four others were not immediately re-assigned.

In Minneapolis, Minnesota North Stars sent seven players to their Clinton, N.Y., club in the Eastern League.

Philadelphia Flyers announced at Moncton the sighing of six players, two of them to two-year contracts. The latter two were defenceman Ed Van Impe and John Miszk.

Brady's Suspension Lifted

TORONTO (CP) — Jake Gaudaur, commissioner of the Canadian Football League, announced Tuesday he has lifted a one-game suspension on halfback Phil Brady of Montreal Alouettes.

He said it was a routine decision made at the request of the Eastern Conference Club Brady was suspended by the commissioner Friday on request of Montreal coach Kay Dalton after the player disagreed with the team physicians.

Phillips' Rink Features New Faces

TORONTO (CP) — Skip Alfie Phillips Jr., 30, who led his Toronto rink to the 1967 Canadian curling championship, has named three new men to join him for major competitions in the 1968-69 season.

They are a family combination from Oakville—Chris Johnson, his brother Dave and cousin Dave Johnson.

They replace John Ross, 30, Keith Reilly, 29, and Ron Manning, 29, who were suspended by the Ontario Curling Association last April for accepting prizes worth more than $150 a man.

The prizes, motorized tobogans, were won by the Phillips rink in December 1967 for finishing second in an international competition.

Phillips avoided suspension when he gave his prize, worth $800, to a service club.

At that time, the Ontario Curling Association had a code of ethics which limited Ontario amateur rinks to a combined prize value of $600. This ruling has since been changed, permitting prizes of unlimited value.

The three suspended members of the Phillips rink were turned down when they appealed to the OCA executive

Leon Sykes of Toronto, OCA secretary, said: "The OCA will consider their application for reinstatement a year from April 10, 1968, when they were declared ineligible for OCA events."

The suspended curlers are ineligible for OCA-sanctioned bonspiels, but will play in major club events.

Olson Under Fire as Ceiling on Farm-loan Interest Removed

OTTAWA (CP) — Agriculture Minister H. A. (Bud) Olson, a government mouthpiece from the opposition side of the Commons, had his baptism of fire Tuesday night as former allies opened up on his farm legislation.

The formery Social Credit member and Alberta farmer, named to the Trudeau cabinet last summer, came under attack for a series of measures to broaden farm-loan legislation and free interest rates from present ceilings.

The opposition criticism centred on the prospect of higher interest levels and member after member talked of the farmers' difficulty in making ends meet.

They said the higher rates would be a bonanza for financial institutions while imposing an extra burden on farmers.

NDP member Arnold Peters (Timiskaming) said the fluctuating, government-set interest rates probably would range to seven or 7½ per cent on a long-term mortgages, an "intolerable" level.

Jack Horner (PC—Crowfoot) said the minister had campaigned in Alberta for years in favor of lower interest rates, particularly for farmers.

"Yet the first stroke of business he does after crossing the fence is to present Parliament with three bills, each of which increases interest rates.

"I wonder what his friends back home will think of this stroke of business."

Officially, the Commons debate was on a resolution to amend the Farm Credit Act and broaden the program of the Farm Credit Corp, which makes loans to farmers to expand their holdings.

The resolution was passed at the end of the debate and the government's bill then was given first reading.

The debate, by agreement, also ranged over two other similar measures dealing with the Farm Improvement Loans Act and the Farm Machinery Syndicates Credit Act, both still at the resolution stage Debate on these measures will continue today.

The Farm Credit Act amendments set out a complex schedule providing maximum loans of up to $53,000 for individuals and $100,000 for two or more farmers etc.

The loans fall into two categories: Standard mortgage loans based on security of land and supervised loans based on security of land and chattels.

Under the first category a farmer over 21, could get $40,000, two working as partners or shareholders could get $80,000 and three or more $100,000.

Under the second category, one man under the age of 45 could get up to $52,000. Two could get $100,000, provided both are under 45 or one is under 35.

Under both categories farmers are permitted to borrow up to 75 per cent of the appraised value.

But a special category would allow farmers under 35, with a better than average chance of success, up to 90 per cent of the appraised value.

At present, maximum loans of $40,000 are allowed for any farm business under the first category. Under the second, for individuals under 45, the ceiling is $55,000.

The legislation would also give the Farm Credit Corp added lending capacity of $418,000,000, bolstering its nearly-depleted fund.

The present basic rate of five per cent on loans is to be erased and the government will set the future rate in relation to general interest levels.

five-per-cent rate has tended to Mr. Olson said earlier the distort the demand for credit from the corporation.

Its present total lending capacity of $1,940,000,000 had been so depleted it was expected to run out at the end of the month.

Later in the day the House talked out a private bill by Warren Allmand (L—Notre-Dame-de-Grace) which would have broadened the classes of public servants forbidden to strike.

Mr Allmand's bill would have amended the strike ban to include employees whose work is essential to the national economy, as well as those involved with national safety and security.

Incentive for Drug Research Said in Danger

OTTAWA (CP) — A major drug manufacturer said Tuesday the government's proposal to reduce patent protection on drugs will destroy all the benefits of its own incentives for industrial research.

Dr A J Moriarty, a physician and officer of a major drug manufacturing firm, said at a scientific seminar that the country will be poorer in scientific capability and the patient will be the real loser from substitute drug products imported from abroad.

Dr Moriarty's attack on legislation now before the Commons amounted to renewal of the drug industry's campaign against weakening patent protection of Canadian-based firms who are mainly subsidiaries of foreign companies.

The government has reintroduced legislation of the previous government to expose them to greater import competition in an effort to bring down drug prices The previous attempt was left unfinished when Parliament was dissolved for last June's election.

The tecnique to be employed would permit rivals of a drug firm to obtain licences to import into Canada a drug protected by patents

Patent protection was the single most important incentive for research, Dr. Moriarty said. The government's plan of "forced licencing works to the overriding advantage of the copier" who has no research and development costs

He charged that the federal industry department subsidizes the breaking of drug patents by such operators and the patent commissioner awards royalties for current manufacturing licences that amount "by his own acknowledgement" to a pittance.

"But the real loser, of course, is the patient," he said

There was growing evidence that "so-called generic drugs" are not always the quivalent of the original patented product

Parenthood Must Be Learned

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Speaking of animals not recognising their own young, as I was yesterday, reminded me that we returned from a summer vacation with a whelping box in back of the station wagon holding a Golden Retriever and her nine newborn puppies.

Our dog was only one year old this August when she gave birth to a litter. We were up all night watching the parturition, and it was amazing and fascinating to observe how this year-old puppy immediately and instinctively assumed the role of midwife, mother, and nurse.

She cleaned up the mess herself, licked the babies clean, fed them, protected them, and even growled at our children who wanted to pick them up. Nobody had to give her a manual on baby care, or teach her how to grow up fast and assume the responsibilities of parenthood.

Among humans, however, the same thing is not true, by any means. As our instincts have slowly but surely eroded we are forced to depend more and more upon our mental abilities for acts and attitudes that other mammals perform with automatic correctness.

All babies know how to be babies, but all parents do not know how to be parents. This is one of the high prices we pay for the lie of our intellectual facilities, and the corresponding diminution of our animal heritage.

Thus, it always irritates me when people point to past generations and say that the women then knew how to rear children without advice and instruction, in a natural and easy way — as opposed with the complex anxieties and conflicting theories of modern child-rearing.

But what kind of children did they rear? The history of the world, from the most ancient past, is a history of wars and bigotry, fierce superstitions and brutal tortures, the excessive boredom of the rich and the hideous squalor of the poor — all testifying to their different ways, that children were not given the kind of love and security and frame of mind to question injustice and to work for greater fraternity among men.

If we could demonstrate that people were better in the past, we might have an argument — but, if no worse, they were certainly no better, as any qualified historian knows. It is the sheerest romanticism to believe that a simple and bucolic society turns out better people. The constant tribal warfare recorded in the Bible testifies otherwise.

Learning how to be parents is perhaps the most important task facing the human race. It is not "natural" the way it is to a Golden Retriever, for her babies can grow up only to be Golden Retrievers, while ours can grow up to be healers or punishers, lovers or haters. Educating her children's feelings is one job Misty does not worry about.

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League
Eastern Ontario Club

QUESTION: I am going to Boston for a week and having heard so many stories of the difficulty of driving there I wonder if you could give me any useful hints.

ANSWER: The major east-west highway into Boston is the Massachusetts turnpike, paralleled by State 9, a commercial route serving the suburbs. From the north, I-93 and U.S. 1 lead to the Northeast Expressway, which enters the downtown area. The Southeast Expressway enters Boston from the south. State 128 encircles the metropolitan area, linking the main approaches to the city.

Driving in Boston the speed limit is 30 miles or as posted. Minimum age for drivers is 17. Rush hours are from 7:30 to 9 a.m. and 4 to 6:30 p.m. Expressways and their feeder routes should be avoided at these times. Pedestrians have the right of way on marked crosswalks. Drivers must stop for pedestrians when red and yellow lights show simultaneously. The jaywalking law is enforced.

Street system is not the word for the often bewildering maze of narrow old alleys parallel by wide, shady avenues that constitute downtown Boston. There is no "orderly progression of numbered or alphabetized streets here, so have your map handy.

Curb parking is regulated by meters in the Boston downtown area and is very limited. More space is available at centrally located parking lots and garages. Rates for lots and garages generally vary from 50 cents an hour to $2.50 a day.

If weaving through many narrow, crowded one - way streets sightseeing gets you down, the public transportation system provides subways, trolleys and buses. Underground stations are marked by an encircled T. Subway fare to any place in the city is 20 cents but as soon as the train goes above ground the fares rise to a maximum of 40 cents. Buses connect the suburbs and city, as well as serving the downtown area. Basic fare is 20 cents with a 40 cent maximum.

Taxis are found easily in Boston, either cruising or waiting at stands. Charge is on the meter system. 40 cents for the first half mile and 10 cents for each additional mile. Short trips in the downtown area usually cost $1.

A number of tours encompassing the city and its environs are available. The most economical of these are by bus. Tours may range from 2 to 9 hours in duration and $2.50 to $10 in price. In addition, limousine service providing car and-or driver is available. Major taxi companies also arrange individual tours.

Freedom Trail Walking Tour and other self - guided tour maps may be obtained at the AAA at 6 St. James Avenue or at the information centre on the Boylston St. side of the Boston Common.

QUESTION: Could you give me the mileage and average driving time from Laredo, Texas, to Mexico City.

ANSWER: The driving time given is for the average driver under normal conditions and does not take in to account the many attractions along Mex. 85 which makes it desirable to allow more time. Except for the first 100 miles south of the U.S. border there is a great variety of vegetation throughout. Fine views of mountains encourage motorists to stop at the many look-out points. The tropical thatched huts interest tourists.

Good speeds can be maintained most of the way. Scattered sections of the highway are constantly being repaired to improve driving conditions. The Laredo-Monterry segment has been resurfaced and realigned.

The distance is 765 miles and the average time driving 21½ hrs.

18TH PARKDALE LADIES' AUXILIARY

The 18th Parkdale Ladies' Auxiliary opened its fall meeting with the president Mrs. Betty Zoobkran presiding.

Mrs. Madeline Rhote was presented with a past president's pin by Mrs. Zoobkran.

The members were informed that a paper drive was planned for Oct. 5 by the 18th Parkdale Cub and Scouts group committee.

Plans were discussed for the coming season and a nominating committee was named for a slate of officers to be installed at the next meeting on October 30.

A.N.A.F. Weekly News

Coming events for the Duke of Edinburgh Unit 201 for October are as follows: Oct. 5th: Probable start of Darts Doubles matches, Cribbage and Euchre winter tournament and Mr. and Mrs. Tournament. An important General meeting, 8 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 10, Saturday Oct., 12th: Sports meet at Trenton with 42th O.C.A. Only six seats left for chartered bus. Sunday Oct. 13th RAFF Regt. Assoc. Church Parade. Thursday Oct. 24th: Big initiation and Stag Night. Friday Nov. 1st: Big Hallowe'en Dance. Costumes and prizes. In addition there will be the regular Friday evening socials with something new added. Starting next Friday, the golden music of the 40's.

Of interest to all veterans is that Dominion President J. C. Lundberg has been invited to meet DVA Minister Dube in Ottawa on Tuesday, Oct. 1st to have a conference on the Woods report. Hope to have the results if permissible, next week.

Another oldtimer, Cde. Ben Feather, celebrated his birthday last week and received the usual hearty wishes always extended to the senior citizens of the club. He was 76. He, together with Cdes. Bob Cook and Johnny Foxon, both of who have their names in the Winnipeg Hall of Fame as foot ballers, joined the Winnipeg Unit soon after the first world war ended.

The Ladies Auxiliary are to be congratulated on their wonderful evening of good food and entertainment a week ago. It was most successful both for the tremendous turnout and financially, both so richly deserved.

Cde. "Mac" reports that Cdes. S. Cherry, F. Groom and D. Barrigar are still in Belleville General Hospital, Cdes. J. Lane and T. York at home and Cde. G. Wallace in Princess Margaret Hospital, Toronto. All have been looked after.

Country's Worst Crisis

Hellyer Housing Inquiry Extends Toronto Hearings by Day

TORONTO (CP) — The Hellyer housing inquiry holds its third and final day of hearings in Toronto today, concentrating on what Transport Minister Hellyer has described as the country's worst housing crisis.

The seven-member group originally scheduled two days of hearings in Toronto and shrugged them to three when more than 50 delegations and individuals wanted to present briefs. The planners cut the list down to 23, and one source said further Toronto hearings may be held later in the year.

The minister responsible in the federal government for housing sat until after midnight early today to hear briefs mainly directed to local problems created by slum clearance and urban renewal.

Tuesday afternoon, Mr. Hellyer was met by a group of placard-carrying protesters when he visited one slum area scheduled to be razed and rebuilt. They were not hostile but were blunt in their demands that their houses be saved, or matched house-for-house at government expense.

A group of residents of the same general area presented a brief Tuesday night suggesting the government make grants to owners of old and badly-deteriorated homes to rehabilitate them. Alternatively they suggested a new system of government-sponsored mortgages for home renovation.

Town planners and architects from the University of Toronto urged the inquiry to remember the need for recreational areas, including gardens and parklands in high-density dwelling projects.

But Mr. Hellyer and members of his group found no ready answer to the question of why a recreation centre for teen-agers was not included in the Regent Park development. Toronto's first big urban redevelopment scheme, now regarded as becoming a city trouble spot.

Controller Margaret Campbell said the city may have been at fault, but when Regent Park was planned more than a decade ago, recreation centres were regarded as frills that taxpayers shouldn't have to provide for families living in public housing.

She crossed verbal swords with Doris Boyle, a Sydney, N.S., economist, who said Toronto is a wealthy city but has 75 per cent of the country's public housing, supported by federal taxes. Her Cape Breton city was clearly less able to provide such amenities for itself.

HEATING CENTRALIZED

VANCOUVER (CP) — Central steam heating is finally coming to downtown Vancouver, a generation behind other cities in Canada, the United States and Europe. The $2,250,000 project will serve 17 buildings. Steam, to be produced in natural gas-fired boilers, will start flowing through the system Nov. 1, E. C. Hurd, president of the Central Heat Distribution Ltd., said.

Labor's Brown Anchor Man in Re-election Bid

BLACKPOOL, England (AP) — Former foreign secretary George Brown, stormy petrel of the Labor party, today launches what amounts to his party's campaign for return to power.

In his first major speech since resigning in a huff from Prime Minister Wilson's government last March, Brown is presenting a "mid-term manifesto" to the party's annual convention.

The manifesto, drafted by the party's national executive, is obviously aimed over the heads of the 1,200 convention delegates to the British electorate at large.

It extols the record of Wilson's government, although admitting mistakes have been made, and lays down the party's hopes and plans for the future.

Conference sources said Wilson himself will follow up Brown's speech with a windup address to the convention Friday. The prime minister's speech Tuesday, informants said, was intended principally to restore party unity. His speech Friday will be aimed at the electorate.

Wilson's government, re-elected March 31, 1966, reached the halfway point of its five-year mandate Sept. 30. The prime minister under British constitutional procedure must call national elections before March 31, 1971.

The manifesto, Britain: Progress and Change, said the Labor government was given a mandate from the people to modernize and strengthen Britain's economy. It went on:

"The task before us was formidable. . . . The going has been tough. We have temporarily lost some friends, and some of our staunchest supporters have wondered at times whether we had lost our way. . . . We underestimated the time it would take to create the economic resources to back up our social commitments. The fundamental weakness of our industrial structure required more time to correct than anyone could have foreseen."

But the means chosen to carry out the party's electoral promises were correct, the manifesto added. "We are seeing now in 1968 the revival of the British economy which we had hoped to achieve by 1966.

"The long haul is beginning to pay off. A major transformation is coming over the economy. By 1970, Britain will have strong institutions able to meet the problems of the modern world more effectively."

Then the party statement turned to Britain in the 1970s and called for a wide debate within the Labor movement to prepare the issues for the next national election. It specified seven fields:

1. "The continuing failure of society to eliminate privilege." It suggested that the tax system should be reformed to concentrate taxation more on unearned wealth rather than earned income.

2. "The alarming gulf which still exists between the rich and poorer nations." We deplore the fact that the development gap is being allowed to grow visibly wider." It called for more aid and freer trade with developing countries.

3. "The racial tensions that are emerging here and abroad." Race relations "here at home will condition all our influence in the world at large."

4. "The dissatisfaction now felt at the lack of control which ordinary people exercise over factors which affect their own lives." What is needed, the manifesto said, "is a fresh look at our concept of representative democracy" to give workers a greater say in industry and the electorate a stronger voice in Parliament and government.

5. The improvement in communications and its effect on social values. Here the statement raised the issue of "the power of the advertiser in modern society" and suggested stronger controls may be needed.

6. Divisive nationalism which was not further defined by the manifesto.

7. "A much clearer view of the activity and purposes of modern industrial corporations." The Labor party, the document said, "does not intend to let this new industrial revolution leave in its wake the scars that characterized the first industrial revolution."

Dean Martin Foregoes Rehearsal

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Dean Martin is inclined to cut up during camera changes for his television variety show. When he does, this sort of conversation is sometimes heard over the loud speaker between him and his producer-director Greg Garrison:

Garrison-Please, Dean, you're not acting like a star Martin—I'm not a star; I'm a personality!"

"Because people like him," observed Garrison, "Everybody who knows Dean likes him; he's that kind of guy. And it comes across on TV.

Yet the Martin show did not take off like a rocket four years ago.

"Everybody thought Dean didn't want to work," remarked the producer-director. "So he was given only a few songs to sing and a few jokes to say. The rest of the time he sat down and pointed toward the guest stars. Soon we realized the mistake and began involving Dean more.

But work, Martin-style, is different from that of most other performers. His ability to "wing" a show in one day is well-known.

When Dean walks through the studio door on the morning of the show," Garrison said, "He doesn't know what he is going to sing, or what he is going to say; he doesn't even know who the guest stars are going to be. I make it a point never to call him during the week for any reason.

"This season we are even doing away with the dress rehearsal. We will have only a run-through and then do the show itself. There is a reason for this. In previous seasons, we always had a dress rehearsal before an audience. Dean being the pro he is, he naturally put out for those in the studio; even between camera setups he would joke with the audience.

"When we came to the actual taping, it was like the second show in Vegas. He had already gone through the routines once before, and he didn't have the same energy. So we're going to tape the show without a dress rehearsal and keep the mistakes in; the audience loves them."

Canada Should Negotiate Atlantic Free Trade Area: Professor

CALGARY (CP) — While Canada should actively participate in multilateral trade deals, it should also be negotiating with the United States and other countries to set up an Atlantic free trade area, Prof. Roosevelt Wonnscott of the University of Western Ontario said Tuesday.

He told the 30th annual meeting of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce that such a market should be open to all comers, including the European Common Market.

Speaking at a panel discussion on international trade, he said it is becoming increasingly difficult for Canadian business to prosper with a domestic market of 20,000,000 when world trading is fashioned on markets of 100,000,000 or more.

One way of overcoming such market limitations was special industry agreements such as the Canada-U.S. auto pact, but it was not likely that such a scheme could be extended to other industries successfully.

The other choice was a regional free-trade area, Mr. Wonnacott said.

"On political grounds, the Canadian view generally has been that the larger the number of participants the better. However, a strong economic case can be made for an initial move to free trade with the U.S. only, as a first step toward a broader arrangement."

He said Canadian manufacturers would win an immediate advantage over European competition in the U.S. market, while their position against U.S. industries would be better than most people believed.

"When Canadian costs are examined in detail, it turns out that higher costs are to be explained by inefficiencies associated with the small Canadian market," he said.

"Successful competition with U.S. producers, therefore, is not blocked by an inherent Canadian cost disadvantage. Instead, it has been limited by the tariffs, both U.S. and Canadian, that have backed Canadian producers into a low-volume domestic market.

A free market with the U.S. would enable Canadian manufacturers to turn to specialized, long run output.

"Thus Canadian producers would typically drop many or most items in their broad ranges of products, and concentrate on high volume production of selected items in which they enjoy some labor or resource advantages."

Arnold F. C. Hean of Burnaby, B.C., told the panel that Canada should be paying more attention to the trade potential of the Pacific Ocean countries.

By the year 2000 the population of the U.S., Canada, Japan, Australia and New Zealand will be almost 500,000,000 promising fresh trade opportunities, he said.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — Prices were mixed in active trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange early today.

Industrials gained .60 on index to 178.52 but western oils slipped .94 to 232.27 and golds dropped .36 to 205.64. Base metals were unchanged at 111.57.

Among heavily-traded Industrials Federal Grain slipped ¼ to 8¾. CPR reached a year's high of 68, up ½, while Canada and Dominion Sugar gained 1 to 34½.

Bell Canada gained ¼ to 45¾ but Brazilian fell ½ to 20¼. Ford of Canada dropped 1 to 204.

In base metals Inco gained ¾ to 42¼ and Hudson Bay Mining ¼ to 69¾. Rio Algom slipped ¼ to 33¾.

Among western oils, Canadian Superior dropped 1 to 37½ and Banff ¼ to 12½. Hunky was off ¼ to 25¼.

Western Decalta, which announced it had completed financing arrangements for a new convertible debenture, to be bought by Interlink Investments Ltd., a subsidiary of Charter Consolidated Ltd. of London, Eng., gained 10 cents to $3.30. Decalta warrants also rose 10 cents, to $2.70.

Trading was delayed for nearly 45 minutes in shares of Triple Five Corporation Ltd. on Tuesday to $1.16 and was the most actively traded mining stock. The company announced it had had "interesting drill results" near its producing copper property at Batchawana in the Algoma district. Shares traded at $1.30 on resumption.

Volume of shares traded by 11 a.m. was 857,500 compared with 947,000 at the same time Tuesday.

Industrials posted their biggest daily gain in almost four years in active trading Tuesday. The advance followed a three-day decline after the list posted a record high.

The industrial index was up 1.55 to 177.92. Other sections of the market were mixed

A total of 81 stocks reached 1968 highs while only five dropped to their lowest price for the year. Gains outnumbered losses 304 to 236.

Erie Flooring A rose 1 to 10, Erie Flooring B 3 to 10, Overland Express 2 to 27, Canicon 1¾ to 33¾, Famous Players 1¼ to 64, Canada Bread ¼ to 18¾ and Imperial Tobacco 1¼ to 16¾.

Teleflex dropped 3¼ to 22.

Canada and Dominion Sugar 1 to 33¾, Exquisite Form ½ to 8¼ and Great West Saddlery ¼ to 13¾.

Newly-listed Canadian Interurban Properties closed at 10½ after opening at 11¼. The company, controlled by Power Corp of Canada, develops real estate

To Your Good Health

Pacemaker Is Not Inserted in Heart

By Dr. Joseph G. Molner

Dear Dr. Molner: The writer would appreciate information on heart pacebackers. What is the mortality rate for a senior citizen with a pulse rate of 35 to 65, mostly about 40? Does the operation, if successful, solve the problem? Do the batteries go into the heart through the access and neck? — G. R. B.

The pacemaker may be only one aspect, not on others.

The pacemaker is a device for use when the heart does not beat as rapidly and steadily as it should. The pulse rate of an average adult is around 70 or a bit more. Some have a normally slower rate without harm or symptoms.

But the rate can be so slow as to cause inadequate circulation. The patient may have periods of feeling faint or may even lose consciousness.

Electrocardiograms can identify the condition and permit the doctor to determine accurately the interval between heart beats. Sometimes medication can meet the situation successfully. In other cases, it is better to resort to pacemakers.

Electrically, this is an instrument which, while small, is made to operate with great precision, supplying rhythm in small pulses of electricity. When a heart beat is delayed, the electric pulse impels the heart muscle to contract or "beat."

The batteries, and the pacemaker itself, are not inserted into the heart at all. Direct is not necessary to put them in place "through the aorta," which is the main artery of the heart.

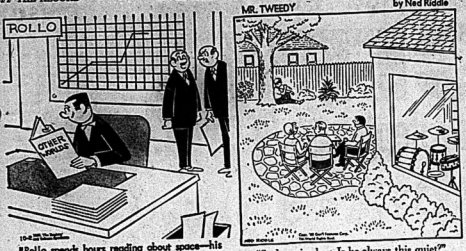
Rather, the tiny batteries and pacemaker are implanted under skin (commonly the chest) and an electrode is then placed at whatever point will be most effective, sometimes in the heart muscle, sometimes at some other point at which the electrical impulses can conveniently introduce the impulse to beat.

When new batteries are required, the surgeon need go only through an open level to one place them; it is not necessary to disturb the rest of the pacemaker circuitry.

Asking for the "mortality rate" is posing too hard a question unless one knows the patient's condition in considerable detail, but already we know of patients who have gone along successfully with pacemakers for periods of years. Indeed, it is the hope and expectation of the doctors, when they install pacemakers, that the patient then will get along well for an extended length of time.

Dear Dr. Molner: Would you explain the warm feeling that comes over you from niacin? I have asked several who use it it, and none seems to know, just that it is not harmful. — L. G. W.

Niacin is a vasodilator, that is, a drug which causes small blood vessels to expand slightly. This brings a flush to the skin (from the added circulation) and a sense of warmth. It occurs shortly after the drug is taken and lasts a few minutes.



Dear Dr. Molner: What causes a person to look pale and chalky. I have people tell me I look white as a ghost yet I feel all right. I had a thyroidectomy 21 years ago and am on thyroid medication. I am 47. — L. M.

Some people have pale complexions as a result of perfectly healthy. You might have your doctor check as to whether your thyroid medication is adequate.

Another of several causes of pallor is one or another of the kinds of anemia, which can occur in connection with the thyroid activity as well as from other things. A blood count might be in order.

If thyroid and blood check out properly, my best suggestion would be to use some cosmetics which might quiet your friends.

Taxes Paid by Indians Needed To Improve Reserve Economy

BURLINGTON, Ont (CP) — An Indian lawyer said Tuesday the taxes Indians pay to federal and provincial governments should be used to improve the economic levels of the reserves.

Howard Staats, a Brantford lawyer born and raised on the nearby Six Nations Indian reserve, said that the amounts raised in Indian taxes should be paid to Indian band councils.

It is important to us to be given the right to manage our own affairs even if it means being given the right to make our own mistakes."

Mr Staats, speaking at an Ontario Medical Association seminar, said his proposal is considered heresy among Indians because they fear it may deprive them of federal benefits they now receive as Indians.

He said except for municipal taxes Indians pay the same taxes as other Canadians.

Money raised through diversion of taxes to Indian bands would not provide enough capital to raise the economic level of reserves because of the generally low income of reserve Indians.

That is why Ottawa must be made to realize that federal money should be used for development of reserves rather than continually pouring welfare payments into them, he said.

Chief Wilmer Nadjiwan of Cape Croker, Ont., said that a $1,000,000 fund exists with the federal Indian affairs department for such development but is virtually unobtainable because of red tape.

He suggested a 250,000,000 fund be made available and put in the hands of a Crown corporation "that will take a business-like approach."

Indian Act Changes Promised

BEAUPORT, Que (CP) — Radical changes in Canada's century-old Indian Act can be expected by the spring of 1969, Jean Chretien, federal Indian affairs minister said Tuesday.

Mr Chretien made the announcement at a news conference in this community near Quebec City, following a meeting with 35 Quebec Indian chiefs.

He said suggested revisions of the law to be presented to the Commons will be determined by results of a fact-finding tour and of a commission which will shortly begin studying such problems as Indian territorial claims.

Amendments would be approved by the Indians before being submitted to the Commons.

TO FARM BUFFALO

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) —Dr. W. W. Belch plans to take up buffalo farming. He says the buffalo will be slaughtered and processed to be sold as dog, cat or mink food. The hides will be tanned and the fur could become exotic coats, he said. His operation will be the second such farm to be operated in this area in 61 years.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For October 4

Your birthday today: Overcome limitations and increase effectiveness in public life, that is indicated for you in the coming year. Many exacting decisions have to be faced, with very little time. Today's natives all understand that success requires hard work plus luck, and they are willing to make the effort.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): The impending possibility of dissension persists. Avoid impulsive actions. Listen carefully . . . see if you can identify the individuals creating most of the turmoil.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Unexpected events will upset relationships today. Avoid depending on fair people. Your friends wear their prides on their sleeves today (for easy brushing). Wait for a better day.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): There is no point in an unrestrained response to frustration. Quell impatience, wait until the path clears up.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): So long as your plans are confidential, they tend to be immune from interference. Everything needs further review before signing. Any spiteful act on your part will be bitterly regretted later. Travel is unsatisfactory!

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): The management of money must be conservative today, if it is to achieve your goals. Group affairs require special care. Find time now to review your long-range plans. Are you getting there?

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Be reasonable but firm with your close associates. Stretch your thinking a bit, project your mind into the (near) future for a brief glimpse. Begin to prepare for eventualities.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): No point in being hasty. Relax and let unsettled conditions pile up and cancel each other before you begin to revise. Be obliging and patient. Better days soon.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): If you can find chores that can be done alone, do so. Old-fashioned courtesy is essential all around today as everybody seems ready to get into the act with no provocation.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Your intuition may outsmart itself today. The temptation is to jump to conclusions. Even candor is at a disadvantage. Deals should be put off.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan 19): Your best calm approach is most important today. Stick with agreed-upon plans, but expect everybody to complain about them. Significant decisions are better made later.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Theory applied to financial arrangements does not always work out. Any jointly owned funds should be left alone; this will keep peace in the future.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Money and the careless handling of it may provoke endless difficulties. Contrary acquaintances continue to be suspicious and opposed to your plans (or to whatever they think your plans are).

Rusk Tells Canada It Should Keep Troops, A-arms in Europe

OTTAWA (CP) — U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk has bluntly told Ottawa that Canada should maintain its present troop strength and nuclear capability in Europe, informants say.

External Affairs Minister Sharp received a diplomatic note from Rusk late last week expressing American views on NATO's response to the Soviet occupation of Czechoslovakia.

Mr. Sharp said in the Commons Monday that the note also contained "a comment in particular about the kind of response they would like Canada to make."

The Rusk note is believed to be the most pointed reference to Canadian defence policy since Jan. 30, 1963, when the U.S. state department—Rusk was then, as now, state secretary—said publicly that Canada was not pulling its weight in North American defence.

The U.S. statement at that time made particular reference to the Diefenbaker government's refusal to accept American nuclear weapons.

The Pearson government accepted nuclear arms, with the proviso it would try to "negotiate out" of such arrangements as soon as possible.

The Trudeau government has given several indications it would like to reduce gradually Canadian troop strength in Europe and eventually withdraw militarily.

These indications have brought notes from Britain and West Germany as well as the U.S.

And Prime Minister Trudeau talked about NATO with Premier Maurice Couve de Murville in Quebec City Monday.

The British and German notes spoke in general terms and did not specifically state, as the American note does, what Canada should do militarily in Europe.

Details of the Rusk proposals have not been made public. Mr. Sharp indicated that the government did not appreciate them when he said he doubts whether Rusk will receive a formal reply.

There are other indications that the proposals might not have been welcomed here.

The defence department has already announced that one of Canada's three nuclear bomber bases in West Germany will be abandoned next summer. Canada has six squadrons of CF-104 bombers on the three bases.

The 5,000-man Canadian infantry brigade in West Germany is armed with the Honest John nuclear artillery rocket.

On Aug. 13, the training battery for the Honest John unit was disbanded. It was located at Soltau, Man.

Canada has two other nuclear weapons systems—the Bomarc anti-aircraft missile and Voodoo jet interceptor. There are no current plans to replace either of these aging systems.

TV Switch May Mean Quinte Station in 1970

CRTC Ruling Welcomed Here

By LENNY WILLIAMSON, Staff Reporter

A Canadian Radio-Television Commission ruling, announced last night, has opened up a new television channel in the Belleville - Kingston area.

The CBC will be allowed to change its Toronto station CBLT from Channel 6 to Channel 5. This will allow Channel 6 to be used in the Quinte area.

Channel 6 will also be available for a future station to serve the London area.

Frank C. Murray, general manager of the Quinte Broadcasting Company, said this morning he was "extremely pleased" with the CRTC decision.

The re-allocation was supported by Quinte Broadcasting in a hearing Oct. 12, 1966, before the former Board of Broadcast Governors. Mr. Murray said at that time a high-powered outlet would best serve the public interest in this area. Preliminary engineering studies taken by the company, he said, show that such a channel could provide adequate coverage for the cities of Belleville, Kingston, Peterborough, and the Counties of Hastings, Prince Edward, Northumberland, Peterborough and Lennox and Addington.

During the 1966 hearings, we stressed that a local company should operate the new television station," Mr. Murray added.

CKWS-TV, a privately owned CBC affiliate, broadcasts on Channel 11 from Kingston.

In his brief to the BBG, Mr. Murray said there is no alternative Canadian viewing in Belleville, Kingston, and the Counties of Hastings, Prince-Edward, Frontenac, and Lennox and Addington.

An unlimited Channel 6 in the Belleville area, the brief continued, would establish a potentially strong station, with extensive coverage that would be able to meet requirements concerning Canadian content and local programming. Such a station, the brief added, would assist in giving a boost to the local economy as well as providing an opportunity for exposure for those who have artistic, literary and musical ability.

At the 1966 hearing, the publicly - owned Canadian Broadcasting Corporation also declared its intent to apply for a television station licence in the area should a channel become available.

Soviet Reply Soft

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko held out an olive branch Thursday and urged the world to get ahead with the task of ridding itself of the implements of war.

Gromyko's address to the 123-member General Assembly made the standard Soviet statements on the world's trouble spots. And it contained what some Western delegates regarded as a lame defence of the Soviet-bloc occupation of Czechoslovakia.

No one should have been surprised, Gromyko said, by the Soviet reaction in Czechoslovakia to what he called a threat to the socialist world, brought on by "imperialist intrigues."

The Soviet-bloc occupation of Czechoslovakia, to reverse broad trends toward liberalization, has been branded by UN speakers as a blow to East-West detente and a danger to world peace.

Gromyko firmly upheld the Soviet contention that the Czechoslovakian situation concerned the "socialist commonwealth" alone.

"To damage the position of socialism in the world is tantamount to increasing the danger of a new world war," he said.

U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk, who the day before had challenged the Soviet Union to answer a series of questions, including when it would fulfil its promise to remove its troops from Czechoslovakia, told reporters that Gromyko "didn't answer the questions I asked."

Wallace Dislikes Sharing Limelight With General

TOLEDO, Ohio (CP) — George C. Wallace, star of the most sensational one-man political show the United States has ever seen, rolled into town Thursday in tandem with his new vice-presidential running mate, Gen. Curtis E. LeMay.

They seemed to be out of step.

In the early hours of the union, at least, it was apparent Wallace was not anxious to share the spotlight.

The occasion Thursday night was a rally at a suburban ballpark, home ground of Toledo Mud Hens, where Wallace delivered his stock speech — so well known that his supporters start yearing their approval before he completes a familiar line.

From the start, LeMay and his wife hovered uncomfortably at the rear of the stage until an aide pushed forward chairs for them. At the conclusion, Wallace stepped to the front to accept the roar of approval from the crowd of 9,000 and only acknowledged the LeMays when they came forward to congratulate him.

Mexico Students Snipe, Battles Rage in Lima

MEXICO CITY (CP) — Students burned trolley cars near an Olympic soccer field and armored cars kept their guns trained on apartment buildings where snipers had holed up, but most of the Mexican capital was quiet Thursday night. No injuries were reported.

"As guests of Mexico, we have full confidence that the Mexican people . . . will join the participants and spectators in celebrating the Games, a veritable oasis in a troubled world," said Avery Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee, after an emergency meeting of the committee.

The Associated Press said a count of casualties at hospitals and police stations showed at least 27 persons were killed in Wednesday night's fighting and some Mexico City newspapers reported death tolls as high as 40.

Motorcyclist Sells Options On His Body

MONTREAL (CP) — Nothing shrinks about Albert.

He's got a bunch of organs for sale at a hefty price.

Albert, a McGill University student here, feels there's something to be learned from the fact that Canada's three surviving heart transplant patients all received their new hearts from motorcycle accident victims.

Albert, not identified further, placed this advertisement in the McGill Daily campus newspaper which appeared Thursday:

"Motorcyclist, 19, wishes to sell option on body organs for purposes of transplant. Heart, $1,000. Kidneys, $750 pair. Other parts are also up for grabs. Delivery after accident. Apply in writing to Albert, c-o McGill Daily."

Nigerian Said to Have Slain Four Biafra Relief Workers

LAGOS (AP) — British, Swiss and Swedish officials are investigating a report that a Nigerian soldier machine-gunned four relief workers to death in a Biafran town, informed sources in this Nigerian capital said Thursday.

A Red Cross spokesman said his agency is reconsidering orders to its workers operating behind Biafran lines in Eastern Nigeria to remain at their posts as Nigerian troops advance on them.

The four relief workers were killed and a fifth seriously wounded Monday as the Nigerians took Okigwe in their advance toward Umuahia, last stronghold of the secessionist Biafran regime.

A Nigerian government spokesman said stray bullets accidentally killed Yugoslav Dr. Drajan Herceg and Swede Frans-Georg Carlson of the Red Cross and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Savory, British church missionary workers. Another Swedish Red Cross worker, Percy Nilson, was wounded.

A report to Swedish Red Cross headquarters in Stockholm, said a drunken Nigerian soldier forced his way into a Red Cross aid centre in Okigwe 25 miles north of Umuahia, and killed the four workers.

LIMA (AP) — Spawned by street battles between students and police, resistance was stiffening today against the military leaders of Peru who overthrew the government of President Fernando Belaunde Terry.

In one encounter Thursday night police fired into a crowd of students, hitting one in the head and apparently killing him. Five photographers taking pictures of the incident were arrested.

(Reuters news agency said reports that could not be confirmed listed two other persons killed when troops opened fire to disperse students burning cars.)

Students swirled through the streets breaking shop windows. At least 10 cars were burned. Police used tear gas in an attempt to control the outbreaks in this Andean nation on the west coast of South America.

The new government, composed of the highest ranking officers in the army, air force and navy, is headed by Gen. Juan Velasco, army chief of staff and president of the joint chiefs.

Prince Edward County Officials Check Out Loss of Beef Farm

Charges of a lack of municipal and county co-operation in negotiating a 6,000-acre land deal for a corporate farm in Point Petre have touched off a search for information by Picton and County officials.

Clerk - Treasurer Andrew Jarvis said this morning that nobody had ever approached him or come to his office for information and that he knew nothing about the proposed land deal.

"I hear things like you do, but it is hard without facts to distinguish between rumor and fact," he said this morning.

Toronto economist Charles Magee, who had been acting as a consultant for parties interested in the 6,000 acre land parcel, said yesterday his clients were no longer interested because of public opinion and a lack of co-operation.

And a Toronto realtor also complained yesterday that the officials in the county "were not living in the 20th century."

County assessor S. G. Manley is apparently the only person who has been approached for information and he said today the statistics requested have been forwarded to the interested parties.

Former County warden, Councillor Robert Boyce, also indicated yesterday that he knew nothing of the proposed farm but said he would look into the matter.

Athol township councillor Catherine Dulmage (Point Petre falls in Athol) also said this morning that she had never heard anything but rumors.

"We certainly weren't approached officially," she said, "but on the other hand I'm not saying these people couldn't have run into problems.

"There have been instances in Prince Edward County when companies have been dissuaded from locating here unless they had the blessings of certain people.

"If they wanted to approach us officially we are surely interested in getting new industry into the area," she said.

Reeve of Athol township and County Warden Gordon Demore is away in Toronto and has not been available for comment himself.

Mrs. Dulmage also promised to look further into the matter.

Out the Door to Safety

Belleville fire chief Ted Poste keeps an eye on students and teachers at the junior school section of OSD during a fire drill

Schools and Industries Fire Prevention Goals

The Belleville Fire Department will have a vigorous program next week with the advent of Fire Prevention Week, Sunday.

For the firemen Fire Prevention Week means school fire drills, industrial building inspections and many public addresses to various organizations in the area.

OSD was the scene of a pair of fire drills — one for the senior school and one for the junior — this morning.

According to Fire Chief Ted Poste, if more fire, fall weather comes our way, all the schools will have a drill."

The fire department has been holding fire drills at local schools since the beginning of the week.

"We have to start a week early because there's so much to do during Fire Prevention Week," Mr. Poste said.

Next week the department will be concentrating on industrial inspections to "familiarize our men with conditions and to offer further protection for our industries."

Not only will all local industries be inspected, but other buildings such as churches will stand before the watchful eye of the firemen.

"The cost of fires is going up," says Mr. Poste. "Canada is growing. More houses are being built by the growing population and fires which devastate these homes are proving more costly to Canadians than ever before."

"Today the average cost of a household fire is $800. Ten years ago it was $400.

He stated that 673 Canadians died last year as the result of fires. There was $156,046,317 worth of structural damage to buildings and contents.

"We in Canada cannot continue this destructive and useless waste to our economy," Mr. Poste said.

Kerr Says 10th Child Beaten

Still another instance of child beating has come to the attention of the Hastings County Family and Children's Services.

Local CAS director Bruce M. Kerr said that an 11-year-old Belleville boy had been beaten. The boy was later examined by a local doctor. The director said the information had been turned over to the Crown for action.

Mr. Kerr said that "10 or more" cases of battered children had come to the attention of his department this year.

Last week in a report to Hastings county he said that more cases of battered children had come to his attention this year than in all his 15 years as head of the county society. And because of this people just don't want to get involved, it is believed many more instances occur than a come to the attention of authorities.

TV Switch

Ronald Fraser, CBC vice-president for corporate affairs, said this morning the CBC would be interested in making application for its own transmitter in the Quinte area "if circumstances, financial and otherwise, are favorable."

He added that no company can apply for a license until such time as CRTC declares the area open for applications.

Following applications, hearings and a decision, about a year would be required before a station could go on the air, he assumed. Mr. Fraser gave 1970 as the earliest date any TV station could go into operation in the Quinte area.

Present government policy is a combination of CBC and private station outlets in an area. However, the question is now under review by CRTC. The CBC is supporting the present policy.

If the present policy continues, the CBC application would have an edge over that of a private company because of the existence of the privately-owned CKWS - TV outlets in Kingston and Peterborough.

Mr. Fraser said CTV and NTV, both privately - owned television networks, had expressed interest in the past in establishing satellite stations in Ontario.

Trenton Labor Council Aids Picton Strikers

TRENTON — A feeling of involvement and sympathy for the strikers at the Proctor - Silex plant in Picton has reached here as a cavalcade of Trentonians will travel to the strike centre on Sunday to participate in a mass rally.

The move, initiated by the Trenton and District Labor Council, hopes to have 200 Trentonians at the rally supporting the strikers.

The rally is sponsored by a citizens committee in Picton. The Trenton and District Labor Council will present a cheque in the amount of $50 to the strikers.

Said William Menties, vice-president of the labor council: "These people deserve a decent living wage; what they're making now is disgraceful."

"The government is passing a bill which will allow a person on unemployment pay to get more money than these workers."

IT IS WATKINS

In an Intelligencer newspaper story yesterday regarding the plight of West Bridge Street businessmen due to street reconstruction the name of one service station operator was wrongly given. The name of Eric Watson should have been that of Texaco dealer Eric Watkins.

Tweed Fair Last One In County

Fall fair enthusiasts this weekend will have the last opportunity of the current season to take in a Hastings county rural fair.

The annual Tweed fall fair is being held today and Saturday and officials are hoping only for good weather to make it a "best ever" event.

Featured will be the ever popular baby show, livestock classes, agricultural and domestic science exhibits as well as commercial exhibits in the Tweed - Hungerford Community centre.

Variety events will include a fiddlers' contest, log swing and nail driving and a pie-eating contest.

Also there will be harness racing, a drawing contest and a chariot race for ponies.

CN Asks To Drop East Run

Officials of the CNR have made an application to drop the daily railiner which carries passengers from Belleville to Montreal and back.

According to Harry Fast, manager of the Rideau Area, the application made to the Canadian Transport Commission was the result of limited use of the train by Commuters.

He said that he is waiting for a reply from the commission which would list the conditions of the discontinuance of the train.

Big Cheque for Touring

Ed Pattyn, from the department of tourism and information, handed over a cheque for $5,000 today to O. S. Bradley, president of the Highlands of Hastings Tourist Council. The money, for the development of tourism in the Hastings region, will be used for the next major project — the development of snowmobile trails throughout the county.

TO THE CITIZENS OF BELLEVILLE AND DISTRICT

We would like to extend our thanks for your patience and understanding during the recent Postal Strike in which all mail services were curtailed. A new agreement incorporating revised salary schedules and improved working conditions has become effective October 1st, 1968, this being the result of extended negotiations between the Council of Postal Unions and the Treasury Board of the Government of Canada. With this in effect we look forward to giving the mailing public more efficient and better service in the years ahead.

Year Around Job

Snow Not Here Yet But City Ready

Maintenance of the city public works department's 20 trucks and approximately 25 other types of road equipment is a full time job at the works department garage.

But that doesn't mean snow removal equipment is forgotten until suddenly it is needed following an early season snowfall.

"As far as I'm concerned the time to do maintenance work on snow removal equipment is in the spring — right after its last use," says city garage foreman Ize Smith.

This year however the annual maintenance chore on snow plows has been a bit earlier — the reason being that three new trucks and plows have been ordered for October delivery.

Mr. Smith says he and his two mechanics Edward Denard and Sid Wilkinson overhaul everything during the spring and summer months so it is ready to go when the first snow flies.

And don't look now, but with October already underway — that time may not be too far away.

City Engineer Wilbur Purcell says truck drivers will be shortly assigned snowplow routes and within the next week or so will do "dry runs" to locate any raised manhole covers or other obstacles they may have to watch out for later.

Then with the approach of the winter season, night men will go on duty ready to roll out the snowplows or sand trucks as the occasion demands.

To prepare for the winter season the city stocks up on 3,500 tons of sand and places its order for the 1,000 tons of salt estimated to be required.

Much of the salt will be mixed with sand (the percentage of salt depends on the temperature) while in the downtown areas and at intersections the salt will be used "neat".

The pure salt is used when it is desirous to completely melt the snow and ice.

City works officials know the equipment needed to keep streets and sidewalks clear of snow but that doesn't preclude a bit of experiment here and there.

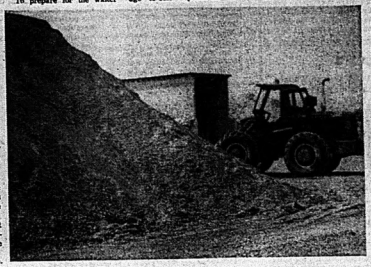
For instance the city uses a grader with interchangeable blades for double duty as a snowplow and for breaking curbside ice and snow into chunks for removal to the city dump.

By changing the standard snow plow blade for a 12-foot serrated edge blade with half inch tooth the grader can be used to break up the snow and ice which at times narrows streets almost to one way traffic.

The city's grader mounted scarifier blade rated an article in the August edition of the Civic Administrator, as did its use of a small sander box hooked to a jeep for mechanical spreading of sand on sidewalks.

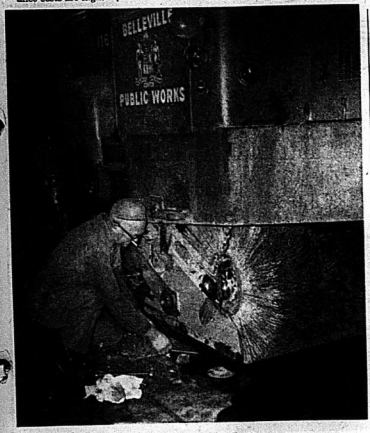
Another experiment being tried by the city is rubber edged snowplows. Two of the rubber tipped plows were used in the city last winter and one driver swears by their use.

But the city is adopting a "go slow" attitude before putting them into general use.



One reason for this is the cost of replacement. The rubber blade costs $20 a foot, or about $200 per snowplow.

This is three or more times the replacement cost of steel tip blades.



Rubber Tipped Snowplow

City works department garage foreman checks blade of rubber tipped snowplow. Rubber tipped blades are seeing experimental use but maintenance costs are high.

Heaps and Heaps of Sand

The city of Belleville uses approximately 3,500 tons of sand and 1,000 tons of salt in its winter season assault on snow and ice. Some of the sand and part of the "salt shed" are seen in the above picture.

City Equipment Maintenance

Ed Dalnard, mechanic at the city's public works garage on Wallbridge Crescent, does emergency repairs on street sweeper. Foreman and two mechanics work full time keeping city's trucks and other equipment in shape.

Wallace's Bid

The New York Times calls George Wallace a demagogue . . . a smooth-talking adventurer. Without actually saying so it brands him as virtually an incompetent. While it does acknowledge the former Alabama governor and third-party presidential candidate has become a major factor in U.S. politics, it adds nonetheless that Wallace "is totally unqualified to be President of the United States."

The Times looks askance at the right-wing rantings of Wallace and his American Independence Party platform and declares "the Wallace movement is an evil phenomenon."

Yet Wallace, former taxi driver, Sunday school teacher and lawyer, endures. He may be a demagogue (his speeches capitalizing on the endless political and personal hang-ups of Americans go far toward proving this), he certainly does not even look like presidential material — and yet support for the man is such that the mainline party people, Republicans and Democrats, are no longer ignoring him.

The fact is, Wallace has nation-wide support possibly in all 50 states. Whether it is sufficient to carry him to the presidency is another matter, but the possibility is not being discounted — and in any event it is hurting both major parties.

Wallace is trading on American disquiet about the war in Vietnam and unrest at home, as manifested by violence in the streets and a general breakdown in law and order. As former governor of Alabama and arch segregationist he is finding support among white Americans who are as far away as ever from countenancing integration.

He is whipping up support also among countless Americans who blame the communists for the student radical movement in the universities and for disturbances in the cities. In short, he is riding on the coat-tails of an all-American sickness that has Americans looking around in desperation for remedies.

Does Wallace have the remedies? Does any one man, whatever his stature, have the remedies? There are only problems and difficulties but as Montreal's Mayor Drapeau would say, there are also solutions. Before such solutions to U.S. problems would present themselves however, a man like Wallace could commit many blunders. He could commit them from a combination of impetuousness and inexperience. Whatever their failings and shortcomings, the choice of president for mature Americans must surely be made from the candidates of the two major parties, and not from this new and essentially suspect third force — in American politics.

TV Fare

Television programming this fall has brought little change in the popular fare issuing from screens black, white and in color.

Ed Sullivan grinds on, his face a little longer and heavier and his smile a little thinner, but popular as ever. So too do Lawrence Welk, Carol Burnett and the Smothers Brothers.

The latter, with their "message"-oriented programs — anti-war and knock LBJ and all that — have survived criticism of their political patter to be the only ones of the four mentioned above who have given thought to changing their image.

The brothers have switched from the clean-cut-all-American-boy look to mustaches and sideburns. And who is to say it is not a good idea. Mercifully, they have stopped short of long hair hippie style, but they look different enough to whet the viewer's curiosity. Charisma — that's what gives these days. As for their programs, the image is variable. Sometimes they are good, sometimes they are awful. And that is just about the story of television in a nutshell.

The Young at Heart

Who are the true family men? Perhaps they are redoubtable types like the wealthy and still handsome Mr. Rea of Toronto, prospector and widely-travelled man of the world.

Mr. Rea is 90. He has three children, the youngest of whom — a daughter — is 71. His family boast he was earning the old age pension and the baby bonus at the same time.

And there was the spry, middle-aged, gentleman introduced as a new member of a local service club recently. There were murmurs of approval when it was learned that the new member was father of four — the eldest 21 and the youngest nine months.

As someone has said, you are as old as you feel!

Wilson Holds the Line

Britain Still Struggling to Gain Trade Surplus

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Britain faces another year of economic restraint. That much is evident from the Labor party's annual conference where a meeting of demonstrators in the Labor government's stringent pay policies served merely as a way of letting off steam than of forcing Prime Minister Wilson's hand.

The party's rank-and-file membership is well aware that in this mid-term, non-election year Wilson can safely ignore his furious critics. His elected supporters are the ones who count and they are unlikely to desert him when the alternative could be party chaos and a crushing defeat at the polls.

Thus one national newspaper suggests party conferences in this particular year are notable more than political bingo. They are supposed to be showcases of democracy at work, but while each delegate can make his play and thereby get a kick out of it, concerted party views may have little relationship to government policy which may be dictated by the dire circumstances in which Britain finds itself.

The government is still waiting for the day when the country can build up a surplus by selling more to the world than it buys. It had hoped the surplus would come this year but instead there will be another big deficit of about $1,300,000,000. Now the official prediction is that it will come next year.

But what if it doesn't?

Roy Jenkins, chancellor of the exchequer, has ruled out import controls, because, as he says, these would force other countries to retaliate against Britain's exports. Probably another reason which he didn't spell out is that many countries would be reluctant to continue feeding huge credit for Britain if Britain threatened a direct freeze on their products.

Gaining a trade surplus is crucial and this great need likely will increase the country's worrisome preoccupation with the monthly trade figures in 1969.

But the year also is likely to see workers' preoccupation with their earnings if, as the government says, the restraints on increases must continue.

The current trend would therefore suggest that Wilson dare not call an early election. The blunt economic facts placed before the Labor top echelons indicate Wilson will play for all the time he can get and that he won't seek renewal of his mandate until it trickles out in 1971.

After all, the war has just begun

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Oct. 4, 1968 . . .

The first air mail service in Canada was inaugurated 41 years ago today—in 1927. The next year it was decided to begin developing facilities for a trans-continental air service and services were extended as each section of the system was completed.

First World War

Fifty years ago today—in 1918—British troops advanced on a 20-mile front to within five miles of Lille; Franco-American forces moved forward between Verdun and Reims; Germany sent a note inviting peace negotiations and an armistice to President Wilson; Czar Ferdinand of Bulgaria abdicated in favor of Prince Boris.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1943—in raids against the German industrial centre of Frankfurt, other targets and operations in the North Sea, United States planes destroyed 78 German aircraft against a loss of 15 bombers; 1,000 sailors, soldiers and airmen began leading perishable goods aboard freighters, as 400 striking Halifax freight handlers were joined by 1,000 stevedores.

Problems Abound

Indians and Eskimos Hit Out

Peterborough Examiner

It used to be that the nice thing about Indians and Eskimos (as governments have it) was that they seldom ever made scenes. They enjoyed their misery in private in reservations and northern villages hidden from public view. Those that strayed out of the reservation were kept in their place by rigidly enforced policies of discrimination. There was no trouble, no embarrassment.

It seems however that the old order changeth. Suddenly Canada's forgotten people are speaking up, rudely, often, and effectively. In Toronto over the weekend an Eskimo university student, Mary Carpenter, blasted government bureaucracies for treating the Eskimo "as a kind of new nigger with a pass and for feeding the public false information to convince them that Eskimos are too stupid to run their own affairs. And as forceful was an Indian from Armstrong, in northern Ontario who crashed the banquet of the Indian-Eskimo Association and told delegates it was time that Indians be allowed to take charge of their own destiny.

Inspired perhaps by the example of the American Negro, Canada's Indians and Eskimos have found their voice. While their tactics may seem a little crude at times, their message is coming across loud and clear. Patient as they are, they have grown weary of governmental double-talk and of being told how to live their lives by officials whom Miss Carpenter described bluntly as 'stupid, bigoted, snot-nosed kids with personal hang-ups a mile long'. It would seem that they want to participate in the Just Society and are tired of being treated as non-people.

It would be foolish to suggest that there is an easy solution to the plight of Canada's native population. Successive governments have wrestled with the problem — or pretended to — and have made little progress. Because Indians fall traditionally under federal jurisdiction while health and education are provincial responsibilities, buck-passing between the two levels of government is frequent and flagrant. The result is that the Indians are decided those services that are essential to their integrating with the larger society.

Canada Council Economies

Hamilton Spectator

The Canada Council has decided, on the strength of the federal government's decision to cut spending, not to increase any of its contributons next year. The freeze is on, in short, and many very worthwhile organizations will suffer as result.

The decision, while it will not seriously affect well - endowed institutions like the Royal Ontario Museum, will hurt smaller ones and may even put those which have been operating on a shoestring completely out of business. It will also hurt worthy bodies such as the Hamilton Philharmonic Youth Orchestra which were on the verge of qualifying for a Council grant.

In this era of the cutback, the Canada Council's action is understandable but the people consider culture a luxury at best. They would sing an unhappy tune if museums, art galleries, little theatres, and orchestras received increased grants from the government next year or even while other government bodies were economizing.

There can be no exceptions. If the Council has applied the freeze for 1969, the freeze must apply to all its beneficiaries. Other, imaginative means will have to be found by some hardhit organizations to raise the additional funds they were expecting to get next year.

Student Irresponsibility

The Detroit News

Yes, there is a generation gap.

In Ann Arbor University of Michigan students invade government buildings, are arrested for breaking the law and are told the university will take no disciplinary action.

In Urbana, University of Illinois students under special scholarships for disadvantaged youths take over the student union and smash its furnishings.

In New York, leaders of last spring's rebellion at Columbia University declare they will continue the battle, despite the university's announcement that criminal charges will be dropped.

In these instances — and to many others — the over-30 generation sees nothing but destruction and negativism. It simply doesn't believe that idealism masquerades as nihilism, or that activism and protest may with violence, or that one chooses which laws to obey and which to break.

The over-30 officials of a college town wonder what happened to its dedication to learning, its respect for the orderly and the rational. They are horrified that their quiet, tree - lined campus has been filled with people con sider culture a luxury at best. They would sing an unhappy tune if museums, art galleries, little theatres, and orchestras received increased grants from the government next year or even while other government bodies were economizing.

There can be no exceptions. If the Council has applied the freeze for 1969, the freeze must apply to all its beneficiaries. Other, imaginative means will have to be found by some hard-hit organizations to raise the additional funds they were expecting to get next year.

Politics and Propaganda

The Trentonian

Political speeches need always to be evaluated as at least one third propaganda.

There is another element where federal Liberals are concerned. They have to keep in power that they seem to feel they have some sort of Divine right to be the government. Conservatives under Diefenbaker did not distinguish themselves as a great deal better.

Both sides are accustomed to use exaggerated political language, each suggesting that the other fellows are a bunch of unprincipled blackguards.

As for talking about present members as though they were some sort of bench fillers doing nothing, we venture to think that the area has never had better representation than is given it by A. Douglas Alkenbrack, Lee Grills and George Hees. These are able men, doing a good job in the local and national sense.

For that matter, the men who preceded them in the other party were able men and did the best they knew how to do. Nobody will any longer swallow the kind of political bilge handed out by speakers. All power to the Liberals if they can rejuvenate their party locally.

How until there is another election, George Hees represents Prince Edward - Hastings. He is the only member we have in Ottawa who certainly keeps in the public eye, as any smart politician should. But he does it by working. Ask his constituents. Far and wide he assists those of all parties as far as he is able. And in the House he is a sharp, able critic of government and fiscal policies. With all respect to the Liberal sour grapers, they could not possibly have done better than to elect him.

Nor does that mean we are biased Tory newsmen and editors. It only means that neither Liberal nor Conservative has a monopoly on brains or honesty, and that neither should try to convince us that he has. Federal Liberals and provincial Tories show the arrogance of being too long in power.

Barren Growth

Christian Science Monitor

It was Roman practice to sow the ground of a conquered enemy town with salt. Fruitful plants began to grow again, but they were mainly weeds, hardocks, and nettles. It may seem fanciful to compare the results of the Russian - led occupation of Czechoslovakia with the Roman practice of salt-sowing. But there are already indications that not only will the Russian act result in an increasingly barren and sterile atmosphere in Eastern Europe, but it is also producing a hasty growth of old fashioned Eastern European political weeds.

Airline Competition

Hamilton Spectator

Competition among the world's airlines is proving to be a boon for all of us. People are now able to fly almost anywhere in the world for fractions of the former fares. Thrown in for good measure by most airlines are hotel accommodations and other amenities.

There's a catch of course: You have to fly more or less when the airline tells you you can. Sunday, Monday (or sure) and you most definitely don't go first class if you buy one of the "bargain" fares.

The airlines aren't only offering "package" excursions for bargain hunters, they are now offering vastly reduced fares for students and retired folk. If you're between 12 and 22, for example, you can travel for half-fare on some airlines or as a catch: you go only when empty seats are available) to domestic centres.

The first airline to provide for people with the same treatment is Canadian Pacific. Starting October 27, if you're 65 or over you can fly CPA across Canada at one-half the regular economy class fare. However, says CPA, "you travel on a space available basis."

CPA's new reduced rates will undoubtedly prove to be a big success that will eventually be copied by other airlines as well. Few retired people can afford to travel to distant places in their own country. Many will now be able to do so, thanks to CPA's initiative.

Eventually, these bargain rates for youngsters and oldsters will apply to inter-continental flights as well. And that will really be the day.

At a meeting of ski enthusiasts from Belleville and district held in St. Thomas' Parish Hall, Clint Melville, director of photography and winter sports for Ontario, outlined the possibilities and requisites for a ski tow and good trails in the Oak Hills area. The erection of a ski-tow, long needed in the Oak Hills where skiing is fast becoming a popular winter sport, is to be sponsored by the Belleville Chamber of Commerce, and a ski club is to be formed with district ski enthusiasts. A rough estimate given by Mr. Melville set the initial cost of the tow at $800 - $1,000.

Library Fee Too Low?

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I agree with the writer of the recent letter with regard to library privileges. The charge of five cents is small when compared with the $2.50 charged for out of town membership.

I enjoy the library services and realize the wonderful selection of books available but feel there is too big a difference in membership fees.

Benson Says Robarts Won't Get More Tax Money From Ottawa

HAMILTON (CP) — Finance Minister E. J. Benson said Thursday night Ontario Premier John Robarts will not be successful in demands that Ottawa give the province a greater slice of federal tax revenues.

"We are not a well that anyone can dip into," Mr. Benson said in an interview. He was here to address a testimonial dinner for Health Minister John Munro, 37-year-old member of Parliament for Hamilton East.

Mr. Benson said the provinces have to raise money for their own purposes.

"Our taxing powers are not designed to make gifts to the provinces. Anyone who takes a look at the federal government's responsibilities knows we need all the taxing powers we have.

"Robarts is trying to build up a case to blame Ottawa for his tax increases . . . obviously that's what he's trying to do."

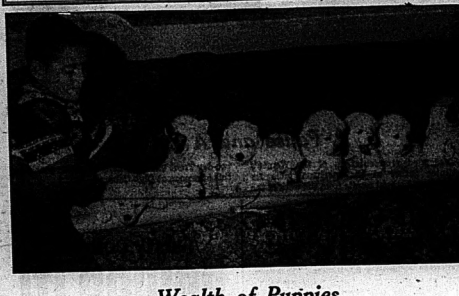
Mr. Robarts said last week that Ontario is considering how to levy and collect its own personal income tax in the event Ottawa refuses to give the provinces more tax room at the next federal-provincial tax talks.

He said Ottawa should return more than the 28 cents on every income tax dollar collected because the provinces have more pressing needs than Ottawa in areas such as education, health, welfare and pollution.

Unless more is returned, Mr. Robarts said, Ontario will be forced to slash spending in these essential areas and probably charge an income tax above the 28-per-cent abatement to avoid a financial crisis.

Mr. Benson also refuted Mr. Robart's claim that Canada cannot afford the federal medical care scheme, which was introduced July 1, and now has four participating provinces.

He said if all the provinces join, the net total increase in national health care costs would be no more than $80,000,000.



In a speech to 500 persons attending the dinner, Mr. Benson said he will meet provincial treasurers soon to consider whether Ottawa's $5,000,000,000-a-year social development spending can be done more efficiently.

He said Ottawa must ensure that the country's resources are used as effectively as possible and that Canada's advantages are exploited for both regional development and export trade.

"It is our duty . . . to work out a balance in the Canadian economy so that all Canadians will be treated justly—so they will have the right to decent housing, decent health facilities, decent education and decent job opportunities."

He criticized the Economic Council of Canada for its criticism that Ottawa is not doing enough for the poor.

"If our poor are to escape poverty, the underlying problems of improving education levels must be solved . . ." he said.

Farm Loan Act Under Attack

OTTAWA (CP) — The government was battered in the Commons Thursday for proposing higher interest rates under the Farm Improvement Loans Act and for not amending the act six months ago.

Freshman Creditiste MP Adrien Lambert (Bellechasse) observed during the debate that agriculture appeared to be in trouble not only in Quebec but throughout Canada.

A common thread of the debate was disenchantment with the proposal to remove the five-per-cent ceiling on government-guaranteed loans under the Farm Improvement Loans Act, which received first reading late in the day.

The act expired June 30 and some MPs said the government should have made the amendments last spring. They argued that farmers had been left in the lurch, paying high interest rates to borrow after the act lapsed.

Agriculture Minister H. A. Olson retorted that banks weren't lending at five per cent months before the act expired. If the five-per-cent clause were inserted into the amended act, it would be effect be inoperative.

The cabinet will set the interest rates under the proposed amendments. Mr. Olson said farmers have had to pay 11 and 13 per cent in recent months and the rate on government-guaranteed loans would be "several points" below that.

THE LITTLE WOMAN

"Emily, don't you dare unbuckle that seat belt!"

No Decision Made Yet on PEI Causeway

OTTAWA (CP)—Transport Minister Paul Hellyer told the Commons Thursday the government is still reviewing the proposed Prince Edward Island-New Brunswick causeway.

Amid recurring reports that the combination of a causeway, bridge and tunnel across nine miles of the Northumberland Strait is to be scrapped because of escalating costs, Mr. Hellyer said:

" . . . There has been no change in the position of the government since the last occasion on which this question was raised."

Any change in government policy would be announced in the Commons, said Mr. Hellyer, acting prime minister in Prime Minister Trudeau's absence in Western Canada.

The last time the question arose in the Commons was Sept. 10 when Works Minister Laing said the project was under review and that an announcement could be expected in two to three weeks.

Mr. Laing was not in the Commons Thursday when Heath Macquarrie (PC—Hillsborough) drew the treasury bench's attention to a Toronto Star report that the causeway has been scrapped.

The report was the latest from sources who say the government plans to scrap the plan and institute instead a new federal-provincial program for improved ferry service to the Island along with a federal-provincial program for economic development in P.E.I.

A spokesman for Prime Minister Trudeau said he had no knowledge of any decision to scrap the project. Mr. Trudeau himself was not available for comment.

In Charlottetown, Premier Alex Campbell angrily denied the reports. He said he sent a telegram to Prime Minister Trudeau Sept. 12 asking for immediate start on the road and rail line to the mainland.

"These reports are completely erroneous and falsify our firm, irrevocable and oft-expressed determination that the crossing must be built," said the Liberal premier.

Doubts about the approximately nine-mile project between Cape Tormentine, N.B., and Borden, P.E.I., have arisen because of the economy drive mounted by the Trudeau government and the doubling of the original cost estimated of the crossing.

Kierans Will Meet Circulation Managers

OTTAWA (CP) — Postmaster-General Eric Kierans plans to meet next week with circulation managers of Canadian daily newspapers, and representatives of their associations, on newspaper delivery problems arising from curtailment of weekend mail service.

Mr. Kierans told the Commons this Thursday after being asked by Barry Mather (NDP—Surrey) whether he had received complaints about the curtailment from newspapers.

Mr. Mather referred to the likelihood that under the new arrangements, Friday newspapers will not be delivered to rural readers until the following Monday.

Mr. Kierans said he has heard from some papers" on the announcement last week that weekend mail deliveries will be cut. He was "breaking even" on editorial comment. Some editorials were favorable and some critical.

Key To Feminine Response in Marriage

Over the centuries, millions of women have been unjustly labeled — or thought themselves "cold." Here is the story of a hidden muscular weakness that affects perhaps two-thirds of all women, plus a simple exercise, promise of marital fulfillment to countless women who've never known it before. Here are the little known findings from Ronald M. Deutsch's current book supported by 3 leading gynecologists. One of 35 articles and features in the October Reader's Digest, including:

- How to say "No" to your children.
- The Bible: A good book for our times.

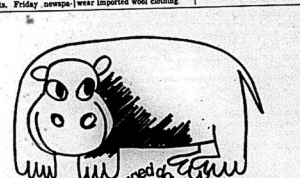
Lesage Will Fight Rebellion

QUEBEC (CP) — With the annual meeting of the Quebec Liberal Federation opening tonight, Liberal Leader Jean Lesage is understood to be preparing to head off an embarrassing confrontation over the party leadership.

Sources close to the 56-year-old Opposition leader in Quebec City say Mr. Lesage will use his opening address to the meeting tonight to try to wreck any plans dissidents might have to call for a vote of non-confidence over his leadership.

They say he will raise the leadership question in his speech and make it clear that "if anyone wants his hide they will have to fight him for it."

He may even threaten resignation unless he gets overwhelming support.



The sources say Mr. Lesage is prepared to make such moves because he is confident 95 per cent of militant party members support him and would refuse any suggestion that a leadership convention be held.

Lesage backers say this manoeuvring may be necessary because they fear call for a vote of non-confidence might otherwise be made at the conclusion of opening-night activities. A routine vote of confidence is normally proposed then.

The strategists say that after Mr. Lesage's opening speech "no one at the meeting will have the guts to stand up and propose a vote of non-confidence" in Mr. Lesage, Liberal leader since May 31, 1958.

Lesage backers feel the former premier's position among militant members of the party is stronger than ever because Mr. Lesage has travelled thousands of miles across the province since his party's 1966 election defeat, renewing contacts.

They view the dissidents as a tiny group inspired by a combination of personal ambition and a legitimate desire to improve the Liberal party's chance of taking power in the next general election.

Thomson Wins Right To Use Story on Greece

LONDON (CP) — Lord Thomson's Sunday Times won a court battle Thursday over the right to publish an apparently sensational report on propaganda operations of the current Greek government in Britain.

Three Appeal Court judges removed an injunction against publication which had been obtained two weeks ago by Maurice Fraser, head of a London public relations firm with a contract from the Greek government.

The Sunday Times has in its possession one of Fraser's reports to Athens and was to have published it Sept. 22 when he got the injunction from a lower court. It is entitled Fifth Report of the Public Relations Program in Europe.

Its contents have not been disclosed publicly before either to the courts that heard the case. But in the meantime Ivor Richards, a Labor MP, has announced that he has a document purporting to be a report of Maurice Fraser Associates and stating that an MP is "employed" at "working behind the scenes with the object of influencing other British MPs".

Lawyers for the Sunday Times told the Appeal Court in two days of hearings that the article it proposes to publish will defame Fraser but they added it constitutes fair comment on a matter of public interest.

Point Anne

POINT ANNE — Mrs. Reg. Coz and Mrs. M. Akey attended a dinner at the home of Mrs. Percy Akey, Canniffon. The dinner was given in honor of a number of friends who were celebrating their birthdays in September. Those celebrating birthdays were: Mrs. Annie Akey, Mrs. Mabel Keene, Mrs. John Beale and Mrs. Wesley Reid.

The Point Anne ball team were honored by a dinner held in St. John's parish hall on Saturday evening. The award for the most valuable player went to Larry Fraser and was presented by Mr. Earle Anderson. Mr. Frank Insley acted as master of ceremonies for the occasion.

Mr. and Mrs. David Kingston spent the weekend with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Chisholm.

A PROCLAMATION

WHEREAS authoritative statistics compiled and published by the Dominion Fire Commissioner show that during the past ten years, seven hundred and eighty thousand fires in Canada have taken five thousand eight hundred lives, seriously injured at least twenty-one thousand other persons and caused property valued at one billion four hundred and ten million dollars;

AND WHEREAS such losses are still increasing year by year;

AND WHEREAS humanitarian and economic considerations imperatively demand that improved fire prevention measures be undertaken to end this economic waste and needless loss of life in order that the nation's prosperity may be maintained;

AND WHEREAS it is desirable that the attention of the public be directed to the extent and underlying causes of the preventable loss of life and property by fire and to the best and most practicable means for its control and that a specific period of the year be set apart and properly designated for the dissemination of such information;

THEREFORE I DESIGNATE THE WEEK COMMENCING SUNDAY, THE SIXTH OF OCTOBER, AND ENDING ON SATURDAY, THE TWELFTH OF OCTOBER, IN THE PRESENT YEAR AS

"FIRE PREVENTION WEEK"

In the City of Belleville and do recommend that at some time during the week:-

(1) All citizens inspect their homes and all conditions likely to cause or promote the spread of fire be removed.

(2) All merchants carry out a general clean up campaign of the business section and assist in this program to reduce the loss of life and property by fire.

(3) All theatres, hotels and places of public assembly place special emphasis on the removal of fire hazards from their premises.

(4) Hospitals and institutional buildings be inspected and the necessary changes made to protect the occupants in case of fire.

(5) Fire drill and lectures on fire safety be given by teachers and staff in co-operation with Belleville Fire Department officials in all schools and educational institutions to acquaint the occupants with the dangers of fire and the best and most expeditious mode of exit in time of danger.

(6) I would further recommend that all citizens keep in mind the ever present threat of fire and take every possible means at their disposal to assist in the reduction of fire and the loss of life by carrying out fire prevention throughout the year.

Dated at the Mayor's Office, October 4th, 1968.

42nd W.I. Convention Held at Club Canara

The 42nd annual convention of the Trent Valley Area Women's Institutes comprised of the combined districts of Hastings, Prince Edward, Northumberland and Peterborough is now being held at the Club Canara.

The total of seven districts and 80 branches resulted in an attendance of more than 330 members. As well as enacting the theme of the conference, "human rights — love thy neighbor," the members also had the responsibility of electing the slate of new officers.

All officers are elected for the term of one year, and stipulations are that no one person may be elected to the same office for more than six consecutive years.

Results of the election were: president of the Trent Valley Area, Mrs. T. M. Gresham, Colborne; first vice-president, Mrs. Clifford Barber, Belleville; second vice-president, Mrs. Gordon Mackie, Cobourg; third vice-president, Mrs. Clifford Reid, Bellville; secretary - treasurer, Mrs. Gordon McCulloch, Campbellford. Other committee chairmen were also selected.

If member participation in the convention program is any indication of the effort of the women to live up to the Institute's main aim — that of making the community a better place in which to live, and the promotion of a happy wholesome social life — tomorrow will be even better than today.

The address of Mrs. E. Small, of Essex, president of the Federated Women's Institutes of Ontario was one of the highlights of the convention.

Throughout her speech, the president praised the efforts of the members in their various projects. She was especially pleased about the members drive and initiative in a most successful attempt to "extend their hands in friendship" toward potential members.

She urged the members to "please continue with this project," challenging her audience with "don't you think we can do it?"

Mrs. Small reported on the many conferences and meetings she had attended. From the Junior Institute Conference held in Centralia to the ACWW Conference held in Michigan — she described graphically the warm human contacts members established with one another, and the pride all maintained in the Women's Institute Organization.

The president ended her address by reminding all present to work constantly toward a world "with better understanding and peace" — through the Women's Institute.

Also speaking at the Conference was Miss H. McKercher, Toronto, the Director of the Home Economics service.

Miss McKercher discussed the soon to be completed results of study of changes in agriculture and homes during the past 10 years across the province of Ontario.

The healthy membership increase of more than 1,000 indicates in her words, "a pretty healthy sign when you hear that rural organizations have had their day."

Miss McKercher injected even more enthusiasm, and the drive for membership, and the basic need for every person "to belong, to have their contribution recognized," maintaining that the simple, clear cut goal of the W.I. accounts for its continuing growth and importance to every community.

Sessions continue today, winding up with a report by Mrs. Rex Rollins, the Senior Board director.

Mrs. E. Small, F.W.I. President

A Pause and A Rest

Federated representatives of the Women's Institutes gather at the luncheon table for discussion and a brief respite from the work of the two-day Trent Valley Conference, which concludes this afternoon at Club Canara.

Housewife Pickets for Better Working Rights in Home

STOCKTON, Calif (AP) — Unwashed dishes and clothes piled up for the third day Tuesday while Mrs. Tom Wagner picketed for "better working conditions in the home."

Signs in the front yard proclaim: "Unfair to wife" and "On strike."

"Tom works 40 hours a week for pay; I work 120 for nothing," explained Sandra Wagner, 23. "Then he comes home and asks, 'What have you been doing all day?' "

She said she doesn't have any minimum demands: "I just want Tom to sit down and negotiate."

She cooks for her three children, 6, 7, and 18 months, and washes clothes for the youngest. That's all her housework.

"When it gets so I can't stand it in the house I just have to go outside and do some picketing," she said.

When her husband saw the signs on the lawn Monday, "he laughed and walked around a bit, but then his good humor ran out and he went fishing."

Wagner told reporters later: "This is her game. She started it. She can finish it. I won't negotiate.

"At first I thought it was kind of funny. But now it's nationwide—a little bit further than the neighbors. After a while it is embarrassing. I guess."

Wagner, a layout designer for a sign company, expects some reaction from his male friends.

"Some of these guys are going to laugh—but if their wives do it, they'll find out. The best way to cope with a woman is to ignore her. Am I right?"

CLUB 4-H NOTES

WALLBRIDGE III

The sixth meeting of the "Argyle Corps" 4-H Club was held on October 1 at the home of Mrs. S. Hawrylak.

Discussion was on salads, desserts, baking with fruit, and "menu building".

There was an exhibit of a variety of fruit breads which each girl had made; also "Key Limes" which are small and yellow, brought from the Florida Keys and spiced "crab apples".

Mrs. S. Hawrylak demonstrated making raspberry royal fruit salad mold and Evelyn Knight made a whipped cream fruit salad.

Everyone partook of the tasty items at the close of the meeting.

Twiggy Grows Long Hair; No Marriage in Sight

LONDON (AP) — There's a ficially engaged," he declares. "new me," says Twiggy. And, with a giggle, she adds: her off."

Tuesday on a U.S. tour.

It's a new-look Twiggy, with nearly shoulder-length hair and a vampish makeup and style. She's been letting her hair grow for a year now.

The subject of marriage stems from the fact her manager-fiance Justin de Villeneuve now has a divorcee. But apparently this has not advanced her wedding plans.

"I always said I'd wait until I'm 25," says the 19-year-old Twiggy, "and I will."

De Villeneuve will be with her on the U.S.

She still hates flying, although her she's flown to Japan, Germany, Sweden, Monte Carlo, Greece and Denmark this year. And Twiggy still remembers with apprehension the mob receptions she got on her first trip to the U.S.

Twiggy will be wearing plenty of rings de Villeneuve has given her six—but no engagement ring.

"But we do consider we're of- next year."

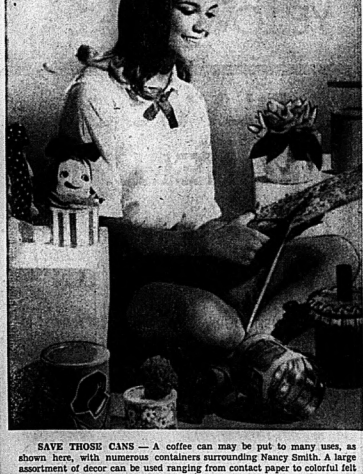
New Uses in Store for Coffee Containers

By Reba and Bonnie Churchill

Don't throw away that coffee can. It has new uses in store for it! The handy-dandy containers surrounding Nancy Smith are decorated with everything from contact paper to colorful felt. Roll covering around can, tape in place, then identify its use. What will it be? Skirt it with ruffling, top its plastic lid with a rose, and it becomes a vanity box for powder puffs. Wire hair curler "handle" to the lid, and its function is obvious — a storage bin for rollers.

One of the most important uses for a one-pound can is as a fire safety bucket. Research reveals many fires start in the kitchen and, should grease in a broiler or skillet ignite, experts advise extinguishing the flames with a generous amount of baking soda. They remind, in case of an emergency, keep the container well-filled and within sight and reach. For convenience, add a handle.



This too is a reminder of Fire Prevention Week October 6 to 12.

The seal-tight container also converts into a "canny" clown, which doubles as a party decoration or storage bin. Wrap two sheets of typewriter copy paper around can; glue in place. Add cut-outs for eyes and mouth, pompom for nose, and cotton balls for hair. Wire a cone-shaped drinking cup to the lid and cover "hat" with crepe paper. Mr. Fancy Face comes to life and height when balanced on a tower of covered cans, with balloons for arms and feet. It's ready for party inspection, with no hint that it began as a coffee can.

Successful Living

Husband Insists on Having Spotless House and Wife

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: You could come into my house and like everybody else you would say "There is a couple who have everything." Or maybe being the person you are you would see through all the polish, because my husband insists on a spotless house and wife.

You see, he comes from a family in which morality is second best. He is so afraid I would sleep around, he keeps reminding me of it all the time. I was pregnant when I was married and he tells me if it had not been him it would have been someone else.

But I was crazy in love with him. Does one have to take these things all her life?

In any case, send me your leaflet about how to stand up for yourself or something like that. I feel degraded right now. — Losing My Mind

Dear Losing: Of all the low-down, unfair charges made by a husband to a wife, this one takes the cake! I wonder where he was on that fatal night?

The leaflet is, "Why Suffer in Silence?" and I'm sending it. Not only do I recommend talking back, in your case, I'd also suggest getting up on your high horse and asking what kind of guilt feelings in himself make him turn accusations on you.

* * *

Dear Doris: Each time I phone to apply for a job listed in the paper they come up with "What's your name?" Now, they are the ones who have the ads in the paper; not us. What's in a name, Doris? WE should be the ones to ask their names, as we are the ones applying for positions.

When we refuse to give our name then we get insulted. This is so humiliating. They should not know the name until we have had an interview.

Dear Fulltime Housekeeper — Full-Time Housekeeper, keeper: The minute you hedge about your name, you deliver the impression that you have something to hide. In my book, it is an unwritten law that persons who go so far as to engage in telephone conversations should introduce themselves — and this goes both ways.

The prospective employer who will not identify herself may (1) suspect that the inquirer is already in her employ or has previously been employed by her (and if she is working for her, the employer may have an intention to discharge her and doesn't want to reveal this); (2) want details in order to check references; or (3) dread being called on personally before she knows she is interested.

It isn't cricket either way; but I'm afraid the employer has the upper hand.

Confidential to Worried Mother: Coffee and tea are true stimulants and a good way of increasing circulation to the limbs. Besides the drink, see that he gets up from those books for a stretch.

Make it a real coffee break. He could step outside and smell the fresh air, or turn somersaults or dance a jig; and return to deep concentration greatly refreshed.

Changing the subject he is studying frequently, is also a good way to relieve fatigue.

Ways of Tenderizing Frozen Meat Cuts

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: We bought a half carcass of supposed to be two-year-old beef. No matter how careful I am I cannot make that meat good. What I would like to know is how to make the T-bone steaks edible. — Mrs. J. D. C.

QUESTION: I bought frozen imported lamb loins and following your idea asked our butcher to cut them on his electric saw into chops. He did it willingly. I had about 10. I fried four and they were tough. How can I make them tender? — Maida M.

ANSWER: (To both Mrs. J. D. C. and Maida M.

I have had the same experiences. So after your letters arrived I bought frozen T-bone steaks and frozen loin of lamb (sawn into chops) and worked on them both to see if I could tenderize them.

To Tenderize Frozen Steaks and Chops:

Arrange steaks or chops on platter (not cardboard boat in which they were packaged). Sprinkle top generously with meat tenderizer to just coat them and let stand two hours. Turn over and repeat. Repeat this procedure — that is sprinkle both sides twice, letting them stand two hours between sprinklings, starting 8½ hours before mealtime. Mine were tender, moist and good — but I am quite sure that shorter tenderizing time will not do the trick.

Other readers who have frozen meat on hand that is tough should have it sliced about one inch thick and tenderize as above for the meat tenderizer will not penetrate deep into roast-size cuts.

QUESTION: I buy one packages of wieners every week because my kids like them and they are cheap. They are having a party and I refuse to serve them as hot dogs. Could you give me some Ideas to make them different for this party? — Idabelle N.

ANSWER: Try:

Twelve Rules Given For Happy Marriage

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Before I married many many years ago, an older person I had a lot of respect for gave me 12 rules for a happy marriage. This person was not educated and neither am I, but I think the rules are good enough so they don't need to be dressed up in fancy language. Here they are and I hope you think they are worth printing.

1. Never bob is angry at once.
2. Never yell at each other unless the house is on fire.
3. Yield to the wishes of the other as an exercise in self-discipline if you can't think of a better reason.
4. If you have a choice between making yourself or your mate look good, choose your mate.
5. If you have any criticism, make it lovingly.
6. Never bring up a mistake of the past.
7. Neglect the whole world rather than each other.
8. Never let the day end without saying at least one kind or complimentary thing to your life's partner.
9. Never meet without an affectionate welcome.
10. Never let the sun go down on an argument unresolved.
11. When you do wrong, make sure you have talked it out and asked for forgiveness.
12. Remember, it takes two to make a quarrel. The one with the least sense is the one who will be doing the most talking. — STILL HAPPY.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR STILL HAPPY: Here are your rules, just as you sent them. There's nothing wrong with your language. I don't know when I've seen so much practical advice packed into so few words. Thank you, thank you, thank you.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Is it possible to look at a woman and not see her? Or am I losing my marbles?

I am deeply in love with Francesca. She has just announced that she wants nothing to do with me. According to her, I must be ashamed of her because I passed her in my car (she was driving here), looked straight into her face and did not acknowledge her.

Francesca is a very truthful person. If she says I did it, then I did it. Please explain this. I am beginning to doubt my sanity. — ULCEROUS.

* * *

DEAR UL: It is possible to "see" someone and not be aware of it. This is undoubtedly what happened to you. An individual who is preoccupied or in motion may fail to recognize his own mother.

Francesca must be an extremely immature lady if she would terminate your relationship because of this one incident.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I've started to date a very classy guy who spent last summer in Europe. He has returned full of French, Italian and Latin phrases. Last night when he said good night, he added, "Semper Fidelis." Can you help me come up with a polite way to tell him to knock it off? — ME.

Teacher Raises Funds To Build Library

MOOSE FACTORY, Ont. (CP) — Susan Usher, a 20-year-old public school teacher who says she "quite often" gets her own way, has successfully raised $8,000 to build a library for her school.

Construction will start on a two-room pre-fabricated library Monday or November freeze-up comes to this island community near the south shore of James Bay.

Miss Usher came to Toronto a few weeks ago as a delegate from Moosonee to the Federated Women Teachers Association of Ontario meeting. She talked the teachers into parting with $8,000.

Moose Factory has a library of 5,000 books, she told them, but no facilities for storage or reading.

"Most of the Indian children live in two- or three-room houses with coal-oil lighting—not good places for after-school reading."

The women teachers donated the entire library to commemorate the 50th anniversary of the FWTAO.

Miss Usher says she is "really excited" about the library. She came to Moose Factory a year ago from Oshawa and is teaching Grades 7 and 8.

Men Tell Women Couples Should Perform Own Marriage Rites

OTTAWA (CP) — Two young men in turtlenecks and sideburns turned up at the status-of-women commission Thursday night "to move women into the 21st Century" by, among other things, letting couples perform their own marriage ceremonies.

"Two people walking hand-in-hand down the street could marry themselves, or it could be a formal ceremony before 400 people," Ken Huband, 22, said later in an interview. "I'd regard either as a marriage."

But red-headed Julia Aitken, 23, a teacher and friend of Ken's, wasn't sure she wanted to jump the centuries that fast.

"I'm a girl, so I don't altogether agree," she remarked. She was for some kind for formal contract, guaranteeing economic protection and protection for children, although she too wanted to take the state and church out of the marriage ceremony.

In their formal presentation, Mr. Huband and Alastair Wade, 23, a student, agreed marriages should be registered with the state to avoid legal complications.

This involved a backtrack for Mr. Huband, an executive trainee in the immigration department. He declared himself against marriage registration in his brief but said he had since learned in his work just how many administrative complications non-registration could produce.

Sporting a bright green turtleneck and wire jacket, he drew frequent chuckles from a mostly middle-aged audience of about 200, who crowded the second last hearing of the commission's cross-country public inquiry. It concludes here today.

"In 20 years, the institutions we have now will not be recognizable," he warned them.

Mr. Huband said he felt a woman should retain her own name after marriage and the title "Mrs." should be used by all girls over 21, "since it is a title of respect and should not denote marital status."

"How popular are these ideas among people of your generation?" asked Commissioner Elsie MacGill of Toronto, wife of business executive John Soulsby who continues to use her maiden name.

"I'm afraid they are rather unpopular with women" he replied. "There is a certain status to being married that girls like."

Mr. Huband also favored free access to birth control information.

Stewardesses Say They Are Treated Like Bunnies

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian air lines adopt a "bunny club" attitude towards their stewardesses, says a brief today to the royal commission on the status of women.

In the brief for presentation at the commission's last public hearing, the Canadian Air Lines Flight Attendants' Association says stewardesses may have suffered more bigotry from their employers than any other female group in Canada.

"Up until 1965 marriage was cause for instant dismissal; in some air lines today pregnancy is still reason for discharge," the brief says.

"Stewardesses in some air lines upon initial employment are required as a condition of that employment to sign agreements permitting the employer to discharge them at age 30 or 32 while the Crown corporation hires stewardesses on 10-year contract basis."

The association says it could do something about these conditions if the federal and provincial fair employment practices acts included strictures against discrimination on the basis of sex.

But only Quebec's act forbids employers to discriminate in hiring or promotion on the basis of sex.

In another brief, three women with social work experience warn that Canada no longer has enough adopting parents to take care of all illegitimate babies.

"The mother knows then she is probably giving up her child to a life of foster homes and institutions," says Elizabeth Dohan, Jean L'Esperance and Nancy Philips of Montreal.

They suggest that unmarried mothers not be pressured to give up their children for adoption. They should be offered "a real choice" as to whether they want to keep their babies.

Women Need Preference To Get Equality--Jewett

OTTAWA (CP) — When it comes time to fill job openings at universities, administrators must make a determined effort to think of women, a former MP told the royal commission on the status of women Thursday.

Prof. Pauline Jewett, now teaching at Carleton University here and a director of the university's Institute of Canadian Studies, was one of four professors who submitted a joint brief accusing universities of discriminating against women scholars at all levels.

Prof. Jewett said women must be given preferential treatment in the sense that administrators would think deliberately of them but not in the sense that they would take "a lousy woman in place of a good man."

This sounded like discrimination in reverse but was necessary until in 15 years or so women were sufficiently involved that employers would automatically judge people on the basis of merit.

Prof. Marion Smith of Brock University, who co - sponsored the brief with Professors Jewett, Helen McCrae of the University of British Columbia and Madeleine Gobeil of Carleton, said there is ample evidence of discrimination against women in Canadian universities.

The professors' brief gave statistics on 30 universities showing that one in four of the 10,710 male teachers is a full professor while only one in 21 of the 1,509 female teachers holds that rank. Even with such factors as length of tenure standardized, women university teachers still averaged $1,139 less a year in salaries than male teachers.

Combines Branch Will Probe Papers Refuse Real Estate Ads

OTTAWA (CP) — Reports that two Toronto newspapers have refused classified advertising space to a new real estate company will be referred to the government's combines investigation branch, Transport Minister Hellyer said Thursday.

Mr. Hellyer was replying in the Commons to Max Saltsman (NDP—Waterloo), who said a report of the refusal had appeared in Maclean's magazine.

The minister said information on the case had been received by his office and it would be referred to the combines investigation branch, as well as to the Toronto Real Estate Board if warranted.

In its October issue, Maclean's said the Toronto Telegram and the Toronto Star refused to carry advertisements of Principals Only Real Estate Information Servic Ltd.

The company lists houses for a flat fee of $55 from the owner and makes the listings available to prospective buyers. Buyers and sellers then negotiate on their own and there is no further charge by the company.

Striking Students Arrange For Alternative Instruction

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Senior students from the University of Windsor will begin classes for striking high school students today, Tim Appleton, internal affairs commissioner of the Students Administrative Council, said Thursday night.

The classes will be held in a hall loaned by the United Auto Workers union. About 300 students from W. D. Lowe technical high school, who have boycotted classes since Tuesday to protest the way their student council is chosen, are expected to attend.

The students walked out after a staff committee at the school ruled six candidates for the student council ineligible for academic and other reasons.

Mr. Appleton said the protesters approached the university students and asked them to provide instruction for the duration of the strike. Thursday high school and university students met at the union hall.

The private world of an Ambassador: we've gone to some length to improve it.

When you drive a car as personally rewarding as our Ambassador, every aspect becomes a refinement of your own private world.

This year, even more so.

We've made the body longer. And prettied up the face to go with it. We've extended the wheelbase. (Now it's 122").

We've made Ambassador's platform larger than any car in its class. The result is an amazingly stable ride.

We've increased the horsepower in the standard engine to add swiftness to the stability.

We've widened the engine choice. You can choose from five.

We've indulged in a plentiful number of interior elegant touches. Like plush velour upholstery. And new carpet fabrics.

But what still makes Ambassador a uniquely private world is the air conditioning.

We innovated it as standard equipment last year. And you can still take your own climate around with you this year.

(Unless you're prepared to pay over $10,000 for a car, you can consider air conditioning an Ambassador exclusive.)

Why not see your American Motors dealer and contemplate entering the private world of an Ambassador this year? It's as easy to enter as a Ford or a Chev.

And for that kind of money, it's a world apart.

Root of the Matter

Forestry officer E. P. Edson scrutinizes a root cause for Sandbanks containment — Carolina poplar. The hybrid tree, bred in Canada, showed highest survival rate when planted in sandy area — thus realizing needed forest growth to halt land movement.

Vegetation, Helped By Forestry, Stabilizes Sand Dunes

A 50-year Struggle

Province Wins Sand Dune Battle

PARK — The clock has been successfully reversed on the sands to time in this eccentricity of the Canadian landscape.

After a half-century of often-hapless effort, man-mounted schemes finally have stemmed the wild shifting of the sandy terrain.

The success, now confirmed by the Department of Lands and Forests officials has:

— Eliminated a natural threat to the surrounding Prince Edward countryside and — Secured a natural — and renowned retreat for a city, teeny increasingly seeking the outdoors.

It's also something else: A result of co-operation, not challenge between man and nature. Nature provided the tools — trees — and man the methods, devised over a lengthy period of painstaking selection.

"It's rather dramatic," volunteers E. P. Edson, forestry officer at the department's Napanee office. "It's even more fascinating because the setting is so beautiful."

The drama of the final solution is fed by the fact this particular phenomenon of nature was fascinatingly visible. Generations hereabouts have watched the dunes, rolling around the Lake Ontario shoreline, change shape.

The changes in land formation could measure up to 20 feet a year as the lake winds swept along the dunes, relentlessly silting the sands.

There also was a menacing recklessness in the situation.

Human settlement west under the frivolous movement. It's no local legend that houses, even a factory, were buried by the sand, says Mr. Edson.

But then, human settlement created the problem in the first place.

The area, bisecting Lake Ontario and West Lake down to Wellington, was covered by forest, a natural barrier to the winds piling up sand on the shoreline.

In this security, less than a century ago, a road was run in a straight line from Bloomfield to Lake Ontario. Along this link went up homes, then a brick factory, even a hotel. Conservation was an unfamiliar word to settlers then. Farmers along the road extended their clearings by hewing indiscriminately into the forest.

The timber supply was exhausted and the thin layer of topsoil covering the sand eroded. Suddenly the dunes began to move.

With no natural impediments, the sands shifted relentlessly up from Lake Ontario, burying homes, the factory, the hotel, the road, piling across the peninsula into West Lake.

The area was left desolate. The road was relocated and local farmers, in a belated effort to halt further damage began planting trees in 1911.

The perpetual motion continued, however, with the dunes moving rapidly — especially in winter and piling to 90 feet in height.

Then, in 1921, a government forestry station was established and extensive rehabilitation was attempted. Millions of plantings were plotted around the area, but with no marked success.

The plots were too small to beat back the lake winds and many trees literally choked to death in the moving sands.

Department records indicate many foreign and every known species of native tree were planted in various holding operations through to the 1950s.

Finally, in 1957 an overall plan was mounted. The pattern of planting was changed, and massive mulching of the most exposed areas was laid on.

The mulch holds much of the secret of success. Made up of hay and straw it is thickly spread around each plantation.

Acting as insulation, it helps retain moisture in the ground during the highest summer termperature peaks.

With little evaporation loss the moisture remains close enough to the surface to service the first tentative roots of the young plants.

What's needed then is a quick maturing tree, old enough after the first season to go seeking needed water further underground.

That's where the second successfully implement entered the picture — the Carolina poplar.

A hybrid, it is a Canadian accomplishment, combining the hardiness of the Canadian aspen to the quick growth of the Italian Lombardy poplar.

Planted along with sturdy Scotch pine and black locust, the poplar contributed much to turning the sand tide, showing a survival rate of 89.90 per cent, a satisfactory ratio for the most demanding conservationist.

The program of containment has moved quickly ever since. Last year, the final plantations were put down.

says Mr. Edson and from now on all that remains is to maintain the forestry barriers.

In effect, it seems to indicate that the Sandbanks have been urned back 100 years.

But not quite. Ironically, the human salvesta that caused the trouble also gave Canada something unique.

The parcel of desert that emerged from the man-felled forest had an elegant wildness that caught the imagination.

It's only other believed rival in North America is on Lake Michigan.

As a provincial park it became a byword for natural beauty and has attracted sightseers for years (in 1967 an estimated 500,000 people passed through park gates).

"The configuration of the land and the sand — it's so clean — make it unmatched," enthuses Mr. Edson.

American tourists have said that even such a famed attraction like Cape Cod does not rival the Sandbanks, he says.

The spot has much in its favor. Its silver sands are complemented in a study in contrasts by the gentle West Lake on one side, the robustness of Lake Ontario on the other.

With containment a certainty, the dunes are now being left to the free play of nature, although Mr. Edson says there now should be little change in the landscape.

Meantime, as park facilities are being improved for a travelling public, the sandy westward peninsula tinking it with Wellington, is still untouched.

It refains in its pristine state — despite some cloudes of controversy that already have gathered over its landscape. The rivals this time are those who want to see it developed along public park lines and those seeking to preserve its untouched, esthetic appeal.

It likely will be the next big proplem demanding a solution before the sands have sifted much more time.

Search Out Industry Good for You: Brown

"An honest appraisal of a community's needs must be made" according to Industrial Commissioner Ray Brown th decide where "there is greater development potential."

Mr. Brown, who was speaking to the Markham Chamber of Commerce, indicated that statistics showed that 80 per cent of the manufacturing plants in Ontario employ fewer than 100 persons and 80 per cent employ fewer than 50.

"Thus, it would seem there is a greater development potential in encouraging existing industry to expand and in seeking to attract small or medium sized industry."

Of course large industry should not be ignored but, "landing a big one" should be viewed in its proper perspective, he said.

In communities there are two veins of thought "industry means progress and don't rock the boat," said Mr. Brown.

And the ability of a community to remain competitive depends on its costs in doing business compared to other communities according to Mr. Brown. The people in the community are the ones who govern these conditions.

Good schools, streets, water, sewer facilities, stores, land areas, recreational facilities and of course good government are the areas Mr. Brown said produce a "community climate" accommodating industry.

But industry also requires a business climate established in matters such as assessment and taxation, zoning, building bylaws, police protection, municipal transportation and power and water supplies.

With the two climates Mr. Brown said the only other ingredient needed to attract industry was work.

"The position you hold in your community means more than being a good banker, good industrialist, good merchant, and good critic," he said.

The challenge of all citizens is to help build up these better community and business climates, for themselves, their children and their communities, said Mr. Brown.

Milk Producers Say Quotas Cut Revenue

The 400 members of the Agincourt Milk Producers Association have voiced objection with the Ontario Milk Marketing Board, claiming that milk quotas set by the board have resulted in a drastic decrease in milk revenue.

In a brief recently presented to the milk marketing board, the Agincourt Association claims the situation has reached crisis proportions for many producers who have experienced drops in their monthly milk cheques of up to $1,300.

The brief claimed the situation was steadily deteriorating as the board continually drops the percenage of bottled milk payments and increased the amount of milk purchased at the lower industrial price.

Even the 50 cents per cwt. increase recently granted producers will not bring association members back to the revenue position enjoyed before the board came into operation.

The brief recommended that the milk board establish a sharp delineation between the bottled milk business and the industrial milk business: that the board fully review its policy of admitting qualified industrial milk shoppers to the bottled milk pool; also that the same set of rules be established for industrial shippers as for bottled milk shippers who wish to expand.

The Agincourt Association takes in producers from 10 counties in Western and Central Ontario, including Durham, Ontario and York counties.

Air Cadet Leaders At Seminar

TRENTON — Some 200 air cadet squadron commanders will meet at Canadian Forces Base Trenton tomorrow to discuss the main phases of air cadet squadron operation.

The visiting officers will gather at the officers mess at 9 a.m. to be officially welcomed by Col. Harold Carswell, base commander.

And then a busy day's activiles await them as the entire air cadet operation will be carefully scrutinized. Everything from "standard dress" to "glider flying" will be under discussion.

The conference will also look into the future as time has been set aside for new business.

No Word Received from MPs in Biafra

OTTAWA (CP) — The government will seek a report on the whereabouts of two MPs who left the capital Sunday to visit Biafra, the breakaway Nigerian province.

Treasury Board President C. M. Drury told the Commons Thursday the report will be sought and that he did not know whether Andrew Brewin (NDP —Toronto Greenwood) and David-MacDonald (PC—Egmont) had arrived in the beleaguered province.

He was replying to a question by former prime minister John Diefenbaker who asked whether the external affairs department would advise whether the "political pilgrims" had arrived in Biafra with greater ease than food supplies.

NEWMARKET, Ont. (CP) — A member of the Ontario legislature who visited Biafra in 1960 plans to return to the breakaway Nigeria state on a personal fact-finding mission.

Stephen Lewis, New Democratic MPP for Scarborough West, left by plane Thursday night for Africa after obtaining clearance for the trip from Biafran representatives in the United States.

Groggy From Pills

Woozy Lolich Too Weak to Uncork Fastball

DETROIT (AP) — Mickey Lolich had two major problems before he went out to get the Tigers even in Thursday's second game of the World Series—keeping his mouth shut and his eyes open.

He managed the second, but not the first, and that's how the motorcycle-riding Detroit pitcher became the hero of the game as he scattered six hits and hit the first homer of his career in an 8-1 victory over St. Louis.

Lolich's problems stemmed from a groin infection he first noticed Wednesday night. And as soon as he got to the ball park Thursday, he reported to the team doctor.

For the next couple of hours, whenever Lolich opened his mouth someone either shoved in a thermometer or some pills. The pills, in turn, were beginning to put him to sleep.

"I was quite groggy from the pills," Lolich confided. "The doctor . . . said I might run out of gas in the middle of the game and that I might get a headache at any time.

"I didn't get the headache. But I was woozy all day."

However, Lolich claimed the situation only served to make him a more effective pitcher.

". . . I was so concerned about the infection I had no chance to be nervous and with all those pills making me groggy and the energy out of my body, I was completely relaxed.

"Another thing was that I didn't have enough energy to throw as hard as I usually do and as a result my fastball was shaking more."

Meanwhile, Nelson Briles sat at his locker and talked about the three home runs he gave up to the Tigers.

"Lolich's home run proved right there I didn't have very good stuff," Briles admitted. "I tried to move the ball round but it was no good. I tried to get the ball in on a hitter and it went out over the plate.

"Today was just typical of the last month of the season for me," Briles added. "I didn't have good stuff and I'm not able to do what I want. My breaking ball was pretty good, though."

All three homers came off fastballs.

"I gave it all I had," Briles said, "which evidently wasn't too much."

Briles lasted only long enough to face two men in the sixth, but he was surprised he was around that long.

"They stayed with me longer than I thought they would. They hoped I would battle my way out of it."

Lolich, 28, a left-hander who won two fewer games than the 19 Briles did during the season, was effective in all but the sixth inning when St. Louis scored its run.

Lou Brock singled, stole his first of two bases, went to third on Curt Flood's infield single and scored as Orlando Cepeda blooped his first hit of the Series.

Mickey Stanley, the centre fielder turned shortstop, then got Lolich out of any further trouble by making a good stop of Mike Shannon's hard grounder in the hole between short and third and turning it into an inning-end double play.

"I thought it might go through, but he made a real nice play," said manager Mayo Smith, who moved Stanley to short to get Kaline into the line-up. Kaline, incidentally, singled his last two times at bat and scored two runs.

The only problem the Tigers had all day was the groin infection Lolich developed. He noticed it Wednesday night and took some medication when he arrived at the park Thursday.

"I was quite groggy from the pills," the 28-year-old left-hander explained. "I was woozy all day. I thought Mayo might go with somebody else. Now I'm glad he didn't."

Detroit Regains Confidence

Hit Happy Tigers Thaw Out From Gibson Freeze

DETROIT (AP) — The Tigers are back in Detroit today, eager to bring to their fans not only the kind of game that crushed St. Louis Cardinals and tied the World Series at one game each.

Following an informal discussion that helped thaw their first-game freeze, the Tigers whipped the Cardinals 8-1 Thursday behind the six-hit pitching of Mickey Lolich and the home run slugging of Lolich, Willie Horton and Norm Cash.

The performance was completely different from the one the Tigers put on Wednesday when they got only five hits against Bob Gibson. Only one was an extra-base blow, which was unusual for the club that led the American League with 185 homers during the season.

But their uprising against Nelson Briles and three relief pitchers was more like the game they're used to playing on the smaller Tiger Stadium, where the Series resumes Saturday.

"In the first game, I was more nervous than I've ever been since my first day with the club," said Al Kaline, who joined Detroit right out of high school in 1953.

Kaline and first baseman Cash, a nine-year Tiger, agreed that was the general malady that struck the Tigers in the first-game loss, and then they did something about it.

"We had dinner together Wednesday night," Kaline explained. "And we talked about how everyone was trying too hard. We said we had to lift the these guys and relax them, get them to play the kind of game we played all year.

"We had a lot of time when we got to the park so we just sat around talking. We didn't have a meeting but just talked among ourselves. We talked about going for base hits and playing our kind of game and not worrying about anything. You could tell from the time we went on the field that everyone was more relaxed.

"Then when Willie hit the home run, it gave us a big lift. It broke the jinx, or whatever you call it, and gave us momentum. We were confident we could win. Then when Lolich hit one, it was too much to expect."

Horton connected off Briles in the second inning and Lolich in the third. For Lolich, it was the first home run of his six-year major league career. Three innings later, Detroit broke the game open with a three-run burst.

"You have to give Lolich a lot of credit," said Cash, who collected three of Detroit's 13 hits.

"He held them for five innings while we were getting started. Then we went to our game, which is knocking the ball all over the country."

It will be up to Ray Washburn, 14-8, to keep the ball in Tiger Stadium in Saturday's third game when he pitches against Earl Wilson, 13-12. Gibson and Denny McLain then pick up their duel Sunday.

Washburn, however, has to be wary after Thursday's explosion.

"It's got to be a pretty darn good pitcher—like Gibson—against us or we're going to hit the ball all over the place," Cash said.

But Cardinal manager Red Schoendienst isn't worried.

"Washburn pitches pretty well everywhere if he has his good stuff."

Briles' trouble was he didn't have good stuff and as Gibson noted:

"This club is more capable of hitting home runs than, say, the Dodgers. If you don't have good stuff, they're going to hit home runs."

At the same time, Lolich, who started out in life as a right-hander, is a motorcycle enthusiast with five bikes and a 115-mile track on a plot of land near his home.

Because of a childhood bicycle accident in which he broke his collarbone, he was told to exercise his left arm to strengthen it. That turned him into a southpaw pitcher.

He's also an archer, gun collector, skin diver, pilot and banjo player.

Lolich posted a 17-9 record this year. He never has won 20.

Detroit Blows Its Horn

DETROIT (AP) It was a blustery day Thursday, but most Detroiters along Woodward Avenue kept their heads up and their smiles on because Fred Davis finally had a chance to blow his horn.

Davis, an Air Force veteran of Vietnam, has caught the eye of Detroiters since the World Series began. A human Series meter posted on the side of a downtown store.

He sits on the marquee of the store in his orange director's chair with an earphone from a transistor radio plugged into his ear. Every time there is a change in scoring he posts it and gives a mighty blast on an electric horn.

It's a lot of fun," he said.

"People wave and smile at you. People were feeling bad Wednesday but today's been pretty good. It's just like being there."

It might have been the high winds Thursday but Detroiters stepped a bit livelier as the Tigers thrashed the Cardinals 8-1 in the second game of the series.

Over in the mayor's offices, many aides were in the conference room gathered in front of a television set like thousands of others around the city.

At a local bar, a hangout for city government employees, attorneys, judges and students from the University of Detroit law school, the regulars were packed along the bar viewing the game on color television.

The best seats, it was explained, were reserved for the regulars at $1 each.

At a big restaurant, meanwhile, they were getting ready for the Series in Detroit, advertising "1945 prices" for the weekend only.

It's been that long since there's been a World Series in Detroit. Measured in hard cash, that's about 50 cents a dinner.

But was a cup of coffee really 15 cents back then?

Olympics Get Green Light

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The 19th Olympiad is like a tale of two cities — one of athletic youth of the world and the other of riot-blooded Mexican college students.

And Thursday an 81-year-old man, president Avery Brundage of the International Olympic Committee, apparently penned the first cancellation of the Games because of a youth rebellion.

With the start of the Olympics only nine days off, Brundage took the word of reassuring Mexican authorities and said the Games would start as scheduled despite the most recent gun battle between military and militant students Wednesday night.

After leading an IOC executive committee conference with Pedro Ramirez Vasquez, chairman of the Mexican organizing committee, Brundage issued a brief statement Thursday.

"The Games of the 19th Olympiad, a friendly gathering of the youth of the world in amicable competition, will proceed as scheduled," it said.

"We have conferred with the Mexican authorities and we have been assured that nothing will interfere with the peaceful entrance of the Olympic flame into the stadium on Oct. 12, nor with the competitions which follow."

Asked what measures could prevent still a third major outbreak of violence in the drawn-out, bitter student strike, Brundage said:

"We must rely on the unwilling of proper authority against disorder, or we no longer have authority."

"Who can say what are proper safeguards against violence when despite all possible precaution we had the tragic assassination of President Kennedy, to name one violent instance of our troubled times."

Brundage, in giving a green light to the Games which will draw a record 7,000 athletes from more than 200 nations, also scored a behind-the-scenes triumph.

Earlier Thursday, Brundage was confronted with an ultimatum from Guillo Oneeti, president of the Italian Olympic Committee and head of a newly-formed assembly of national Olympic committees.

Onesti demanded that Brundage apply for formal assurance from Mexican officials that the Games could be conducted without incident, or that he would have the national Olympic committees make such a request.

Onesti and Count Jean de Beaumont, 63, millionaire banker who is president of the French Olympic Committee, are regarded possible presidential rivals to Brundage in next week's balloting for the office in the fall IOC meeting.

A HALF-MAST IDEA

Nora Laff of Rochdale, England has taken upon herself the awesome responsibility of being the standard-bearer for golf widows around the globe.

After years of losing husband Bill to the links, she has carried out a threat of long standing and erected a flagpole just outside her bedroom window.

Purportedly in mockery of her spouse's comparatively rare respites at home, Nora will raise a Union Jack every time hubby Bill stops by between tee-offs.

Better take your eye off the ball, Bill — that flag business sounds like a marital hazard from this angle.

PASS ME!

How embarrassing — to flunk a sex test!

But it happens amidst the glamor of international competition every so often.

The tests — first introduced in the British Empire Games two years ago — are used by Olympic officials to determine whether the women athletes of the world are really "all-girl."

Poland's Eva Klobukowska, was one of the first to fail her . . . uh . . . his (?) examination, which inexplicably prompted a number of fellow-female athletes to withdraw from international competition.

Things have come to a pretty pass — there's so much mistrust afoot these days that Olympic officials may find yet another factor becoming critical to an athlete's performance — PRUDERY!

THAT'S GRID BUSINESS

Schenley bottlers have announced an Academy Award - like format for this year's presentation of their awards for outstanding Canadian Football League performers.

No more neat, public release-type bulletins, and no more hotel suite locales for the presentation ceremony.

It's the O'Keefe Centre, no less, where this year's prized Schenley awards will be doled out the Thursday before Grey Cup day.

"The two nominees in each category will appear on stage together," a Schenley spokesman says. "After a brief background on each and film clips showing performance high-points during the current year, an officer of the Montreal Trust Company will step forward with a sealed envelope containing the name of the winner."

"Until the moment of presentation, strictest security measures will be enforced and only the trust officer will know the names of the winners."

You forgot something, men. The scene just wouldn't be complete without Bob Hope as master of ceremonies.

Hockey's Bad Boy on Waivers

Hawks Take Second Chance With Young in Bid to Add Muscle

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Chicago Black Hawks have picked up another bad boy to go on defence with Gilles Marotte and fill the hole left by Pierre Pilote.

The National Hockey League club announced Thursday it has obtained Howie Young on waivers from Oakland Seals of the NHL's Western Division. The deal concluded a long spat between Young, an eight-year veteran, and the Seals.

The Black Hawks traded Pilote to Toronto Maple Leafs for winger Jim Pappin and a rookie at the end of the season, and have been looking ever since for someone to add a little muscle to the defence.

Young, who played with Chicago during the 1965-66 season, has the spirit to do just that. He was the terror of the league in 1962 with Detroit Red Wings, racking up more than 150 minutes in penalties, but has subsided since then.

Last year, Young scored two goals and 17 assists for Detroit. He was sent down to Fort Worth of the Central Hockey League and picked up another goal and two assists.

When he was shifted to Oakland, he refused to register at training camp and the Seals announced they were suspending him.

Meanwhile, Toronto Maple Leafs coasted to an 11-2 victory over the Canucks of the Western League in a game played before a sell-out Vancouver crowd of 15,589.

Leafs' Wayne Carleton, Paul Henderson and Larry Mickey scored two goals apiece. Dave Keon, Mike Byers, Ron Ellis, Mi'c Walton and Murray Oliver added one each.

Murray Hall and Phil Maloney were the Vancouver scorers.

In other exhibition games Thursday night, Pittsburgh Penguins nipped the Black Hawks 4-3 in Brantford, Ont., and Philadelphia Flyers downed Quebec Aces, their American Hockey League farm team, 5-1 in Halifax.

A goal by Gene Ubriaco late in the third period gave the Penguins their victory before a 3,568 fans. It was their first win after four defeats and a tie in six exhibition games.

Wally Boyer, Ken Schinkel and Charlie Burns scored the other Pittsburgh goals and Marcotte, Pappin and Chico Maki replied for the Hawks who have four victories and three losses in exhibition play.

In Halifax, Claude Laforge led the Flyers with two goals before a crowd of 2,980. Gary Peters, Leon Rochefort and Jim Johnson scored one each while Simon Nolet replied for the AHL club.

Los Angeles Kings of the Western Division announced Thursday that right winger Bill Flett suffered a broken nose during shooting practice and is a doubtful starter for tonight's exhibition game against the Seals in Kingston, Ont.

The Kings also announced they are loaning defencemen Jacques Lemieux to Denver Spurs, the newest entry in the Western Hockey League. He is the 10th Los Angeles player to be loaned to the Spurs this year.

Nicholson Halfback Finds Running Room at Albert

Madoc Powerhouse Rambles To Second One-sided Win

By JERRY HOFF
Staff Reporter

Coach Bob Colliver's hard-nosed defence turned back Tweed as Madoc emerged the only undefeated team in the Class A loop after two weeks of play.

Madoc topped Tweed 26-0 with the Madoc Juniors giving Tweed something to worry about for next year as they shut out the Tweed Juniors 43-0.

In the other Class A game this week, Nicholson Catholic College downed Albert College 13-6 and the OSD seniors topped the NCC juniors. No score was reported for the latter contest.

Madoc collected eight points in the first half on a first-quarter major by halfback Keith Fenton, in a power sweep. Quarterback Jung Mah threw to end Jerry Jacksor for the two-point conversion.

Madoc scoreless, defensive halfback Don Donaldson tried to break that shut out with a last-minute interception but the Madoc offence was stalled.

Behind 8-0 at the opening of the third quarter, Tweed got rolling on a recovered Madoc fumble. Quarterback Chris Goode, in his first game, threw to end Francis Lajoie for 43 yards then passed to Brian Jones for the major. However the touchdown was recalled for holding on the line. And that was the last real offensive threat posed by the losers.

The remainder of the game was a song by Madoc with the fourth, tune and melody written by Gord Donaldson.

Madoc's bulldozing fullback was good for one touchdown himself and kicked a deep punt that cost Tweed a point when it was unable to get out of the end zone.

Madoc's other points came on a rouge and a fourth - quarter off - tackle effort by halfback Rick Deering.

"Our defence was the key," Colliver said. "I told the boys they could score on defence and they did with a rouge and a touchback."

Coach Joe Hogan of Tweed wasn't as disappointed as he might have been. "My boys played well," he said. "Mike McCormack and Murray Spencer were outstanding on the defensive corners. I was especially pleased with Chris Goode, in his first game, threw and threw well, especially considering it was his first game as quarterback. It wasn't his fault. Our offence just wasn't clicking."

Nicholson Catholic College shutout Albert College, the defending COSSA Class A champs, for the first three - quarters of play for the green and gold's first win of the season.

NCC lost to Madoc 26-6 in its opener last week.

Quarterback Wayne Storms paced the winners with six of nine passes completed — none for majors but all resulting in yardage and field position gains.

Storms picked up the opening touchdown with a 15-yard roll-out and Brian Coughlin made the conversion A pitchout in the third quarter to Mike Allore made it 13-0.

Late in the final quarter, Alliet College's offence began, belatedly, to move, resulting in a touchdown by Chuck Miller.

Storm's passes were caught by Mike Smith, Jim Gilmour, and Terry McGuigan. Smith's two receptions included a 35 yard run as did one of the three caught by Gilmour. McGuigan picked up 25 yards for the winners on his catch.

BCI Boots Third Straight Win

The BCI senior soccer team won its third straight game Thursday and goalkeeper Brent Gallupe collected his third straight shutout as BCI topped Quinte 3-0.

In contrast, the BCI juniors dropped their third consecutive game of the short season to Quinte-3-2.

Mike Cresswell of BCI collected his second goal of the year in the Quinte game to open the scoring. Cresswell has scored both on penalty shots. Ted Shaw made it 2-0 with his third goal of the season, this one assisted by left outside Steward Reid. Shaw was at centre forward.

Quinte switched goalkeepers in the second half of the game, but the new protection didn't do much good as BCI's centre half Reid Mallory booted the third goal on an assist by Peter Wong.

BCI's Jim Pang collected the opening goal of the junior game — his first of the year— but had it nullified in the closing minutes of the first half by Quinte's Al Hayman.

Lance Vader, Quinte's captain, made it 2-1 in the second half, but BCI came back to tie it on a penalty shot by John Thompson.

Vader, however, booted the winning goal mid-way through the half.

Annual Event in Ottawa

Frank Clair Again Reported Facing Win Or Else Ultimatum

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian football coaches come and go but Frank Clair seems to go on forever—despite annual rumors that Ottawa Rough Riders are ready to fire him.

This is Clair's 13th season as head coach of the Eastern Football Conference club. Before that he spent five years as lineman with Toronto Argonauts.

Clair, 52, again is said to be under the gun. Unnamed directors are reported as being willing to pay off the two-year salary he has remaining on his contract.

Clair said in an interview Thursday the rumors don't bother him.

"I'm not losing any sleep over them," he said.

Riders are currently in second place, one point behind Toronto. Ottawa has won five, lost three and tied one.

Clair coached Argos to two Grey Cups before coming to Ottawa. He takes issue with those who say he was fired by Argos. He has always insisted on having the final say on what players should be signed by his club and on trades.

When that position was in doubt in Toronto, he said, he resigned.

When Ottawa hit the Big Four cellar in 1955 under Chan Caldwell, Riders hired Clair back to Canada.

Under Clair, Riders have not missed a playoff spot. He won a Grey Cup with them in 1960 and lost in the national final to Saskatchewan Roughriders in 1962.

While no club director can be openly quoted as saying this is the year Clair must win to keep his job, club executive J. Barry O'Brien denies it is so.

He said he knows of no ultimatum given Clair. And if there was one, he would be against it.

O'Brien said it is usual for the directors to get together with the coach at the end of a season to see what mistakes might have been made or what changes are indicated.

Clair says this assessment will be made this year as usual "and it will be up to the judgment of the directors as to the kind of job I've done."

The Ottawa coach candidly admits he made one glaring error this year—trading off linebacker Mike Blum and halfback Dave Cranmer, both Canadians, for fullback Lovell Coleman.

Coleman, at one time the most outstanding back in Canada, came to Riders after a knee operation. In practice he injured the other one. The new injury is the main factor in Coleman having his poorest year ever in Canadian ball.

Meanwhile Cranmer is blossoming into a real rushing threat for Calgary.

With Coleman producing glitter, Ottawa backfield troubles are compounded by injuries to fullback Bo Scott and halfback Ronnie Stewart, and the retirement of halfback Rick Black.

Added to the offensive woes have been the work of two veteran defensive backfielders, Joe Poirier and Gene Gaines.

Riders also have been in trouble because of a shoulder injury to quarterback Russ Jackson, which affects his throwing.

Bombers Near End

Countdown Begins in Western Football

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Western Football Conference countdown, with the final playoff position providing the locestive, begins Saturday for Edmonton Eskimos, British Columbia Lions and Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

Saturday afternoon the Bombers play in Hamilton against the Tiger-Cats of the Eastern Conference while the Lions, seeking their first playoff berth since 1964, play in Edmonton Saturday night.

In an afternoon game Sunday, Saskatchewan Roughriders put their 1963 home unbeaten record of five games on the line in a Canadian Football League affair against Montreal Alouettes.

The Roughriders need a victory to take over first place in the WFC. Calgary Stampeders top the standing with 16 points, one more than Saskatchewan, and seven ahead of third-place Edmonton.

The Eskimos hold a four-point lead over the Lions and a five-point margin over the Bombers in the battle for the third playoff position.

The Lions and Bombers each have six games remaining and the Eskimos five. Edmonton and Winnipeg will meet twice more this season, while the Edcounter Saturday is their last for 1963.

The Lions and the Bombers have one game remaining, Oct. 19 in Vancouver.

For Saturday's game in Edmonton, coach Neil Armstrong of the Eskimos has taken steps to strengthen his sagging defence. Rookie defensive tackle Greg Pipes, an All-American from Baylor University, returned to the roster Thursday after 30 days on the injured reserve list.

Armstrong said the aim was to get players in their proper positions and a better rush on the rival quarterback. Lineman Henry Huber was released Thursday to make room for Pipes, who suffered a pulled groin muscle in training camp.

Rookie Charlie Fulton will start at quarterback for Edmonton with Cvrep Coleman, a first-year player from University of North Dakota, in reserve. The Lions are expected to start quarterback Pete Okker with Paul Brothers and Jackie Parker as backups.

The Roughriders, who suffered a 38-35 setback to the Stampeders last Sunday in Calgary, are ready for the Alouettes of the EFC, says coach Eagle Keys.

Fullback George Reed, bothered by an eye injury he suffered Sunday, has not practised all week, but Keys says he will be okay.

The Hamilton game will be televised by the CBC national network, starting at 2 p.m. EDT. The CTV western network will televise the game in Regina, at 2 p.m. CST.

Washington and Tucker Ottawa's MVP Choices

OTTAWA (CP) — Vic Washington, speedy first-year import from the University of Wyoming, and Canadian flanker Whit Tucker are the nominees of Ottawa Rough Riders for the Jeff Russel Trophy this season.

The trophy is awarded annually to the Eastern Football Conference player who best combines the qualities of courage, fair play, sportsmanlike conduct and outstanding ability.

The 23-year-old Washington started the season as a defensive back but now has won a starting spot in the offensive backfield. Tucker, 27, is in his seventh year with Riders.

Rebel Pros Win Golf Round

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — The American Professional Golfers scored a partial victory Thursday in its war with the Professional Golfers Association when it was given court permission to open a school for young golfers.

Chief Judge Caleb M. Wright gave the APG permission to open its school Sunday, climaxing a 10-hour hearing in U.S. district court here.

Judge Wright thus ruled against the 52-year-old PGA in its fight with the breakaway APG, formed Aug. 19 by the top money winners in the tournament business.

PGA won the first round Sept. 24 when Wright issued a temporary restraining order against any operations of APG.

PGA's case is based on the removal of files by the APG from the office of William A. (Billy) Boe, who resigned Aug. 30 as tournament director of the PGA. The allegation is that these files are confidential and enabled APG to get a fast start in the tournament business.

A list of applicants to PGA's school was among the material allegedly taken and used to recruit some of the 61 students accepted by the rebel APG. A school is an essential part of the operation since it feeds young golfers into the organization and into the tournament tours.

The Experienced Hand

Lois Summerville, (right), playing title role in Theatre Guild's Mary, Mary, lends experienced opening-night hand to Denise Rainbow, making her first stage appearance. Comedy opened Guild season at Centennial Secondary School last night.

Lois Summerville Sparkles In Mary, Mary Production

By HARRY MULHALL
(Staff Reporter)

Belleville Theatre Guild went merrily on its way into a new year of community stagework last night to appropriate theatre sounds — laughter and applause.

The response came from a first-night audience at Centennial Secondary School as the Guild premiered its most ambitious season ever with the sparkling Broadway comedy Mary, Mary.

The presentation also previewed the high production standards the Guild considers may anticipate in coming months from the group's new driving force — Richard Howard.

As the Guild's first full-time artistic director, Mr. Howard shoulders much of the season's demanding workload.

But that burden does not deflect from the work at hand and the deft touch of the professional was evident at every turn of last night's production.

Smooth situation pacing and the delivery of its cast imparted that quality essential to successful comedy — effortlessness.

The Jean Kerr comedy, a big New York success of recent years, is a warmly witty probing of marriage on the rocks — though far from shipwrecked.

The marital turbulence is generated in the clash between Mary, with a seemingly unrelenting sense of humor and the attempts at practicality by her husband Bob.

The friction sparks the play's witty lines all the way down to a satisfactory happy ending in which love finally prevails.

Much of the responsibility for the play's success lies in the title role and in Lois Summerville the Guild has an actress who readily measures up to the challenge.

As Mary, she held centre stage in the audience's attention much of the night, with her portrayal of a woman whose urbane wit, ever delightful elowning, disguises a character of warmth and normal human needs.

However, Mrs. Summerville had starting - standard support in her portrayal, notably from Gerry Tinlin, the Kingston radio personality who joined the Guild for this season's opener.

Mr. Tinlin easily carried off his characterization of Mary's husband, whose attempts to find the right answers were often baffled by his own practical cloddishness.

In solving their problems both lead players were well supported by:

Denise Rainbow, a teenager chronologly taking her first bow before the footlights as a young health fiend.

Peter Kitcher, a veteran of many Guild productions here and a bred-in-bred role as the husband's lawyer.

Roy Hunt, who as a movie star knowingly facing decline, contributes much to the final solution.

The opening night audience including a list of invited guests and c o m m u n i t y-theatre personalities - from around Eastern Ontario — also brought an accolade from Mayor Scott.

The mayor went on stage with Guild president Gordon Collins to congratulate the group for its initiative in securing the services of Mr. Howard.

Mary, Mary runs tonight and Saturday. After that Mr. Howard goes right on working. The Guild's next production — Ionesco's Bald Soprano — is scheduled for the the one-act Eastern Ontario drama festival here Nov. 14.

Casting begins Monday.

To Your Good Health

Blondes Have More Sniffles

By Dr. Joseph G. Molner

Dear Dr. Molner: My grandaughter is a healthy child, slim, blonde, and blue-eyed. However she seems to have constant attacks of sniffles and runny nose.

They took her to a pediatrician who said that blond, blue-eyed children are more apt to get to sniffles, colds, etc. He told the mother to cut out milk from her diet (other than on breakfast cereal).

This didn't sound logical to me at all, as I was of the opinion that all children should have plenty of milk. And why are blonde blue-eyed children more subject to sniffles? Doesn't that sound silly?

Shouldn't they consult another doctor before excluding milk? — Mrs. J. R.

You may be under the handicap of having only a partial report of what the doctor said. I'll see if I can help you.

The comment about blond (and red-headed) people may not be so entirely silly as you think, because there are constitutional types that have less resistance to disease than others. However, I would suspect that the doctor may have noticed characteristics other than the mere matter of coloring. Inflammatory skin are decidedly more vulnerable to allergies — and allergy can be important.

It is entirely true that a child should have plenty of milk — or its equivalent in calcium, protein, and other constituents.

However, children who are subject to allergies sometimes are allergic to cow's milk. The sniffles might (or might not) be a symptom of an allergy. With some youngsters the symptoms are even more severe.

It is a difficult thing to test for, except by trying it out. In various instances the answer has proved to be substituting goat's milk, reconstituted condensed milk, soy bean preparations, sometimes calcium supplements along with other sources of protein and fat.

Therefore it may be worth to try at excluding cow's milk entirely (for a time) to note whether there is any change in her reaction. It makes no sense to try this experiment, being careful at the same time to see that the youngster get adequate nutrition from other sources, which is the important point.

If this does not help her then I would suggest having the youngster checked by an allergist or a nose-throat specialist, or perhaps both.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am 14 and have had a terrible cough ever since I can remember. It is not a habit as there seems to be a tickling in my throat. Is there a cure for it? — N. H.

It is unlikely that such a cough is a habit. At your age, some sort of allergy would be my first suspicion. Chronic infection of tonsils or adenoids could be a factor. To be on the safe side, I would also suggest a tuberculin skin test and X-ray and thorough examinations of nose, throat and lungs. Don't just go on coughing. Find the cause.

Dear Dr. Molner: Recently during a critical illness a biopsy revealed scoliosis.

However, I am feeling fine now and wonder whether the periodic checkups required by the specialist to whom I was referred are really important or just another "added expense."

At a couple of these checkups I have been made to feel sort of foolish at some of my concerns. Our family doctor says it is a benign disease not to be worried about. — Mrs. M. H. D.

Sacroiosis is usually benign, but there is a difference between usually and always. So I think the periodic checkups are important; a margin of safety, and not a needless expense. At the same time, especially since you are having the checkups, I would not waste time and nervous energy worrying.

Politically-loaded Requests Placed Before Monetary Fund

WASHINGTON (CP)—A temptation to avoid conflict like a perilous year in world finance beset the annual meeting of the International Monetary Fund Thursday.

It faced two politically-loaded questions that could come to the forefront today or be laid aside for quiet compromises later.

South Africa, openly contemptuous of the two-tier gold system set up last March, demanded the right to cut its risks and sell some of its newly-mined gold into the IMF's monetary stocks. A middle ground between South Africa and the United States appeared to be taking shape, but without any clear chance of arriving in today's final sessions.

West Germany, anxious to demonstrate to the world the security of access to West Berlin, was pressing for selection of the divided city as the site of the 1970 IMF and World Bank meeting.

But most of the 107 members of the bank and fund were understood to be disturbed by the prospect of leading the 2,000 or 3,000 most important men in the world's financial system into the middle of a Communist country.

Copenhagen has been gaining favor as an alternative.

In speeches to the meeting this week, both the South Africans and the Germans left the way clear for delay on the two decisions.

The IMF's hankering for harmony follows a year in which the pound sterling has been devalued; gold has gone through a revolution in its monetary role, and rescue efforts of varying degree have been necessary for other currencies, including the United States and Canadian dollars and the French franc.

Everyone learned lessons about monetary co-operation during the year, IMF Managing Director Pierre-Paul Schweitzer said Thursday.

"The danger of a major crisis is less than it has been in several years," he said during a luncheon for financial reporters.

South Africa contends that, on the contrary, the two-tier system is a dangerous retreat that arbitrarily shuts off monetary stocks of gold from private stocks.

The system freezes monetary stocks and makes South Africa totally dependent on prices in the free market for its $1,000,000,000-a-year production of the metal.

South Africa would like at least a limited chance to sell to the IMF at $35 an ounce or to the free market at the going price—which, some IMF members suspect, South Africa could control.

Schweitzer believes he has a formula to give IMF control over both the monetary and free prices.

The Canadian government, meanwhile, is selling gold from subsidized mines at the best available price in New York, and watching the argument from the sidelines. Canadian gold production at about $120,000,000 is second only in volume to South Africa in the Western world.

Chevrier Informs Americans Differences Must Be Expected

NEW YORK (CP) — Lionel Chevrier, Canada's roving ambassador, told a predominantly America audience Thursday their countries are the best of friends, but the United States should not expect "us to agree with you about everything all the time."

"After all, if we did what on earth would we have to talk about?" he said in a lighthearted ending to a speech that placed heavy emphasis on Canada-U.S. unity and Canada's position as a small sovereign country next door to an economic giant.

The speech to the Canadian Society of New York was one of several the ambassador-at-large is to make in the U.S., capitalizing on the interest in Canada created by Expo 67 last year.

A primary job in this and other tours by Chevrier is a study to determine how the information services in the 10 Canadian missions in the U.S. can be improved. In this regard Chevrier is talking to representatives of news media and studying the information services of other countries.

Half his speech was an acknowledgment of the lively interest in the United States in Canada's bicultural and bilingual experience. He assured his audience of Canadian and American businessmen and their guests that Canada is not upon a course "that can lead to a true partnership between its two great language groups."

A copy of his speech was released in advance of delivery.

Chevrier said he was attempting to put Canada's difficulties in proper prospective.

"I would like you to see Canada as a unique country trying very hard to come to terms with its uniquely bilingual and bicultural character.

On the matter of unity he explained that English- and French-speaking Canadians had become acutely aware of one another after sharing the country in "stony silence" for two centuries.

Sunday School Lesson

An Answer From the Dark

By CLARENCE W. CRANFORD

People today, says Helmut Thielicke, the great German theologian, are like sentries standing in the dark, crying in to the darkness, "Who goes there?" In this way, he describes men's spiritual lostness today — their separation from God. Is there any answer other than the echo of their own voices? And if there is, is it the answer of an Enemy or a Friend?

One man who believed there is an answer wrote what is called the Letter to the Hebrews in the New Testament. To many people today it is a very strange book. It begins by talking a lot about angels, and people today don't think much about angels except, perhaps, at Christmas time. They think about astronauts instead. They are more familiar with the language of science than the language of faith in the first century.

And yet here is a writer who insists that God speaks, and has spoken, to men in "many and various ways." (Hebrews 1:1 RSV) And he does so for a very modern reason. He faces the problem that people are falling away from their faith in the living God. (Hebrews 4:12)

Certainly there seems to be such a falling off of faith today. A recent survey shows that 67 percent of the people of the United States now believe that the influence of religion is declining. Among young people between 21 and 29 years, the percentage rises to 77 percent.

> The Uniform Sunday School lesson for October 6, 1968, "The Source of God's Faith," Hebrews 1 through 3.

Perhaps this is not a falling off of faith in God, but of confidence in the church to call men to faith in God. People may still be religious at heart, but lack confidence that the church is in effect that faith in the world today.

The reason may be that men are looking at God through the wrong end of the telescope. They have been looking through the lens of what men have achieved, and God appears small. They need to look again through the lens of what God has created, and then men will appear small.

Theodore Roosevelt once looked at the stars with the great naturalist William Beebe, who was his guest. They discussed the Spiral Nebulae of Andromeda with its hundred billion suns bigger than the earth's sun moving with speed at a distance of more than 750,000 light years from the earth. After saying Mr. Roosevelt said "Now, I think we are small enough. Let's go to bed."

This was the way the Psalmist felt as he looked at the stars. (Psalm 8) It was the way the author of Hebrews felt as he quoted this Psalm. (Hebrews 2:10) But more important than the stars, he believed that God had spoken to men through Jesus. And one way He has done this is through the scriptures. This author supported almost every statement he made by an appeal to the scriptures of his people.

A theological student was being examined for ordination to the Christian ministry. He made one statement with which one man on the examining council did not agree. This man said, "If you can cite one verse of scripture to support your statement, I'll accept your answer." The author of Hebrews used scores of references to scripture to back up what he was saying.

During World War II, William Killing, a missionary to Japan, was confined in a concentration camp in Japan. For a long time, he was not permitted to have a Bible. He had nothing but his memories of scripture on which to draw for inspiration and strength. Fortunately, he had been a faithful reader of the Bible. He could recall to many verses and passages from memory. As he walked about in his lonely cell, he could engage his mind by trying to see how many Bible verses he could recall.

If many people today were forced to undergo such an ordeal, they would not be able to call to mind a single verse of scripture to give them comfort and assurance. People have gotten away from the great Source Book of spiritual truth and inspiration.

But most of all, the author of Hebrews believed that God had spoken through a person, and that person was Jesus. In calling Christians back to renewed loyalty to Jesus, he went on to show that they follow a Leader who proved Himself in the arena of human conflict. He did not remain in some ethereal realm like an angel. He walked among men. He understands the sufferings of people because He, too, suffered agony on the cross. (Hebrews 2:18) He understands the temptations men face, for He faced those same temptations without yielding. (Hebrews 4:15) This is why he says Jesus "reflects the glory of God." (Hebrews 1:3 RSV) As someone else put it, "Jesus is to God what the rays of the sun are to the sun." He shines God's truth on men's paths.

Wallace Is Face Of U.S. Fascism

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

More than a decade ago, I warned in this space that the threat of native fascism was far greater in the U.S. than that of communism; and that any politician who attacked the "Reds" stood to gain at the same time acknowledging the mounting danger of fascism was a man to be watched.

Now, with the rise of George Wallace in the presidential campaign, we have a clear picture of what this native fascism promises to perform. And it is a formidable threat, for millions of Americans are frightened out of their boots by the militant Negro movement and other dissident activities from the campuses to the conventions.

It is not enough for the pundits, the intellectuals and the civil libertarians to dismiss Wallace as a cheap demagogue who calls for "law and order" as a way of subverting the law and imposing a military order on this country. All this may be true, but the fact remains that he appeals to a large segment of the American population — the scared, the simple-minded, the undereducated, the bigoted, the older immigrant groups who feel the heavy breathing of the blacks on their homes, their jobs, and their communities.

Wallace skillfully seeks to exploit this mélange of feelings and reactions, precisely as Hitler exploited the fears and frustrations of the German people.

And neither of the major parties seems able, or willing to come in realistic grips with the problems of dissent, disunity, and disaffection that makes it so easy for the Wallaces to sow hate and anger throughout the land. Nixon tries vague concessions to the right, and Humphrey to the left, as well as political tactics than as thought-out programs.

But without a program that is fair to all segments of society, the Negroes will (and rightly so) become increasingly militant; and the Wallaceites will become more bitter, more bigoted, more intractable. It was, after all, the weakness of the Weimar Republic that allowed Hitler to play on "anticommunist" fears and win a majority of seats in the 1933 Reichstag.

The weakness of the two major parties lies in really talking "issues" rather than having no firm guidelines or goals for social justice, in trying to appease all factions by treating symptoms rather than getting down to causes. And getting down to causes means, largely spending billions to rehabilitate cities.

This will not be done as long as we are fighting a war. As long as we neglect the lower one-fifth of our income population. As long as we are more concerned with Gross National Product than net human worth. When the black are assured of jobs and the whites of stability, Wallace will become a balloon with all the air let out.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For October 5

Your birthday today: You face many dramatic episodes. At any age, you mature rapidly and here a year of growth is promised for you. Today's natives tend to develop progressive ideas. Marriage, however, is usually a challenge.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Today begins heavy but improving weekly. Kindness softens all hands, by and by. Celebrate the evening with a small party.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Resist the temptation early in the day to scuttle major plans. Make minor adjustments. Clear off the pile-up of postponed details. Meditation is best this evening.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Pay no attention to farfetched schemes. Unsettled conditions early in the day improve so that important affairs can be attended to in the later hours. (Be discreet.)

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): The responsibility for things begun today tends to grow to excess. Stay with routines as closely as you can; it is not the time to become involved in major projects.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): If you can stay put today, good. If you can abstain from bickering with relatives much better. If you can let well enough alone, best of all.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Check your accounts carefully to avoid duplications. Get at the backlog of unfinished routines, incomplete correspondence. This afternoon, do a little shopping (nearby).

LIBRA (Sept. 22 — Oct. 22): The day gets off to a slow start for a change. For no reason, your mate is still set to oppose almost anything. Later hours bring a happier time.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Extra work is indicated for the early hours. No real choice but to buckle down. Older people get in the way. Your good humor finally wins out. The evening brings a chance for personal affairs.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Forget your hobbies. Routines are too many loose ends. People are a bit unsettled early in the day. Avoid capricious moves. Seek privacy this evening.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Watch for the collision of your private life with your work obligations. Take a break here and there to think how far you've progressed and which move will get you back on the track.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): If you can stick to your own system the day will go well. Everybody else has a different idea, so be gentle. Put off travel until the later hours.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): There is a special premium today on thinking before taking action. Your regular habits and long-term plans are very helpful just now. Resist the urge to upset things with sudden whims.

String Orchestra Soothes Olympic Guests While Mexicans Riot

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Take a walk through a riot-torn Mexico City, host of the Olympic Games, and you would think you were in the most peaceful city in the world.

Of course, you are.

Mexico City itself is calm, and peaceful and guests find the hospitality of the Mexicans something to treasure for years.

In the Camino Real Hotel, headquarters of the International Olympic Committee, a string and piano orchestra provided palm-court music.

Guests sit around sipping before-dinner cocktails.

Take a walk to Mexico City's fashionable Reforma—Mexico's answer to France's Champs Elysee and Italy's Via Veneto—where the girls and boys are out enjoying themselves with not a hint of trouble.

About eight miles away, athletes train happily at the Olympic village in preparation for the Oct. 12 opening of the Games. Talk of gun fights and people killed in the streets seem thousands of miles away.

They never heard a shot fired in anger in Wednesday's bloody riots that accounted for a reported 31 dead—and maybe more.

Over the last 2½ months some 51 people have been killed as students rioted against the Mexican government.

The blood bath between the students and the army on Wednesday happened at a housing development called Tlatelolco, a pleasant part by any standards, which houses 70,000 people and also accommodates the vocational school—the school of many of the student rioters.

Tlatelolco is only a couple of miles from downtown Mexico City. Here, the palm-court atmosphere of a pleasant afternoon changes—and quickly.

Hundreds of troops, armed with guns, surround the development—one that looks like a city of steel.

Armored cars with guns at the ready stand at strategic points. Soldiers are on guard atop skyscraper buildings.

Other police are on hand to quell future riots.

Downtown Mexico City, the Olympic village, and other Olympic stadiums were oases compared with the tense and uneasy calm at Tlatelolco—the Place of the Three Cultures where the students have been holding their meetings.

Troops Broke Trust

ULI, Biafra (AFP) — Four white relief workers killed at Okigwi this week died because they trusted Nigerian and Red Cross promises of their safety, an Irish priest said Friday.

(The International Red Cross said at its Geneva headquarters Friday night that the four were shot by a drunken Nigerian soldier. The Red Cross has protested to the Nigerian government and demanded an inquiry and punishment of those responsible.)

They met their end with a bottle of whiskey, calmly awaiting the arrival of Nigerian troops believing they would be unharmed.

The story was told by an Irish priest, who said he wishes to remain unidentified until called upon to testify before an official body.

A British missionary couple, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Savory, and two International Red Cross workers—Dr. Dragon Hercog and Robert Carlsson—were killed in the Nigerian takeover of Okigwi last Monday.

The priest said he arrived in Okigwi Monday by car.

"The town was deserted. There were no civilians. Just a

CHICAGO (AP) — Ten policemen have been recommended for suspensions of up to 15 days for activities during Democratic national convention week disturbances in August.

In all cases, the suspensions were recommended because the division determined that policemen had removed their badges and name plates contrary to department rules.

Huge Prince Edward Farm Deal Not Ruled Out Yet: Assessor

By DONALD MacKENZIE
Staff Reporter

"The possibility of a 6,000-acre corporate farm in Prince Edward County is far from dead," said County Assessor S. (Sid) Manley this morning.

Mr. Manley, who also refuted any accusations of a lack of county official co-operation in the matter, said that he had been in touch with a Toronto realty firm yesterday and a spokesman indicated they were still interested in the property.

"They even told me they would be requesting additional information about the land," he said.

"If there is one outfit I feel we have co-operated with it's been these corporate farm people," said the assessor.

Both he and warden Gordon Demore outlined the county's position this morning.

It was the end of August when the first official approach about 11,400 acres of Athol and South Marysburgh township land was made to the clerks of both townships, said the assessor.

Mr. Manley said the letters were handed over to him a few days ago after they were received Aug. 28 by the clerks.

"My office has all the information they requested," he said, "owners, property descriptions, mailing addresses, acreage, and assessed value and we got to work on it right away."

A letter went out to the Toronto Realty firm on Sept. 5, eight days after the first inquiry was received.

"We told them at that time the information they wanted would take a lot of research and that we would have it to them the first week in October," said Mr. Manley, this morning.

"They seemed quite happy about it then."

The assessment department of the county owes went so far as to hire an extra office girl in order to release one assessor to work on the project, he said.

Then on Oct. 3, as promised, a portfolio describing the 87 privately owned properties was sent out, said Mr. Manley.

Ordaz Denies Report

MEXICO CITY (CP) — Gunfighting in Mexico City took two more lives Friday—a passerby and then the sniper who shot him—and a letter signed by a group calling itself the "Army of Liberation" threatened a "large military operation" against the government.

Police meanwhile announced that four persons, one of them a Canadian, were arrested as being among "foreign elements" and local guerrillas who supported students in their fight against the government.

A Canadian embassy spokesman Friday night confirmed that a Canadian had been detained for questioning, but declined to identify him. Police identified him as Otto Hans Zoeller, 32, but gave no hometown.

In Friday night's incident, the sniper, firing from an apartment building across from the foreign ministry headquarters, killed a 35-year-old passerby with a shot in the head and wounded a 21-year-old man in the arm. Witnesses said the sniper apparently was aiming at a soldier.

Army marksmen returned the fire and a few minutes later the sniper was carried out dead.

The statement of the Liberation Army was distributed Friday, but was dated Sept. 28, four days before the big gunfight Wednesday between troops and snipers that left at least 29 persons dead.

Referring to the Olympic Games scheduled to open in the Mexican capital next Saturday, it said:

"We decline all responsibility for what could happen in those who come to a country that, in fact, finds itself in full civil war."

It recommended that "the foreign public not come to the Olympics because, although under no circumstances will athletes be attacked, it will be necessary to carry out a large military operation against the government in the inaugural act and others later."

A spokesman for President Gustavo Diaz Ordaz said the government does not take the letter seriously. But the defence ministry has said guerrilla groups are operating in the northern state of Chihuahua.

Peru Coup Vetoes Oil Deal

LIMA (AP)—The military leaders who overthrew the Peruvian government nullified Friday night a disputed contract with a United States oil firm and said government officials responsible for it would be "brought to justice."

The U.S. diplomatic mission remained in the country, but a state department spokesman in Washington said the uncertainty brought about by the coup had caused a suspension of U.S.-Peru diplomatic relations. He said the suspension was not the same as a formal break in relations.

The military leaders did not name the officials it considered responsible for the contract with International Petroleum Corp., a subsidiary of Standard Oil of New Jersey.

Ousted President Fernando Belaunde Terry helped draw up the agreement which gave back to the government oil fields in northern Peru that had been operated by IPC since 1924.

He was criticized by opposition members of parliament who said the contract made no provision for hundreds of millions of dollars IPC had taken from the country in resources.

The military leaders used the oil dispute as a pretext for taking power Thursday. Observers believe Gen. Juan Velasco, the army chief of staff who heads the "revolutionary government," is considering a complete takeover of the firm's assets.

Inflation on Wall Street at Epic Peak

NEW YORK (CP) — Wall Streets' lunch-time battle of the busts turned into a minor roughouse Friday.

One bosomy beauty competing for the attention of hundreds of stock market employees was knocked flat, while other over-enthusiastic viewers traded punches with police.

Round Three in Wall Street's newest spectator sport opened with the arrival of 36-year-old Mrs. Geri Stotts, from Burbank, Calif., who claims measurements of 47-29-39.

Wearing a bright red minidress and black boots, Geri stepped out of a limousine in front of the New York Stock Exchange.

But before the waiting crowds of stockbrokers and clerks could get much more than a glimpse, she was hustled into a police car which sped her away from the business area.

A short time later 22-year-old Mississippi beauty Ronnie Hall—whose press agent claims she measures 50-22-37—walked around the corner of the street, only to be knocked to the ground by spectators who then traded punches with police who intervened.

It all started when 21-year-old computer operator Francine Gottfried walked down the usually quiet street shortly after noon Sept. 19.

Francine's 42-25—37 measurements drew a crowd of 5,000 for a couple of days, then her employer gave her an extended holiday.

She is reported to have been offered $100,000 for a year's work as a topless dancer.

In round Two Thursday, Suzanne Zulkowski, 21, and Sheilah Moore, 25, both winners of a Cleveland radio station's contest to find girls to match Francine's measurements, strolled along the street.

The predominantly-male throng of girl watchers were so carried away at one point that they wildly cheered a group of girls in white, who turned out to be gospel singers on their way to a choral program.

300 Start

First Frankford Walker Completes Trip

TRENTON — It was a weary but victorious Neil Thompson who ran across the finish line of the Frankford Walkathon this morning.

Over 300 started, but Neil was not content to be just one of the pack. The fleet-footed entrant ran the 26 miles to finish in three hours and five minutes, and there was no way the valiant runner would stop.

Photographers who wanted a picture had to run along with Neil. He apologized by saying, "If I stop I'll never finish, I have to keep on going."

And meanwhile the walk goes on.

An atmosphere of dedication is visible from check point to check point.

As one walker put it, "some people say the walkathon idea is getting old, but this is the first one for us and it's the greatest."

Linda Kelly, the one and a half year old Frankford resident completed her proposed mile, and the little lass collected $45 for her efforts.

A 67-year-old ball of fire, Annie Richardson, is still going strong, and she can still be seen plodding along the pavement with her small canine friend.

Reeve Gerald Ross completed eight miles, while councillor Mrs. Frank Rabel, has passed through check point seven and is still going strong.

Chairman of the Walkathon, Ken Lawrence, describes the event, as "exceeding all expectations." He expects Neil's closest followers to come pasting over the finish line around noon.

When all the blisters are totalled, it is hoped the $18,000 goal will be reached. The money is to go towards the new Frankford Arena.

Attempt Unsuccessful

Student's Father Takes Part in Rescue

The father of an Albert College student yesterday was forced to abandon an attempt to evacuate an injured British explorer from an Arctic ice floe.

Canadian flyer Wesley Phipps Friday made a 1,000 mile dash to the expedition's camp in an attempt to rescue injured Allan Gill, but was unable to land due to ridged ice.

The injured explorer will have to stay on the ice floe during the Arctic winter, the committee for the British Trans - Arctic expedition said Friday.

This morning David Phipps, 17, a grade 11 student at Albert, said icy break - up was the probable reason for his father's failure to land.

"The ice doesn't freeze over solidly enough up there to permit a lading with either skis or wheels until mid - winter," David said.

He added that in his opinion only a helicopter could effect a landing under present autumn conditions in the north.

Gill, 37, the party's geophysicist, seriously injured his back in a fall last month.

"Only a serious worsening in Gill's condition will force us to make a second rescue attempt," said the expedition headquarters in London, England.

The four-man expedition left Point Barrow, Alaska, last February on its epic walk across the Arctic ice-cap, hoping to make the long hike across the top of the world to Spitsbergen, Norway, in 18 months.

The men are about 300 miles from the North Pole.

Phipps, a daring pilot based on Cornwallis Island, flew his twin-engine Otter aircraft from Resolute, one of the Elizabeth Islands on the edge of the Arctic Circle. He had been weather-bound for days.

He refuelled at the American floating weather station T-3, over 800 miles into the Arctic Ocean, and then flew 150 miles to the camp.

After circling the base for some time trying to find a place to land he gave up and returned to Resolute, his Northwest Territories base. His Otter plane had no skis, and needed a smooth ice to land.

David Phipps said his father prefers to use skis for most of his Arctic work. According to David, ridged ice is caused by break-up conditions which prevents the landing of any type of aircraft, regardless of its type of landing gear.

The student earned his private pilot's licence this summer, and intends to follow in his father's footsteps as a northern flyer.

Wesley Phipps, an RCAF veteran, has lived and worked in the north for 19 years.

Six Evening Courses Are Cancelled at BCI

Six night school courses at Belleville high schools have been cancelled due to lack of interest.

At Belleville Collegiate Institute, millinery was cancelled when enrolment figures fell below the required 15 members per class.

The remaining 14 courses at BCI will go ahead as scheduled.

An additional 40 people registered Thursday night, giving a total of 327 people enrolled in night school at that institution.

So many registered for advanced sewing that principal W. R. MacKay is attempting to find a teacher for a third class on Wednesday nights.

Five courses have been cancelled at Moira Secondary School. They are auto basics and driving safety for women, fashion co-ordination, machine technology, physical fitness for men and economics for twenty-weeks.

Night school registration at Moira totals about 225.

MRS. JOHN LANGEVIN
Tweed

Oct. marked the passing of a highly respected Tweed resident, Mrs. Adeline Langevin, who passed away in hospital, following an illness that extended over the past four years.

She was the wife of the late John Langevin, and daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George LaValley. She was born in Hungerford Township 82 years ago.

She was the mother of the following children: Joseph, at home; Mrs. Raphael Courneyea, Tweed; Mrs. Robert Martin, of Peterborough; Mrs. Nelson Genereaux of Hastings; Mrs. Lyna Trudeau of Tweed; and Clayton Langevin at home.

She was the sister of Edward LaValles of Port Colbourne.

The body rested at the Cassidy Funeral Home, Tweed from Oct. 1, until Oct. 4, thence to the St. Carthagh's Church, Tweed for Requiem Mass with Reverend Dean C. E. Baker officiating. Interment was in St. Cathagh's Cemetery, Tweed.

Mrs. Langevin was a member of the St. Carthagh's Tweed Ladies' Auxiliary, Catholic Women's League of the parish.

The pall bearers were, Louis Mersaw, Joseph Allore, Joseph Cassidy, Vincent Cassidy, Joseph Genore and John Prevost- Sr.

Farmers Urged To Form Union

BLOOMFIELD (staff) — Farmers were warned against the ever increasing growth of big business corporations into the field of agriculture, last night at a farmers' meeting here.

Veronica Opatsuk, women's president of the Ontario Farmers' Union told about 40 local members that large business concerns had tied down both ends of farming, purchasing and selling, and that the two were steadily becoming one.

She explained that the businesses farmers dealt with in purchasing feeds, seed and machinery, were oftentimes the same corporations that purchased the farmers' produce.

She cited examples in Western Ontario in which the corporations at either end of the farming operation had finally eliminated the farming middle man, and handled the entire agricultural process.

To combat the corporation growth Mrs. Opatsuk urged the formation of a National Farming Union.

She said that directors of provincial unions across the country had agreed upon the wisdom of the move, and that all that was necessary was "grass roots" support.

"Do we farmers maintain control of our produce, or do we lose it once it has passed our gates?" she questioned.

Aid Workers Killed

few army vehicles passing quickly.

"Going past the hospital I saw someone at the door and stopped. It was a Red Cross worker. He took me to see his friends inside the building.

"They told me they were waiting for the arrival of the Nigerian troops, as they had been ordered to. According to them, the Red Cross had obtained formal guarantees from Lagos (Nigerian capital) that Red Cross workers in Biafra wouldn't have anything to worry about in case of capture by the Nigerians."

The priest said the four relief workers showed him the make-shift defences they had built, using sacks of flour or rice, against shell bursts.

"Two of them were sitting near their sacks of flour in front of a bottle of whisky.

"They told me they intended to wait for the Nigerians in that room, drinking their bottle of whisky.

"I'd just arrived in the country, I advised them to leave, but they wouldn't listen to me.

"The noise of shooting was getting nearer, so I decided to go. I left them in the room with their whisky."

The priest seems to be one of the last persons to have seen the relief workers alive.

Frankford Man Injured in Mishap

A Frankford man was rushed to Belleville General Hospital today after his car hit a tree on Sidney township's fifth concession.

Donald Reynolds, 33, suffered head injuries in the mishap.

Provincial police say Mr. Reynolds apparently was driving home on the road, which directly links Frankford with Highway 62, when the car went out of control about 12.50 a.m.

Tweed Accidents Cause Damage

TWEED — Highway 37 north and south of Tweed was the location of two accidents last night, neither of them causing personal injury.

Around nine p.m. a two-car collision resulted in $200 damage to a car driven by William Clayton Woodcock, 40, of Tweed. The other car, undamaged, was driven by 24-year-old Paul J. Curran of Ottawa.

Then at 11:30 p.m. one mile south of Tweed car of a two vehicle collision resulted in $350 damage.

A half ton truck driven by Florence Pully of Cloyne was involved in a collision with a car driven by Henry Forsythe, 66, of RR 2, Stirling.

Damage to the truck was estimated at $50 while Mr. Forsythe's car was damaged to an estimated $500.

Farm Deal Not Dead

The Prince Edward assessment office has one of the most up to date and modern set - ups in the province said Mr. Manley.

"It's as good as Metro Toronto's office and is complete with electronic data processing.

"Even though it was our busiest month of the year, we got the information out to them."

Warden Demore pointed out that perhaps some of the lack of co-operation came from farm owners once they were approached to sell.

"There was bound to be opposition in some areas where orchard acreage is at least worth $600 an acre — the farmers were being offered under $100."

And the only official approach ever made to anyone in the county about the land was by the two initial letters to the township clerks, said the warden.

"None of the councils or other officials were ever approached."

It was also indicated to the Toronto firm at this time that we would be pleased to sell them the land "if supplies they had," the men said.

"We feel that there has been no lack of co-operation from the county, by either its elected officials or its departmental officials."

Gently Does It!

Truck crew gingerly guides more than a ton of hefty bull on the hoof as Eastern Ontario Cattle Breeders' Association moved from Belleville area yesterday. Wallbridge Road quarters now have been taken over as animal control centre, operated by Ontario Humane Society.

Bulls Leave City

The Belleville area is lighter on the bull by 21,000 pounds.

That's the approximate total weight of 17 bulls moved out of the area yesterday to make way for cats and dogs.

The move was made by the Eastern Ontario Cattle Breeders' Association which has transferred its operations to new quarters at Kemptville.

Its property on the Wallbridge Road has been taken over by the Ontario Animal Control Service — the Ontario Humane Society operated scheme which has replaced municipal dog catchers in Belleville and Trenton.

Moving the livestock was a three - hour operation for truckers.

The bulls, all fine specimens, were gingerly coaxed from their barn stalls into the open. Once outside a rope was inserted through their nose rings and they were quickly trotted onto the trucks.

The operation empties a huge barn, leaving the animal control service with more-than-ample room for current operations.

So much so, officials are pondering making the vacant stalls available to equestrians.

City dwelling horse-owners often face problems in housing their pets, particularly in winter. About 15 stalls are now available at the new animal centre.

DEATHS

PAYNE, Walter L. — On Thursday Oct. 3, 1968 at St. Anne De Bellevue Hospital, Quebec in his 62nd year. Beloved husband of Alice Hannah. Beloved father of Peter of Redmond Payne, Point Claire, Mrs. Joseph (Jean) Cullen, Pointe Claire, Mrs. Peter (Margaret) Elwood Burrows of Wooler, Ontario.

IN MEMORIAM

ABBOTT — In loving memory of a dear husband and father Clarence (Pinky) Abbott who died Oct. 8, 1957.
Though his smile is gone forever,
And his hand we cannot touch,
He left us memories beautiful,
Of the love we loved so much.
His memory is our keepsake,
With which we'll never part.
God has him in His keeping,
We have him in our hearts.
—Fondly remembered by his wife and family.

IRVIN — In loving memory of a dear father, Lindsay Irvin who passed away Oct. 6, 1965.
Father you are not forgotten,
Though on earth you are no more,
Memories are sacred things,
As you always were before.
—Ever remembered by daughter Phyllis and family.

REYNOLDS — In loving memory of a dear grandson Arthur Reynolds who passed away October 5th, 1963.
Nothing can ever take away,
The love a heart holds dear,
Fond memories linger every day,
Remembrance draws us near.
—Forever remembered by Joan and Glenn Stinson.

VAN DUSEN — In loving memory of a dear daughter and sister Mary who passed away October 7th, 1965.
Sleep on dear one, we give her hand to Jesus,
Her patient face to see,
To hear her voice, to see her smile,
As in the days that used to be,
But some sweet day we'll meet her over there.
Beyond the sea and sky,
And clasp each other's hand once more,
In heaven, that happy life.
—Sadly missed and lovingly remembered by mother Mrs. Pearl Way and family.

VAN DUSEN — In loving memory of a dear mother Mary Van Dusen who passed away October 7th, 1947.
If I had all the power to give,
To bring you back again,
To hear her voice and see her smile,
And greet her at my door.
But all I can do, dear mother,
Is to remember you more,
To keep you locked inside of love,
For the best mother God ever made.
I like to think, when life is done,
Wherever heaven may be,
That she'll be standing at the door,
Up there to welcome me.
—Sadly missed and lovingly remembered by daughters Joyce, Jean and Bill in Germany.

VAN DUSEN — In loving memory of a dear aunt, Mary Elizabeth Van Dusen, who passed away Oct. 7, 1947.
Her gentle hands rested in heart and mind,
What a thankful memory she left behind.
—Never forgotten by George, Barb, Teddy, Terry and Trudy.

IN MEMORIAM

VAN DUSEN — In loving memory of a dear wife and grandmother Mary Van Dusen, who passed away on October 7th, 1967.
Sleep on dear one, we give her hand to Jesus,
A life linked with my own,
And day by day I miss her more,
As I walk through life alone.
—Lovingly remembered by husband Phil and grandson Chris.

JACKSON — In loving memory of a dear father, Joseph who passed away Oct. 8, 1956.
Just two years ago today,
We watched a dear one pass away,
No one thought, none of us knew,
That his life were nearly through.
The Master had a plan and knew,
And took dear Joe into his care,
To rest until we meet him there.
We think of you both night and day,
Since our Lord called you away,
You left us beautiful memories,
You've the angel to wear crown,
There's no time go my good-bye,
For I want you both so high,
Now at our earthly home we bear,
Day, years with you, we fondly share,
For ever,
Those we are lost from sight,
From our Maker, here on earth,
When life ends, we all must part,
For we are life right from the start,
We all go to our Father above,
For He needed you on high,
To sing with the angels in the sky,
Then we will meet again dear one,
—Always remembered by husband Joseph, daughter Joan and family.

REYNOLDS — In loving memory of my dear father Arthur Reynolds who passed away October 5th, 1963.
Though your smile has gone forever,
And your hand we cannot touch,
You left memories beautiful,
Of you Dad, we loved so much.
—Sadly missed and lovingly remembered by daughter Jill and Bill and family.

JOHNSTON — In loving memory of a dear father and uncle Arad and Wesley Johnston who died on the 7th day of October one year ago.
Away in the beautiful hills of God,
By the valley of rest in Him,
Sometime, someday, we know not when,
We'll meet you both up there,
Always remembered and sadly missed Frank and Helen O'Brien and family.

Thurlow Farmer's Problem

Goocks or Geeck ? That's the Question

Dear Mr. Audubon:

A word to the wise in your society for bird studies: All is not what it seems.

Just ask Herb Urch who lives on a farm on Thurlow's ninth concession.

Herb, now retired from cattle driving, is a great outdoorsman. Among his interests is the raising of ducks and geese.

Along about egg time last summer one of Herb's goose eggs hatched out with the ducks. It stayed with the ducklings through the fluffy stage, learning the usual lessons of life in the feathered world.

So far, so good.

The gosling prospered and grew into a fine looking goose. But there's the catch.

It stayed on too long on the duck side of the farm pond, ignoring its fellow growing goslings nearby.

Now it not only prefers the ducks but it's the considered opinion of Mr. Urch and a gentleman from the Department of Lands and Forests that it believes itself to be a duck.

All efforts at persuading it otherwise have failed. It's been a futile exercise to get it to take its proper place on the farm pond — which is among the geese.

It's still firmly convinced it is a duck. It feeds, sleeps, swims and struts around with them, blithely ignoring its own kin.

The ducks also seem to have accepted him.

And it's quite a sight to see the Urch ducks waddling around the farm — with a quack-quack here and a cackle-cackle there.

Not that the geese should feel any sense of loss. Their mate's place has been taken by a real curiosity — a wild blue goose which dropped onto the Urch pond recently.

The blue is a rarity in these parts — travelling further north than the Canada goose and migrating through the Western provinces. How it arrived in Thurlow township is a mystery.

Anyway, if any members of the Audubon society are interested in what happens to those ducks next spring, they can contact Herb. Also, maybe, you could pass the word to Ducks Unlimited — just in case some new bird names are needed in a hurry.

For instance, what do you call goose-ducks?

Goocks or Geeck?

Wild Blue Goose Visits Quinte Area

Brenda Douglas, RR 2 Belleville, hoists pumpkin ready for sale at Belleville farmers' market today — first time traditional fall fruit was offered for sale. However, frost isn't on them yet—and weatherman predicts temperatures above freezing again tonight.

Frost Stays Off Pumpkin

The frost is staying off the pumpkin in the Belleville area, so far.

While temperatures threatened to decline near frost levels last night, the Quinte area was suddenly insulated by a cloud bank, says the weatherman.

The low recorded at Canadian Forces Base Trenton, was 35 degrees — the same low predicted for tonight.

Meantime, the pumpkins — a traditional symbol of fall — are coming.

A few were scattered among the produce on sale 'fi Belleville farmers' market this morning.

Birds Also Enemies Of Pesky Black Flies

It may come as a surprise to many, but those black flies which pester campers and fishermen each spring and summer, have enemies other than human beings.

And unlike the humans, the other enemies are doing what they can to reduce the black fly population.

Hedley James, entomologist with the Research Institute in Belleville, told Quinte Naturalists at their first fall meeting, that at least seven species of birds were predators of the black fly.

These are the Mallard, the Red Wing Blackbird, the Spotted and Least Sandpiper, the Grackle, Kildeer and Herring Gull. All these birds are possibly others feed on black fly larvae, according to Mr. James who made a study on the subject two years ago at Healey Falls.

The Quinte Naturalist president Terry Sprague, spoke of various short topics including the Gananoque Hiking Trail Association; the Algonquin Highlands League, the Polar Bear Provincial Park and the effects of chlorinated hydrocarbon insecticides.

Also at the meeting it was announced that Alma Wallis, of Bridgetown, former Belleville area taxidermist would give an illustrated lecture in Belleville on Jan. 13 on her recent trip to the Canadian Arctic. Mrs. Wallis is a blend of naturalist, hunter taxidermist, humorist and photographer and is in demand for her lectures.

Man Killed At Cement Plant

PICTON (Staff) — A Demorestville man was killed almost instantly Thursday at the Lake Ontario Cement plant.

Ezthel Andrew Sallans, 58, was crushed to death by a falling boom of an air track drill.

He and another man, both employees of the H. J. McFarland Construction Company, were installing a new water pumping station at the cement plant.

An OPP spokesman said that Mr. Sallans had been caring for the five children of a son and a daughter who had already died.

He is married to Bertha Elizabeth Sallans.

The spokesman said an inquest is likely.

This Goose Is A Duck

This goose appears proud as punch that he's included among the ducks at mealtime by Herb Urch. And with good — if misguided — reason. He apparently thinks he's a duck refusing to join other geese on Thurlow township farm.

Napanee Teachers Observe Methods

Fifteen Napanee area teachers spent Friday observing teaching methods in district elementary schools.

Purpose of their visit was to study new techniques, now in practice in schools coming under the jurisdiction of the inspectorates of Hastings 2, Northumberland 3 and Prince Edward 2.

At Batawa elementary school, seven teachers observed the cross-grading grouping system instituted by principal R. K. Denyes.

This type of continuous progress education sees pupils from grades one to five grouped according to their level of spelling, phonics and creative writing.

At Lower Bayside School, three visiting teachers studied the rotary system in use in grades seven and eight.

At Kente School in Amelias-burg, five teachers observed the rotary system, special education classes, teacher-librarian work and conversational French classes.

OPP Staff Plans To Develop New Park

NAPANEE — For some time the officers of the Napanee detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police have been considering the idea of developing Springside Park, and this week the idea grew into action. They have organized a competition among high school students for designs for five separate areas in the park. A prize of $25 is offered for each of the five, with an extra cash award if the design is accompanied by blueprints.

Not long ago Provincial Constables James Elliott and Ed Ford, acting as spokesmen for the group, approached the town council with the proposal, and received its unanimous consent, when council was told that it would not be approached for financial support. The officers are hoping that this support will come from various organizations, from private citizens and through their own efforts.

Springside Park has remarkable scenic possibilities, as it lies along the south side of the river with the falls within the area, and a wooded rise as its southern boundary. It is entered from Highway No. 2 and the roadway leads through the archway of the Canadian National Railway bridge. For some years the Horticultural Society has had an attractive flower bed at the centre of this entrance area, but otherwise it is undeveloped.

Picton Meeting

Tomorrow's mass meeting in Picton to discuss the Proctor-Silex labor dispute offers perhaps the best prospect to-date of arriving at a just and responsible solution to this melancholy affair.

That the stoppage is now the focus of province-wide attention is an indication of the seriousness of the issues, not only for Prince Edward County but for other areas where the economy falls behind the provincial norm.

Few would disagree with the observation of Clifford Pilkey, New Democratic Party MPP for Oshawa, that working conditions in Prince Edward need "a major improvement" in terms of both wages and fringe benefits.

Among those expected to attend tomorrow's meeting are George Hess, MP for Prince Edward-Hastings and Norris Whitney, MPP for Prince Edward-Lennox. They will confer with union officials and Mayor McFarland of Picton.

With the whole future of the county at stake, the parliamentarians and other officials in the talks would do well to make their discussions as far-reaching as possible. The attraction of more industries to Prince Edward naturally would fall into this category.

That the county is not realizing its full potential is obvious. Market gardening and tourism are not enough. Visitors sense this as they drive about the country. The quietness is pervasive, and while the area may not lend itself to large-scale industrialization there is certainly room for more development than is now evident.

The current unrest could provide the necessary impetus. The demise of Camp Picton was another blow recently so that the county's economy has nowhere to go but up. A happy start would be a final settlement to the Proctor-Silex dispute. Both management and workers have a stake in Picton and in the county. The opportunities now at hand should not be wasted.

Expo Then and Now

Preparations for Expo 70 in Osaka, Japan, are going on space, as an artist's conception of the event on the current issue of Japan Air Lines' "Global Courier" indicates.

Meanwhile, Man and His World on the old Expo 67 site in Montreal has a little while longer to run before closing for the season.

If something of the magic of Expo — the crowds for instance — is missing, Man and His World nevertheless comes close. And in one presentation in particular — the performances of Laterna Magika.

This extraordinary piece of film artistry and live acting from Czechoslovakia has been playing to full audiences at the Expo amusement area of La Ronde. From the exquisite grace of the ballet dancers to the hilarious Keystone Cop style humor of "The Runaway Skater," Laterna Magika is sheer magic.

Autumn Days

It has been a strange year, climatically, in these parts. A sunny April, for instance, when usually the days are grey and cold. Then a month or so when summer did not seem to be even around the corner. Summer, when it finally did arrive, included a week or two of high temperatures that sapped the energy and made the night hours oppressive.

Now it is autumn and the leaves are turning. It varies of course from place to place. North, around Bancroft and Denbigh, the season is more advanced while around the Quinte area it is still in the early stages. Yet it is fall just the same, unmistakable, a time of great beauty. Here is the fabled, ageless scene.

Take a drive along any back road and it is a rewarding experience at this time of year. It is dusty to be sure, but there is color and activity in the fields. Farmers are plowing for fall planting or in preparation for next spring's growth. Tractors are out in force.

From the kaleidoscope of the land and its carpet of brown earth and trees slowly dying, ultimately to come to life again, thoughts turn elsewhere — to the world of commerce and the great Seaway link to the heart of the continent. Here the news is good, according to Ship-Shore News. The Upper Lakes Shipping Ltd. journal says that unless an early freeze-up dictates otherwise, navigation on the Montreal to Lake Ontario section of the Seaway will remain open until December 10, while the Welland Canal will operate until December 22.

In such reflections of earth and water we perceive something of the vastness and contrasts and vigor of Canada — of spring and summer and autumn and winter in this northern continent.

Roland Michener's Style Wins Over the Sceptics

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Think of a Governor-General in living memory who began his term deeper in the shadows of public suspicion bordering on disfavor. Then in Excellency Roland Michener. Difficult?

Impossible.

Then think of a Governor who in so short a time has emerged so far into the sunshine of public approval-edging delight.

Easy.

The name Roland Michener.

Recall the circumstances of his appointment to Rideau Hall by former Prime Minister Pearson to replace General Georges Vanier, the popular French-Canadian hero of two world wars, suddenly dead in office.

Roland Michener had been recalled from Delhi where he had been Canadian High Commissioner, a small man, snickered a horde of critics, to fill such a large pair of shoes as the GG's.

All the Governors-General before Roland Michener had been titled Englishmen or, as with the pair preceding him, Vincent Massey and General Vanier, gloriously, distinguished Canadians.

Roland Michener was the first former — what is more, defeated — politician in the honorable company of 20 Governors since Confederation.

A plain political partisan.

Elected a Conservative MP for Toronto-St. Paul's in 1953, he became Commons Speaker after re-election in '57, held the post on his '58 campaign success, lost both the House seat and Chair in the '62 vote.

Many Conservatives, including former Prime Minister Diefenbaker and some of the cabinet grumbled a lot privately, and even a bit publicly that Roland Michener as Speaker had been less than impartial. Straining for neutrality in the Commons Chair, he had leaned so far over backwards to be fair to the Grits he had verged on the unfair to the Tories, they complained, and may even have contributed to their downfall.

In the year that followed Michener's defeat, John Diefenbaker, still prime minister, in a minority position, did nothing for him — at least gave him no appointment.

That, as things turned out, was left to Prime Minister Pearson a year after the Liberal election victory and the Conservative defeat in the '63 election — seeming to give some confirmation to Tory suspicion that the Grits had rewarded Michener with the posting to New Delhi as Canadian High Commissioner.

The move to Rideau Hall as GG — not as Man in Ottawa — came in the spring of Centennial '67 again with Lester Pearson bestowing the honor and reconfirming old Conservative grudges.

Likely very well aware of these hostilities, Roland Michener went to work on what Prime Minister Trudeau calls "public involvement" in affairs of state.

Each GG has his own style. With Vincent Massey it was the arts and an approach to things cultural in a way that appealed even to the wrestling fans.

With General Vanier, it was good works, a concern for everyone.

Lord Alexander, hero of the Western Desert, was the activist of Rideau Hall.

He threw an upbeat party for the press the afternoon he arrived in the Capital, serving his guests in slacks, sports shirts, suede jackets and loafers. He poured the drinks himself and bounding across to the piano himself the 'play-regal' welcome into a relaxed feeling-along.

He went on from there to ski, snow-shoe, swim, hunt, fish, golf, play cricket, slide down fire station poles, canoe on one alarm to join a bucket brigade. There was no stopping him as he went on and on to among other things, teach the Queen square dancing, fly his own plane, drive his own limousine on the Coppermine, kayak in the Mackenzie delta.

Roland Michener is even more the activist. He has not been in Rideau Hall a full two years, and already he has jogged with a high school track team, walked — then, with a sprained ankle, wheel-chaired it — in the Ottawa 10 - mile trudge, shot with the Bisley marksmen, worked out with the Mobile Force commandos, skied an opening five in the 120-mile Ottawa-Montreal cross-country marathon, been a few pool lengths with a collegiate swim team, piloted a government executive jet, commanded an Armed Forces' copter, done high-kicks and pumped for morale at the Expo bandshell rail car on trips, tuna-fished, goose-hunted, pole-vaulted and broad-jumped with a public school track team.

Additionally, he stabs plays tennis, skates, golfs, snow-shoes plays squash, shoots billiards, curls, dances square and round, plays classical and jazz piano, and all with respectable expertise.

Measure of the man's skill was his throwing of the first rock opening the week's championship last spring at Point Claire. The curling buffs rather expected him to either put the rock through the backboards or stall in front of the hog line. He put it smack on the button.

He is good and versatile enough to star in a CBC special on fun-through-physical-fitness.

As GG he has made it, and now has it made.

$35,000 for Metro Boss

Port Arthur News-Chronicle

William Allen, chairman of Metro Toronto, has had his salary increased to $35,000 from $28,000 which is $7,000 a year more than the premier of Ontario gets. This should not surprise many as those people down in Toronto often seem to think their city is more important than the rest of the province put together.

Starr Gets Citizenship Court Post

Kitchener-Waterloo Record

A defeated Conservative candidate is appointed by a Liberal government to a job with a $17,000 salary. Unfortunately, that is unusual news. Fortunately, it is also true.

The appointee is Michael Starr, 18 years a member of the House of Commons and six years a minister in the Diefenbaker government. After seven consecutive election wins for the Tories in his home riding of Ontario County, he was defeated June 25.

Trudeaumania overwhelmed him, but Prime Minister Trudeau has recognized a worthy political foe. The job of presiding officer in the citizenship court at Toronto is within the gift of the party in power at Ottawa. Mike Starr gets it.

Apart from politics, it is a good appointment. Mr. Starr is the son of naturalized Ukrainians from the Ukraine. He knows from his boyhood the problems of the newcomer to Canada.

As straight politics, it is still a good appointment. One Mike Starr may outshadow in the public mind a lot of recent job handouts for defeated Liberal candidates.

Ontario's Forest Resources

Kingston Whig-Standard

Everyone concerned with the future of Ontario's forest resources will be encouraged by the news of substantial increases in the Ontario Government's reforestation program during the fall of 1967 and spring of 1968 approximately 70 million trees were distributed from the large provincial nurseries at Kemptville, Orono, St. Williams Midhurst, Swastika, Fort William and Dryden. That the Government is pleased with the progress being made in woodlands improvement is understandable.

According to a recent Department of Lands and Forests newsletter, the number of trees distributed by these seven nurseries "will be increased by 65 per cent. to 100 million during the next two to three years to meet an ever increasing demand for planting stock resulting from the enthusiastic response by landowners to the services and benefits of The Woodlands Improvement Act and the steady enlargement of municipal forest areas for the production of wood films and recreation pursuits." In this regard it should be noted that production of trees for reforestation at Kemptville nursery will be increased this fall by 2,700,000 units to a total of 13,031,000 trees annually.

Since The Woodlands Improvement Act was passed two years ago more than 3,500 acres have been planted in woodlands or other improvement work has been carried out on over 1,700 acres of municipal woodlands. More than a quarter of a million dollars was spent on the 1967 program alone and this amount will be increased this year.

Rural residents are becoming more aware that tree planting and other improvement work helps make use of land areas which might otherwise lie unproductive.

Rural Mail Will Be Hit

Peterborough Examiner

The discontinuation of Saturday mail deliveries as announced by Postmaster-General Eric Kierans for both city and rural routes as from February 1, 1969 is not altogether unexpected although it is perhaps more sweeping than anticipated.

While it is conceded that the saving of hundreds and even of dollars, which between them handle more than 80 per cent of the mail, are closed it will put people in rural areas at a disadvantage. Many Canadians living on rural routes already receive such essential mail as daily newspapers a day late. Lack of Saturday deliveries will mean that they will not receive their Friday and Saturday papers until Monday.

Newspapers with sizeable rural circulations would be penalized when they already aid the postal delivery system by doing their own packing and bundling thereby saving the postal service the work of sorting the papers. It remains for the people receiving the rural routes to place the newspapers in the respective mail boxes.

People working the rural routes will also be placed at a disadvantage compared with their city counterparts because they are not full-time employees of the government. Rural routes are awarded on tenders and the rural deliverer will therefore be expected to deliver six days of mail in five.

Too Busy for Orgies

Maharajah's Scientologists Annoy Quiet English Village

EAST GRINSTEAD, England (AP)—"They say we have orgies here," said the young Raja Rahaan, pointing at the swimming pool "We're too busy to have orgies—we don't even have time to go swimming."

This was at the country mansion once owned by the Maharajah of Jaipur. It now is headquarters of the Scientology movement, a semi-religious organization from the United States This "largest mental health organization in the world," as it calls itself, has become a storm centre in Britain.

Villagers in East Grinstead, a centuries-old market centre 30 miles from London, seek a ban on the Scientologists, claiming they spread their influence in the town.

London's press has campaigned against the movement.

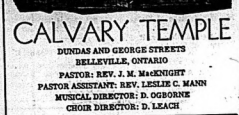
Health Minister Kenneth Robinson recently denounced Scientology as "socially harmful . . . a potential menace," and more recently moved to keep foreigners from coming to Britain as students enrolled at the College of Scientology here.

In Parliament Robinson said Scientology "alienates members of families from each other and attributes squalid and disgraceful motives to all who oppose it."

"Its authoritarian principles and practices are a potential menace to the personality and well-being of those so deluded as to become its followers."

Scientology's founder, L. Ron Hubbard, 57 an American science fiction writer, is barred from returning to England. He moved his headquarters here 11 years ago but now is reported to live about a yacht in the Mediterranean.

Scientology calls itself "a practical religious philosophy interested in ability and increasing it . . . the most vital philosophic movement on the planet . . . the freeing of the soul by wisdom." Its publications contend it makes people "more aware, more alert more successful." It has groups in the United States and around the world and claims millions of members.



A Scientology minister, called an "auditor" gives confessionals.

The confessional in Scientology is not solely the recounting of sins or wrongs that the person has done," one of its publications says. "The purpose of auditing is to make the person more spiritually able, more aware, more free"

One of the instruments used is called the "Hubbard electrometer," or "E-meter" Scientology literature says it measures the mental state of individuals, "to disclose truth to the individual who is being processed and thus free him spiritually"

The person being processed holds metallic cups attached to the instrument, a box-like affair with several dials and a gauge the students and staff come the auditor watches the meter from outside Britain and registers the fluctuations

Scientology claims more than 2,000,000 members in Britain It says: "Buy an E meter," also has its own legal department of five lawyers, all Scientologists, they now are busy The East Grinstead college alongside has 200 to 300 students and a with 64 11b e l suits—largely staff of about 150. Roughly half against British newspapers

YOUR ANTIQUES

by Jack Jamieson

KNOT OF DESTINY

ANCIENT MEDES SIGN OF DIETY

Key One of Most Common Objects of Everyday Life

A door key is one of the commonest objects of everyday life. It was once a symbol of authority and "keeper of the keys" was a position of trust. In the last century the lady of the house wore a chatelaine with keys for her teacaddy purse, spoons, writing-paper, and other valuables (to keep the servants from using them).

Most domestic locks date from after 1774 when Robert Barron invented a double-action tumbler lock. Key No. 4 in the illustration is a later version provided with a hollow stump-hole (to fit a pin in the lock) for Mr. Barron's invention.

In 1784 Joseph Bramah developed a lock considered unpickable. Unfortunately for him it was opened publicly at the Great Exhibition of 1851. Key No. 5 fits one of Mr. Bramah's lock designs. It is from a Canadian home built about 1850, fitted with hardware made in the locality.

Mr. Bramah also developed the fore-runner of the present water closet in 1778, his lock in 1784, the hydraulic press, the screw propeller, the planing machine, and as a non-sequitur, the numbering of bank - notes, the beer-pumping machine of every English pub, and the mechanical (propelling or eversharp) pencil.

Local directories of mid-century list hundreds of hardware manufacturers across the country capable of making keys for Brantford designs. Locks were partly assembled and partly manufactured in this country. The best are brass. By mid-century most were made of iron and some steel with screw bolts for fittings. At the end of the century door locks were mainly cast iron, "cast action" not mortised into the door. Cast or punched "skeleton" keys fit this type of lock.

In 1818 Jeremiah Chubb invented the "detector" lock, which gave successful evidence to the owner when someone else attempted to open it. In 1861 and 1865 Linus Yale patented the type of lock synonymous with his name. It is estimated that more than 50,000,000 keys are made for his locks yearly.

Key No. 2 of the illustration opens grand pianos patented 1873 in Canada, and Canadian sewing-machines of the same vintage. Key No. 3 winds 1823 patent regulator clocks, and later roller-skates, and is lathe-turned. The other keys are at least partly hand-wrought with the exception of No. 2 which is cast as are many keys after this date. The smallest illustrated No. 1, although by no means the smallest that may be found, is 1¼ inches long and fits locks for cupboards, sideboards and dresser drawers. Keys varied in length up to a foot, sometimes weighing almost a pound. This was the type of key intended to be pressed to the neck of fainting Victorian ladies. A set of these keys is extant, worn throughout her lifetime by the mistress of a 26 room house. They were found, after her death, secured around the waist. They weighed 20 lbs.

Most of these keys are good examples of hand-work of the 18th Century. They can be picked up for nothing. They are valuable when the matching lock is found which happens with surprising frequency.

Argyll Chapter Reports on Various Events

The regular meeting of the Argyll Chapter of the I.O.D.E. was held in the Officers' Mess in the Armories on Wednesday. The Regent, Mrs. F. R. Allan presided and reports were given by the convenors. Thanks were extended to all who had helped make the dessert bridge and euchre a success. Several members attended the coffee party held by the Hon. J. R. Cooke Chapter in Stirling.

The Regent displayed a certificates of appreciation sent by the Directors of the Belleville General Hospital in appreciation of the donation $175, towards equipping the Paediatrics Dept. in the new hospital. On completion a silver plaque will be placed in that area.

Mrs. Vaughan will present cheques to deserving students at four high schools. The first will be at Nicholson College at the graduation exercises.

A blood donor clinic will be held at the Kiwanis Centre, October 10 and the members are asked for assistance. The annual district dinner will be held in Picton October 22.

The Theatre Guild has requested participation in their presentations. A $25. award has been designated towards a high school play.

The Chapter will hold a combined rummage sale with the St. Julien Chapter October 25 in the Armories, the proceeds to go towards the hospital commitment. The meeting was adjourned and Mrs. T. Bakaumow entertained the members with a most colorful tour by means of slides, through England, Switzerland, France, Austria and Italy. The personal contact with families and children most interesting and informative.

Refreshments were served by the hostesses.

MUST DROP SKIRTS

WEATHERSFIELD England (AP) — Mini-skirted air guests of the United States Airmens' Club here must show no more than four inches above the knee under a new house rule resulting from wifely complaints. "I don't think any of the men in the club complained," a spokesman said.

The Wearing of Medic-Alert Indentification Has Saved A Number of Patients' Lives

TORONTO (CP) — A Hamilton woman who had a heart attack in Toronto was told later by hospital personnel that her bracelet saved her life.

A California man who had a fishing accident in British Columbia says he got extra-fast attention at a clinic in Nelson because a nurse spotted his bracelet.

Both are Medic-Alert members whose bracelets or necklace marked with the ancient medical symbol of the red serpent and staff and letters spelling Medic-Alert tell medical personnel they have a problem, and what it is.

Heart patients wear them, diabetics, epileptics, people with allergies, contact lenses, special blood types, hemophilia, glaucoma. Anyone who has a chronic health problem a doctor should know about in an emergency might be glad to have the identification.

The Medic-Alert Foundation was begun in 1956 by Dr. Harold Collins, a California physician whose daughter had nearly died because of her allergy to tetanus antitoxin. Dr. Collins wanted to establish some standard protection for people in situations where they are unconscious or in shock and unable to speak for themselves.

The Canadian foundation is about eight years old, its managing director, Mr. Larry Stevenson, says there now are about 30,000 Canadian members and that people are joining at the rate of about 800 a month.

The non-profit foundation has enlisted the help of doctors and insurance underwriters. Mr. Stevenson estimates about 70 per cent of Medic-Alert applications now come from people referred by doctors.

Members pay a lifetime fee of $7 plus an engraving fee of 60 cents a line. The bracelets and amulets will hold four 14-letter lines of information.

Members are given their stainless steel identification jewelry and a wallet card with detailed information on it. In addition, their medical background goes on a file in Toronto and in Turlock, Calif. If it is necessary, a policeman or doctor can make a collect call to the Toronto number during business hours or the Turlock number around the clock to get full information. The Toronto number is (416) 923-5385. The Turlock number is 209-634-6617 and is engraved on the bracelets.

Mr. Stevenson says part of each fee helps to maintain the emergency telephone service, but it doesn't have to be used often.

The foundation tries to check with every member every year to be sure information is kept up to date.

Mr. Stevenson said the Canadian foundation is run with a staff of three full-time and four part-time employees. They must operate on membership fees and donations. He says they had more than $1,000 on fees in 1967, but donations made up the difference.

He says he would especially like to see children get Medic-Alert identification because he feels it can ease worry and give a child a measure of independence he might not otherwise have.

The foundation's membership application says there are 14 messages that can be engraved free of charge because they are asked for so often. They include: Allergic to horse serum (tetanus antitoxin); Allergic to penicillin; I am taking anti-coagulants; Multiple sclerosis; Myasthenia gravis; Neck-breaker; Allergic to bee stings; Commercial deep sea diver; Scuba diver.

The Canadian medic-alert Foundation address is 174 St. George Street, Toronto.

WEDDING

RABE — BELLAMY

The Bay of Quinte served as a beautiful background for a September garden wedding, when Penelope Irene Bellamy daughter of Dr. and Mrs. R. Edward Bellamy of Redeemerville, exchanged marriage vows with Edward Frederick Rabe, Jr., son of Dr. and Mrs. Edward Rabe, of Needham, Mass. Rev. Morris McLeod officiated. Wedding music was rendered by the brother of the groom, John Rabe, on his bagpipes.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a Venetian lace peau de soie gown in dress and a train. In her hair, she wore a wreath of flowers, and carried a spray of white and yellow gladioli.

Maid of honor, Miss Marian Rabe, sister of the bridegroom was attired in an old fashioned white eyelet floor-length dress trimmed with yellow ribbon. She carried a bouquet of yellow gladioli. Flower girl was Miss Sigrid Morch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. Morch.

Attending the bridegroom was John Rabe, brother of the groom, while the ushers were Richard Bellamy, Alan Bellamy and David Rabe.

The wedding reception was held in the garden at the home of the bride's parents, where the mother of the bride receiving the guests attired in a teal blue raw silk two-piece dress with a corsage of white gladioli. Assisting her, the mother of the groom wore a blue brocade dress with a contrasting corsage of yellow gladioli.

After the wedding trip to Providence, R.I., the couple will reside in Providence, R.I. where both the bride and groom will continue their university studies.

Memos Give Effect of Drugs

OTTAWA CP — LSD and marijuana and their effects are described in two consumer memos from the consumer division of the food and drug directorate of the department of national health and welfare.

The monthly memos are part of the directorate's public information program. They are usually concerned with passing along facts about the normal use of and regulations covering the sale of more mundane food and drug products.

Dr. A. C. Hardman, acting deputy director-general of the directorate, says the LSD and marijuana fact sheets were issued because of a number of requests from parents worried about drugs and from students who need accurate background information for essays.

They describe what marijuana and LSD are, what they look like, some of the slang used to refer to them, their physical and psychological effects and the laws governing them.

Copies are available from the Food and Drug Directorate, Department of National Health and Welfare, Tunney's Pasture, Ottawa 3, Ont.

Ann Landers

Teenage Boy Mooches Dimes Off His Girl

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am the mother of an average family of modest means. We have five children to support and educate.

Our 18-year-old daughter is going steady with a boy in her class. He walks her home from school every afternoon. (This has been going on for two years.) They always end up in the kitchen raiding the fridge. As they sit there munching away, the boy invariably asks my daughter for her purse. She hands it to him and he takes all the dimes. He "saves" them.

ANN LANDERS

Not only am I offended at the sight of this big, fat kid taking money out of a girl's purse, but it infuriates me when I think of all the places I have for every penny.

Our daughter doesn't work. She gets an allowance.

My husband says Ann Landers would tell you to M.Y.O.B. How about it, Ann? — PORT ANGELES, WASH.

* * *

DEAR PORT: The allowance belongs to your daughter and she has a right to do what she pleases with it — even give it to that fat, fat kid. You would be remiss in your responsibility as a mother, however, if you didn't tell your daughter there is something missing in a boy who would mooch dimes off his girl. For the lack of a better word, I'd call it "character."

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am writing to comment on the letter from the woman who insists that a baby sitter who sleeps on the job is worthless — and she might just as well leave the kids unattended.

I'd like to know if this woman and her husband sleep in shifts so one of them can stand guard over their kids at night. If not, according to her definition, she might as well turn the kids by themselves.

Let's be sensible, Ann Landers — there is nothing wrong with a sitter cat-napping. The test should be — did she get up to answer a phone? I suggest the mother call her a few times during the night and see. — A VOTE FOR COMMON SENSE.

* * *

DEAR VOTE: I cast my ballot with yours. But may I remind you that the sitter under fire was no cat-napper. According to the woman who wrote, she slept like "an dead elephants." Remember?

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: May I say a word to the mother of the boy who wrote to say he felt the need for psychiatric help but his mother insisted it was "just a stage" he was going through and to forget it.

That boy's letter could have been written word for word by our own son — same age and even the same name. The lad's fear that he would commit suicide was expressed exactly as our son expressed it. He told him it was "just a stage" and that he would outgrow it.

Our son made good his threat and I am brokenhearted. Please keep urging mothers not to ignore their children when they ask for psychiatric h[illegible]. Sometimes a physical checkup is not enough. — CAN'T F[illegible]IVE MYSELF.

* * *

DEAR CAN'T: You did what you thought was best at the time. None of us can look into the future and see what lies there. Thank you for writing. Perhaps your letter will help other children.

Successful Living

Dad Should Have Say in Decisions

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: When is the proper time for a boy to ask the girl's parents for permission to marry their daughter? When they are getting engaged or when they set the wedding date?

My daughter and her steady discussed this with their other young couples, the same said at the time of the engagement even if it was a year or more before they planned to be married. Others said when they set the wedding date. — Regular Reader.

Dear Regular: Time-honored custom demands a confrontation with the older generation at the point where boy and girl discover they want to spend their lives together.

Pop should have some say in whether the idea is suitable — economics — wise if not in any other way. Today's romances are likely to think it's all settled but the money part, well ahead of an approach to Mom and Dad.

Just the same, the couple who have the whole-hearted approval of the Old Folks have something good going for them.

Dear Doris: My brother's wife deserted him and as I was never married, I helped him with raising the boys.

I read them Bible stories and we had a prayer every night. Things went well until they went to High School. It just seemed they lost themselves and could not choose between the two cultures. (The mother had come from a European culture.)

They were especially confused by learning evolution. I personally feel this is wrong. If they don't allow the Bible to be taught in school, they should not teach the other either. Why destroy faith in the Word of God in our children's lives and leave them dangling on nothing? — Discouraged.

Dear Discouraged: Isn't it just a reinterpretation of the Word of God which is needed? When higher education accepts evolution as the logical explanation of how we got where we now are, young people are prone to reject all of religion rather than see it seen as not at war with each other.

The churches' new teachings are in an effort to bridge the gap. I'm sending you a letter on the subject written for me by Dr. Howard Osterbridge of the United Church of Canada. (Others may have this by sending in 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Confidential to Wondering. There are three methods of removing hair which are in general use: (1) shaving; (2) cream depilatories, and (3) electrolysis. Electrolysis is the only permanent removal. The hot wax method — similar to the one you describe — pulls out the hair and the little "bulb" under the skin comes with it.

For some skins, this type of "deep" removal does gradually shrink the hair root and delays the return of unwanted hair.

* * *

(Leaflets mentioned by Doris are available to readers for 10 cents and a large stamped, self-addressed envelope, unless otherwise specified.)

Points for Parents

Mother: "Oh, Jimmy, you naughty boy! Come down this minute or you will fall and break your neck. Do as I say. Come down right now."

Excited commands are likely to cause a child to fall. Definite directions given in a quiet manner will be more effective.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Uses for Leftover Tomatoes

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: I know I will have too many green tomatoes for they are not ripening fast enough. Would you give in your column a recipe for green tomato mincemeat and a green tomato relish? — Kay S.

ANSWER: A timely request. GREEN TOMATO MINCEMEAT (Nine Pint Jars)

7 pounds (5½ quarts) green tomatoes, washed, cored and ground

10 large apples, washed, cored and ground

1 pound beef-suet ground (or buy it ready-chopped)

1 pound currants

2½ pounds sultana raisins

1 pound cut mixed peel

3 cups light brown sugar

1 cup white vinegar

½ teaspoon cloves

½ teaspoon allspice

1 teaspoon cinnamon

½ teaspoon salt

Wash the tomatoes and unpared apples and quarter and core both. Grind tomatoes through coarse knife of food grinder. Drain off all liquid through colander. Return to bowl and pour boiling water over to cover. Drain through colander again. Repeat. Finally drain well. I had eight cups.

Turn into large heavy preserving kettle. Coarsely grind apples, putting suet through grinder at same time at three or four intervals. Return tomatoes in preserving kettle along with all other ingredients and bring to boil. Reduce heat to simmer and cook stirring frequently for 2½ hours. Pack into nine sterile pint jars and seal.

RUMMAGE PICKLE

6 sweet-red peppers

2 quarts red tomatoes

2 sweet green peppers

1 small cabbage (3")

3 medium bunches celery

6 large onions

2 large green cucumbers

1 cup coarse pickling (non iodized salt)

5 pints cider vinegar (12½ cups)

2½ pounds brown sugar

1 teaspoons dry mustard

½ teaspoon pepper

Chop or coarsely grind all vegetables. Turn into enamel or porcelain vessel and mix in salt and let stand overnight. Drain well. Add vinegar, sugar, mustard, pepper and cook, stirring often for 1¼ hours. Pour into sterile jars and seal.

FAMOUS NAMES

"Who hath not own'd, with rapture-smitten frame . . . the magic of a name?" — Thomas Campbell (1777-1844.)

* * *

We spoke of George Young, one of the Bay's early pioneers, last week.

We have learned something quite interesting about him, namely; his family was related to "the great Oliver Cromwell, Lord Proctor of England, considered by many historians as the ablest of English rulers since Alfred the Great," for his father, Isaac Young, had married Rebecca Cromwell, who was a cousin. And the name Oliver had appeared in each generation since, in honor of so eminent a kinsman.

The Oliver, brother of George, lived and died on Long Island, New York. But George decided to come to Canada. Before doing so, he married Mary Lawrence. "The notable thing about this marriage is that it brought a fresh influx of the distinguished Cromwells' blood into the family, since he and his wife were first cousins. His wife's mother and his own were sisters."

George's father-in-law, Cornelius Lawrence bought a thousand acres of land and settled on what is now the site of the Belleville cemetery. Desiring to have all his children around him, after the kindly patriarchal fashion of the time, he gave his daughter Mary, wife of George Young, 100 acres, where George built a homestead, which was later the possession of his grandson Cornelius Young.

Here is another cousin relationship. For pioneer Richard Osborne's only son John T. Osborne married Sarah Greeley first cousin of the famed journalist Horace Greeley who advised young men to go west. Her father, Jonathan Greeley was the civil engineer who did most of the early Government surveying in Prince Edward County.

Again in connnly-wide vice-president of the United States, Aaron Burr, who figured in the fatal duel with Alexander Hamilton, had a cousin who married, as her second husband, a pioneer of Prince Edward County, Philip Ainsworth.

Ah, see here are gold threads, marriage lines, connecting Quint Bay with a [illegible] of Horatio Nelson, namely Agnes Nelson. She married the Rev. Robert Sherriff, a well-to-do Scotsman, who became enthusiastic in mission-ary work. They married in Ireland, and later came out to Canada to be gospel teachers in the wilds of Ontario. Upon his wife's death, he settled down near Bloomfield, married again, and later died in 1821, "universally lamented."

There's romance in the name of the old English family, Lockwood whose descent may be traced in an unbroken line from a marriage of an ancestor in the 16th century to Lady Mary Ann, daughter of Lord Milton. The newlyweds had evidently married against the wishes of his lordship and to escape his wrath and displeasure fled to America. A descendant, Joseph Lockwood, born at Stanwich Conn., April 24th, 1786, became Methodist minister. He became a zealous minister, worked among the Indians and did some teaching in Belleville and was a leading figure in helping to establish Brighton, which he named in honor of his ancestral home, Brighton, England, where the Lockwoods had lived for centuries.

Mr. Cannif's words concerning the lively history of the Quinte Bay region takes on new light of meaning as one delves into its past and perhaps may at another time speak of more famous names concerning this region.

Complete Tragedy for Czechs

Russian Troops to Remain in Czechoslovakia Indefinitely

General Assembly Hears Plea from Foreign Minister

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The General Assembly heard a plea Friday from Czechoslovakia's acting foreign minister to let his country's future be determined within the Soviet-dominated Eastern European Communist bloc.

Vaclav Pleskot appealed for understanding of Czechoslovakia's situation. The 125-member assembly was asked to "do nothing that would be in conflict with the wish of the government of Czechoslovakia looking toward a settlement of the present situation on the basis of the Moscow talks."

At a private meeting that began immediately after Pleskot's speech, External Affairs Minister Sharp made specific proposals to Foreign Minister Michel Debre of France for Canadian-French co-operation in space research.

MITCHELL SHARP

Sharp, speaking later to reporters, said this co-operation could include space communications, among other things.

"We have facilities which we could use in common and we could share our experiences in technological research," said Sharp, who said Debre had taken the Canadian proposal under consideration.

The ministers also discussed, in general terms, the prospects for cultural co-operation, the most appropriate course for the West to take on the Czechoslovakian problem, and the efforts to achieve peace in the Middle East.

Full airing of the Czechoslovak situation at the UN is not likely to be stopped by Pleskot's appeal.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko had told the General Assembly Thursday that the Czechoslovakian matter was one for the Communist bloc to settle. But speakers continued to hammer Friday at the need for prompt withdrawal of the troops that in August occupied the country to reverse a trend toward liberalization.

ANDREI GROMYKO

Japanese Foreign Minister Takeo Miki said the invasion, "though unaccompanied by large-scale bloodshed, was indisputably an act incompatible with the spirit and letter of the United Nations Charter."

Foreign Ministers J. M. A. H. Luns of The Netherlands and Arshad Husain of Pakistan said withdrawal of Soviet troops is an essential first step in restoring good East-West relations.

Leaders Agree to Sign Treaty With Warsaw Pact

PRAGUE (AP) — Czechoslovak leaders returned from Moscow Friday night after agreeing to sign a treaty for the "temporary stationing" of Warsaw pact troops in their country, giving final legality to the occupation.

Premier Oldrich Cernik asked a welcoming group at a military airport:

"Why are you so sad? There is no reason to be sad."

But on the question of how many occupation troops would leave and when they would depart, he added nothing to an official communique reiterating earlier Soviet pledges for an eventual withdrawal by stages of the forces that invaded Czechoslovakia Aug. 20.

Cernik said the treaty would be signed in "the near future."

One member of the welcoming group said the development was a "complete tragedy for the Czechoslovak people." Almost no one from the general public turned out to greet the leaders in the chill, damp weather just before midnight.

Czechoslovak sources estimate the number of occupation troops at 500,000. They say the Kremlin insists on keeping at least 100,000 near the West German border because of concern about its "insecurity." The Soviets said this concern was a major reason for the invasion.

They also aimed at stopping the liberalization drive begun in January under new Communist party chief Alexander Dubcek.

The communique said, agreement to put Czechoslovakia's once-free press "to the service of socialism" was another result of two days of Czechoslovak-Soviet negotiations in the Kremlin.

(Reuters news agency says observers here are predicting a purge of journalists as a result of the Moscow talks. The Czech government already has removed the directors of the national radio and television from their posts.

(Reuters also quotes East European sources in Austria as saying they expect large-scale dismissals of Czech liberals, including party officials who played a prominent role in the liberalizing reforms prior to the Warsaw pact occupation.)

Air Canada Issue

Hees Can't Get Response

OTTAWA (CP) — George Hees (PC—Prince Edward-Hastings) asked Prime Minister Trudeau in the Commons Friday whether the government intends to appoint as president of Air Canada "a man whose only qualification is service to the Liberal party."

He got no response from the prime minister. However, Transport Minister Hellyer interjected: "I recommend it, but they would not do it."

Mr. Hees, a former transport minister, was returning to a subject he raised Thursday when he asked Mr. Hellyer whether he had recommended Roderick MacIsaac of Winnipeg for the post.

That question was ruled out of order.

Outside the Commons Mr. Hees said the prime minister's refusal to confirm or deny that Mr. MacIsaac will be appointed confirms his information that Mr. MacIsaac is in line for the job.

Mr. Hees said Mr. MacIsaac was Manitoba campaign chairman for the Liberals in the June 25 federal election.

Mr. MacIsaac is a member of the board of Air Canada, and president of Rodell Corp. Ltd. of Winnipeg. The Air Canada presidency was left vacant by the retirement of Gordon McGregor last spring.

In Winnipeg, Mr. MacIsaac commented: "No, I haven't [been approached by the government. Sure, my name has been mentioned, but along with 30 other guys."

He added: "I'm pretty well employed right now, thank you."

Schools 'Not Geared to Indians'

MUNCEY, Ont. (CP) — Integration of Indian children in public schools has failed because the integration has only been physical, Rev. Andre Renaud, professor of education at the University of Saskatchewan's College of Education, said Friday.

To produce benefits, integration will also have to be sociological, Father Renaud told a professional development seminar for Indian affairs branch teachers of the London education district.

Everything in the public education system is geared to the non-Indian family, but each child's total human experience on starting school is based on his first six years at home, Father Renaud said.

Because Indian parents may not understand the school system and cannot encourage the them they cannot encourage the child, as the school curriculum is oriented to the world of white middle-class society.

Electric heating pampers everyone in the Knobloch household. Guests included.

In a recent interview about his electrically heated Peterborough home, Mr. Heinz Knobloch had this to say, "Some of my friends like it up to 80 degrees, but there is no problem. I can turn it up in the living room without affecting the rest of the house. My wife and I like to sleep in a fairly cool bedroom. With electric heat we can sleep in 65-68 degrees in the winter. In Sandra's room we can have it at 72 degrees because of the separate thermostats."

"The house is cleaner with electric heat," Mrs. Knobloch added. "The curtains stay very clean. I haven't had them down for months." Of course, cleanliness and the convenience of room-by-room temperature control aren't the only features the Knoblochs like about electric heating. They also enjoy its even heat and economy of operation. Electric heating is quiet, draught-free, safe. And because electric heating is trouble-free, the Knoblochs aren't bothered by the expense and inconvenience of annual servicing.

If these are advantages you'd like for your next home, insist on electric heating . . . one of the many features of the famous Medallion all-electric homes. For complete details, consult a qualified electric heating contractor . . . or ask your Hydro.

BCI's Boulter Gives Chase

BCI Drops Quinte To End Win String

By JERRY HOFF
Staff Reporter

Coach Bill Miller gazed into his crystal ball early this week and predicted his BCI seniors would down defending COSSA champs Quinte Secondary 14-0 this Friday.

Not wishing to embarrass their coach, the players on the big black and gold team pounded out a 13-0 win yesterday which, although not exact, was enough to make the best night of the year for the rookie coach.

The BCI win was the first league game Quinte has lost in the past four years — the Saints have rolled up 26 straight wins in the Bay of Quinte AA loop.

Without the generosity of a demoralized Quinte defence in the final quarter, the score would probably have been a simple 7-0 — which would have been enough.

That first touchdown was the result of a hard drive of 45 yards by the BCI seniors sparked by the running of Mike Scarlett, the black and gold's flashy halfback just up from junior ranks.

Scarlett scourged the Quinte defence all afternoon with five and 10 yard gains on a draw play that the defending COSSA champs couldn't stop.

BCI's touchdown drive in the second quarter was aided by two penalties which moved the ball from the 20 to the five-yard line. Yardage penalties for bad language and face mask grabbing were assessed the Saints.

Scarlett ended his TD drive with a five-yard draw play. Warren Hayes' kick made it 7-0.

Then a Quinte defence — tired from a first half that lasted an hour and a half because of a mix-up in timing — wavered and the offence couldn't move the ball when the defence got it for them.

The big "Animals" of QSS weakened sufficiently to allow Scarlett to spearhead another drive deep into Quinte territory in the closing minutes of the fourth quarter.

Scarlett's runs, combined with a series of screen, passes from quarterback Brian Harder, moved the ball to the Quinte one-yard line where Harder took the ball over. The convert was blocked.

In the junior game, Quinte got back some of its own as BCI fell to the little Saints 21-1.

Quinte opened the game's scoring with a single. In the second quarter, Paul McQuaid intercepted a BCI pass and took it back 70 yards for six points. Terry Doran converted to make it 8-0.

BCI collected its only point on a single in the closing minutes of the first half.

McQuaid pulled down another BCI pass in the third quarter and romped 60 yards for another TD.

The convert was foiled. Greg Parker intercepted another BCI floater to set up Quinte's third major which Bill Kirkham scored on a line buck.

Mo-Hawks Top Kingston Aces

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

Some exhibition game! Nine goals, 73 minutes in penalties, and 70 shots-on-goal after Kingston and Belleville renewed Senior "A" acquaintances at the arena last night, the local Mo-Hawks emerged on the long end of a 6-3 tussle with a fine, well-balanced Limestone City crew.

The 800-or-so fans who decided to turn up and see what chances the Mo-Hawks had of bettering last season's dismal last-place Senior "A" loop finish didn't have to wait long last night to test their partisan vocal chords.

Playing-coach Davey Jones took up where he left off last season as he Mo-Hawks's leading point-getter, banging the puck past Kingston goalie Neil Perry after little more than three minutes of play had elapsed.

It was to be the first of four points of the night for Jones, who relegated himself to a blueline role in the Mo-Hawks' first 1968-69 contest.

The moral-boosting scoring debut for the locals came after Kingston forward-ish had pressured Mo-Hawk netminder Larry Holmes unsuccessfully in the game's opening minutes...only to see scrappy winger Ralph Plane bull his way into the Kingston end and slam the stars for the Jones' marker.

It took the Aces until the 12:25 mark in the first score, when Brown and Convery combined to take advantage of a faltering Belleville defence.

But the Mo-Hawks re-asserted their presence in the final minute of play in the period, as Ralph Plane mauled Kingston's Wayne Clancy after the latter high-sticked him. It took a few stitches to close a pair of gashes on Plane's forehead, but he left the game only after entering an undignified decision in what turned out to be the appetizer on an evening full of fisticuffs.

The Mo-Hawk momentum continued as the second stanza got underway with Jones again finding the mark at the 1.35 point, and Stu Muirhead tipping in Jones' shot from the Kingston blueline less than three minutes later.

Looking like anything but a team that had only been on skates since Sunday, the locals poured it on, dominating the play throughout the rest of the period and building a 4-1 lead past the mid-way point on defenceman Jack Wilson's counter.

Claude Carr's debut in the Mo-Hawk nets was marred early in the third when the Aces came to life on a neat passing play from Clayton-to-Convery-to-Seale.

Insurance markers by left-winger Ron Riley and rear-guard Bob Boyle set the Aces down a peg or two, and mollified Convery's second goal of the night when sloppy Mo-Hawk defensive play freed him to whip the puck past Carr.

And it appears to be the defence that the Mo-Hawks will have to worry about if they intend to make last night's performance a guideline for the coming season, which they open at home next Friday night again Orillia.

Several times Kingston players were left free in front of the Belleville net, and both Holmes and Carr found themselves having to stray from between the pipes on a number of occasions to round up a puck while defencemen were puffing back from the Kingstone zone.

But for a team with less than half a dozen practices under their suspenders, the Mo-Hawks had their moments last night.

Of the Mo-Hawk veterans, Wayne "Wiener" Brown shone at left wing, also playing point on the occasional power play.

Just to keep the fans from getting complacent, the two teams let their rivalry of long-standing creep to the surface in the game's dying minutes with Taylor and Wilton carrying Mo-Hawk colors into sparring bouts with the Aces' Whita and Seale.

Gary Goyer and Kingston's Bob Brown also set out matching roughing penalties after exchanging love-taps.

It all points to an interesting return engagement tomorrow night at 7 in Kingston's Memorial Centre.

Lineups:

Kingston — Goal—Perry; defence, Brown, White, O'Donnell. Leavalley, Clancy; forwards, Convery, Travis, Graham, Dowdell, Jones, Clancy, Whita, Seale.

Argos Ready for Riders

Cahill's Midnight Oil Results in New Pattern

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The lights have been turning bright at the home of Leo Cahill all this week as the Toronto Argonaut coach tries to figure out a way to stop Ottawa Rough Riders and Vic Washington Sunday.

And so far, no one is saying anything except Cahill who let slip a gem of information this week—the Argos are working on something called the "get-lost" pattern.

But new pattern or not, Sunday's encounter at Ottawa is the game of the week in the Eastern Football Conference, matching the first-place Argos against the second-place Rough Riders.

In the other weekend game, Winnipeg Blue Bombers of the Western Football Conference take on Hamilton Tiger-Cats in an interlocking Canadian Football League match Saturday.

Montreal Alouettes invade the Western Conference Sunday to play Saskatchewan Roughriders in Regina.

Sunday's game will be carried nationally by the CTV network starting at 2 p.m. EDT.

A victory by either team means first place.

Rookie Washington, hidden on defence for the first half of the schedule, has been activated as an offensive running back because of injuries in the Riders' backfield and the retirement of Canadian fullback Rick Black.

Washington is expected to carry the ball in most of Ottawa's running plays Sunday. He has the speed, skill and combative nature to become one of the top rushers in Canadian football.

Ottawa's offensive backfield looked formidable early in the season. They had Bo Scott, Ron Stewart, Lovell Coleman and Gerry Black, Coach Frank Clair assigned Washington to defence, but the rookie made it look like an offensive role.

He ran back one kickoff 104 yards for a touchdown. He has the largest EFC punt return this season—36 yards—and his average is 21.2 yards. Teams eventually decided it was useless to keep kicks away from him.

Injuries slowed down Scotland Stewart this week. The Coleman couldn't muster any running power on a pair of decrepit knees. Last week, in a game against Montreal Alouettes, Washington started on offence. He rushed 111 yards and caught five passes for another 75 yards.

Meanwhile, the Rough Riders will also have a new fullback in the lineup for Sunday's contest. He is Jim Mankins, 24, a six-foot-one, 215-pound import from Florida State.

Roughrider Reed Gets Alouette Attention

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

George Reed, hard-driving fullback with Saskatchewan Roughriders, will get special attention from Montreal Alouettes Sunday in a Canadian Football League interlocking game in Regina.

"Reed is the key to their game," Montreal coach Kay Dalton said in an interview while preparing his Eastern Conference club for a two-game series in the West.

Winnipeg Blue Bombers, meanwhile, will be seeking a victory this afternoon in their bid for the third and final Western Conference playoff berth when they meet Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the EFC. The interlocking game, scheduled for 2 p.m. EDT in Hamilton, will be televised by the CBC national network.

Tonight in Edmonton, British Columbia Lions tangle with the Eskimos in an important game for both WFC clubs. The third-place Eskimos hold a four-point lead over the Lions and a five-point advantage over the Bombers in the western playoff battle.

Calgary Stampeders, idle until Wednesday when they play host to the Alouettes, head the WFC standing with 16 points, one more than Saskatchewan. Edmonton has nine points, British Columbia five and Winnipeg four.

New Site Named For Bantam Tilt

The time's the same but the place has changed for the Ontario Bantam OBA championship game Sunday.

Instead of playing at the Leaside location announced previously, the game will be played at the Bond Street Park in Don Mills.

Fans who don't want to drive themselves have the choice of buses from the Legion (leaving 10:30 a.m.), and Rawson Lines. (Call Rawson's for information.)

For those hardy who won't leave the driving to others, directions to the park are: Hwy. 401 to the Don Valley Parkway — south on the Parkway to Lawrence Ave. — east on Lawrence Ave. to Don Mills Road — right on Don Mills Road to Bond Street — then left on Bond Street to the park.

Local Bantams Head for Title

By GEORGE H. CARVER

For six years the Belleville Minor Softball Association champions have walked up the Ontario championship aisle.

For six years they have emerged as bridesmaids.

This year the Bayol Canadian Legion Bantam champions hope to bring home the top honors at the expense of Niagara Falls.

Both clubs are deserving of the title. The Cataract City kids have fought their way to the top by defeating the best in Western Ontario.

The youngsters from the Bay of Quinte are the cream of the Bantam crop in this part of the province.

On their march to the Ontario finals they eliminated Oshawa in three games; turned back Peterborough with two straight wins and defeated Brampton two games out of three.

In the first game of the finals they were shut out by Niagara Falls 5-0 but rebounded to edge the Falls 2-1 and force the third and final game.

This is slated for neutral grounds at Bond Street Park on Sunday, starting at two p.m.

Two buses will leave Belleville Sunday for fans wishing to take in the "big game." One will leave from the Legion at 10:30 a.m. and another will be available from Rawson Bus Lines. (Call for more information.)

Both teams have tested the steel of the foemen. The Legionnaires learned a lot in that 5-0 shutout and bounced back to square the series.

Niagara know they'll need their best to defeat the smaller club from down east.

Lions Travelling To Viking Home

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Detroit Tigers and St. Louis Cardinals, two baseball teams, have made Detroit Lions shift, but it will be up to another National Football League team, Minnesota Vikings, to stop the Lions.

And that's something Chicago Bears and Green Bay Packers couldn't do.

The Lions-Vikings game originally was scheduled to be played in Detroit Sunday, but because of the World Series it will be played at Minnesota.

So, the home-field advantage switches to the Vikings, but they will need more than this to stop a Detroit team which, after being smashed by Dallas in the season opener, trounced Chicago 42-0 and upset Green Bay 23-17.

The two victories moved Detroit in a first-place tie in the Central Division with Minnesota, which lost to Chicago after beating Atlanta Falcons and Green Bay.

In other NFL action, Pittsburgh, 0-3, is at Cleveland tonight, while on Sunday Green Bay, 1-2, is at Atlanta, 0-3; Chicago, 1-2, is at Baltimore, 3-0; San Francisco, 2-1, is at Los Angeles, 3-0; Dallas, 3-0, is at St. Louis, 1-2; New Orleans, 1-2, is at New York, 3-0, and Philadelphia, 0-3, is at Washington, 2-1.

Detroit's defence, which intercepted eight Chicago passes and then stopped Green Bay's machine-like attack, will be made even stronger with the expected return of linebacker Mike Lucci. Bill Munson will again quarterback the Lions. Gary Cuozzo, who relieved Joe Kapp, a former quarterback with British Columbia Lions, and hit on all of four of his passes against Chicago, probably will see more action at quarterback for Minnesota.

Roughing the Kicker:

Johnson Starting As Jet Receiver

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Curley Johnson's serene existence as a pro football specialist grinds to a halt tonight when New York Jets' veteran punter learns how the other half lives in the American Football League.

Johnson will be the Jets' starting tight end against San Diego Chargers in one of four games scheduled for tonight. In the other, Kansas City Chiefs plays the Bills at Buffalo.

Sunday's AFL schedule has Cincinnati Bengals at Denver Broncos, Boston Patriots at Oakland Raiders and Miami Dolphins at Houston Oilers.

Johnson is first and foremost a punter. He seldom is on the field except for kicks. But in a pinch, he can play tight end and the Jets are in a pinch.

Regular Pete Lammons pulled a leg muscle against Buffalo last week and that makes Johnson the light end against the Chargers.

Canadian Nationals Win St. Louis Exhibition

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

If the National Hockey League ever expands again, a candidate for membership might be Canada's national team.

The nationals showed pro class Friday night, beating St. Louis Blues 3-1 to sweep a two-game exhibition series against the NHL club, Stanley Cup finalists last season.

The Blues, beaten 5-4 by the nationals Wednesday, yanked veteran goalie Jacques Plante with 10 seconds left in Friday's game in an attempt to beat the pesky Canadians.

But the move backfired when Gerry Pinder slapped the puck into the empty net. Bob Birdsall, a rookie, fired the winner late in the game past Plante, who is making a comeback with St. Louis after a sparkling career with Montreal Canadiens.

Defenceman Gary Young got Canada's other goal. Larry Keenan scored for St. Louis.

In other pre-season exhibition games involving NHL teams, New York Rangers downed Chicago Black Hawks 3-1 at Kitchener, Ont., Oakland Seals and Los Angeles Kings tied 1-1 at Kingston, Ont., Detroit Red Wings trimmed Minnesota North Stars 5-2 at Duluth, Minn., Montreal Canadiens crushed Cleveland Barons of the American Hockey League 9-3 at Cleveland, and Philadelphia Flyers trounced Quebec Aces of the AHL 7-1 at Halifax.

Oakland's pre-season undefeated streak remained intact with the tie against Los Angeles. The Seals now have won six and tied three.

Ted Hampson gave Oakland the tie with a late goal and Eddie Joyal was the Kings' scorer.

Rod Gilbert, Ron Stewart and Wayne Rivers were the New York scorers in the game played before 5,100 Kitchener fans. Ken Wharram scored a third-period goal for Chicago, spoiling a shutout bid by Ed Giacomin who blocked 33 shots in the New York nets.

The win left New York with a 5-3-3 record while the Hawks are even at 4-4.

Detroit zapped across four goals in the third period to beat the North Stars who had to face Red Wings. Detroit scorers were Pete Mahovlich, Nick Libbett, Pete Stemkowski, Frank Greger.

Andre Boudrias and Milan Marcetta scored for Minnesota. Marcetta's goal came on a second-period penalty shot after Red Wings goalie Roger Crozier was injured, not seriously. Ray Edwards, his replacement, was the victim of Marcetta's goal.

Mickey Redmond and Ralp Backstrom each scored three goals to pace the Canadiens. Other Montreal goals came from Bob Rousseau, Yvon Cournoyer, Claude Provost, Jacques Lemaire and John Ferguson. Cleveland's goals were scored by Maurice St. Jacques.

Washburn vs Wilson in Series Tie-breaker

DETROIT (AP) — Ray Washburn, who pitched a no-hitter less than three weeks ago, hoped to cut down the number of Detroit hits today as the Tigers and St. Louis Cardinals resumed the World Series tied at one game each.

Washburn, 14-8 during the regular season, opposes Earl Wilson, 13-12, in the first of three games in Detroit.

The 30-year-old Cardinal right-hander held San Francisco Giants hitless Sept. 18.

The Cardinals could use that kind of pitching today against the Tigers, who unleashed 13 hits in squaring the Series Thursday.

That Tiger explosion followed their weak effort in the opener when the Cardinals won 4-0 in St. Louis.

The Tigers were still talking about that game Friday. Someone asked Norm Cash, "Are you ready for Gibson?"

"If he's pitching today," the Detroit first baseman said, "I'm coming up sick."

Bob Gibson, who struck Cash out three times in Wednesday's World Series opener, wasn't pitching Friday. The Tigers and St. Louis Cardinals had the day off before resuming their battle today.

Instead, the brilliant right-hander was in the St. Louis clubhouse, autographing baseballs and talking about his second clash with Denny McLain, Detroit's 31-game winner, in the Series' fourth game Sunday.

They were to follow today's match of Ray Washburn of St. Louis against Earl Wilson of Detroit.

In the Tiger clubhouse, meanwhile, sports writers were advised by a sign on a piece of adhesive tape on a wall, "McLain's locker is over there."

Except Denny wasn't there. McLain, who lost to Gibson in the Series opener, was not at the park for the off-day workout.

"He had permission not to be here," said manager Mayo Smith.

"It's not unusual. He's pitching Sunday. He'll throw tomorrow."

With that, Smith retired to the warmer confines of his office the temperature outside was in the low 60s—and a writer returned to the Cardinal clubhouse and Gibson.

That's where all the attention was after the opener in which the 32-year-old veteran limited the Tigers to five hits and struck out a Series' record 17. McLain was around for only six innings in which he gave up three runs, all the Cardinals needed.

Gibson credited some of his strikeout success to the fact that the Tigers were surprised to see so much of his breaking pitches.

"They'll be more aware of the breaking ball this time," he said Friday, "but they're still going to have to look for the fast ball.

"Actually, I don't care what kind of strikeouts I get if I win. I wouldn't care if I didn't strike out any. A lot of times when I get strikeouts it's not of my own doing. Maybe it's something the batter does."

The Tiger batters, of course, will be trying to do something a lot different than their confrontation with Gibson, a subject about which manager Smith says:

"He can't be any better. If he's a little worse, he might get a couple popped."

Al Kaline, on the other hand, made an interesting observation about the Tigers facing Gibson in Tiger Stadium.

"It's possible that he could be a lot tougher," the Detroit veteran said. "We have shadows across the field from the stands and that would make it even tougher to pick up the ball."

Gibson, seeking his seventh straight complete games Series victory, will try to keep the Tigers in the dark. But McLain will try and regain some of the spotlight he lost Wednesday.

Olympics to Open Right on Schedule In Midst of Mexican Civil War

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Avery Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee, insists the games of the 19th Olympiad will open on schedule Oct. 12 despite a direct threat of violence from something calling itself an Army of Liberation.

Meanwhile, the toll in Mexico City's urban gunfighting rose to 31 with the deaths of a sniper and a passerby the sniper shot on a street which forms part of the Olympic marathon route.

Friday morning Brundage expressed concern over the Army of Liberation, warning that Olympic visitors should stay away because the group has declared civil war against the government of President Gustavo Diaz Ordaz.

But Friday night Brundage said he was sticking by a statement made 24 hours earlier that the Games will open on schedule.

Giulio Onesti of Italy and Burgese Phillips of Australia, presidents of two IOC satellite groups, issued a statement saying they cannot "hide our preoccupation' toward events which prejudice the Olympic reality, its spirit of love, its peace and fraternity."

They said the Mexican government which "offers us its hospitality, should offer us at the same time the Olympic atmosphere in every way. This means the Games must be held in an atmosphere dominated by love and not by grief."

Onesti is president of the permanent General Assembly of National Olympic committees. Phillips is president of the Association of International Sports Federations.

Brundage made his business-as-usual statement after consulting with members of the IOC for the second straight day.

A single-space, typewritten "Bulletin No. 1 to the foreign press of Mexico" arrived Friday at The Associated Press office announcing the formation of the Army of Liberation to "declare war against the criminal government of President Gustavo Diaz Ordaz."

There was no indication if the army had only one member or many. A spokesman for the president said the government does not take the announcement seriously.

"We decline all responsibility for what could happen to those who come to a country that, in fact, finds itself in full civil war," the bulletin said.

The defence ministry has said such guerrilla groups are already operating in the northern state of Chihuahua.

The bulletin recommended that "the foreign public not come to the Olympics, because, although under no circumstances will athletes be attacked, it will be necessary to carry out a large military operation against the government in the inaugural act and others later."

This could be interpreted to mean the guerrilla group plans something during the Olympic opening ceremonies.

WATKINS GLEN, N.Y. (AP) — Jackie Stewart of Scotland covered Watkins Glen's winding, 2.3-mile track at an average speed of 128.85 miles an hour Friday, breaking the track record in practice for Sunday's 108th Grand Prix of the United States. Stewart pushed his Matra-Ford around the circuit on one minute, 4.27 seconds. The old mark was 126.45 miles an hour set by Graham Hill of England last year.

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Racing Commission has suspended jockey Bill Skuse for life. The commission Thursday acted on the recommendation of the Exhibition Park board of Stewards, which had found the 29-year-old jockey guilty of seven violations of racing rules following an investigation earlier this month into alleged race fixing. Commission chairman Glen McDonald said Skuse has the right to apply for reinstatement at any time.

Canadian Olympic Wrestlers Readying

TORONTO (CP) — Eight earnest young men and two coaches will represent Canada at the Olympic Games in Mexico City this month in a sport that is older than the Olympic ideal.

Not since 1936, when Toronto welterweight Joe Schleimer won a third-place bronze, has Canada won an Olympic wrestling medal.

The chances this year? Slim but not hopeless, says Paul Nemeth, 60-year-old wrestling coach from the University of British Columbia.

Nemeth is manager of this year's team; coach is Bill Smith of Pacifica, Calif., former gold-medal wrestler for the United States who was hired away from the U.S. to do a 10-month building job on the Canadian squad.

"Our best chances probably lie in the heavier divisions," Nemeth said. "But we have a chance, especially with Herb Singerman, in the lighter weights."

Singerman, 22, is a Montreal botanywlight. Nemeth feels he has the strength, desire and talent but may lack the experience.

He began wrestling in 1964 at the Montreal YMHA, and this is his first international competition.

There are no wrestlers on the team from the Atlantic provinces but the rest of the country is well represented.

Singerman and middleweight Robert Chambers are from Montreal; flyweight Peter Michienzi and heavyweight Harry Geris are from London; Pat Bolber, featherweight, is from Dutton, Ont.; lightweight Gordon Garvie is from Saskatoon; Brian Heffel, welter, is from Edmonton; light heavyweight Ed Millard is from New Liskeard, Ont.

Smith lists the countries to beat as Turkey, Russia, Bulgaria, Japan, Iran and the U.S., with Canada "some where around 15th."

In Olympic wrestling, matches are scored on a penalty-point basis. Competitors with six or more points against are eliminated. Each bout counts four points this way:

Has Not Been Easy: Leader

Quebec Liberals Give Vote of Confidence to Lesage

MONTREAL (CP)—More than 1,200 cheering Liberals Friday night stood up and were counted as fervent supporters of Jean Lesage, who told them he could not continue as provincial party leader without their vote of confidence.

The thundering display of unanimity over Mr. Lesage's leadership opened the annual meeting of the Quebec Liberal Federation, troubled by internal strife since the party lost power to the June 5, 1966, general election. The meeting ends Sunday.

Mr. Lesage, criticized by both federation members and some MLAs since the election loss, spoke in defence of his leadership for about 35 minutes in an address opening the annual meeting. Then he said:

"I also have eyes and ears. I know that there are those who ask the question of whether I should quit as chief of the Liberal party."

The 58-year-old leader, premier of Quebec for six of his 10 years as Liberal party chief, said he continued as leader after the 1966 election because "I felt it my duty to remain at the helm when the boat was horribly shaken."

He finally got out the question:

"Does Jean Lesage still have the confidence of the Liberals of Quebec?"

The Liberals rose to their feet, cheered, booted and sang the French version of "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow" in an outburst of applause that lasted for minutes. Before Mr. Lesage could resume his prepared address, someone shouted:

"Mr. Lesage, you don't only have my confidence; you have my life."

When Party Whip Pierre Laporte, MLA for the Montreal-area riding of Chambly, proposed a formal vote of confidence in Mr. Lesage, the Liberals again rose to their feet for more cheering and singing.

There was little doubt from the start that Mr. Lesage would get vote of confidence. When he walked to the podium to give his address he was given a two-minute ovation.

Mr. Laporte, one of the men in the party who has never concealed his interest in becoming Mr. Lesage's successor, appealed for a unanimous vote of confidence in the name of "Unity, realism and dynamism."

He described Mr. Lesage as "the greatest premier of Quebec," a man with proven ability who could lead the Liberals back to power at a time when the Union Nationale was trying to make a premier out of a man who has never played more than second fiddle."

The new Union Nationale premier is Jean-Jacques Bertrand, lieutenant of Premier Daniel Johnson who died of a heart attack Sept. 26. Mr. Bertrand was sworn in as premier Wednesday.

In his speech, Mr. Lesage said it had not been "easy for him to exercise leadership over the party in recent years amid "the upheaval in Quebec society," and the years since the last election "have been difficult for me, I won't try to conceal it."

He said the party had to intensify its attempt to beat out policies at "the heart of renewal," but its main political task remained to gain the confidence of voters, to win a majority of seats in the legislative assembly.

On the eve of the convention, criticism was levelled at Mr. Lesage by former education minister Paul Gerin-Lajoie, who Lesage backers say is inspired by personal ambition to become Liberal leader.

Mr. Gerin-Lajoie has said that the provincial Liberals are too inward looking, too organization-oriented and too insensitive to ideas from outside normal party circles. Mr. Lesage denied all of this in his speech without naming Mr. Gerin-Lajoie.

The former education minister, who denies immediate leadership aspirations and who describes himself as a good Liberal, watched the display of confidence from a position near the back of the meeting room at the Queen Elizabeth Hotel. He had no comment.

Catholic Deacons May Marry in U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Married and unmarried Roman Catholic men now may be ordained as permanent deacons—assistants to priests—in the United States, the National Conference of Catholic Bishops announced Friday.

The decision announced by Bishop Joseph L. Bernadin, general secretary of the conference, is in line with authority granted by Pope Paul June 18, 1967, to reactivate a ministerial order dating back to the early days of the church.

These deacons will be separate from the seminarian's temporary diaconate who performs some similar duties in assisting priests until they are themselves ordained.

The announcement says those chosen must be of mature years. This was defined as at least 26, but the bishops decided that the first ones must be at least 35 years old.

Married men who receive the diaconate cannot remarry if they later become widowers. Unmarried men who receive the diaconate cannot marry once they are ordained.

The duties outlined the deacons will vary with the needs of each region.

But they will be authorized to perform these functions:

—Administering the baptism.

—Dispension of Holy Communion to themselves and others.

—In the absence of a priest to assist at and to bless marriages in the name of the church.

—Administer sacramentals and officiate at funerals and burial services.

—Preside at worship and prayers of the people when a priest is not present.

Princess To Train As Singer

THE HAGUE (Reuters) — Princess Christina of The Netherlands has decided she will train as a professional singer at the Institute Superieur de la Musique Vincent d'Indy near Montreal, the government information service announced Friday.

The 21-year-old princess, who made her decision in consultation with her parents, will receive singing lessons from Dutchman Bernhard Diamond, a teacher at the institute.

The institute is a modern Roman Catholic conservatory at universal level with about 800 students.

Hippie Newspaper Charged With Libel

VANCOUVER (CP) — The hippie newspaper Georgia Straight, its editor and a writer were committed Friday for trial on a charge of libelling a Vancouver magistrate.

The twice-monthly newspaper, editor Dan McLeod and reporter Robert Cummins are charged with criminally libelling Magistrate Lawrence Eckardt in an article July 26 in connection with a loitering case.

Magistrate James Bartman said it was up to a higher court to decide whether the article was intended as a "spoof or joke" or whether it defamed the magistrate.

The charge quoted the offending article in the newspaper as saying:

"To Eckardt, Magistrate Lawrence—the Pontius Pilate certificate of justice (unfairly maligned by critics, Pilate upheld the highest traditions of a judge placing law and order above human considerations and by helping to clear the streets of Jerusalem of degenerate non-conformists.)

"The citation reads: 'To Lawrence Eckardt, who, by closing his mind to justice, his eyes to fairness, and his ears to equality, has encouraged the belief that the law is not only blind, but also deaf, dumb, and stupid. Let history judge your actions—then appeal.'"

Wife in Tears

Husband Sues for Lottery Share

VANCOUVER (CP) — Chris and Lorraine Valouch still live in the same house but the atmosphere has cooled since Chris launched a supreme court action Thursday to get part of a $50,000 prize his wife won at this year's Pacific National Exhibition.

Mr. Valouch says his wife gave him $180 after she won the $50,000 gold brick prize draw last month.

He claims he is entitled to at least half the money. Mrs. Valouch insists she won it and should decide what is done with it.

"I want to invest the money. I have a three-year-old son to raise and in 10 years there would be twice as much, enough for us to retire," she said in an interview.

Mr. Valouch, 58, employed as a trackman with Dominion Bridge, also operates a small confectionery in Vancouver which he says is almost breaking even.

His 43-year-old wife works part-time in the shoe department of a downtown store.

Both have been married before and have children by their earlier marriages.

Mr. Valouch says in the writ that he directed his wife to purchase a program at the PNE with his money and that she was acting as his agent when she did this.

Mr. Valouch said:

"We play bingo often and we always split our winnings 50-50."

The whole thing is fantastic," said a tearful Mrs. Valouch.

Mother of 3 Ends Strike Against Payless Housework

STOCKTON, Calif. (AP) — Sandra Wagner ended her seven-day strike against payless housework Friday, saying: "I appreciate my husband a little more because of the way he took this."

Mrs. Wagner, 23, a mother of three, said she felt her walkout accomplished her objective—to gain a little recognition for 120 hours of housework a week, with no pay.

For her husband, Tom, 25, the week was one of unwashed dishes and clothing, unmade beds, unswept rooms and protest signs bristling in the front yard.

While his wife picketed on the sidewalk, he continued working at a sign shop and spent several evenings fishing.

One unexpected benefit, Mrs. Wagner said, was that sons Tommy, 7, and Todd, 6, "learned to help around the house a little."

Mrs. Wagner cared as usual for daughter Tonia, 18 months.

After Tom came home Thursday night, "we talked it over and decided to call off the strike," Sandra reported.

Sandra got many telephone calls from far-away places during her weeklong boycott.

"Most of them were very nice," she said. There were several crank calls Thursday. The worst were from men."

Tom added that he was "not sure the strike was worthwhile, but I'm happy my wife is on the job."

Sandra made no direct demands. She asked only for appreciation.

PM Ignores Protests

Limiting Ministers' Attendance Branded 'Calculated Contempt'

OTTAWA (CP)—Agriculture stole the show on Parliament Hill Friday, both inside the Commons and out, but a government proposal to limit opposition opportunities to question ministers drew the sharpest debate.

The grounds and roadways on the Hill took on a rural flavor as close to 100 tractors driven by farmers from Ontario's corn belt arrived to protest depressed prices for corn.

An opposition bid in the House for emergency debate in the corn situation, opposed by Agriculture Minister Olson among others, was ruled out of order by Speaker Lucien Lamoureux.

But it was a letter sent to all MPs by Donald Macdonald, government House leader, outlining plans for reduced attendance by ministers during the daily question period that brought the opposition to its feet.

Prime Minister Trudeau attempted to convince members the curtailment of ministerial attendance would lead to an improved question period. Members could better channel their questions to the proper minister and all would come better prepared.

John Diefenbaker (PC—Prince Albert) branded Mr. Trudeau's explanation "the very height of political hypocrisy."

Nevertheless, Mr. Trudeau said the question period experiment begins Monday. If it doesn't work to Parliament's advantage, he promised to abandon the scheme.

On the ministers-question period debate, Mr. Macdonald's letter said all ministers will attend if possible on Wednesdays but only 12 to 17 of the 28 ministers will be present on other days.

Mr. Trudeau will aim at answering questions daily. If a minister is absent on a day on which he is due to answer questions, his parliamentary secretary can answer for him. But if he isn't due to attend, the opposition won't get replies.

Gerald W. Baldwin, Conservative House leader, termed the proposal "calculated contempt" against all MPs. Stanley Knowles, NDP House leader, said it was an "attempt to cool the question period."

Mr. Trudeau said the change was proof the government was keeping an election promise to improve the working of Parliament.

"If it doesn't work to the benefit of Parliament, we'll go back to the old conservative way."

The House finally got down to the main business of the day, a proposal to double the maximum payment to farmers under the Prairie Grain Advance Payments Act to $6,000 from $3,000.

This resolution was approved and a bill based on it given first reading. It was to come up for debate again shortly.

Otto Lang, minister without portfolio, said the measure will not only raise size of advance payments but will double the rate at which such payments are made. The new rate will be $1 per bushel of wheat, 40 cents for oats and 70 cents for barley.

Tractor Trek Arrives on Hill

Rebellious Corn Growers Leave Ottawa Under Protest

OTTAWA (CP)—Farmers who came by tractor from southern and southwestern Ontario decided to return home this weekend after a one-day demonstration on Parliament Hill Friday in protest against a collapse in the price of corn.

Demanding a guaranteed, stable price of $1.50 a bushel, they decided to:

—Leave a farm lobby in Ottawa to press their case.

—Try to strengthen their local organizations for coming negotiations with farm suppliers.

—Await the results of talks that Agriculture Minister H. A. (Bud) Olson promised to initiate with U.S. authorities about corn imports into Canada.

The Ontario farmers have complained that cheap U.S. corn, entering the country below the U.S. support price of $1.05 a bushel, is depressing their prices below their production costs, which some estimated at $1.20 a bushel.

The farmers, about 300 strong, shouted their dissatisfaction at Mr. Olson Friday morning when he spoke to them from the steps of Parliament.

He said he would try to "rectify" the import problem, but that the Canadian livestock industry would suffer if the price of corn and other feed grains got too far out of line with U.S. prices.

Many of the farmers wanted to stay in Ottawa and continue demonstrations next week. But Roy Atkinson, of Ladis, Sask., president of the National Farmers Union, and Walter Miller, of Guelph, president of the Ontario Farmers Union, insisted they had nothing more to gain by this course of action.

The mass decision to return home was finally reached late Friday afternoon after a second meeting on the lawns of Parliament and a meeting at the federal experimental farm here.

Mr. Miller said in an interview that some union members will remain in Ottawa next week but that "we won't be coming back in numbers unless something of an emergency nature develops over the weekend."

He said the corn market is almost in a disaster situation.

"If this is to continue I can certainly foresee a very dangerous situation developing. When people stand on the verge of bankruptcy they figure they haven't got very much to lose."

Mr. Miller said union officers had worked hard to keep the farmers "under control" at Friday's demonstrations.

"We certainly did it today but I can't promise what will happen if we have to come back."

Two Veteran Liberal MPs Face Loss of Cabinet Posts

OTTAWA (CP) — Rumors of a spring cabinet shakeup are circulating on Parliament Hill.

Prime Minister Trudeau is reported to be dissatisfied with the performance of some of his ministers and, informants said Friday, is already canvassing means of bringing some new faces into his administration.

A cabinet shuffle could be started by the departure of two veteran ministers: Solicitor-General George McIlraith and Works Minister Arthur Laing.

Informants say Mr. Trudeau has told these two ministers he would like them to consider acceptance of appointments outside the cabinet by next spring.

Mr. Laing, 64, a minister since 1963, is said to have accepted this turn of events philosophically but Mr. McIlraith, 60, an MP since 1940 and a minister since 1963, is reported prepared to put up a scrap to keep a cabinet seat.

The Ottawa area now has two cabinet representatives: Mr. McIlraith and Justice Minister John Turner.

It is understood that Mr. Trudeau would like to give more cabinet representation to western Ontario. Energy Minister J. J. Greene, from Niagara Falls, is the only such representative at this time, apart from Senator Paul Martin of Windsor, government leader in the Senate.

From the moment he became Liberal leader, Mr. Trudeau said he would not hesitate to rotate cabinet portfolios or bring in new men.

He carried out this promise soon after his June 25 election victory with a big shakeup of his original April administration, which he had described as "makeshift" and "caretaker."

Some Liberal back-benchers are expressing dissatisfaction with the Commons performance of some ministers. More than once, this dissatisfaction has taken the form of withholding applause when some ministers have been in tight spots with the opposition.

Possible cabinet prospects in any recast executive include Robert Stanbury, MP for York-Scarborough; Herb Gray; MP for Windsor West; James McNulty, MP for St. Catharines; Eugene Whelan, MP for Essex; Grant Deachman, MP for Vancouver Quadra; Len Marchand, MP for Kamloops-Cariboo and Bud Orange, MP for Northwest Territories.

By provinces, the cabinet portfolios now are split this way: Quebec and Ontario, 10 each; British Columbia three; Newfoundland, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, one each. There is no Liberal MP in Prince Edward Island.

Ojibway Spokesman Fails In Bid to Gain PM's Ear

OTTAWA (CP) — Treaty Indian Harold Salt of Armstrong, Ont., went right to the top Friday to register his protests against housing and education for his people in the Northern Ontario community.

Mr. Salt, an Ojibway, held a nose-to-nose conversation with Prime Minister Trudeau on Parliament Hill because he said he had no satisfaction with previous talks with Indian Affairs Minister Chretien.

Mr. Salt told the prime minister in their unscheduled meeting that he came 1,200 miles to see Mr. Chretien over Armstrong problems. He said Mr. Chretien instead talked about how little money he had in his budget.

"That's what you risk when you come to Ottawa, you hear about our troubles," Mr. Trudeau replied.

Mr. Salt said Mr. Chretien had not indicated when he could meet Mr. Salt again and he was tired waiting around for an answer.

"Our money is really running out and we have to go home," he said.

"But my time is running out also . . ." began Mr. Trudeau.

Mr. Salt interjected:

"Your time really is running out."

Mr. Trudeau then promised to call Mr. Chretien to see if he could get the minister to agree to another meeting with Mr. Salt.

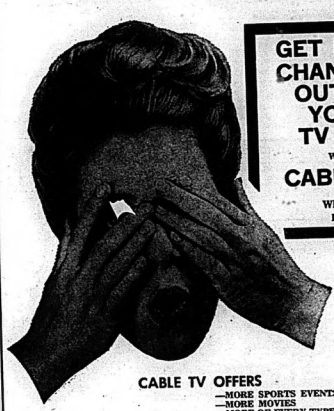
THE LITTLE WOMAN

"Furthermore, I fed the question to the computer in our office and it agreed—YOU'RE WRONG!"

Drury Says No Warning By Ontario

OTTAWA (CP) — Treasury Board President Drury said today the federal government did not receive any "formal communication" from Ontario warning it that its estimated expenditure on hospital care and vocational training were far too low.

He added in a Commons reply to Marcel Lambert, Conservative finance critic, that he is having another check made, however.



The federal government last week had to revise its 1968-69 spending estimates upward by some $400,000,000 to $10,671,000,000.

The Toronto Globe and Mail reported Friday Ottawa was formally warned by the Ontario government last January that its estimates in at least two fields — hospital care and vocational training — were too low.

CHANGES IMAGE

NEW YORK (AP) — New police uniforms, the first on the streets since 1929, are being issued by 50 policemen and 10 policewomen. A spokesman said the new style—lighter in color and slimmer in cut—gives a "more positive police image." Mayor John V. Lindsay said: "Looks good, but that's only the beginning—wait until you see the Nehru jackets."

To Your Good Health

Occasional Drink OK for Pregnant

By Dr. Joseph G. Molner

Dear Doctor: I am pregnant and would like to know if drinking is wrong at this time. Some say definitely no and others say it doesn't make any difference. Please give me your opinion. — Mrs. E. G.

Depends on whether you mean an occasional highball or whether drinking means something else to you.

An occasional drink is not harmful in pregnancy, but in excess, and especially if it leads to the point of inebriation or "getting high," is harmful.

* * *

Dear Dr. Molner: Could you give me information on mumps — meningitis — encephalitis? Our child, after a long hospital stay, just doesn't seem the same. He lives and becomes nauseated, and has headaches. Could this be caused by the spinal taps he had in the hospital? — Mrs. K. A. P.

Meningitis means that the membranes, or covering of the brain and spinal cord, have been affected. Encephalitis means brain involvement.

In your case, it was the mumps virus that caused these issues. The same thing can happen with many of the childhood virus diseases — measles, chickenpox, German measles, influenza. That is why we warn that these "simple" diseases can have dangerous complications at times.

Your youngster's present symptoms are not unusual after an illness of that sort. After all, he was a very sick child.

The spinal taps were necessary to confirm the diagnosis in his case, and it is stretching a point to think the taps, rather than the seriousness of the disease itself, are causing his aftermath problems. They should lessen as time passes, but there is no way to hasten their disappearance.

It is the possibility of encephalitis or other serious complications that gave such urgency to the development of vaccines against measles and now mumps.

Dear Dr. Molner: Please explain what drinking plain gelatin can do for a person if taken daily. Should it be pure gelatin? Would it be good for a person who has had a heart attack? How long would it be all right to use it? Will it make a person gain weight? Is it harmful to the body? — K. H.

It is merely a form of food, high in some (but not all) types of protein. I do not see that it has any relationship to a heart attack. It won't make a person gain weight any more than the same amount of extra calories in any food will contribute to weight. I don't see how it can be harmful to you. But I don't know what especial good it will do either.

* * *

Dear Dr. Molner: Thank you for your booklet on gout, but I have an additional question on the use of pancreatin.

In my case I have been devoid of hydrochloric acid in my stomach which has increasingly prevented me from digesting food until I am just skin over bones.

The doctor prescribed pancreatin and said I must take it — 1,000 milligrams three times a day. My digestion has improved greatly, but I note that pancreatin comes from hog pancreas. Does that have any relation under the heading of "organ food," which is not allowed for my patient? I am 72. — P. H. N.

Technically, yes, pancreatin is from an organ source, but authorities on gout minimize the role of diet. In your instance, the amount is relatively small and in any event is more essential for your digestion than any problematical difficulty it could cause for you. It may well cause none.

Central Banks Fail to Agree

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — South Africa and the 10 leading Western central banks failed to reach agreement Friday on the sale of newly-mined gold.

Gold was the main subject discussed behind the scenes at the annual joint meeting of the World Bank and the 111-nation International Monetary Fund.

Most observers believed some progress was made before the meetings ended Friday on the gold issue, which affects the whole structure of international trade and payments. They expect negotiations to be resumed in the future.

But it appeared that in the meantime, South Africa would continue not to sell gold on the free market and central bankers who support the U.S. would not buy gold on the free market, or from South Africa, the world's largest producer.

For the financial world this means speculators can continue to hope for upward pressure on the free market gold price.

The U.S. wants South African gold production fed into private hands so scarcity does not drive the free price far above the official $35-an-ounce figure used as a basis for international settlements.

South Africa wants some guarantee that if it sells on the free market, it will be able to get at least the official $35-an-ounce price.

The central banks include those from Canada, Europe, Japan, the U.S. and Britain.

The free gold market was established in March during an international crisis over huge speculative purchases of gold.

Until then, leading central banks kept the price of gold steady by buying and selling to meet supply and demand at the official price, fixed in 1934.

But main Western central banks decided in March to stop the flow of gold from their national reserves to private buyers and let private forces fix the deal on a free market at fluctuating prices —so far always above the official $35 level.

Almost up the last minute, most delegates believed central bankers would decide they had agreed on how South Africa was to dispose of its newly-mined gold under the two-market system.

But early Friday, a reliable source reported South Africa had turned down a compromise proposal which would have provided a conditional floor price for its gold.

The U.S. Federal Reserve Board, on behalf of the 10 nations, later issued a statement saying it had "not proved possible to reach an agreement with South Africa at this meetings."

If the free market price goes too high, in the view of U.S. Officials and many independent experts, it calls into question the official price of gold.

The U.S. is still committed to convert gold for dollars at that price for international settlements — a commitment that is the key to the post-1945 world monetary system and allows currencies of countries to be fixed in terms of the dollar.

If the official gold price had to be altered under emergency conditions, it would mean the monetary system had broken down and the man-in-the-street — whatever confusion might face the prospect of a creeping paralysis of world trade which would eventually undermine the national economies of most countries.

Major Advances

Canadian Share Prices Surge to Record Levels

By GERALD CLARKSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canadian share prices continued their surge to record levels in heavy trading this week.

Major advances in key mining stocks led the advance, although a number of highflying real estate and small industrial issues joined.

Among the biggest rises, Hudson Bay Mining was up 4 to 69, Canadian Industrial Gas 4 to 23, Denison 3½ to 77, Placer 3¼ to 33½, Overland Express 3 to 27 and Great West Coal 3 to 78.

The strongest industrial groups were chemicals, industrial mines, food processors, real estate and oil and gas explorers.

In the speculative list, which has been setting the pace at Toronto and Montreal over the last six months, Block Bros. lost 1½ to 18¾, Bramalea 1 to ¼, Neon Products 1¼ to 30¼, Marlcop 2 to 19½, Pyrites ¼ to 8¼ and Fleet Manufacturing 20 cents to $3.70.

Illustrating this small decline, the "Go-Go stock" index compiled by J.T. Crang and Co. posted its first loss for many weeks after touching a peak Wednesday.

Toronto industrial index, the main indicator of blue chips and seasoned issues, closed at a record 180.58, up 3.31 on the week.

Until ten days ago, the index's previous record was 178.22, established in May, 1965. Market technicians, who have been predicting a bull market by the index into altogether higher range for at least two months, say the index has yet to prove its right.

Fraser Research Ltd., which bases its forecasts on chart study, says the index could move up to the 210-220 level.

"This of course does not mean that such a move will happen all at once; it should expect these levels to be reached certainly during 1969.

"From the short-term point of view the market has had an extended run in September and some kind of decline would be expected at this time," Fraser says that a drop to the 168-172 level should be seized as "a particularly magnificent buying opportunity."

Another analyst believes that a decisive upward thrust is indicated by the very similar pattern shown by the London Financial Times index before its bull run and to a record surge this summer.

The London market, however, is now looking cautiously at reaching an inflated level. Robert A. Wiesner, of Wiesner and Partners, commented this week that investors here will be swift to transfer their money into foreign stocks once they start thinking the Canadian market is overpriced.

A dominant factor in the market was emphasized this week by the publication of a study of the ownership of large Canadian stocks compiled by Prof. G. R. Conway of York University.

The study, commissioned by the Toronto Stock Exchange, found that large blocks of Canadian equities is becoming serious, and the quantity of new stock issued each year may only be enough to absorb about half the cash available for investment.

This leads to the conclusion that Canadians will be forced to buy more foreign stocks.

Although the study was based on statistics which only go up to the end of 1967, brokers say that demand for shares is exceeding supply right now, and this is pushing prices up.

The current strength of the Canadian economy, cheaper money and favorable business forecasts also supported the market, along with the strong surge in New York.

But the surge on Wall Street may not survive long, according to some analysts.

Mike Conway, the American economist and financial commentator, says the U.S. market is in for a shakeout before overextended. The visible means of support for a move beyond the 1968 highs are scanty indeed.

"As always on Wall Street, special situations' to put money to profitable use can be found, but the Securities and Exchange Commission has shattered the rules of the game about exploiting such situations when they appear," he believes.

"Until the SEC and the financial community work out their differences and until a new president comes to grips with America's escalating crises, watchful waiting would appear to be the better part. It could be a long wait."

The quarrel between brokers and the SEC is focused on the latter's campaign to stamp out profiteering by "insiders" who have access to unpublished corporate information.

In Canada this week, both the Toronto Stock Exchange and the Ontario Securities Commission reacted by issuing revised "timely disclosure guides." These rules instruct public companies to disclose any activities which could affect the market value of their shares.

On index at Toronto, golds fell 7.96 to 201.30 and base metals 3.81 to 220.90. Base metals rose 2.46 to 113.78. Volume was 7.36 million shares compared with 19,506,000 last week. Gold-ran losses 461 to 310.

On the Montreal and Canadian exchanges, the composite index rose 1.94 to 175.96. Volume was 7,125,000 shares compared with 6,418,000 last week. Advances outnumbered losses 211 to 158.

Weekly Livestock Review

TORONTO (CP) — Trading was dull on a limited demand for all grades of slaughter steers and heifers at the Ontario public stockyards this week.

Good cows and bulls were active and steady, canners and cutters firm, good stocker steers steady and good stock calves active and strong.

Vealers and hogs were higher.

Slaughter cattle 8,541: On offer this week 8,719; last week 8,341; to date 1969 348,314; to date 1967 362,458; this week last year 8,758; choice steers 25.50-29.50 with sales to 31.20; good 27-28; medium 24.50-26.50; common 20-24; choice heifers 26.50-27.50 with sales to 28.50; good 25.50-26.50; medium 22.50-25; common 19-22; good cows 19.50-20.50 with sales to 21.50; mediums 18-19; canners and cutters 15-18; shelly canners 10-14.50; good heavy bologna bulls 22.50-23.50; commons and mediums 19-22.

SELECT COMMITTEE OF ON COMPANY LAW
THE COMPANY LEGISLATURE

On July 23rd, 1968 the Ontario Legislature established a Select Committee to consider this and review the law relating to mergers or amalgamations, the rights of dissenting shareholders in the event of various forms of corporate reorganization changes, the purpose, function and scope of the annual return, the law of corporations finance, the law relating to the protection of the creditor, and the dissolution of the ordinary corporation and the extra-provincial corporation in Ontario.

And further, to enquire into and report upon such specialized types of corporations as insurance companies, loan and trust corporations with provisions respecting capital, credit unions, finance and acceptance companies, co-operatives, and extra-provincial companies, together with the legislation of other jurisdictions relating to th same matters.

Th Committee invites written briefs from individuals and organizations wishing to comment upon the Terms of Reference as noted above. Briefs should be submitted in writing to the secretary of the Committee, Mrs. Frances Nokes by December 31st, 1968.

Public Hearings will be held at times to be announced at a later date.

Gordon R. Carton, Q.C., M.P.P.

Direct Loans for Housing Said Boost to Lagging Starts

OTTAWA (CP) — Transport Minister Hellyer announcement in the Commons Friday of $170,000,000 in direct loans for private-ownership dwellings is described by Central Mortgage and Housing Corp., the federal lending agency, as a small program that should be of some help to builders.

The program is aimed at offsetting a drop in the number of ownership housing starts this year and will provide 5,000 loans by Dec. 31 for house and condominium dwellings and 2,000 loans for the purchase of older houses.

Effective Monday, CMHC will accept applications for about 6,000 loans from merchant builders, with no pre-sale requirement.

The other 2,000 loans for the new housing will go to individuals.

A CMHC spokesman said the program is small in relation to those of other years but answers to some degree pleas made throughout the year by housing contractors for such a program.

Mr. Hellyer told the Commons the money will be spread across the country with the emphasis on construction of houses of moderate cost. CMHC was unable to say what Mr. Hellyer meant by moderate cost.

Ownership housing was down 8.8 per cent to 98,000 units while the number of rental units would rise above the forecast 100,000.

Several banks announced in recent weeks they will begin lending to homebuilders at the current National Housing Act interest rate of 8¼ per cent.

John Gilbert (NDP-Toronto Broadview) said in the Commons Friday the action is "a cover-up for the bad publicity" Mr. Hellyer's shaky grasp on housing has received.

St. Ola District News

ST OLA — Tambi Lorraine Patrick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don Patrick, of Gooderham was baptized on Sunday evening in St. Ola United Church by Rev. R. Ingleby of Ore Hill.

Mrs. R. J. Wood is a visitor in Peterborough this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Coleman and daughter have moved to Cardiff.

The group began cross-country hearings last month but has run into a flare-up of public interest where housing and money are scarce and expensive.

Mr. Gilbert said this may be the peak year for housing starts but it also is the peak year for interest rates. The government action was "too little and too late."

Congratulations are extended to Mr. and Mrs. Ted Trumble (nee Rosaire Peolais) of Gooderham who were recently married.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Thompson left Saturday to take up residence in Belleville. The United Church Women presented Mrs. Thompson with a lovely gift, and friends and neighbors of Limerick Township remember-ed Mr. and Mrs. Thompson with gifts and a bouquet of flowers. The good wishes of the community go with them in their new home.

The mother of Mrs. Esler, Mrs. Boulder, of Havelock, is enjoying an extended visit with her daughter.

Mrs. Lena Washburn, Hastings Manor, is a visitor with Mr. and Mrs. Owen Tripp.

Welcome is extended to Mrs. M. Rashbrook, of Toronto, who has taken up residence in St. Ola (Ore Hill).

Congratulations are extended to Mr. Bell Palmateer who celebrated his 83rd birthday on Monday, September 30.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For October 6

Your birthday today: You must expect results more than what you could possibly bargain for in the coming year. This year is a deluge. There will be opportunity to develop in new directions, abrupt changes in your personal relationships, and more demands for your time than is convenient. Today's natives tend to become psychic in response to crisis.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Today: Eternity near the surface. Put more of your strength into spiritual search. Efforts tend to bog down so that the day creeps.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): No day for dwelling on the problems of the world. Make reasonable plans, especially concerning health. Do yourself and other people. then relax.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Attend to communal expression then seek solitude. Expect no sympathy or co-operation now, everybody is full of his own contrary ideas. In the evening, you can be a gentle peacemaker.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Do your share early, then go along with your family. With the tides running as they are, there is little chance of having your own plans fulfilled. You will be spending the evening looking for something that is mislaid but in plain sight.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Older people and traditional considerations get in the way of an otherwise calm day. Other families have the same problems. Meditate rather than squabble.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Fulfill your duties today. Postpone other concerns and take part in religious observations. The needs of older people tend to become serious. Give a some attention.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Whatever your plans were, it is likely you will have to put them aside to cope with an odd turn of events. Be ready. Marital matters can become complex and difficult.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): This is one Sunday to be used mainly for spiritual purposes. Everything social or silly only falters. You can, however, make great strides in tidying up your personal affairs.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): If you can manage to avoid crowds, do so. Other people are preoccupied with pushing. You retire early for extra rest.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): This is not the day to press for important changes. Pay closer attention to family matters. Plan seriously for the welfare of invalid or older people.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): It is all so easy to utter the wrong words. Be much too strong for the feelings of those around you. Family matters take you away from activities.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Attend your church, but do not expect any other plans to come out as expected. There is nothing to be gained in discussion. Overexertion can cause trouble later in the day.

For October 7

Your birthday today: After the year is over, you will title it "the year of interruptions." Time after time a project organized with great care is apt to be sidetracked, and some compromise must be reversed. Today's natives tend to be interested in diet, health and physical training.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): There is more talk than action in the day's history. The atmosphere is one of stalling until a tired away from recent static of gesture needs checking!

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Negotiations go around and around. Correspondence can be misleading. You attract opposition by your manner. Spend the evening rethinking your program.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Accept your fellow men as they are. Squabbles are easy to start and you should stay out of them. Direct your efforts toward uncovering details.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): A philosophic approach to the difference between people precludes disappointments about co-operation. Spend some time with your pastimes in the evening.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Family still holds critical attitudes. Work is susceptible to interruption from friends or fairs. Balance the pressures; keep things simple at home.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): There are so many details that concentration is difficult. Strive to preserve equanimity, particularly with relatives and in-laws. Travel brings poor results.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Keep agreements and tentative plans further discussion does not bring settlement). Financial transactions do not work out smoothly.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Personal plans are better left undiscussed. Correspondence gets out of hand and, with any negligence on your part, falls into the wrong hands. Try to understand or, better, accept the suggestions of others.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Mistakes in instruction may create tensions on the job. Try to get all your facts straight before making any serious commitment. Take a couple of short breaks, for meditation.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Not a particularly difficult day, however everybody is full of way-out ideas. Your own decisions do not hold up well in the near future.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Extra explanations, especially when you are not asked for them, can bring all sorts of confusion (and delay). Just accept the subjective factors which fill no theory.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Your self-restraint in conversation should bring you tremendous satisfaction. Listening can bring you more of the information you seek. Contracts signed will be controversial later.

Credico Cancels Its Cards

TORONTO (CP) — Holders of Credico Inc. credit cards in Montreal and Toronto have been informed by letter their cards have been cancelled.

Credico, which issued about 150,000 cards in Quebec and Ontario, had been reporting losing money, President John S. Doyle of the Montreal-based firm declined Friday to comment.

In letters dated Sept. 30, Credico card holders were told that "recent developments in the consumer card market have motivated us to discontinue the Credico consumer credit service."

Credico was reported to have about 5,000 merchant members in Toronto and Montreal and a total of about 60,000 active card users.

Credico has faced competition from Chargex, a credit operation run by four Canadian chartered banks, Barnett Canada-wide Nationale, a Chargex backer, has taken over Credico's consumer credit operation. Although not a takeover or acquisition, BCN will send Chargex cards to all Credico members in Montreal.

No similar arrangements have been made in Toronto.

George Wallace Enjoys Tilts With Hecklers

BUFFALO, N.Y. (CP) — George C. Wallace, full of bounce and with a growing taste for locking horns with hecklers, carried the day against his tormentors as he brought his presidential campaign to this industrial centre of northwest New York state.

Although well-organized in the sense they succeeded in monopolizing a block of seats directly in front of the speaker's platform, the anti-Wallace crowd of about 500 ran out of steam before Wallace was half through his set speech at Buffalo's auditorium Friday night.

Unlike others who have hounded the former Alabama governor on his swing through the northern and midwestern states, they did not have the tenacity to hang on to the end.

The Wallace majority in the crowd estimated by police to be "at least 10,000" was in full cry.

Included was a party of 16 from nearby Ontario cities under a sign "Canadians for Wallace."

Their spokesman was Ron Smith, a St. Catharines schoolteacher who said their feeling is that Wallace is the best man to conclude the Vietnam war. Wallace has said that if negotiations fail he would press for a military victory using all force short of nuclear arms.

Running mate Gen. Curtis E. LeMay, silent since his initial press conference Wednesday when he said the United States had a "phobia" about using nuclear weapons which he considered "just another weapon in the arsenal," finally got in a word.

In the understatement of this political year the vice-presidential candidate told an earlier $25-a-plate fund-raising dinner that he was using these few days with Wallace "as a little training flight" and "I must say it has been quite an education."

Wallace heatedly came to his rescue Wednesday when the press sought to pin down the retired air force general on his attitude toward nuclear weapons. Since then he had appeared constantly with Wallace—but had not spoken.

Referring to the 500 anti-Vietnam war demonstrators parading outside the hotel and yelling "Sieg heil" in mock salute to "Fascist Wallace," LeMay said:

"A lot of us spent a lot of time fighting those sieg heil boys who are running around out in front tonight and we are going to fight them again."

Signs at the rally designated Wallace as "a pig," a "Fascist" and "a smiling bigot." One, whose author was not too strong on spelling, advised the governor to "join Mrs. Wallas," a reference to his late wife who succeeded him as governor and died of cancer last spring.

Demonstrators Turn Campaign Into Vocal War

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hecklers are making life a little tougher for presidential candidates in the Nov. 5 election campaign.

Demonstrators harassed Republican candidate Richard M. Nixon in Hartford, Conn., until Nixon supporters shouted them down. Nixon's vice-presidential candidate, Gov. Spiro Agnew, was interrupted at Spokane, Wash., by shouts of "Humphrey, Humphrey," and third-party candidate George C. Wallace was challenged by cries of "Wallace go home" in Buffalo, N.Y., until the protestors marched out.

But Democratic candidate Hubert Humphrey, who has encountered some fierce heckling on his campaign trips, was resting in Washington, waiting for a possible endorsement from the board of Americans for Democratic Action, a body of liberal Democrats.

The ADA had endorsed peace candidate Senator Eugene McCarthy, defeated by Humphrey for the Democratic nomination. Humphrey's supporters say an endorsement from the ADA is vital for rallying party members opposed to the Vietnam war to the vice-president's side. Many prominent Democrats say they expect McCarthy to endorse Humphrey during a New York campaign appearance next Tuesday.

The heckling that disrupted Wallace's campaign in Buffalo was described as no worse than usual, and Wallace outlasted their jeers.

But when the protestors marched out of the auditorium and later moved 200-strong down a street, a passing car fired a volley of .22-calibre shots, police said. Officers said eight bellings were hit but no one was hurt.

Wallace was in his hotel room when the shooting occurred.

After his supporters drowned out the hecklers in Hartford, Nixon observed:

"I can see there's quite a significant difference between heckling r Nixon meeting and a Humphrey meeting. At a Nixon meeting you shout down the hecklers."

The Democratic vice-presidential candidate, Senator Edmund S. Muskie, confirmed a report that he wrote a letter to President Johnson last January urging a bombing halt in North Vietnam.

Muskie said: "I prefer that route to the public route that others are more comfortable with."

Princess Wild Rose Pleads Indians' Case

BUFFALO, N.Y. (CP) — A woman who said she is a princess of the Mohawk Indian tribe of Ontario Friday night interrupted a $25-a-plate George C. Wallace campaign dinner to plead the case of North American Indians.

Princess Wild Rose, who also used the name Lillian Hill, stood up near the end of Wallace's speech to ask what he would do if elected president Nov. 5 for Indians who are "mistreated and neglected."

Wallace said he agreed Indians are neglected and added, "I have an uncle in my family, who is an Indian.

As the audience applauded, Princess Wild Rose blew him kisses.

Later, the well-dressed woman in her 50s said she had lived in the Buffalo, N.Y., area for the last 25 years.

She said she is "quite comfortably off" herself but was speaking for her race which is neglected while politicans "kowtow to the Negroes and other minority groups." She had paid the $25 to attend the dinner, she said.

Princess Wild Rose said she was born on the Six Nations Indian Reserve near Brantford, Ont., a daughter of Chief Sundown.

Too Late to Buy Insurance Says Biafran Army Commander

WITH BIAFRANS (AP) — "Buy Union National Insurance," said the sharp-tongued billboard on the outskirts of the city.

"Do you know anyone who wants to buy insurance?" inquired Col. Joseph Achuzia, commander of Biafra's 15th Division. "I think maybe it is too late."

Ahead lay the deserted streets of Onigwi and just beyond that a knob-shaped green hill from which the Nigerian Army had been lobbing mortar and artillery shells Sunday morning.

"The shelling was so heavy the earth trembled under our feet," the colonel said in the precise English accent he acquired while serving with the British Army in Kenya.

Okigwi, a city of 5,000 persons had fallen to the Nigerians a week ago in a lightning thrust that put them less than 30 miles from the provisional capital, Umuahia, Biafra's last remaining large city.

Now the secessionist troops were attempting to retake Okigwi and stem the march on the capital, but the steady bombardment from the 800-foot high hill prevented the troops from getting any farther than the outskirts.

At first light Co. Achuzia planned an assault on the hill commanding the city. Awaiting beyond the hill was a division of Nigerian troops. If they should try to fight it out, one of the biggest battles of the 14-month-old war could be in the making, a division-sized action involving 12,000 Nigerians and 5,000 Biafrans.

Achuzia had promised the people of Okigwi they would be able to return to their homes within 48 hours.

They had fled from the advancing Nigerian troops, convinced they would be slaughtered.

Among the dead are four Red Cross workers who had elected to remain behind in the city.

"They were urged to get away, but they insisted on staying and were shot down," said Achuzia.

"The first Nigerian troops entering a city always kill every white man they find, thinking they are mercenaries. Usually it is a day or more before responsible officials get in to halt the killing."

"Why do you newspaper men always write about how small Biafra's remaining territory is?" Achuzia inquired. "The bush is vast and uncontrolled.

"We could hold out there easily for years. Cities here are only a recent development. The people know well how to get along in the bush."

Morale is never a problem among the constantly smiling, amazingly optimistic Biafrans, even at the soup kitchens where the Irish Holy Ghost Fathers were serving up the evening meal of emergency dried milk and stock fish. Protein deficiency disease is claiming thousands of lives each week but the people in the refugee camp, like those at the front, thought only of victory.

MPs Say UN Team Wrong; Call Biafra War Genocide

Trenton Planes Sought

TRENTON — With military police calmly standing in the background, a group of demonstrators carrying placards reading "Save the starving millions" and "Send planes now" marched in front of the main gate at CFB Trenton Sunday in an attempt to stimulate some air aid to the people of war torn Biafra.

The demonstrators were members of the AM Biafra Nigerian Children's Committee and they came from Toronto, Peterborough, and Hamilton.

The demonstration, which was orderly, consisted of the marchers walking back and forth in front of the main gate.

Spokesman for the group, Don Roach said the aim of the demonstration "is to highlight the lack of political action taken towards aiding the people of Biafra."

"One plane was given by the government", explained Mr. Roach, "but this was some time ago and it hasn't moved since."

"I talked to Mitchell Sharp earlier", he said, "and he has been informed of our actions."

According to one marcher, Sharon Rick, the Trenton Base was chosen for the action because it is head of Air Transport Command and as such "is a good place to get some publicity."

"Something has to be done to get planes with food to Biafra," declared the blonde haired protestor, "and we hope we can start something."

The marchers hoped their 30 minute demonstration would make the Canadian people aware of the "futility of the situation."

"There is no reason why we

Brewin and MacDonald Report on Biafra Trip

Canada Urged To Lead Way

OTTAWA (CP) — Two members of the Canadian Parliament, Sunday painted a picture of genocide and starvation in Biafra in a sharp rebuttal of a report by a military inspection team that found neither.

David MacDonald, Conservative MP for Egmont, said he was "shocked" at the conclusions of the team of British, Canadian and Swedish observers.

He and Andrew Brewin, NDP MP for Toronto Greenwood, spent 1½ days last week in Biafra, under siege by federal Nigerian troops. In a homecoming news conference, they attacked Ottawa's handling and called for strong Canadian initiatives to end starvation in the breakaway region and end the civil war.

Mr. MacDonald said the military team did not get close to the real action. There were real elements of genocide — the destruction of a people — in Biafra.

The MP, a United Church minister, said federal troops were "senselessly destroying" as they moved through Biafran villages.

Mr. Brewin said the military team was conducted on a tour arranged by the Nigerian federal authorities. He and Mr. MacDonald had gone into the Biafran camp and talked to priests and others who had spent most of their lives in the region.

There was "a tremendous degree of unanimity" on the part of their sources about the destruction and the starvation. The observer team could not have received any such insight.

Both men called for a Canadian initiative at the United Nations to produce a cease-fire and a massive international aid program for Biafrans with Canada again taking the lead.

Adequate relief could not await a victory by federal forces. The Biafrans intend to fight to the end believing that the Ibo tribe in Biafra would be destroyed by the victors.

Mr. MacDonald said he and Mr. Brewin flew into Biafra on a Tuesday night flight from the Portuguese island of Sao Tome off the Nigerian coast.

The island was one of two — the other is Fernando Po — which serve as jumping off points for the nightly airlift that carries food supplies into a makeshift airport near Uli in Biafran-held territory.

Twenty-five aircraft landed on the airstrip — which is an improved highway — the night the politicians landed. They all fly at night to avoid ground fire.

Mr. Brewin said it is urgent that Canada offer Hercules planes to the non-political relief organizations which fly in from the coastal islands. The relief organizations can get crews to fly the planes, but not the planes.

The Swedish air force had lent a Hercules plane — the only one it had — to the Red Cross for relief duty into Biafra, Mr. Brewin said.

"And we haven't noticed any hostilities between Sweden and Nigeria," he said.

The Canadian government has refused to lend planes for Biafra duty because the Nigerian federal government has not granted approval.

Mr. Brewin said the best figure they could get was that 5,000 to 6,000 people were dying of starvation every day. Many are children. They saw evidence of starving children themselves.

It was doubtful relief supplies were getting to the people in the area occupied by the Nigerian army, he said.

Mr. Brewin said there was evidence that relief supplies sent to Lagos, the Nigerian capital, were not getting to the people.

Food entering Biafra is entirely dependent on the airlift into Uli, which slightly brings in 150 to 200 tons of relief supplies. This could be tripled with the help of Canadian planes.

Northern Plant Gets Satellite Subcontract

Northern Electric Company here will receive a $1,000,000 subcontract to build parts for a giant new communication satellite system.

This will involve major expenditures for facilities in the Belleville plant and the employment of an additional 40 people with above average technical skills.

The company expects that the recent acquisition of additional warehousing space near the Sidney Street plant will make it possible to accommodate the satellite work within available manufacturing space.

Today's Chuckle

They say some college kids today are so well heeled they are hiring stand-ins for the sit-ins.

Award of the subcontract was announced this morning by Kenneth Woodley, local plant manager.

Hughes Aircraft in Culver City, Calif., was awarded the $72,000,000 contract to build communications satellites for the International Telecommunications Satellite Consortium (Intelsat).

Northern Electric will be associated with Hughes for the manufacture of the communications subsystem (Transponder) for one of the Intelsat IV satellites.

The transponder is the payload on the satellite. It takes the information transmitted by the ground station in the form of a television program or hundreds of telephone conversations and re-transmits this information to another or many other ground stations. In doing this relaying job it also changes the frequency of the radio carrier. Its capacity is 12 simultaneous TV programs or something over 5,000 telephone conversations.

Since the transponder for the Intelsat IV satellite could be similar to the transponder of a future Canadian satellite, the technology to be used and the facilities to be provided by Northern for this contract could be applied to the manufacture of satellites for the Canadian domestic satellite communications systems, Mr. Woodley said.

Douglas Reluctantly Agrees To Review Decision to Quit

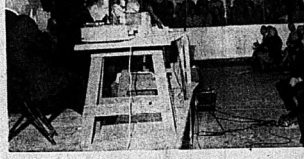
OTTAWA (CP) — Apparently reluctantly, T. C. Douglas has bowed to party pressure to review his decision to step down as NDP leader next year. He said Sunday he will reconsider.

The 64-year-old politician told a news conference during a meeting of the party's ruling federal council that he thinks—as he did before—that it is better he step down early rather than late.

"I think there comes a time when the party needs younger men," the slight and sprightly leader said. "And if the time comes, you do it quickly, rather than drag it out."

However, out of courtesy to all those within the party who asked him to remain as leader for a time, he would reconsider his position.

The requests to stay on, including pressure from the federal council, amounted to something close to a draft, Mr. Douglas said. His final decision will be made known within a matter of weeks.



In a surprise move, the council picked Winnipeg as the site of the party's next biennial convention over Ottawa, which was thought to be favored.

The convention, to be held in late October or early November of next year, was supposed to have been an expanded affair to permit the selection of a successor to Mr. Douglas.

It may still be, even if Mr. Douglas decides to give in to pressure and run. Mr. Douglas made it clear that if he runs, that does not preclude others running.

Each biennial convention is technically a leadership convention. Although nobody has contested Mr. Douglas's leadership since he became the first leader of the newly-founded party in 1961.

Mr. Douglas said he personally favors the idea of picking a new man next year to permit the new leader time to make himself known before the next federal election, possibly 1972. But others want him to stay until some point closer to the election on the theory that would give the new leader additional momentum for the election.

A Doctor in the House -- at Labor Rally!

Picton town councillor Dr. Lionel Dockrill takes the stand in support of Proctor-Silex strikers at Picton labor rally yesterday. The physician was among speakers at

Sunday-afternoon rally in local arena that aired and heard grievances involved in recent strike actions at the plant. For details see Page 3.

can't send planes," continued Miss Rick, "there are two Hercules sitting at this base doing nothing."

Col. H. A. Carswell, Base Commander of CFB Trenton, said he "found the demonstrations very orderly and free from any complications."

"I cannot, of course, give any opinions on their actions," he continued, "but as far as I am concerned they have behaved very well."

The military police, who guarded both main gates, were bolsters and this immediately brought to mind the question as to whether they were armed.

"None of the men are carrying guns," smiled Col. Carswell, "but they are unable to wear their shoulder straps unless they attach them to the device on the holster."

There were no spectators out to see demonstrators but passing motorists were doing everything but stopping on the green light at the intersection near the main gate to see what was going on.

But traffic was not blocked and there were no incidents.

One policeman put it rather casually, "... they just want a little publicity, that's all."

There could be more such action at the base. According to Mr. Roach it will all depend on the amount of "political activity" taken as a result of Sunday's demonstration.

And then they left with as little ceremony as they had come. Col. Carswell said he was informed of the upcoming demonstration on Friday and "that was all I knew".

The demonstrators represented a wide age group but was made up mostly of teenagers. There was a young girl whose placard almost covered her tiny frame and another woman marcher who could have been her mother.

Long Walk Produces Blisters

Frankford Walk Raises $12,000

TRENTON—The Frankford walkathon exceeded its goal of $10,000 as the pledges for the distance covered by each participant avalanched to $12,000.

The 300 entrants began at 7:30 Saturday morning and the last finisher came in at 5:15, and 206 of the entrants completed the course.

Among these was Frankford Councillor Marvyn Dafoe and Mrs. Gladys Nelson who had been aged as "somewhere in her sixties."

Annie Richardson, the 61-year-old entrant, covered 20 miles and has totalled $200 with money still coming.

The first to finish was Neil Thompson who ran the distance and completed the course at 10:55 a.m.

And the money is still coming as residents throughout the Quinte area are phoning in pledges.

"We have $12,000 pledged," said Ken Lawrence, chairman of the event, "but new pledges are still coming."

"I am very pleased and proud of all the entrants, we've a big step closer to that arena now," he smiled.

This has been the third such walkathon in the Quinte area — the two previous events being held in Belleville and Trenton.

Swann to Speak To UN Group

The noted and outspoken director of the Royal Ontario Museum, Peter C. Swann, will be speaking tomorrow night to the United Nations Association at 8.15 p.m. at Sir Winston Churchill School.

He came to Toronto in 1967 from the Ashmolean Museum of Oxford University where he was keeper of Eastern Art.

Under his direction the museum galleries were transformed into an outstanding show which the Times of London remarked, at its opening, sets an example of excellence for British museums.

Previously, Mr. Swann was recently retained by Princeton University to install its eastern collections. He restarted and has been editor of Oriental Art, the largest publication of its kind in the world for 10 years.

Mr. Swann has many outspoken ideas about the needs of the Royal Ontario Museum. He said recently that "a museum must expand, it can't remain static. Any businessman can tell you that an enterprise must go forward or it will inevitably go backwards."

PETER C. SWANN

Because of limited facilities, only one seventh of the museum's collection is on display and office space for the staff of 160 is in short supply.

It needs massive support to fulfill its obligations to Canada and the world and Mr. Swann says that the ROM is Canada's greatest museum noted for excellence in many departments.

The director entered Oxford University in 1939 on a history scholarship, but left the following year to join the Royal Navy.

He volunteered to study Japanese and was so successful that he was sent to Washington where he became head of an Anglo-American naval intelligence translation bureau.

After the war he returned to Oxford and upon graduating joined the Indian Institute where with Wilhelm Cohn he helped re-organize it as a museum of eastern art.

On Cohn's death, Mr. Swann became keeper of Eastern Art at the Ashmolean.

Northern Gets Boost

The Hughes contract calls for delivery to begin in 22 months and the first launching for early 1972.

The new spacecraft will be designed to operate for seven years on a solar ray battery combination.

The $1,000,000 Northern subcontract is part of subcontracts totalling $19,000,000 awarded to electronic and aerospace companies in Canada, Britain, France, West Germany, Japan, Italy, Switzerland, Belgium, Sweden and Spain.

Canada is represented in Intelsat by Canadian Overseas Telecommunication Corp.

The American representative, the U.S. Communications Corp., acts as manager of Intelsat on behalf of the 76-member consortium.

Foxboro

FOXBORO — Mrs. Margaret Downing of Hawkesbury was a weekend guest of her sister, Mrs. Harold Elliott.

Miss Shirley Dafoe, Toronto, was a weekend guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Dafoe.

Several from the village attended Madoc Fair on Saturday.

The Fire Prevention Week display at Lipsons on Front Street is ready. Paul Stevenson, fire inspector, adjusts part of the display.

Fire Department Installs Displays in City Stores

Now that Fire Prevention Week activities are in full swing members of the Belleville Fire Department are at work setting up displays in various business establishments throughout the city.

The displays show posters which carry fire prevention slogans. There are seven such exhibits in Belleville being erected for fire prevention week.

A fine example of what the exhibits illustrate is the one in Lipsons on Front Street.

The exhibit shows two dolls standing beside a wreath. The picture is completed by a poster asking "why did it have to happen?" The dolls are representative of children.

According to fire chief Ted Peate, "children pay the biggest price."

"Over a 10-year period 2,302 children have died from fire or injury received from burns."

Chief Peate cited quotes from newspapers carrying reports of children dying in fires. "As you read, your sorrow grows for the parents of these children who say 'we only left them alone for a few minutes'".

It is unlawful for anyone to "abandon or expose a child under the age of 10 years so that its life is likely to be endangered or its health is or is likely to be permanently injured" under the Criminal Code of Canada.

Anyone doing so is guilty of an offence and is liable to imprisonment for a term of two years.

This ruling is not necessarily just applicable to parents. Baby sitters also have a responsibility to the children whom they are watching.

Concerning baby sitting, instruction guides for baby sitters can be obtained at the fire chief's office at the fire station or at the office of the Fire Prevention Bureau.

City Police Busy Over the Weekend

City police, although they were kept busy with minor infractions did not have anything serious to report over the weekend.

Two vacant homes were broken into at 205 and 207 Station St. The break-ins were discovered this morning by a city patrol car and it is not known if any damage was done or if anything was stolen.

Sometime between Sept. 30 and Oct. 4 Chief Douglas Crosbie said there was an attempted break-in at the home of Mrs. Beatrice Dougall at 221 Victoria Ave.

Two unfortunate thefts, Chief Crosbie said have occurred at the home of Mrs. Donald Demike at 33 Howard St. in Belleville.

Her son, who has a paper route has had his collection money stolen two weeks in a row, a figure amounting to over $60.

There are no visible signs of a break-in though, said the chief.

And a charge of possession of a dangerous weapon was laid against 16 year old Arthur Bruce Bursbaw of Collins Bay road in Collins Bay.

Company Attacked in Speeches

Picton Rally for Proctor-Silex Strikers Draws 1,000 People

PICTON (Staff) — Proctor-Silex wage and strike policies came under blistering attack here yesterday.

Close to 1,000 Picton and area residents gathered at the Memorial Arena here, as leading political and labor figures spoke out against the company.

Oshawa NDP MPP Clifford Pilkie blasted the "corrupt and reactionary management" of the company saying he was shocked and amazed to realize that "a corporation of this size would offer wages and fringe benefits on this level."

"Wages at the plant do not even compare with new unemployment rates, where a man with a family can stay home and get $54 a week."

Workers at the plant have reported pay cheques of less than $40, following deductions.

The Toronto Economic council has found that a family can not live above the poverty level in Toronto on less than $70 per week, exclusive of housing costs" he said.

Mr. Pilkie went on to attack the injunction system in the province. An injunction was placed against the strikers two weeks ago, limiting the number of pickets to three. An appeal later raised that number to eight.

Said Mr. Pilkie; "I deplore a government that would allow injunctions to be used in labor disputes."

He stated that injunctions "relegate unions to unfair positions" and, demanded that "legislation be passed to outlaw" the legal device.

David Archer, president of the Ontario Federation of Labor went further, advising the crowd that if necessary injunctions should be ignored.

"Violence can be two-edged" he said. "It can be positive or it can be negative."

"I think that when outside workers threaten jobs, then law and order must be ignored to bring social justice."

He went on to demand more support from provincial and federal governments.

"Our prime minister talks about a 'just society', well, all that we are doing here is helping to build that just society."

I say to Queen's Park, there can be no neutrality, when fighting for that just society, so come on out and help us."

Any excuse not to give that aid is a dereliction of duty."

George Hees, MP for Prince Edward Hastings, drew both applause and cat calls although he did not attend.

When his absence, due to a prior commitment was explained by George Hutchens, Canadian IUE president, applause rang out.

Said Mr. Hutchens, "when the chips were down, when we desperately needed support, George Hees used his influence to hasten negotiation meetings."

However the crowd changed its tack when Mr. Pilkie later commented "I want to be critical of the local MP who ought to have become involved in the situation earlier than he did."

All mention of Picton Mayor H. J. McFarland touched off storms of cat calls and boos.

Mr. Hutchens explained that the mayor could not make the meeting because of illness. It had been announced earlier this week that Picton Reeve R. C. Hepburn would speak on behalf of the mayor, but Mr. Hepburn, who attended the meeting, said nothing.

A large portion of the attendance at the rally took part in a protest march through the main street of Picton.

The event was largely organized by Mrs. Mary Hahnen, a Cherry Valley housewife, who was responsible for a march last Sunday.

Criticized Harshly

Dockrill Says He Faces Community Backlash

PICTON (Staff) —The Picton councillor who appeared on Proctor-Silex picket lines last week says he has faced "community backlash."

A standing ovation greeted Dr. Lloyd Dockrill yesterday when he appeared before an estimated crowd of 1,000 at a union rally here.

He stated that he had been branded a "Trotskyite and a subversive element" by appointed town officials since his appearance on the line.

A union spokesman said following the rally that the union had also received such calls from town leaders and had been warned that the councillor was a drawback to the strikers.

Dr. Dockrill told the large crowd, "I am one of the men who got the communists out of the labor movement."

Since last week other forms of social criticism have been brought to bear.

"You find out that you owe certain businessmen money, and that they want it, and they want it now.

"You walk down the main street, and friends that you've known for years look the other way.

"People call up your wife to tell you that you're a goddamn fool.

"I would like to know what they are going to do to her. She's even better than I am because she went on the line and wasn't afraid, I was."

Mrs. Dockrill has filled in at Proctor-Silex, throughout last week, whenever the doctor has been absent.

Dr. Dockrill denied that his stand was based on political ambitions. "I declare flatly that at this time I have no intention of running for any political office for at least two years.

Company Will Not Service Proctor-Silex Appliances

"We will not sell or service Proctor - Silex products until further notice," read a boldfaced advertisement in Friday's Picton Gazette.

It was signed Wellington TV and Appliances.

Owner of the store and appliance TV service centre, Craig Platt, has started a commercial campaign against "low wages at the Proctor-Silex plant."

When asked why he felt he should boycott company products he replied that the wages at the plant were ridiculous.

"I've actually been ashamed to cash pay cheques from Proctor - Silex workers because they're so low," he stated.

Mr. Platt who handles and services Proctor - Silex products at his store has taken all of them off the shelves and stored them.

"The company ought to go back where it came from unless they start paying decent wages."

Mr. Platt, who first ran his advertisement in Friday's Gazette, says he has not talked to other merchants yet or heard their reaction but he does have definite feelings about what they should do.

"If other merchants don't start boycotting Proctor-Silex products also, it's only because they're afraid they'll have to pay over the minimum wage level themselves."

Grand Master of the Quebec order of Masons, John Naylor signed the guest book at City Hall on Saturday. Mayor J. Russell Scott welcomed the former Belleville resident who was visiting Lodge 123 AF and AM in Belleville.

$100 grows to $250 with Canada Savings Bonds

$250 for each $100. That's what you can get with this year's Canada Savings Bonds. Here's how.

The new Bonds have fourteen regular annual interest coupons which can be cashed each year as they come due. The first pays 5.75%; the second, 6.50%; the next three, 6.75% each, and the last nine a big 7.00% each. Total regular annual interest amounts to $95.50 on each $100 Bond.

If you choose you may hold all these regular annual interest coupons uncashed until your Bond matures. If you do, you will then get interest on your interest totalling an additional $54.50 on each $100 Bond.

At maturity, therefore, you can get back total interest of $150 plus your original $100 investment. This way each $100 Canada Savings Bond becomes worth $250. Other denominations can grow at the same exciting rate.

Adults, children, businesses and institutions—all may buy Canada Savings Bonds. They are available in convenient amounts of $50 up to $50,000 for cash or on instalments, wherever you work, bank or invest. And, as always, Canada Savings Bonds are cashable any time at full face value plus earned interest.

Few investments are so profitable. None builds more surely for the future. Buy Canada Savings Bonds and make your savings really grow.

SELECT COMMITTEE OF THE ONTARIO LEGISLATURE ON COMPANY LAW

On July 23rd, 1968 the Ontario Legislature established a Select Committee to enquire into and review the law relating to mergers or amalgamations, the rights of shareholders and the protection of various fundamental corporate changes, the purpose, function and scope of the annual return, the field of corporation finance, the law relating to the protection of the creditor, and the dissolution of the ordinary commercial corporation in Ontario.

And further, to enquire into and report upon such specialized types of corporations as insurance companies, loan and trust companies, corporations without share capital, credit unions, finance and acceptance companies, co-operatives, and extra-provincial companies, together with the legislation of other jurisdictions relating to the same matters.

The Committee invites written briefs from individuals and organizations wishing to comment upon the Terms of Reference as noted above. Briefs should be submitted in writing to the secretary of the Committee, Mrs. Frances Nokes by December 31st, 1968.

Public Hearings will be held at times to be announced at a later date.

Lodge Official Visits City

It was a big day Saturday for the Masonic Lodge in Belleville AF and AM 123 when the Grand Master of Quebec, John R. Naylor, who was born in Belleville, made a special visit to the Belleville Lodge.

Mr. Naylor was raised in Madoc but after joining the army during the war he never returned to the area to live.

Now living in Montreal, where he is an electrical consulting engineer, Mr. Naylor who is the leader of 17,000 Quebec Masons, pays frequent visits to the Quinte area.

After arriving in Belleville Saturday afternoon Mr. Naylor was received by Mayor J. Russell Scott at City Hall and was presented with a mantle of the city.

A reception was then held at the Masonic Lodge in Belleville and Mr. Naylor spoke to the local Masons during the evening.

One of the oldest orders in the world with seven million members, the Masons, Mr. Naylor feels, "is an organization scheduled to have a large effect on the world."

The reason for the organization's importance, according to Mr. Naylor, is the fact that its membership in every country of the world consists of men of every race, color and creed.

"Even in our membership in Quebec, we have Moslems, Roman Catholics, Hindus, Jews and others," Mr. Naylor said, "and it binds them together no matter what their ethnic background.

The Spy Game

If anyone thinks the Soviet Union and China are not involved in any way in the widespread unrest and outbursts of violence manifested by Negro rioting, student radicalism and the hippie movement, he should read the annual report of the United States federal bureau of investigation.

The report points to growing security threats from the espionage operations of both countries and from the "new left" movement on college campuses. It also noted that "the question of foreign influences in the black nationalist movement is a matter of grave concern."

Among supporters of the new left, including hippies, disenchanted intellectuals and students, there is, according to the FBI, talk of sabotage, violence and destruction of key facilities like selective service offices, communications and plumbing systems.

The report says Russia and China have stepped up their efforts to obtain information about United States defence planning, and the agency quotes a Soviet defector as saying that 70 to 80 per cent of persons in the Soviet diplomatic corps are involved in intelligence work.

A recent report from the West German capital of Bonn is relevant to this. The Bonn government is said to have secretly warned the Western allies of a Soviet plan to invade West Germany and Holland.

The report — in a Munich newspaper — understandably gives few details, but with the lesson of Czechoslovakia fresh in mind the prospect of a Soviet invasion of the West should not be discounted. Nor should the evidence of subversive activity as contained in the report of the FBI be ignored. Such activity has long been the practice of both east and west. That it seems to be bearing fruit for the communists, to the disadvantage of the West, is the lesson to be learned from this report.

Acts of Cruelty

Canadians are not animal lovers in the way the English are. Any number of people own dogs, for instance, but they are not conspicuous for the care and attention they lavish upon them.

The regulations that govern dog ownership, keeping them largely confined, militate against any great fondness for the canine species. They are just kept tied up and this is a refined form of cruelty that regretfully is allowed to pass virtually unnoticed. Few owners are ever observed walking their dogs.

All this aside, two humane society reports — from Burlington and Kitchener — reveal attitudes and behavior toward animals infinitely more grim. In Burlington a dog was scalded to death in a washing machine at a coin laundry, and in Kitchener a two-year-old collie was castrated and allowed to bleed to death near its home.

The Ontario Humane Society is offering $100 rewards in each case for apprehension of the persons responsible. The public will endorse this, but no reward could ever compensate for the sheer horror of these incidents. They are reminders of the dark corners that lurk in human nature and which occasionally are revealed in grim, terrible deeds such as these.

Bad Manners

The scene is a drinking fountain and a little girl has just swallowed a mouthful of good Belleville tap water. Three other small girls are lining in line. Along come two boys, a little older than the girls and they muscle in ahead of the trio, have their fill and depart.

If displays of bad manners are common among adults, it is not difficult to discern at what stage in life the seeds were sown. Certainly it is apparent all the time — men walking into elevators or out of restaurants ahead of their wives or women companions, and small sailing past without a word or smile as someone holds a door open for them.

Of all the human qualities that remain in an increasingly impersonal age, common courtesy is the one we can least afford to neglect. And yet that seems to be the trend. It can be halted though, if the young people are taught early in life.

Some words of U.S. presidential candidate Hubert Humphrey bear on this mind. "The first quality of a good education," he once said, "is good manners. Some people think of course."

U.S. One Trillion Dollars Since 1945

No Let-up in Arms Expenditure by Major Powers

By ARCH MacKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP)—The Soviet Union is prepared to "start a serious exchange of views" with the U.S. on nuclear defences and offences, Foreign Minister Gromyko told the United Nations Thursday.

This emphasis on wanting to continue the East-West dialogue is encouraging amid the chill imposed by the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia.

It also is a little late.

President Johnson consistently has pressed for progress on limiting a race toward anti-missile defence systems.

Now the U.S. national mood indicates readiness to accept expansion of muscle in that and a number of other military areas. The Soviet Union has displayed similar intentions with its expansion into the Middle East, a far-flung naval deployment, a start on its own missile defences and its hard-line handling of the Czechoslovaks.

Any major U.S.-U.S.S.R. arms conference seems unlikely in the near future.

The U.S. attitude is illustrated by another futile effort in Congress this week to trim a $71,-900,000,000 defence spending bill, largest appropriation in U.S. history.

A minority of senators made a fourth effort to postpone the start of a defence said to be needed against a Chinese missile threat in the mid-1970s. Critics say it is a start on a system that could cost $70,-000,000,000.

Richard Nixon, as Republican presidential candidate and regarded as a winner Nov. 5, has declared the U.S. missile strength is yielding to Soviet superiority. He has said he will revive the lagging U.S. space program which has vital military aspects.

Senator Richard Russel of Georgia, a Democrat who introduced the record defence bill this week, said "we cannot continue to support a war, be capable of honoring our commitments abroad and maintain an adequate defence posture without substantially increasing the size of our defence budget in the near future."

Vietnam alone was costing about $30,000,000,000 annually.

Senator Joseph Clark, Pennsylvania Democrat, made this week's abortive effort to cut defence spending and quoted former physicist Ralph Lapp as saying the U.S. since the end of the Second World War has spent about one trillion dollars on arms.

"What have we got to show for it?" he asked. "As a matter of fact nothing except uncertainty and fear."

All his amendments to slice the defence budget were roundly defeated.

Strikes Are Part Of A Free Society

The Montreal Star

In his speech to the commons recently Labor Minister Mackasey pointedly reminded us that the sometimes major inconveniences caused by strikes are the price we have to pay to maintain a free society.

"Recently, when visiting Poland," he said, "I spoke to the minister of labor in that country and was informed that there are no strikes in Poland, in Russia, in East Germany, or in any country behind the iron curtain. Strikes are one of the penalties, one of the inconveniences that a free society such as ours must accept periodically."

The speech underlined the fact that all in all, that inconvenience does not occur too often. Out of 100 situations of labor conflict since the beginning of this year, 94 were settled peacefully, and only six broke out into the open. It is obvious that in such conditions, our system of collective bargaining is working in a fairly satisfactory way on the whole, and that we are not facing a state of crisis so grave as to justify a complete realignment of our labor legislation.

There are of course cases where it becomes necessary to put an end to a strike. Mr. Mackasey was right in insisting on the difficulties of assessing the precise time for such intervention, and in remarking that it is always a matter of personal appreciation.

The most vital argument in Mr. Mackasey's speech is that strikes involve people, and that the reactions and attitudes of people cannot be molded by force. Until the last human being has been replaced by a robot, we will have to accept that in human relations, progress is often slow and events unpredictable. It is good to have as minister of labor a man who is aware of this and who has enough respect for people so as not to rush to mechanical solution of complex problems.

TODAY IN HISTORY

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Oct. 7, 1963 . . .

First World War

The German Democratic Republic was established 19 years ago today—in 1949. In 1945, Germany was divided into British, French, American and Russian zones to arrest war criminals and dismantle war industries. The British and American zones were amalgamated in 1947 to facilitate economic reconstruction, over French and Russian protests. When France agreed to join in, the East-West split worsened. The Russians blockaded Berlin and the Western powers set up the German Federal Republic early in 1949.

1845—Edgar Allan Poe died in a Baltimore gutter.

1898—Havana was occupied by United States troops.

Fifty years ago today—in 1918—British troops advanced north of the Somme River and took Oppy and Biache St. Vaast, as French forces occupied Berre-au-Bac and American soldiers made gains in the Argonne Forest; French marines entered Beirut, Syria's chief seaport.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1943—the German Air Force made its heaviest and longest raid on London and other sections of south-east England to date; RAF and RCAF bombers attacked Stuttgart; Russian soldiers cracked the German Dnieper River line and drove a wedge through the Leningrad-Vitebsk front.

Canada's Indians Belong To Two Different Worlds

Peterborough Examiner

The Indian in Canada belongs to two worlds; one no longer exists and the other does not want him. The old tradition tells him not to be acquisitive, to work only hard enough to feed and clothe himself and his family. But the new society — the world he runs into if he is to escape squalor and disease — scolds him for being lazy and shiftless. He is told to be responsible, but he is not allowed to buy insurance or to borrow money. He is told to send his sometimes sent away to school, separated from the family at the age of seven or six, and, as Miss Carpenter points out, the result is a breakdown of tradition and the child's sense of being meaningful to take its place.'

While Canadian students and others stage demonstrations and talk passionately of the need to help the starving Biafrans, Indian babies die daily of malnutrition. The infant mortality rate among Eskimos is about 293 deaths per thousand live births — more than 10 times the infant death rate for the population as a whole. The average life expectancy of an Indian woman is 25 years. Close to 80 per cent of Indians have incomes of less than $3,000 and 28.2 per cent survive on less than $1,000.

To Robert Andras, a bright and seemingly able young minister assisting Mr. Chretien in the Trudeau government, has fallen the unenviable task of writing a new Indian Act to bring the Indian and the Eskimo into the main stream of Canadian society. A central problem he faces is that Canada's 220,000 Indians, Eskimos and Metis are not the most part also away in 2,250 reserves, some of them in remote, almost inaccessible areas. Their circumstances differ from one province to another and — almost — from reserve to reserve, the formulation of a single policy is an impossibility. What is needed is a flexible, people-oriented act that can be applied in harmony with provincial legislation to avoid allowing compelling needs to remain unmet because they fall between jurisdictions.

Farm Credit

Windsor Star

Farmers will have to pay the going interest rates on new loans under the Farm Credit Act and the Farm Improvement Loans Act. This could mean eight per cent or more compared to the present five.

There are two reasons. One is that banks and other lending institutions just aren't coming forward with the money at five per cent. Another is, why should farmers get money at that low rate while other citizens have to pay much more? The latter is a fair question.

Prudent farmers, however are apt to shy away from the higher rates. They are in a more vulnerable position than most borrowers. They have to depend on their crops and the prices for the same to meet interest and other mortgage payments.

"Home" Plan Gets Poor Response

Windsor Star

Ontario's H.O.M.E. program to promote housing is something less than a great success. What is the difficulty in selling all the lots in certain areas. The reasons should be apparent to the authorities.

Many eager people did line up for lots in Windsor but only 128 of the 242 lots had been taken up as of Friday afternoon. Those not spoken for can be had by builders.

The snag, as in most housing projects, is the cost. The idea was, by making serviced lots available, the down payment on and the cost of, a new house would thereby be reduced.

The lots can be bought outright for $6,500 each or over a 25-year period, or leased. But those who have from $5,250 to $6,500 in cash could have used it for the down payment on a house.

The costs on the installment plan run to $44.01 a month, and for leasing, to $36.82. These payments could be lowered by a realistic computation, to the mortgage payments on the house itself. It isn't easy to see how a purchaser will save much over a 25-year period or longer.

No Policy Change Foreseen

War of "Stabilized Attrition" Continues in Vietnam

WASHINGTON (CP)—The anesthetic that President Johnson has tried to apply to the Vietnam war as a U.S. election issue has worn off somewhat.

But his basic war policy as of March 31 last—call it stabilized attrition—may well endure no matter who succeeds Johnson Jan. 20 after winning the Nov. 5 election.

Nothing that has materialized in the U.S., in North Vietnam or at the Paris peace talks so far holds out any prospect of a substantial shift by anybody in the Johnson formula.

That includes Vice-President Hubert Humphrey's televised speech Monday night in which he said that if elected president he would stop the bombing of the North following any "direct or indirect" sign of military reciprocity from the Hanoi.

For Humphrey, besieged by small, noisy and determined anti-war protestors wherever he goes, the speech was another major effort to ease away from the Johnson war stand.

But in reality, what he said has been said before by the president, only with most emphasis on the need of North Vietnam to produce a suitable sign of mutual concession.

The Johnson format in force since March 31 consists of efforts to use more Asian troops where possible, of an end to the build-up of American forces, and of continued efforts to firm up a sounder, more respectable Southern regime.

The end product is pursuit of the limited goal of a political settlement that permits the U.S. and North Vietnam to claim peace with honor, so far an impossible quest.

This limited objective is not advertised by the U.S. but it has existed ever since the president switched policies.

This was, in the words of the Washington Post recently, a "shift in strategy and tactics, a modification of mission, a resting of the stage which now is so firmly fixed that it is very probably irrevocable by whoever is the next president."

Essential to the plan is the prevention of another January offensive by the North Vietnamese and Vietcong which set loose so much anxiety and frustration among the American public that it led pretty directly to Johnson's decision to alter course.

Now, there is nothing in the shapeless mass constituting the present face of American public opinion that shows a majority opposed to the present course of events in Vietnam.

That includes Republican nominee Richard Nixon, apparently far out in front, who continues after the latest Humphrey move to support the presidential policy as the best for Paris peace prospects.

George Woodhouse, a member of the Belleville Fish and Game Club, helps count up scores at the club's first annual turkey shoot held on Saturday. Forty birds were given to winners of three different events.

Turkey Shoot Huge Success

Forty big birds came down in a hail of buckshot and 22 calibre bullets Saturday at a Turkey Shoot sponsored by the Belleville Fish and Game Club.

Even Mayor Russell J. Scott won himself a Thanksgiving turkey as he shot against Dr. Richard Potter, MPP for Quinte.

Of course, both the MPP and the Mayor were using the same gun, (it belonged to the mayor) which might have influenced the outcome.

Naturally the birds were already cleaned and ready to cook — all shooting was done at targets. And contestants had their choice of three ways to win their Thanksgiving meal.

With the 12 gauge shotgun event shot at a circle 30 yards away, six shooters competed. The one with the closest buckshot in the circle won himself a bird.

In the 22 calibre event 12 shooters competed and the one shooting nearest the centre of the target 20 yards away was the winner.

Just in case there were contestants who didn't want to win with a gun there was also a horseshoe game set up and anyone who won seven games throwing shoes also took home a bird.

An archery course was also set up and members of the local Belleville club gave demonstrations of their skill with a bow.

The shoot was held at the Fred Hosking farm in Sidney township and Roy Nix, of the Fish and Game club, said that it would be an annual event.

Over 300 rounds of ammunition were used and all of the 40 birds will find themselves on somebody's Thanksgiving table.

Snowmobiles, automobiles, firearms and archery equipment comprised the displays and a refreshment stand was also on the scene to provide hot coffee in steady serves.

Most of the shooters didn't need steadying though as an eye on a turkey kept their arms steady and eyes keen.

Students Raise $1,800 For New School Bus

Pupils at Belleville District Christian School pulled a switch Saturday.

They walked 20 miles to buy a school bus.

Their 20-mile hike netted them $1,800.

About 42 walkers were transported to Tweed in the old school bus and they walked down Highway 37 to the finish line at the school on the Foxboro Road.

Thirty-seven walkers finished the distance. A 7-year-old who walked five miles made $50 for her stint.

The 80 pupil school is operated by the parents of the pupils enrolled without benefit of government grants. It employs three teachers and is governed by the Belleville District Christian School Society.

Opp Officers Take Course

TWEED — Two members of the Ontario Provincial Police detachment at Madoc, are attending a six-week course at Aylmer Police College.

Provincial Constable John Mitchell and Constable Robert Holm are taking the first half of a 12-week course that all OPP members receive.

"This course, along with inservice training lectures carried out at the detachments through the winter months, keeps officers up-to-date on the latest law enforcements methods" a detachment spokesman stated.

Giant Cross Canada Walkathon Could Raise Funds for Memorial

TRENTON — A walkathon to end all walkathons — that's what is being planned by officials of the proposed RCAF memorial building here.

The idea is one of a cross-Canada walkathon in which persons from all over the country would begin to march towards Trenton to raise funds for the memorial building.

"It won't matter whether a person is two miles or 2,000 miles away," said Maj. Norman Cairns, co-ordinator for the project, "He will begin his trek to Trenton."

The basic plan is to have a person walk as far as he can and then someone else will take over.

As an example, Maj. Cairns said, the mayor of Victoria would begin his walk eastward letting the mayor of the city of which he stopped take over and continue the trek.

This basic relay system will apply to anybody entering the walk.

Maj. Cairns emphasized that the whole event has not yet even reached the planning stage.

"We will have the walk," he said, "but I have only known about it for a few days. We haven't even begun the organization yet."

According to Maj. Cairns, the organization will have to be "something fantastic if the walk is to succeed."

The memorial building will cost approximately $3,000,000 but no estimates have been given as to the amount expected to be raised by the walk.

Just what the proposed memorial building will look like has not yet been revealed as the final result will be determined by an architects' contest.

However, certain standards have been set.

The building will contain an interdenominational chapel which will seat 700 to 1,000 people along with two subchapels with seating capacity for 75 persons each.

A convention hall, the size of which remains indefinite, will make up a major portion of the building. The size of the actual display area will depend upon the final plan.

Nor has the interior display been finalized. A spokesman said the building "will commemorate the work done by the RCAF past, present and future."

"It will be different from any other such building in Canada said Capt. Tony Leitcster, National Co-ordinator for the project.

Doctor Injured In Accident

PICTON (Staff) — A Wellington doctor is in Kingston Military hospital this morning following a single car accident on highway 49 just north here at eight o'clock this morning.

Dr. Roger Derek Hirst's 1964 Chevrolet skidded from a slippery road, flipped end over end and then side over side and came to rest 102 feet from the highway.

Dr. Hirst, 31, suffered a broken pelvis. Damages to the Department of National Defence vehicle amounted to approximately $1,000.

He was originally taken to the Prince Edward Memorial Hospital but was later transferred to Kingston.

'Copter and Dogs Search For Two Missing Youths

SHARBOT LAKE — A helicopter and tracker dogs were called in by provincial police today in the search for two teenagers missing since Sunday in dense bush north of here.

But bad weather is hampering efforts to locate Peter Phillips, 16 and Gordon White, 15, both of Ottawa.

The youths were spending the weekend at the cottage of White's parents on Kashwakmak Lake in Barrie township, about 25 miles north of here and east of Highway 62.

Both were lightly clad when they set out for a walk about 11 a.m. on a recently-built road near the cottage say police.

They apparently strayed into the bush and lost their bearings.

Nights are cold in the region at this time of year and the fact is the boys are not warmly dressed adds urgency to the search, say officers.

Trucker dogs were called in from police kennels at Kemptville this morning as the search got under way. A search-rescue helicopter was despatched over the area from Canadian Forces Base, Trenton.

However, heavy rain and mist is working against the searchers, said an air force spokesman.

Home and School Association News

(PARK DALE SCHOOL)

The Auditorium of Park Dale Public School was overflowing for the first Home and School meeting of the 1968-69 term.

Parents were introduced to the teaching staff and Mr. B. A. Wright, Principal, explained how some of the new teaching and grading methods are being used in schools today with particular application to Park Dale Public School.

Mr. Burnett, vice-principal and Miss Meale, physical education teacher gave parents an idea of the type of fitness program their children would be engaged in, in the coming year.

Miss Murray announced plans for a student choir. In their endeavor to exceed last year's membership and involve additional parents and friends in their Home and School Association, Park Dale has begun a membership drive this year. Their aim, "Everyone a member by the end of November."

If their first meeting is any indication, they certainly have a good chance of accomplishing their aim. They exceeded last year's membership in their first meeting.

On closing the meeting, J. Cox, president, invited everyone to refreshments served by the social committee.

MARMORA INTERMEDIATE

The first Home and School meeting of the season was held in Marmora Intermediate School with a good attendance.

Kenneth Gillies, principal, presided over the meeting in the absence of Mrs. T. Neal, president of Home and School.

Due to the influx of many new pupils from the district, several extra teachers have been hired. Miss Wilkes, who teaches Home Economics to Grades 7 and 8, and Mr. McCauley, Industrial Arts teacher for Grades 7 and 8 are "shared" with Stirling Public School.

An addition is to be built to the Earl Prentice School in the near future, where grades one and two are taught. The Kindergarten at this school has been discontinued, and pupils are now attending Sacred Heart School. Mr. Ken Gillies is principal, Mr. J. Murphy vice-principal of the three schools.

Friends and Relatives Honor Couple Wed for 25 Years

Mr. and Mrs. George Sine were honored on their silver wedding anniversary on Saturday evening, when they were dinner guests of their family at the Sun Luck Gardens in Belleville. On their arrival at the Gardens, they were welcomed by members of both families.

Following dinner, John McDonald, son-in-law, acted as the master of ceremonies, welcoming everyone, and extending congratulations to the bride and groom of 25 years; and inviting everyone to spend the evening at the Sine home. Mr. Elliott and Burton Sine spoke briefly.

On arriving home, their neighbors had gathered to spend the evening and extend best wishes. Mrs. Sine's family and several of the neighbors presented the couple with gifts.

Mr. and Mrs. Sine expressed their thanks and appreciation for the thoughtfulness of their family and neighbors. Mrs. Harold Holden, who was bridesmaid and George Runnells, groomsman, were also present for the occasion.

A social time was enjoyed and a bountiful lunch served, with a beautiful anniversary cake, prepared by their daughter, Carol McDonald, as the highlight.

Brose — Emerson

Centenary United Church was the setting for the recent marriage of Joan Ann Emerson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John D. Emerson, Belleville, RR 5 and Arthur John Brose, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilmer Brose of Roseville. Rev. John Bunner officiated and Alec Gordon of Belleville rendered traditional wedding music and accompanied the soloist Mrs. Dorothy Freitag, Toronto.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full length bridal gown of white peau de soie featuring a Chantilly lace bodice with high neckline and lily-point sleeves. The dress was enhanced with a detachable train extending from the waistline in unpressed pleats. A crown of tulle roses centred with seed pearls was caught to a petticoat scalloped veil of silk illusion. She carried a cascade of pink roses and ivy.

As matron of honor, Mrs. Marilyn Sager of Montreal wore a full-length short sleeved gown of jade green peau de soie with matching jacket of green velvet. She wore a matching floral headdress and carried a bouquet of white shasta 'mums. Miss Brenda Brose, sister of the bridegroom and the Misses Pat and Jackie Emerson, sisters of the bride wore gowns identical to the matron of honor and carried similar bouquets.

Ted Brookes of Peterborough attended the bridegroom while the ushers were Bob Lancaster, cousin of the bride, Bob Slemon and John Zadow all, both cousins of the bridegroom.

At the reception in Centenary Church Hall, the bride's mother received the guests wearing a yellow silk shantung worsted dress with rolled beaded collar and matching pearled hat, beige accessories and a corsage of bronze 'mums.

She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother who wore a beige brocade dress, feathered hat to match, copper shade accessories and a corsage of talisman roses.

Leaving on the honeymoon trip to the New England States and Maine, the bride chose a pale gold three worsted silk suit with navy accessories and a corsage of bronze 'mums.

On return the couple will reside at 361 Devonshire Street, Woodstock, Ontario.

Campbellford Lionettes Hold Regular Meet

The October dinner meeting of the Campbellford Lionettes took place at George's Restaurant with 19 members in attendance. The dinner draw was won by Aileen Craighead and the prize draw by Laura Horsman.

During the week October 15 to 20, the Lionettes will be assisting with the annual CNIB canvass.

It was adopted at this meeting to hold the monthly meeting in the first Wednesday, rather than the first Tuesday of the month. The Cobourg Lionettes extended an invitation to the club to attend a dinner meeting there on October 23rd.

The meeting adjourned and members enjoyed card games and visiting. The next meeting will be held on Wednesday, November 6.

Senator J. Quart Speaker At B and P Regional Meet

On Saturday at the Sun Valley Motor Inn the Business and Professional Women of Belleville were hostesses for the annual regional meeting with clubs from Napanee and Tweed.

The banquet room was suitably decorated to match the decor of Ontario autumn scenery and the Thanksgiving holiday.

At the conclusion of a most educational day, the regional meeting was climaxed with one of the most interesting and humorous speakers this club has ever presented. Mrs. Irene Haig introdduced to the club Senator Josie Quart, The Senator received the greetings from the city of Belleville from His Worship, Mayor J. Russell Scott.

The Senator is a vibrant person and her talk projected her personality throughout. She has served with the United Nations and also on one of the Diefenbaker Commissions among her many activities. She spoke of the many changes taking place in life today and feels that women as well as men have to put their shoulders to the wheel and play a dual role.

Without neglecting her family responsibilities a woman must share her life with more outside interests, in business, politics, government or volunteer work if the democratic way of life is to be salvaged for future generations. She continued, "A wife's first duty is to her husband and children and any intelligent woman will readily admit that the role of wife and mother is a woman's crowning glory. But if Providence gives her the strength, the opportunity, time and talent to participate in public life and perform a dual role why should there be any criticism?"

Senator Quart went on to say, "In my opinion the most important factor involved as to cancer of working wives is the comment and co-operation of the husband, with the household chores and the care of the children.

A woman should never feel inferior by being labelled 'merely a housewife' for it is one of the noblest and most rewarding professions for a woman.

Senator Quart continued, "Now, personally, I have never recognized any differences between men and women in public life — men and women working together for the general good can help one another in a complementary way. But a woman has a personality of her own, for this reason she has a truly specific and important role to play in modern society and women must accept the challenge and the responsibility.

In fact it becomes a matter of conscience for even a married woman who has some quarantine, education and energy to embrace every opportunity to elevate the standard of society in which she lives, even as a volunteer. Single women are as free as the sky to follow a career as are widows without any family responsibilities."

The Senator spoke of her membership in the senate and gave her personal opinion about the importance of that "august and honorable body" which is frequently referred to as "the most exclusive club in Canada." May I state that a tendency exists today which is so unjust and unduly critical of men and women in public office — they are expected to be "all things to all people'."

"What is a woman's role in the Senate?" continued the Senator. "A woman's role in the Senate should be the same as that played by the honorable senators of the so-called stronger sex. However I admit that women have a particular aptitude to date on public life restricts to a degree her capacity and willingness to act on all debates. She should be alert on all subjects and ready to express her opinion especially in committees, on legislation which is of special interest to women as the welfare of the family and to be willing to help women's organization by supplying information and by presenting their bills when requested to do so.

Many men ask why do women take part in public life with its exposure to envy, intrigue and numerous frustrations? Do they want women to dodge their responsibilities? For if women are obligated to pay taxes and to obey laws it is only just that they be given a share in the making of them. The state like the home needs a woman's viewpoint in order to create a well-balanced society. With women's new found freedom there is every reason to believe that women's entry into public life will have a profound social significance and will bring with it an element of justice.

Both men and women must realize the importance of team work on an equal intellectual basis for never has Canada needed intelligent co-operation of all its citizens more than at the present time. Because of this shared goal, there is no field of human activity which must remain closed to a woman."

These remarks were just some of the highlights of Senator Quart's speech. She frequently interspersed humorous opinions which kept the club in a receptive mood.

The speaker was thanked by Miss Joy Nichols of the Belleville club.

All members of the club extend their appreciation for a job well done to Mrs. Marie Huffman and Mrs. Shirley Woodcox in the excellent organizing, and to the decorating group headed by Mrs. Lois Brown and Mrs. Colombe Both.

Local Minister, Wife Wed for Fifty Years

A quiet celebration took place in the Prince Edward Suite, Hotel Quinte, Saturday afternoon on the occasion of the fifty-th wedding anniversary of Rev. and Mrs. W. H. V. Walker, MacDonald Gardens, Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Walker, who have lived in Belleville since the minister's retirement in December 1958, were married in Bethany Presbyterian Church on October 2, 1918. At that time Rev. Dr. E. A. Thompson of Toronto officiated with the attendants being Mrs. James Turnbull (nee Alice Ryley of Peterborough) and the late Rev. Watson A. Wescott.

Mrs. Walker is the former Olive, M. Rowan, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Rowan, formerly of Bethany, Ontario. In addition to attending Bethany Public School and the Lindsay Collegiate she studied music in Bethany and Peterborough. Throughout the years she has been active in church work having served in the choir, the Ladies' Aid and Young People's Group, also engaging in missionary work as well as being on the executive of the Synod of Toronto and Kingston.

Mr. Walker who graduated from Knox College in Toronto in 1917 previously attended schools in Port Hope and then Model School, after which he taught school in Bewdley for four years.

He was a student minister at Bethany and was ordained as minister of the newly-formed charge of Bethany, Janeville and Ballyduff. In 1925, Bethany Church was closed and the church at Nestleton became a part of this charge.

After serving for 21 years on the pastorate in the Peterborough Presbytery, Mr. Walker was called to the Stirling and West Huntingdon Charge in the Kingston Presbytery where he served for 20 years.

The bridegroom of 50 years is son of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Walker and the couple have two sons, Dr. William John Walker of Hamilton and Dr. V. C. Rowan Walker of Toronto. There are also four grandchildren.

Although retired Mr. Walker still remains active, supplying various pulpits in the area. Both Mr. and Mrs. Walker are enjoying comparatively good health and throughout the coming week friends will be most welcome to call at their home.

Ann Landers

Druggist Supposed To Fill Prescriptions

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am about 15 pounds overweight and have tried all sorts of diets which didn't work. A friend of mine told me about some "reducing pills" which did wonders for her. I got a few pills for myself and took them in my doctor. He said they would probably not help me but they wouldn't hurt me and if I wanted to take them I could.

ANN LANDERS

Well, Ann, the pills are doing the trick and I am thrilled. The only problem is the druggist. He refuses to give me more than six pills at a time. He insists I come in every four days so he can check my muscle tone. His takes me back in the stock room and feels all over and then says, "Yes, your musculature is fine. No breakdown of tissue."

If my husband knew about this he'd knock the guy's block off. I don't know whether or not to say anything because it may be that he is behaving in a professional manner and means nothing personal.

Please tell me what you know about this. — MINUS TEN.

* * *

DEAR MINUS: I know that a druggist is supposed to fill prescriptions — not massage the customers. Get your physician to recommend some exercises for you and let him check your "musculature" periodically.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I have four daughters, 16, 15, 14 and 13. Ted works 25 miles from home. For the last two years he has been wanting to move across the Bay. He says the added time and energy would result in better communication. Also he is tired when he gets home and complains more and more about the heavy traffic and the exhausting drive.

Whenever he brings up the subject the girls cry. They don't want to leave their lifelong friends. The oldest one is going steady. We keep reading articles about traumatic changes hurting children. The last thing our 15-year-old said was, "Money isn't everything."

Will you please give us some balanced counsel? Our kids have made us feel like morons. — SAN FRANCISCO.

* * *

DEAR SAN: Show me a family run by children and I will show you a couple of cowards. If in your husband's judgment he would do better on the other side of the Bay, he should tell the girls to start packing. They might love it. There are Boys in Oakland, too, you know.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: When you pay for an article and the change is under 5c, should you stand around and wait? I have asked several friends and they are as bewildered as I. It's a comfort (but no help) to know that others feel foolish, to — waiting for 2 or 3c. Yet, they are reluctant to leave because they are afraid the clerk will be insulted. Yes or No? — NO PENNY COLLECTOR.

* * *

DEAR NO P/C COLLECTOR: By all means wait. Offhand I can think of two good reasons: (1) If you don't wait you'll buss up the bookkeeper's balancing act. (2) If you do wait you'll have some pennies in your pocket for your next purchase.

EVENING STYLES FROM THE EAST — These two elegant dresses for evening wear are from the Spring '69 collection of the Lucie Kaiser fashion house in Altenburg, East Germany. At left is a two-piece white evening gown, embroidered with pearls, which shows off a bare midriff. At right is a gown made of a material with silver metallic finish, decorated with red wool hoops. Successful Living

Pointers Given for Would-be Pen Pals

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: Please give me some sage advice about how to write letters. I have always been terrible at it, but I do love to get mail.

I cannot go out much because of arthritis. — Homebound.

Dear Homebound: It's a universal malady. During the postal strike friends of mine said they were glad of the strike because they didn't feel quite so guilty about not writing the letters they ought to, knowing they wouldn't be delivered anyway.

Pointers for would-be pen pals:

(1) First address the envelope and put a stamp on it.

(2) The introductory paragraph is usually stiff and hard to get over. Do without it. Plunge in with what would have been your second paragraph.

(3) Don't wait until you can write a masterpiece. Settle for a few warm, anecdotal paragraphs; or even just a couple which deliver the five-star news of the day.

All some folk need is to get started; then the pen runs away with itself. After several pages a favorite correspondent of mine writes: "That seems to be the news for now. I remind myself of something my son once said.

"At school it was necessary for them to mend some of their clothes. He told me he could sew very well but when he finished sewing, he didn't know how to stop. That's me, with my writing."

* * *

Dear Doris: I, too, am the mother of a four-year-old artistic boy, who seems to have almost identical symptoms to those mentioned in Happy Ending's letter. I would therefore be most interested in getting in touch with this mother for more details as to how her son progressed and some of the methods used to help him.

Her letter has been the most encouragement I've had in a long time, for although John seems to be making good progress since starting nursery school, doctors and professional people always seem reluctant to offer too much encouragement for fear of building your hopes too high. Perhaps they are right!

But I think any parent of an artistic child will agree that one needs all the hope, encouragement and help one can get. — Looking For Hope.

Dear Looking: Indeed she does and I'll pass you on to Happy Ending with confidence.

Yet a doctor dreads to give false hope. We expect infallible promises from our medical men — and they are after all, human.

Points for Parents

Father: "How much will you charge to rake the leaves for me?"

Son: "I don't need any money now. I'd rather play with the kids Saturday."

The bonus belongs to the whole family and children should be expected to do their share without bribes or special rewards for their chores.

Father: "The yard needs raking this week. Will you plan to do it either after school or on Saturday morning?"

Confidential to Always Forgetting: Did you know that people often forget to do the things they don't enjoy doing or cannot do well? A boy will forget to do his math homework, although really meaning to struggle through it. A girl might forget about a date with a boy she didn't like very much.

The answer is to hitch the unwelcome thought to a better one: keep the science homework (which you dislike) and the literature home work (which you do) in the same notebook or folder.

Better still: Turn and face that math stumbling block, get some extra special instruction in it until you know it upside down. Then you'll reach for the math homework first!

(Do you wonder why the people you care about act as they do? Let Doris shed light on your particular human problem. And remember that stamped envelope!)

A Simple Dessert for Thanksgiving

By MARY MOORE

Important Note: See below.

A simple delicious Thanksgiving dessert that the daughter of the house will be thrilled to produce is —

PUMPKIN ICE CREAM PIE
(serves 8 to 10)

Crumb Crust:
1 one-third cups fine graham cracker crumbs
one-third cup light brown sugar
one-third cup barely melted butter

Or Alternatively —
Pastry Crust:
1¼ cups sifted but not sifted all-purpose flour
¼ teaspoon salt
one-third cup shortening
3 tablespoons butter
1 tablespoon cold water

Filling:
1 cup canned pumpkin
½ cup light brown sugar
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon ginger
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon nutmeg (or mace)
1 quart (or 2 pints) vanilla ice cream
Amateur cooks use Crumb Crust: Combine graham cracker crumbs, brown sugar, and melted butter thoroughly. Press evenly into large pie plate, bottom and sides with even top edge. Chill — do not bake.

Experienced cooks make Pastry Crust: Cut shortening and butter into flour and salt until size of small peas. Drizzle in water. Press into ball. Roll out on floured board to fit ten-inch deep pie plate. Flute edge and prick crust. Bake at 450 deg. Fahr. about 8 to 10 minutes. Cool.

To make Filling remove ice cream from freezer to start it softening a little. In a large bowl combine pumpkin, brown sugar, salt and spices and stir in ice cream until blended. Turn into prepared crumb or pastry pie shell. Smooth top. (If you have too much filling do not pile it up. Turn excess into plastic freezer container and freeze and serve as ice cream next day.) Cover pie gently with generous sheet of saran. Slip into plastic bag and freeze hard. Ten minutes before serving time remove from freezer and cut into wedges and serve at once, if desired, with puff of unsweetened whipped cream and sprinkle of chopped pecans.

UCW Meetings

MOIRA U.C.W.

Mrs. Wallace McInroy was hostess for the September meeting of the Moira U.C.W., a unit to the Thomasburg U.C.W. The president, Mrs. David Mumby, opened the meeting.

The conveners, Mrs. James Vanderwater and Mrs. D. Mumby, led in the devotional part of the meeting with the other members participating. Business was discussed and plans were made to cater to a wedding in October. Readings were given by Mrs. G. Thompson, Mrs. D. McInroy and topic by Mrs. Wesley Farrelly. Music was by Mrs. Frances Thompson, and a reading was given by Mrs. Joe Keller.

The meeting was closed in the usual manner and a dainty lunch was served by hostess and helpers; and later, a social half hour was enjoyed.

District Women's Institutes

RYLSTONE WI

The October meeting of the Rylstone Women's Institute was held in the Institute Hall, on Wednesday afternoon, with a good attendance. Mrs. Lindsay Anderson, president, opened the meeting.

Mrs. Ernest Irwin was appointed delegate to the area convention to be held this week, with Mrs. Eldon Anderson to accompany her.

Further plans were made for a rummage sale and bazaar to be held in the Burgis Block on Front Street, in Campbellford from November 18 to 23rd, inclusive. (This date has been changed from November 4 to 9th.) Bazaar items will be on sale during the week, and there will be a home baking sale on the final day.

A Hallowe'en party for children of all ages in the community, is being planned for Friday evening, November 1st. More information about this event will be made available later.

The first games night of the Fall season will be held in the Institute Hall on Saturday evening, November 16th. If it is a success, the event will be continued throughout the winter.

Mrs. Ernest Irwin, thanked all her friends and neighbors for their thoughtfulness and expressions of sympathy during her recent bereavement.

Mrs. Jack Watson gave a well-prepared motto entitled, "Mum should be proud of the place he lives, and so live that the place will be proud of him."

Mrs. Murray McIlkjohn then introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. Gordon McCulloch, of Seymour West, who was a former pupil of Mrs. McIlkjohn. Mrs. McCulloch received a Centennial Medal for her activities in community work. She chose as the subject of her talk, an important theme for today's world — "human rights". Mrs. McIlkjohn extended the thanks of all the members and presented her with a small gift.

Mrs. Raymond Stewart read a short poem, as did Mrs. Ellis Jones. Mrs. Hector Arnold gave a reading. There was a short interval of group singing with Mrs. Willis Jones at the piano.

At the close of the meeting, delicious refreshments were served by the hostess, Mrs. Raymond Stewart, assisted by Mrs. Ernest Rowe.

Five Year Plan Urged

Tourist Group Should Use Long Range Planning: President

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP) — Long-range planning is necessary for the Canadian Tourist Association, its new president said today at the first business session of the annual CTA convention.

This planning, said Dalton M. Wallace of Toronto, is needed "to ensure our basic objectives will not be lost, priorities of programs and functions, for organization structure, practices and procedures, for staff in their functions and growth, for physical planning and for financial planning."

By the time of next year's annual meeting in Ottawa April 20-23, "we plan to have an aggressive five-year plan, the pattern of a dynamic new concept for tourist development in Canada."

Mr. Wallace, who succeeded Victor Oland of Halifax as CTA president after Mr. Oland became Nova Scotia's lieutenant-governor in July, said a majority of association members had favored spring for the annual conventions. He expected the switch from fall next year will result in greater attendance and interest.

This year, the president's report said, Canada will probably reach the predicted $1-100,000,000 target for foreign currency earnings from outside visitors.

"It is significant that long-term U.S. visitor traffic from April to July inclusive was up strongly in the Maritimes provinces and British Columbia compared to the same period in 1967. It was up modestly in Alberta, down somewhat in Saskatchewan, worse in Manitoba, Ontario had a substantial drop and Quebec is drastically down."

Many had asked whether the 1967 distortion in normal travel patterns, due to Expo and centennial celebrations, would continue.

"The answer seems reasonably clear. Normal patterns have been restored."

The president suggested that Montreal's Man and his World, "better in some ways than Expo 67," would have produced more valuable suitably promoted.

Aberations in the generally satisfactory tourist scene included fishing resorts, Uncertain or poor weather and the mail strike were two big factors, the latter adversely affecting banking and fishing business this fall.

Steady progress was reported in the association's continuing large projects—Project Hospitality and Keep Canada Beautiful. The newest is Explore Canada, a program to promote more travel in Canada by Canadians.

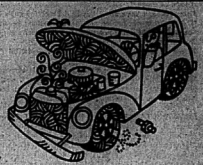
Woman Hijacks Plane--Flies to Cuba

MERIDA, Mex. (AP) — A 35-year-old woman from Argentina, who said she found life in Mexico intolerable, hijacked a twin-engine turboprop airliner with 17 persons aboard Sunday and ordered the pilot to fly to Cuba.

Mexican authorities said the woman, identified as Judith V. Ques, entered the cockpit and pulled a gun from beneath a white shawl. The pilot, Captain Ricardo Troyo, said that after ordering him to fly to Cuba the woman said hysterically: "I'd rather be killed or jailed in Cuba than return to Mexico." She did not explain the remark.

She is believed to be the first woman to seize a plane and take it to Cuba. The incident took place as the Aeromaya plane flew over Mexico's Isla Mujeres, the Isle of Women, on its way to Merida.

After seven hours in Havana, the plane, which carried 14 passengers and a crew of three, returned to Merida Sunday night.



In addition to Mrs. Vazques and her daughter, Silvia, 12, and a five-month-old son Ernesto, two unidentified women passengers remained in Havana. It could not be learned if they were connected with the hijacking, the 19th since Jan. 30.

In Havana, Mexican Ambassador Miguel Covian, who arranged for the release of the passengers and plane, said he found the hijack difficult to explain "when there are regular commercial flights between Mexico and Cuba."

Because Mexico has diplomatic relations with the Fidel Castro government Covian said "we have the right to ask for extradition." But he said no such request would be made until he consulted with his government.

Airline officials said the woman boarded the plane earlier in Mexico City with a round-trip ticket and was on her way back.

Capt. Troyo said the passengers and crew "were all nicely treated by the Cuban authorities and had a steak dinner at the airport quarantine station."

Revenue Department

Pension Control Tightened

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal revenue department is tightening its control of executive pension plans, particularly those designed to benefit executives who are also shareholders.

New rules covering pension plans sent out to employers last week state that a plan "primarily for the benefit of shareholders and members of their families" will not be accepted.

A covering letter signed by E. A. Chater, director of the department's review and registration division, says plans already registered that do not comply with the new rules need not be changed unless a specific request is made by the department.

But it adds:

"It is expected that such plans will be brought into line with these rules as and when amendments are required for other reasons."

Mr. Chater said in an interview Sunday the directives are not aimed at executive pensions as such, but against those where there are special benefits because the executive is also a shareholder.

Employment News

Demand for Workers Up

By J. R. STAVELY
Manpower Counsellor

The employment picture locally continues to reflect strong construction activity with an increased demand for skilled and workers such as qualified machinists and tool and die makers. The female labor demand represented 40 per cent less than the employment opportunities available to men seeking work.

The following employment opportunities are now available.

A number of experienced waitresses for either day or evening shift work are in demand not only by this office, but also by the Trenton Canada Manpower Centre. There are requirements in the Quinte area for reliable housekeepers and nurses' maids, with some of these positions requiring the successful applicant to work on a live-in basis.

Openings are available also in the field of door-to-door sales. An experienced saleswoman is being sought for alterations on high quality clothing. An educational centre has a requirement for a qualified librarian who possesses a university library science degree. The Trenton Canada Manpower Centre has vacant positions calling for qualified hairdressers in addition to factory work on a shift basis.

Anyone interested in prospective garment factory work in the Napanee area can obtain further information either at this office or the Napanee Canada Manpower Centre, telephone 354-3367. The office will remain open next Tuesday and Wednesday evenings from seven to nine o'clock.

In the male division locally, still in short supply are licensed Class "A" automotive repair mechanics. A manufacturer of pleasure sailing boats has openings for cabinet makers and mature fibre glass moulders.

A small machine shop has an opening for a second class moulder. A saddlery business still requires experienced saddle and harness makers. Excellent wages are being offered on these positions.

An industrial plant has a requirement for experienced machinists with emphasis on lathe work.

Donald and Bryson Leslie, owners of Leslie's Shoe Store, congratulate long-time employee Arthur Hill on his retirement.

Arthur Hill Honored On Retirement from Store

Arthur L. Hill was honored Oct. 2 on his retirement after 47 years service with Leslie's Shoe Store, Belleville.

Staff and management of Leslie's, with their families, gathered at Son Luck Gardens Banquet room for the event.

Also present were Mr. and Mrs. Hill's son James and his wife from Toronto, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Pringle, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Van Tassel, Mrs. Hilda McKeown, and Mr. and Mrs. Hilton McBurney. Mr. McBurney retired from Leslie's in 1965 after about 60 years in the shoe business.

Bryson Leslie read a testimonial to Mr. Hill. Donald L. presented and explained old pictures, and presented Mr. Hill with a wallet.

The staff made several presentations to their business associate, among them a pair of 30-inch long shoeing slippers full of small gifts Mr. Hill could use in his retirement.

Mr. Hill started in the shoe business in 1921 with the late William Leslie, founder of the store. He soon became the right arm of the business and assumed heavy responsibility in the Belleville store until 1954. At that time he went to Lindsay to manage Leslie's new branch store, where he remained until his retirement Aug. 31.

Mr. and Mrs. Hill have returned to Belleville and are living in their home at 189 George St.

Keep your cool

Keep your home cool, that is — don't let it be destroyed by fire.

In Ontario last year, fires caused property damage of almost $58,000,000. Add to this the tragic loss of life — 229 adults and children killed, 771 injured — and it's obvious that thorough precautions against fire in the home are worthwhile.

These seven "be sures" can prevent 90 percent of home fires.

- Be sure to practise safe smoking habits
- Be sure children are never left at home unsupervised
- Be sure heating and electrical equipment is installed and maintained properly
- Be sure electrical outlets serve no more than one or two appliances or lamps
- Be sure worn or frayed wiring is repaired or replaced
- Be sure flammable liquids, ashes, oily rags and rubbish go into safe containers
- Be sure your family has a well-rehearsed home escape plan

Local Legionnaires Take OBA Bantam Title Quest to Wire

DON MILLS (Staff) — The Belleville Legionnaires lost their bid for the Ontario Baseball Association's bantam crown here Sunday to a hot pitcher and a weatherman who dealt a cold hand.

Niagara Falls ace hurler Reg. Black threw a 9-0 four-hitter at the Legionnaires in a game played in near-freezing temperatures.

"It was just as cold for them as it was for us," mused one of the crowd of loyal Belleville supporters who journeyed here to roof the Quinte nine on, "but it doesn't seem as cold when your winning."

The win gave the Honeymoon City youngsters the OBA title two games to one. After sailing away the series opener 5-0 on home territory, the Falls bantams suffered a 3-1 setback at Belleville's Parkdale field to fore yesterday's neutral territory rubber match.

Second-baseman Brian Cousins collected three of the four Legionnaire hits, the other going to right fielder David Wood.

Danny Lupisette's hard liner in the fourth, with the bases loaded and Belleville trailing 4-0, would have looked mighty nice on the scoresheet, had Black not snared it and turned it into a double-play ball.

But the chilly hands, which contributed to six Belleville errors, and a well-spread, eight-hit Niagara attack spelled doom for the scrappy Belleville bantams.

Starring pitcher Stan Brooks was tagged with the loss, giving up six runs, while walking a pair and striking out four. Wood moved to the mound from the outfield in the fifth, yielding the remaining three Falls runs while fanning three and walking a pair.

Black set 14 of the Legionnaires down on strikes in his impressive performance for the winners.

Small consolation for the losers came from the fact most of them were straight up from peewee ranks this season, while the Niagara squad consisted mainly of second-year bantam players.

Tribe Muffs An Early Lead In Kingston

By MAURICE SWITZER

KINGSTON (Staff) — Showing the effects of a rushed training camp, Belleville's Mo-Hawks lost a chance to net their second week-end exhibition win over the Kingston Aces and dropped a 9-5 decision here last night.

The Mo-Hawks had surprised not a few Senior "A" observers with a convincing 6-3 verdict over the Aces in Belleville Friday. But injuries in that game to a roster that had only been on skates five days left last night's Mo-Hawk lineup pretty sparsely populated.

Playing with only two forward lines (13 players in all,) the locals bounced back from a pair of quick Kingston markers for a 4-2 lead by the end of the first period.

But the short-handed legs couldn't keep pace with this year's youthful version of the Aces, who skated away with the game on the basis of five unanswered second-period goals.

Centre Bob Taylor collected a pair of first-period tallies for the Mo-Hawks, with veteran Eddie Marineau notching a couple in his first outing of the winter. Winger Wayne McConnell added the fifth Belleville goal and added an assist.

Forward Ron Riley, who has agreed to contract terms with coach Davey Jones, collected three helpers on the night, with assists also going to rearguard Doug Murray and playing-coach Jones.

Rawson performed the hat-trick for the Aces, as did winger Bob Clayton. Seale, Apps, and White rounded out the Kingston scoring parade.

Larry Holmes again played the first two stantzas between the Mo-Hawk pipes — as he did Friday night — stopping 26 of the 33 Aces' drives aimed his way.

Claude Carr allowed the two third-period Kingston goals by Clayton while blocking 10 shots.

The short-staffed Mo-Hawks fired 20 shots at Aces' goalie Neil Perry, compared to 40 in Belleville Friday night.

Friday night's rough encounter put scrappy forward Ralph Plane (stitched forehead,) stylish veteran "Wiener" Brown (stiff neck,) and newcomer Gary Goyer (shoulder ailment) out of the Mo-Hawk lineup for last night's game.

The game here was tame in comparison to Friday's slugfest in Belleville, without a major penalty being doled out.

After the game, coach Jones announced the imminent signing of Ron Riley, a husky left winger who played last winter with London's junior "A" entry, and of Murray "Moe" Hunter, a hustling forward who is well-known to Belleville diamond or rink supporters.

Jones said he has also come to terms with Jack Wilton, who played on the blueline last season for the Oakville Oaks Senior "A" entry, and who showed well in Friday night's Belleville game.

The Mo-Hawks continue their workouts at the arena this week in preparation for Friday night's season's opener against Orillia.

GRAND PRIX CRASH — Denis Hulme of New Zealand slams into culvert and hay bales after spinning out in pit straight in 92nd lap of Sunday's 10th running of the U.S. Grand Prix in Watkins Glen, N.Y. Hulme, who had been tied with England's Graham Hill in point standings for world driving championship, scored no points because he was unable to finish.

Denny Boy, The Showers Are Calling

Gibson's Monopolizing Mystifies Mewing Tigers

DETROIT (AP) — Now that Bob Gibson has made another farce of his celebrated World Series confrontation with Denny McLain, the pitchers may call a ceasefire and join the same team.

Gibson, who overwhelmed McLain and the rest of Detroit Tigers with a five-hit, 17-strikeout performance in the Series opener, threw another five-hitter as St. Louis Cardinals battered McLain and five other pitchers 10-1 Sunday.

The Cardinals won the third game 7-3 here Saturday on three-run homers by Tim McCarver and Orlando Cepeda. Ray Washburn picked up the victory with relief help from Joe Hoerner.

Earl Wilson took the loss for Detroit which received home runs from Al Kaline and Dick McAuliffe.

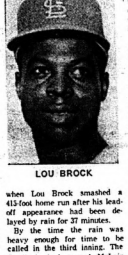
Cepeda's blast in the seventh inning came with St. Louis holding only a 4-3 lead and seemed to deflate the Tigers.

The two wins gave the Cardinals a 3-1 edge in the series and left it up to Mickey Lolich, the only successful Tiger hurler, to keep the season alive in his duel with Nelson Briles today. Lolich beat Briles in the second game last Thursday.

Before gaining his seventh straight complete game Series victory, Gibson had to work and wait through four hours and 25 minutes of rain, mist and cold.

That was a lot longer than McLain was around—the 31-game winner removed himself from the game during the 7th minute, third-inning rain delay. But when the game ended, the pitchers found themselves making simila post-Series plans.

The plans revolve around Vice-President Hubert Humphrey, the Democratic presidential candidate who visited both clubhouses after sitting through the long afternoon.



"I'm going to back that man," McLain said, adding he would join Humphrey's campaign tour for two or three days after the Series.

"I'll probably get into Washington after the season, and I imagine we'll probably get together," Gibson said following an invitation from Humphrey to meet with him.

"I'm a Democrat, but I'm not a politician, I'm a pitcher!"

McLain said he asked to be taken out of the game because his right shoulder was bothering him. But he refused to use that as an alibi for a performance in which he was rocked for four runs and six hits in 2 2-3 innings.

McLain's trouble began on the second pitch of Sunday's game, when Lou Brock smashed a 415-foot home run for his lead-off appearance had been delayed by rain for 37 minutes.

LOU BROCK

By the time the rain was heavy enough for time to be called in the third inning, The Cardinals had rapped McLain for five more hits and three more runs.

When play resumed 74 minutes later, McLain no longer was the Detroit pitcher, and the teams started a game of wait and speed-up.

The Tigers did their best to delay the game long enough for the rain to become unbearable.

In the top of the fourth inning, first baseman Norm Cash went to the mound to talk to relief pitcher Daryl Patterson. In the bottom of the inning, Willie Horton went to the dugout to clean his spikes and his bat and Jim Northrup exchanged his broken bat.

The Cardinals countered in the fifth inning when Julian Javier, on base with a two-out single, tried to steal second and was out easily.

Cardinal manager Red Schoendienst insisted Javier had the steal sign and just left first too soon. But that move, and the others, induced the umpires to call Schoendienst and Tiger boss Mayo Smith to the plate for a conference.

"We didn't want one team to be hurrying and we didn't want one team to be stalling," plate umpire Bill Kinnamon said.

After allowing a hit in each of the first four innings, Gibson struck out Jim Price and Dick McAuliffe and retired Mickey Stanley on a fly to center in the fifth to make the game official, three hours and 25 minutes after play was to have started.

The Cardinals, meanwhile, amassed 13 hits, including a home run by Gibson in the fourth and three hits by Brock a homer, a triple and a three-run double in the eighth.

Gibson's blow made him the only pitcher ever to hit two homers in Series play, and Brock stole third after his double, giving him a record-tying seventh steal in this Series and a record-tying 14th for all of his Series play. The first mark he tied was his own; the second belonged to Eddie Collins.

The victory left the Tigers with the almost impossible task of coming back from a 3-1 deficit only three teams have done it.

Lou Brock ran the Tigers dizzy Saturday with three stolen bases, tying a record, and stroked three singles in the Cards' 11 hit attack on a long string of Tiger pitchers.

The chilly, sunny day started strong for the 53,634 fans at Tiger Stadium when Al Kaline slamped a two-run homer off Ray Washburn in the third inning.

Detroit starter Earl Wilson, wild but still clinging to the two-run lead, ran into trouble in the fifth when Brock singled and Curt Flood doubled him home.

Lolich Wants Camera Scouting

DETROIT (AP) — Mickey Lolich went out to the mound in the fifth World Series game for the Detroit Tigers today knowing he might be trying to keep Lou Brock from a record for stolen bases, and wishing he had some football films to do it with.

"Football clubs use films for scouting. Why shouldn't baseball?" Lolich suggested. "Baseball doesn't seem to have come to that yet. When I asked for some films of Brock, I was told the scouting reports are enough. . . .

There must be something he does wrong. . . . I think if I could watch him over and over and over again on film, I might pick something up."

Lolich pointed across the room. "See that?"

Catcher Bill Freehan was holding the big-game rifle he had just received as a gift.

"There's how to stop Brock." For his part, Brock said there was a record and he wanted it.

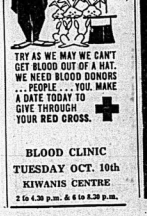
"You're darn right I wanted it." Brock said about the 14th base he has stolen in World Series play.

Brock took a shot at it in the eighth inning Sunday. The bases were loaded, and Brock rammed the ball to the centre field wall. He was almost to third, then suddenly wheeled around and darted back to second. Bob Gibson turned back to third, then ran home.

Third base coach Joe Schultz had put up the stop sign, but it was for Gibson, who was in front of Brock.

So Brock had a three-run double that capped the St. Louis Cardinal scoring as they beat Detroit 10-1 in the fourth game.

And then Brock stole third.



That tied him with Eddie Collins of the Old Philadelphia Athletics. "It doesn't mean that much to me," Brock said. "It only means that I have it. The only reason I knew it is because somebody told me the other day."

"If I got a chance to break it, I would."

Whether the record meant much to Brock or not, he admitted it was the reason he tried to steal third. He said the club does not advocate stealing third.

Riders Back in Saddle After Whipping Argonauts 31-10

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It's still anybody's guess who will finish first in the Eastern Football Conference, although Ottawa Rough Riders and Hamilton Tiger-Cats loom as favorites after weekend play.

The Rough Riders galloped back into first place in the EFC Sunday by trouncing Toronto Argonauts 31-10 before 25,545 fans. The victory gave Ottawa 13 points, one more than Toronto and Hamilton Tiger-Cats, now tied for second.

Hamilton stayed in solid contention for top spot Saturday by whipping Winnipeg Blue Bombers 23-13 behind the 17-point performance of, Tommy-Joe Coffey.

Montreal Alouettes, occupants of last place in the EFC, dropped an 11-7 decision to Saskatchewan Roughriders in another interlocking Canadian Football League game Sunday.

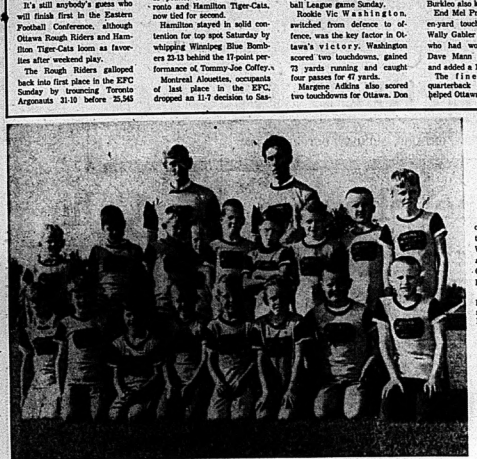
Rookie Vic Washington, switched from defence to offence, was the key factor in Ottawa's victory. Washington scored two touchdowns, gained 73 yards running and caught four passes for 47 yards.

Margene Adkins also scored two touchdowns for Ottawa. Don Sutherin kicked four converts and two singles and Bill Van Burkleo also kicked a single.

End Mel Profit caught a seven-yard touchdown pass from Wally Gabler for the Argonauts who had won three straight. Dave Mann kicked a convert and added a 16-yard field goal.

The fine performance by quarterback Russ Jackson helped Ottawa to its victory and improved the Riders' chances of finishing first. Jackson, apparently recovered from a troublesome shoulder injury, threw touchdown passes of 37 and 31 yards to Adkins. In all, he completed 10 of 20 passes for 213 yards.

Ottawa jumped into an 8-0 lead before the game was two minutes old to set the tempo for their strongest two-way performance in more than a month.



Sutherin's opening kick-off went for a single and when Bill Symons fumbled on his own 29 on the first play from scrimmage, Ottawa cashed in for its first touchdown—a 14-yard run by Washington.

Coffey led Hamilton to its triumph by catching an eight-yard touchdown pass from Joe Zuger, kicking two field goals, three singles and two converts.

The 17 points gave Coffey, the EFC's leading scorer, 85 points. Runner-up Sutherin has 71.

Dave Fleming scored the other Hamilton touchdown, a 40-yard run from Zuger.

Gene Lakusiak scored on a 22-yard run for Winnipeg while Pierre Guindon booted a convert and two field goals in front of 18,125 fans at Hamilton.

Edmonton Takes Stranglehold On Last Playoff Spot In West

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Edmonton Eskimos fought off one challenge for third place in the Canadian Football League's Western Conference Saturday and former Eskimo Tommy-Joe Coffey spearheaded a win for Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

Edmonton shaded British Columbia Lions 13-5 while Coffey scored 17 points in leading Hamilton to a 23-13 triumph over Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

The results left Edmonton solidly entrenched in the WFC's third and final playoff spot. The Eskimos, with four games remaining, have a six-point bulge over B.C. and seven over Winnipeg. B.C. and Winnipeg have five games reach remaining.

In an interlocking contest Sunday, Saskatchewan Rougriders made into first place in the West by defeating Montreal Alouettes 11-7 before 18,430 fans in Regina.

Saskatchewan now has 17 points, one more than Calgary Stampeders, who have a game in hand.

At Edmonton, a crowd of 16,551 saw the Eskimos march 40 yards for the game's only touchdown after a pass interception late in the second quarter.

Larry Griffin, a second year middle-linebacker, grabbed a Paul Brothers pass on the B.C. 51 and returned the ball to the 40 to set up the winning march.

Six plays and two B.C. penalties—totalling 26 yards—later, quarterback Charlie Fulton plunged over from the B.C. one on a third-down gamble.

Peter Kempf scored the other seven points for Edmonton on three singles, a 37-yard field goal and convert.

Ted Gereia kicked all the B.C. points—two singles and a field goal.

Gaels Blank Favored Blues 35-0

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Queen's University donned the favorites role in startling fashion during the weekend as the two Ontario-Quebec Athletic Association football conference powerhouses met for the first time this year.

The Golden Gaels from Kingston thumped highly-regarded University of Toronto Blues 35-0 at Toronto.

In other weekend action, University of Waterloo Warriors put on a strong fourth-quarter rally at London before bowing 31-27 to University of Western Ontario Mustangs, and McGill University Redmen overpowered the visiting McMaster University Marauders 38-25.

The Blues, defending Yates Cup champions and touted by many as one of the strongest Toronto teams in several seasons, never really got started before more than 18,000 fans.

A strong Queen's defence stymied the Blues' passing and running game and there was never any doubt as to the outcome after the first half.

Keith Eaman and Allan Strader each scored two touchdowns for the Gaels. Don McIntyre's major opened the scoring in the first quarter, Doug Cozac kicked three converts and the other two points came on a fourth-quarter safety touch.

Don Bayne, the Gaels' quarterback, had an outstanding afternoon.

In addition to directing a solid ground game, he connected on 16 of 26 passes for 215 yards. In contrast, his Toronto counterpart, Vic Alboni, invariably found himself fleeing Queen's tacklers and managed to complete just two of 15 passes for 12 yards.

Halfback Bruce MacRae led the Mustang offence with two majors, the second on a 50-yard reverse play throughout the middle of the Waterloo line. Quarterback Joe Cipparone combined with Doug Digby on a 55-yard, pass-and-run play and Siu Behie returned a punt 76 yards for the other two Western touchdowns.

Ottavio Colosimo completed the Western scoring with four converts and a 32-yard field goal. An estimated 7,000 attended the game.

Vikings' QBs Hurt But Lions Mauled 24-1

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Minnesota quarterbacks might give an unhealthy appearance after a conk on the head and a crack in the shoulder, but the Vikings never had it so good.

Minnesota took sole possession of first place in the Central Division of the National Football League by beating Detroit Lions 24-1 Sunday with two injured quarterbacks.

Joe Kapp was the first quarterback to fall, with a head injury in the opening period. Gary Cuozzo took over and suffered a broken left shoulder while driving the Vikings 80 yards for a touchdown and a 7-3 halftime lead.

During intermission, Kapp, formerly with British Columbia Lions of the Western Football Conference, was deemed least injured and cleared his head long enough to direct the Vikings to two touchdowns and a field goal in the final half for Minnesota's third victory in four starts.

The loss dropped Detroit from a share of the top spot into a 2-2 tie with Green Bay Packers who broke a two-game losing streak with a 38-7 rout over Atlanta Falcons.

Dallas Cowboys had their troubles with St. Louis before Mike Clark's 50-yard field goal sparked a 27-10 victory over the Cardinals. But New York Giants, 4-0, kept pace with the Cowboys in the Capitol Division with a 38-21 sweep over New Orleans Saints.

Baltimore Colts and Los Angeles Rams, each 4-0, were unable to shake each other in the Coastal Division as the Colts rode Earl Morrall's four touchdown passes past Chicago Bears 28-7 and Roman Gabriel directed the Rams by San Francisco 49ers 24-10.

Washington Redskins held off Philadelphia Eagles 17-14 in the other Sunday contest.

Cleveland Browns took the Century lead Saturday night with a 31-24 triumph over Pittsburgh Steelers.

Kapp returned in the second half for Minnesota to set up Fred Cox' 29-yard field goal before Bill Munson's 30-yard touchdown pass to Mel Farr tied it for Detroit.

But Kapp, running two yards and passing for 24 on one drive and throwing 33 yards to Gene Washington on a second, took the Vikings 73 and 39 yards for touchdowns.

The Packers climbed back into the race with 21 third-quarter points that spoiled Norm Van Brocklin's debut as Atlanta coach. Leading only 10-7 at the half, Donny Anderson ran for one score and then a fumble and a pass interception set up Bart Starr's second and third touchdown passes of the day.

U. S. Grand Prix Won by Flying Scot

WATKIN'S GLEN, N.Y. (CP) — Jackie Stewart of Scotland drove his Formula 1 Matra-Ford to victory Sunday in the 108-lap Grand Prix of the United States.

Stewart covered the 248.4-mile track in one hour, 59 minutes and 20.28 seconds at an average speed of 124.89 miles an hour.

In second place, 34 seconds behind, was Britain's Graham Hill, driving a Lotus Ford.

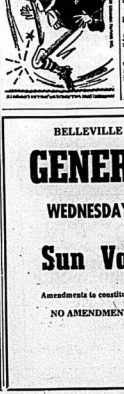
John Surtees, also of Britain, was third in a Honda.

Stewart led from the start and was pressed hard until the 12th lap by Mario Andretti of Nazareth, Penn. The clutch in Andretti's Lotus Ford gave out and he left the race.

Dan Gurney, also of the United States, took over second until lap 24 in his Eagle-Ford, when Hill moved ahead.

Gurney stayed just ahead of Surtees until the final lap, when Surtees eased ahead.

Stewart set a new lap record of one minute, 5.22 seconds, with an average speed of 126.9 miles per hour in the lap.



Hill now has 39 points, Stewart 36 and Denis Hulme of New Zealand 33 toward the world championship.

The final round of the world championship Grand Prix tour will be in Mexico Nov. 5.

THE CAR BUYER'S PROBLEMS

DOES IT PAY TO RECONDITION USED CARS?
Well, you might say, it's a matter of opinion.
Opinion among car dealers varies with their long term objectives:
If the dealer's objective is a fast turnover that will brighten his profit picture now, then the lower selling price of a car on which he has spent no money is most desirable.
If his long-term reputation with his customers is uppermost, then the cost of reconditioning for the sake of customer satisfaction will be money well spent, even though the immediate result may be a higher priced used car.
There are two kinds of used cars, however, that most dealers will agree on as not requiring any expense to ready them for re-sale. One is a car in such exceptionally good shape that its next owner is assured of reasonably trouble-free service; the other is a car that is too far gone in either age or condition for reconditioning expense economically wise.
In that event, the dealer will need as low a selling price as possible if he is to retail the unit.
Most quality dealers favor reconditioning their used cars that justify the expense and wholesaling the problem cars that wouldn't ultimately return the money spent on them.
There is a two-fold advantage in this: Reliable used cars earn a dealer customer recommendation through word-of-mouth approval; they are also much more likely to find a ready market in the distrust-ridden used car market.

No Doubt About It—Bobby and Stan Hold Key to Hawk Hopes

BRANTFORD, Ont. (CP) — "We're relying heavily on Hull and Mikita to have good seasons and the others must pick up the slack to get us into the playoffs."

Coach Billy Reay of Chicago Black Hawks was assessing his club's chances for the coming National Hockey League season and, if anything, the 50-year-old native of Winnipeg was being realistic.

"There's no question that Bobby and Stan are two of the greatest players in the game today," Reay said following a recent exhibition loss to Pittsburgh Penguins.

"So it goes without saying that we're counting on them to repeat their performances of last years."

Mikita won his fourth scoring championship in five years with 40 goals and 81 points while Hull finished sixth among the top 10 scorers with 75 points, including 44 goals.

Together, they accounted for almost 40 per cent of the 212 goals the Black Hawks scored in 74 games. But neither Hull nor Mikita has signed his 1968-69 contract and both are said to be holding out for $100,000.

"Look, I get a little tired of hearing I have a problem handling Hull and Mikita," Reay said.

"They're a pleasure to coach and I only wish I had two more like the. I'm not worried about the fact that they're not signed.

"The way I look at it is that they are two great stars dickering for what they can get and I wish them well."

The signing of Hull and Mikita is the least of Reay's worries. He's concerned about a lack of depth at centre and a defence that gave up 223 goals.

Reay traded veteran defenceman Pierre Pilote to Toronto Maple Leafs in exchange for right winger Jim Pappin in the off-season, but recently acquired unpredictable Howie Young from Oakland Seals on waivers.

"I'm worried about my defence, but not because Pilote is gone," he said.

"Pilote had a better first half last season than he did in the second and anytime you have an opportunity to deal for a 29-year-old as opposed to a 37-year-old, you have to act.

"We have two good young hitters in Giles Marotte and Doug Jarrett. Pat Stapleton and Matt Ravelich both move the puck well, but it's still a matter of bench strength.

Ravelich does not appear to have suffered any lasting effects from a broken leg he suffered in March, 1967, which kept him out of the Chicago lineup for a year.

Reay will have Mikita, Pit Martin and Chico Maki at centre to start the season, but he admits he interested in dealing for any centreman he can get.

"I feel Chico can do the job for us at centre, but I may have to move Bobby off left wing if things don't work out," he said.

Dennis Hull has replaced Doug Mohns at left wing on the Scooter Line with Mikita and Ken Wharram while Mohns will play with Maki and Eric Nesterenko.

"The change is no reflection on Doug's play, it's just that Dennis is starting his fourth season with the club and I feel he rates a shot at playing with Mikita and Wharram," Reay said.

"Dennis is a real gunner on there, gives the chance to shoot the puck, he'll put it in the net. Being Bobby's younger brother, he presses that on him to do well."

Martin will centre for Bobby Hull and Pappin on the other line, but Reay still hasn't decided whether he will keep 11 or 12 forwards when he has to cut his roster to 18 players Oct. 21.

He will have to choose his spare forwards from left wingers Wayne Maki and Bill Orban, who each played 50 games with Chicago last year, right winger Bob Schmautz and amateurs Cliff Koroll and Jim Whiste.

Schmautz had three goals and two assists in 13 games with the Black Hawks, Koroll, a 21-year-old right winger and Whiste, 22, were both all-Americans at the University of Denver last year.

Meanwhile, Reay is happy with his goaltenders.

Denis DeJordy, who had a goals-against average of 2.80, reported to camp in the best shape he's been in in the last five years and Dave Dryden is a more-than-adequate backup man.

Leafs Split

Smith's Net-Work May Be a Lost Cause

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Rookie goaltender Al Smith of Toronto Maple Leafs must be wondering what he has to do to make the National Hockey League team.

Despite two more fine performances in exhibition play last weekend, the 22-year-old Smith probably will lose his job to a man old enough to be his father.

When 44-year-old Johnny Bower returns to action this week after recovering from a shoulder injury, Smith is expected to be sent to Tulsa of the Central Hockey League.

Smith was in goal Saturday night when the Maple Leafs dropped a 3-1 decision to Chicago Black Hawks before 16,434 fans at Toronto and Sunday night Toronto topped Chicago 3-1 in the U.S. city.

Manager-coach Punch Imlach of Toronto probably will start the season with Bower and Bruce Gamble, but recall Smith if his star regulars falter.

Goalie Dave Dryden and forward Eric Nesterenko were switched to Chicago's victory Saturday.

Nesterenko scored one goal and set up another by Chico Maki. Dryden lost his shutout when rookie Gerry Meehan scored late in the second period.

Goals by Jim Dorey, Larry Mickey and Terry Clancy gave Toronto its victory Sunday. Bobby Hull scored the only goal against Smith.

In other exhibition play Saturday Detroit Red Wings crushed Minnesota North Stars 6-1 at Minneapolis and New York Rangers tied Pittsburgh Penguins 3-3 at Brantford, Ont.

Detroit scorers were Gary Unger, with two, Kent Douglas, Nick Libett, Gordie Howe and Dean Prentice. Danny Grant scored for the North Stars.

Bob Nevin scored two goals for the Rangers, including the tying one at 19:04 of the final period, while Al Hamilton collected the other. Pittsburgh scorers were Wally Boyer, Charlie Burns and Leo Boivin.

Sunday, Rogatien Vachon and Gump Worsley combined for the shutout as Montreal Canadiens blanked Boston Bruins 1-0 at Boston, Rochester Americans of the American Hockey League downed Pittsburgh 5-3 at Rochester and Philadelphia Flyers topped Houston of the CHL 4-1 at Sherbrooke, Que.

Mickey Redmond scored the Canadiens' goal at 6:04 of the second period before 11,015 fans.

Boyer and Keith McCreary scored for Pittsburgh while Rochester marksmen were Ron Ward, Dick Gamble, Wayne Carleton, Gary Marsh and Mace Rennie.

Philadelphia scorers were Gary Peters, Forbes Kennedy, Don Blackburn and Gary Dornhoefer.

Flyers Airborne On a Familiar Flight

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Niagara Falls Flyers are off in hot pursuit of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series title they won last year.

The Flyers won their second straight outing of the current season Sunday, a 7-4 decision over Ottawa 67s before 4,020 fans at Ottawa.

In other Sunday action, Toronto Marlboros dumped Hamilton Red Wings 3-1, Oshawa Generals edged Kitchener Rangers 5-4 and Peterborough Petes and St. Catharines Black Hawks skated to a 4-4 tie.

Linemates Bob Walton and Don Tannahill each collected three goals for the Flyers. Walton also assisted on Tannahill's goals. Doug Brindley notched the other Flyer point.

Gord McCormick, Jean Potvin, Brian McSheffrey and Bill Clement tallied for Ottawa. The 67s tall-enders in the league last year, skated with Niagara Falls for half the game before falling behind.

Penalties provided Oshawa with its winning margin as the Generals counted on three power-play efforts before 1,750 fans. The hometown club got two goals from Ivan Boldirev with Bob Kelly, Tom Faszczuk and Terry O'Reilly getting the others.

Brian Gleenright, Sean Shanahan, Ted O'Flaherty and Finlander Sakari Ahlberg tallied for the Rangers. It was Ahlberg's first goal in Canadian competition.

Doug Acomb, Harry Sems and Carl Varga scored for Toronto as the Marlboros avenged an earlier loss to the Red Wings. Gary Galbart replied for Hamilton.

The Black Hawks had to come from behind twice to salvage the tie, their second of the season.

Rick Cunningham, Rick MacLeish, Trevor Conn and Tony Featherstone scored for the Petes who held a commanding edge in play until the final period when Al McDonaugh's second goal of the game at 14:37 completed the scoring.

Earlier St. Catharines scorers were Dennis Giannini and Bob Sheehan.

Win Doesn't Pay

TORONTO (CP) — Viceregal, son of Northern Dancer and leading winner of the Horse of the Year title, is through for the 1968 racing season.

Viceregal won the $43,555 Cup and Saucer Stakes at Woodbine racetrack Saturday, but suffered an ankle injury that will sideline him for the duration of the season.

The chestnut thoroughbred, from E. P. Taylor's Winfields Farm, won Canada's second richest race for two-year-olds by a neck over W. H. Hatch's Grey Whiz. Sharp-eyed Quills, owned by Jack Hood of Stratford, Ont., was a distant third.

Viceregal is believed to have suffered his right ankle injury when he swept between horses on the final turn of the 1 1-16-mile race.

There were marks on the colt's ankle and it was swollen when inspected Sunday.

"He probably got hit when he squeezed between horses on the turn," said Joe Thomas, vice-president of the Winfields operation.

The victory Saturday was the eighth in a row for the undefeated colt and the $28,310 purse raised Viceregal's winnings this season to $117,548—the most ever won in a single season by a thoroughbred in Canada.

Farm Loan Rates and Postage Hike on Commons Order Paper

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons is scheduled to hear more about the problems of Canadian agriculture this week, and the problems of the postmaster-general's department should also get a thorough airing.

Listed for consideration by the House today is a bill to extend the scope of the Farm Credit Act and to remove the present five-per-cent ceiling on loans made to farmers.

The measure, along with two other measures revising farm-loan legislation, came under intense Opposition fire in the Commons last week.

The Opposition, led by Prairie members, has attacked the government for proposing to raise interest rates on government-sponsored loans to farmers at a time when many farmers are facing hardship through a less-than-expected wheat sales.

A dramatic backdrop to last week's debates was provided by the advance on Ottawa of close to 100 tractor-driving farmers from the southwestern Ontario corn belt. They came here to protest what they considered government inaction in the face of massive imports of low-priced corn from the U.S.

Down for consideration Tuesday is a resolution, certain to be at least as controversial as the various farm measures, calling for increased mail rates.

The increases, including one to six cents from five for one first-class letter and another which will wipe out the one-cent differential between local and out-of-town rates, are designed to cut the post office department's burgeoning deficit.

On Wednesday, the House is scheduled to return to the various farm financing bills, and also to resume consideration of a bill to increase the number of judges in Quebec and Ontario.

Baseball Has Starring Role On Television Over the Weekend

NEW YORK (AP) — Two baseball teams were the stars of weekend television. But if the weather was the villain of Sunday's drama in Detroit, the heroes of the afternoon were the sports announcers.

Not only was the start of the fourth World Series game delayed by foul weather, but there was a hiatus of well over an hour after three innings had been played when the announcers—Curt Gowdy, George Kell and Tony Kubek—went through the broadcasters' nightmare of finding something to talk about and show the viewers.

Somehow they staggered through it—with interviews, with reports from the locker rooms, by re-running highlights from earlier games and just chatting back and forth, mostly about the weather. Finally relief came as the Tiger Stadium crew pulled away the water tarpaulins and the game proceeded.

By the time the Cardinals had piled up 10 runs in the Tigers' 4, the pro football game NBC had expected to start covering at 4 p.m. was half over.

Alert shoulder-to-shoulder watchers who watch baseball had the same idea for two shows. Both CBS's Game of the Week and Dennis McLain of the Tigers have been signed for appearances next Sunday on CBS's Ed Sullivan Show—Gibson to play the ukelele and McLain the organ. The following night they'll be guest stars on the Bob Hope special.

Bonanza, NBC's longtime popular western, obviously is reacting to its first tough competition in years—the Smothers Brothers Show—by stepping up the action and drama.

Sunday night's show has a touch of High Noon suspense about it. Ben Cartwright and sons picked up a bad guy and tried to have him jailed in a town whose sheriff had been murdered by outlaws and whose citizens were too scared to fight.

Ben put the prisoner in jail, had the whole town deputized overnight, except for three women, an old man and a boy. The rest of the story showed preparations in the ghost town for the arrival of the outlaw gang, coming to free the prisoner. There was also some character development before the final shootout and happy ending.

In this connection, along with the glamorous sheriff and gunslingers built up by latter day fiction, the saloon girls of the 1880 period are becoming, via television, the bread and cowtown life.

There's Kitty of Gunsmoke, Lottie of Here Come the Brides — maybe not strictly a western but certainly one in spirit—and in Bonanza girl Hop Sing, Muddy Creek saloon was brave, calm and compassionate.

It used to be the local schoolmarm or rancher's daughter who was the good girl in the horse operas. Today it seems to be the beautiful blonde in the low-cut dress whose gainful occupation consists of drinking beer with sisterly camaraderie with the customers.

Decaying Inner Cities Major Problem in U. S.

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Almost everyone agrees that perhaps the major problem the U.S. faces is that of the decaying "inner cities." And the major aspect of this problem is the need for a better, broader and faster program of housing.

Yet, in this age and region, of the most rapidly developing technology the world has ever known — where industry after industry is revolutionizing its techniques every few years — the technology of housing is almost at a standstill.

The housing built today is essentially the same as that built two generations ago, at the turn of the century. Everything in the house has changed radically — except the house itself, which is still slow to build, filled with anachronisms, and unnecessarily expensive.

Research to produce new housing technology is pathetically small. Nor is this the fault of the home - builders themselves, who know that any efforts to change traditional methods would be met with tenacious resistance by those who have a vested interest in the status quo. These include the building trades, the unions, the politicians and all who benefit from our obsolete and iniquitous housing situation.

It is sadly ironic that a family living in a trailer — or "mobile home" as they are now grandly called — can move into any state or community if the vehicle conforms to certain basic rules of size and hygiene; but a stationary house is subject to a thousand differing building codes in a thousand different areas.

The building industry is hobbled by a mass of local legislation, most of it designed to make work rather than produce it, and supported by elements which profit from the obsolescence of their techniques, processes, and materials.

In the Wisconsin county where I spend my summers, for instance, it is possible to build a fine house for nearly half of what it would cost in or around Chicago. While it is true that the labor costs in Chicago are much higher, it is equally true that the total cost of building could be brought down appreciably if the codes were revamped to permit taking advantage of cheaper, easier, and faster methods.

And it is precisely in cities like Chicago that there exists the greatest need for better housing for lower-income families. The rent-gouging in slum apartments is surely one of the elements in ghetto living that makes urban unrest certain of continuation. One place to start is with the uniformity and modernization of building codes to bring the cost of housing within the reach of nearly all.

Pipeline Dispute Here

Federation to Assist Farmers in Filing Claims

The Ontario Federation of Agriculture will act in an advisory capacity for farmers in the filing of claims for damages resulting from the installation of a Trans Canada Pipeline "loop" now being put through the Quinte district.

The pipeline company is "looping" the existing line from the Trent River to Napanee with the work now nearing completion by the general contractors Mannix-Sommerville.

The pipeline trench has been dug for some weeks with pipe welding and laying now in progress.

Last week close to 60 of the 107 Hastings county farmers whose property the pipeline crosses attended a meeting at Canniffon sponsored by the Hastings County Federation of Agriculture.

A committee was set up under the chairmanship of Farley Vermilyea to advise and assist farmers in the presentation of damage claims.

At the meeting farmers complained of the pipeline contractor occupying more land than called for under the 60 foot easement, loss of access to fields as a result of the pipeline ditch, and inadequacy of temporary fencing.

Rae C. Cunningham, chairman of property for the Federation of Agriculture, attended the meeting and distributed damage claim booklets stressing the importance of listing damages by day and date.

To Your Good Health

Enlarged Heart Cause for Concern

By Dr. Joseph G. Molner

Dear Dr. Molner: My husband is well over 6 feet and weighs 300. He has always been in good health but loves sweets.

He has been getting a strange feeling lately, a tingling of the arms and almost numbness, and pains in the back of his head. I keep telling him to reduce but he says he can't. He says he has this feeling that he is going to die or have a nervous breakdown. Sometimes he has pains in his chest. He is 35.

He did go for a physical a month ago, and the doctor said he had an enlarged heart. Since then I think he is worried.

I told him you said that an enlarged heart is nothing to worry about and he must have been born with it. Still he worries. We have three children, aged five to 10. Please answer in your column. Maybe if he sees it in print he won't worry.— Mrs. L. G.

I beg to differ. I think your husband should worry.

And I didn't say an enlarged heart was nothing to worry about. It is a serious condition, at some time or other. If, at the time of examination, the original cause has been corrected, the enlargement itself is no longer something to worry about.

But if the cause of the enlargement still exists, then there is something to worry about.

His sheer weight, 300 pounds is enough to put a considerable strain on his heart, and he should settle down seriously to getting rid of some of that excess poundage.

Let me add this thought about worry: worry up by itself can be a harmful and destructive thing. — But in worrying about a problem without doing something about it, that is unreasonable worry — or should we call it concern for one's own welfare — when coupled with some genuine effort to solve the difficulties is quite another matter. Once that worrier begins to see some progress, the worry begins to fade back into proper perspective.

I would judge that at least one major problem in your husband's case is his obesity. Whether reducing to normal weight will solve all his problems, I wouldn't know. But it will certainly solve some of them.

Instead of sitting around with a feeling that he is going to die or have a nervous breakdown, he ought to go back to his doctor, get some help in establishing a sensible reducing program, and perhaps (depending on what the doctor recommends) begin treatment for his numbness, headaches, and pains in the arms.

• • •

Dear Dr. Molner: For patients who have had severe heart attacks, isn't it better to test the blood while my finger is taken from the arm instead of the finger? My doctor tests only from the finger, while my feeling is that a more accurate reading can be had from a blood sample taken from the arm. — M. G.

Various blood tests are used in heart cases, and you do not specify the type with which you are concerned. Some are best obtained from a finger puncture, others are better taken from the arm. I'm sure your doctor knows the difference, so let him do it the way he considers best.

• • •

Dear Dr. Molner: I would appreciate a discussion of the pros and cons of removing tonsils in elementary school youngsters. — N. L.

If you mean arbitrary removal of normal tissue because a child is of that age—I don't think there are any pros.

Valid reasons for removal boil down to whether, because tonsils are infected or overly enlarged, removal promises enough help for the child to warrant the operation. And that has to be a matter of individual judgment for each child.

• • •

Dr. Molner welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Hastings County plowmen and mould board specialists from the Tyendinaga Indian Reserve competed against each other in open classes Saturday. Plowing match on the Reserve marked the 50th anniversary of the Mohawk Plowmen's Association.

Plowmen Compete at Tyendinaga

Tyendinaga Mohawk Indians and Hastings county farmers cemented close to 200 years of friendship Saturday when they crossed plowshares to mark the 50th anniversary of the Mohawk Plowmen's Association.

Eighteen plowmen — nine Mohawks and nine white men — took part in the event held on the Tyendinaga Reserve with the day's honors being about equally divided.

Ros Carlisle of Stirling took first prize in the open utility class and also in the regular open class, while Alton Brant won the open utility class for junior plowmen.

The open novice class was won by Wayne Wallbridge, RR 3, Belleville.

Competitors in the open utility class included Ross Carlisle, Melville Hill, Delbert Harvey and Ron Hill.

Junior utility competitors were Alton Brant, Brian Maracle, Jack Sills, Bob Sills and Gordon Sills.

Competitors in the open general class included Ross Carlisle, Francis John, Gordon Zachariah, Ray Harvey and Melville Hill.

Melville Hill and Kenneth Mumby, presidents of the Mohawk and Hastings Plowmen's Associations, declared the day a big success, despite the fact only seven of the nine classes saw competition.

One of the most active plowmen was Tyendinaga Reeve Delbert Harvey. As member of both associations he plowed in several classes, placing third in the open utility class.

Wet Clay Poses Problem

Mohawk plowmen team up to clean mouldboards of sticky clay during open class competition at Saturday's combined Mohawk and Hastings County plowing match on Tyendinaga Reserve.

Ferry Still Away In Dry Dock

GLENORA (Staff) — The Glenora Ferry service still operates at half efficiency as the 'Quinte Loyalist' remains in dry dock in Kingston. Repairs are hoped to be completed by mid-week.

Capt. James Haylock said only that 'difficulties' that always arise when installing new machinery, had shown up.

New Liberal Leader

College Research Neurochemist Wins Tough Job as B. C. Leader

VANCOUVER (CP) — Dr. Patrick Lucey McGeer, new leader of British Columbia's Liberal party, has more brains than all his political foes combined.

He keeps them in terrifyingly malodorous jars in his laboratory at the University of British Columbia—greyish things in a formaldehyde solution.

Dr. Pat McGeer, political leader, is also Dr. Pat McGreer, neurochemist, one of the top brain researchers in the country.

Politics and neurochemistry—the study of chemical effects on the brain—are just two aspects of the 41-year-old legislature member for Vancouver-Point Grey. He has a PhD, he used to be an Olympic basketball player and spent the early part of his career doing research in plastics.

And when he's not talking politics, he's talking brains.

"Now that I'm the party leader, my responsibilities lie elsewhere than in the research field," Dr. McGreer said in an interview after winning the leadership in Penticton Saturday.

"I'm really going to miss the excitement of discovery, the matching of wits against nature," he said. "It provides me with great personal satisfaction, a tremendously exciting creation."

Dr. McGeer said that in recent months he's been searching for new chemical agents affecting brain functions, "but I'll have to leave that work for now."

"There's no more important job than leading a political party with the chance to become the premier of a province, so I have no hesitation in accepting this new post."

Dr. McGeer's father, James, was a British Columbia county court judge and one of his uncles was the late Senator Gerry McGeer, a former member of Parliament and one-time mayor of Vancouver.

Dr. McGeer had a cousin who died of Addison's disease, a brain disorder, and this is what steered him into medicine and neurological research.

Born and raised in Vancouver, the new Liberal leader graduated from the University of British Columbia in 1948 with first-class honors in chemistry. He played basketball at UBC. Dr. McGreer played basketball and was good enough to make the team that represented Canada at the 1948 Olympics.

After graduating, he won a scholarship to further his education at Princeton University's graduate school. There he obtained his PhD at the age of 23.

After Princeton he went to work for the Dupont Co. in Wilmington, Del., as a research scientist for three years. He met and married his wife Edith, herself an outstanding chemist who received her PhD at 22.

"If it hadn't been for scholarships I probably wouldn't have been that highly motivated," said Dr. McGeer. "Now that I'm leaving research I think it's safe to say that my wife is a much better scientist than I am —so the better half of the team is still in the field."

Dr. McGeer left Wilmington in 1954 and enrolled at UBC's medical school. After graduating in 1958 he interned in order to qualify for medical practice. In 1960 he travelled to Massachusetts where he took part in a research project, returning a few months later to UBC's Pavlov laboratory of neurological research.

Shortly after his return Dr. McGeer won a Canadian Mental Health Association career award for his research work in the mental health field. With his wife or other colleagues, Dr. McGeer is the author of more than 40 scientific articles published in various international journals.

First elected to the B.C. legislature in 1963, Dr. McGeer soon earned a reputation as one of the Social Credit government's toughest and most persistent critics.

Dr. McGeer spearheaded a drive against the hallucinatory drug LSD last year. The provincial government passed stringent legislation against its consumption and distribution.

"Kooks like Timothy Leary aren't going to improve the mind with drugs, especially something as potent as LSD," said Dr. McGeer.

"Contrary to what self-styled gurus like Leary preach to their impressionable young disciples, LSD does not expand your consciousness—it just gives that impression by impairing judgment."

The one thing that Dr. McGeer wants to expand now is Liberal representation in the Social Credit-dominated B.C. legislature. The Liberals have six of the 55 seats and he says the party is on election footing as of now.

"The thing I want to stress is involvement—involvement in development of the province, involvement in making it a better place to live, involvement in the political process."

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For October 8

Your birthday today: This year promises to be a lively one of social activity. Invitations and entertainment tend to guide you. While pursuing happiness, today's natives will accomplish a year of service to their world.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Your most certain source of support and guidance is your own diligent labor and deliberate thought. Advice from others is conflicting.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Persistence begins to produce results, but nothing for immediate boasting. While associates have not yet accepted your main ideas, there should be encouragement. Do something nice for loved ones in the evening.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Discretion is difficult all day, but you'll be glad you managed. Quietly attend to your personal affairs before other matters. Give your health thought. Put in time improving your home.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Another day for going it alone, doing things that require no collaboration with other people. Social activities create more stress than expected.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): You really ought to consider what your drive may be doing to your relationships. Find some better basis for reconciling conflict between personal obligations and your vocational progress.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Just now seek the broader perspective (instead of focusing on immediate details). Nobody is going to be at ease all day. An impersonal approach from you may help somewhat.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Your inclination is to try to achieve beauty by spending cold cash. It doesn't work that way; you have to create it yourself. Be practical with the money (as opposed to the urgings of associates).

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Your ideas will take a little longer — this is not the day to press them. Conciliation now paves the way for more favorable relations later. Review accounts now.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Your personal drive turns out to be the significant factor in your success today. A very similar presentation of your plans gives people little to focus objections on. (Whatever you plan do agreed upon in fair game.)

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Concentrate on your own projects . . . as not many of the people around you offer much assistance. Provide diversion and a relaxing change of pace at night.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): For the time being, do not be so demanding. Give others, and yourself, time to reorganize a bit. Turn your attention to your belongings.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Focus your effort in the day on routine. The probability is that everybody is distracted now. Try to find light entertainment at night; take a break from the monotony.

Transplant Of Brains Too Tough

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — Transplanting of brains would be like transferring the New York telephone system into Tokyo, heart surgeon Denton A. Cooley of Houston, Tex., said Saturday.

He said it could be done in theory but would be too complex in practice.

He made the remark during a news conference at the 10th international congress on diseases of the chest.

Transplanting brains would be "so complex it is unlikely it will ever be done," he said.

After the news conference Dr. Christiaan Barnard, South African heart surgeon, said most heart transplant patients eventually will need a second or third transplant.

Barnard said he believes the next breakthrough will be in transplanting animal hearts into humans.

Liberals Endorse Priority Language

MONTREAL (CP) — Election-minded provincial Liberals endorsed French as a priority language and banned "special status" from their federalist constitutional vocabulary during a weekend meeting that gave the Opposition party the appearance of well-disciplined unity.

The annual meeting of the Quebec Liberal Federation proved to be a three-day rally behind former premier Jean Lesage, who emerged with confidence restored in his leadership, under question since the Liberals lost power in the June 5, 1966, provincial election.

Mr. Lesage's successful personal lobbying helped convince the party's English-speaking members to endorse the sensitive language policy of French-language priority in Quebec, expected to be a vital issue in the next provincial election that Liberals feel may come as soon as 1969.

The federation's members unanimously accepted the language resolution which also put the party on record as saying "that English-speaking Quebecers be guaranteed the right, not only in theory but in practice, to send their children to schools of their choice!"

In a speech closing the meeting Sunday night, Mr. Lesage pledged to press the Union Nationale government to introduce legislation guaranteeing this right to English-speaking parents in the suburb of St. Leonard, where a movement for French-only instruction has gained control of primary Roman Catholic schools.

The language resolution did not specify what steps would be taken to elevate French to priority status in the bilingual province where English is often in a privileged position, especially in the business world in Montreal.

With virtual unanimity the party took on a new constitutional look by shedding its 1967 term of "special status" and substituting "clear and unequivocal support for Canadian federalism." Mr. Lesage was given a wide powers to interpret details of this policy.

The constitutional resolution, couched in vague terms that pleased both federalist and nationalist factions, stresses that a Liberal government would seek "a new and more precise allocation of powers" in the following fields:

Economic policy, social security, health, marriage and, divorce, immigration and manpower, international agreements, radio and television.

The accent on the next election was apparent in speech-making throughout. The meeting opened Friday night with a well-planned vote of confidence in Mr. Lesage and closed Sunday night with another organized demonstration on the convention floor in support of the 59-year-old Liberal premier of Quebec from 1960 to 1966.

In his closing speech, Mr. Lesage stirred visions of imminent electoral victory by saying the death of Premier Daniel Johnson Sept. 26 has created an immense gap in the Union Nationale" and the Liberals clearly had a better chance than ever of regaining power.

Italian Mafia Trial Reopens

CATANZARO (Reuters) — Jail wardens and prisoners crowded the court in this small southern Italian town Saturday for the trial of 113 alleged Mafia gangsters reopened after a summer recess of more than two months.

The accused—many of whom are being tried in absentia—face charges ranging from theft to murder in one of the biggest and longest Mafia trials in years.

The proceedings Saturday were mainly taken up with a long speech by a defence lawyer.

The trial, which began in October, 1967, followed the death of Mafia boss Lucky Luciano in 1962 and a subsequent struggle for power between two rival gangs.

The gang warfare ended in the death of seven policemen, blown up by a bomb planted in a car in 1963. Most of the accused in the trial were rounded up in a huge police sweep after the explosion.

Soviet Missiles On China Border

LONDON (AP) — The Sunday Times says the Soviet Union has set up two new missile sites near the Chinese border.

It says the sites have ground-to-ground missiles with a range of 2,500 to 3,000 miles. They would be able to neutralize China's nuclear test sites in Sinkiang province, cover a vast industrial area in Manchuria, or strike Peking, the capital, only 700 miles away.

The report is attributed to "good sources."

Funeral Decision Criticized

LONDON (CP) — The way Britain was represented at the funeral of premier Daniel Johnson of Quebec has been branded by The Sunday Express "a monumental political blunder."

"The incredible decision (by Britain) to send a minor diplomat was a result in the memory of a leading statesman in a cherished sister nation of the Commonwealth," The Express says in an editorial.

A British official had said Wednesday that it was not appropriate for a cabinet minister to attend the funeral of a provincial premier.

Britain was represented at the funeral by its acting high commissioner in Canada, T. E. Bogers.

Already criticized by The Times, the British representation at Johnson's funeral is contrasted by The Express with France's presence "in repetive its prime minister, Maurice Couve de Murville.

Miss Horn: Negroes Don't Care

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — A Mohawk Indian princess from Montreal told a group attending the Indian Wild Rice Festival at Minneapolis Saturday that "Negroes are not the slightest bit interested in Indian rights."

Kahn-Tineta Horn said Negroes "never were, and never will be" interested in the welfare of Indians. She told the gathering that "Indians do not want to be linked with the rights or any claims of Negroes."

Negro claims were hostile to those of Indians.

Miss Horn, 25, a member of the Six Nations Iroquois Confederacy was invited to the two-day festival by the American Indian Movement.

She said that the heads of "Negro organizations should be notified to mind their own business concerning Indians.

Potential Not Utilized

Former Official Proposes Vietnam Be Governed By UN

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — A former South Vietnamese government official has proposed that Vietnam become the property of the United Nations for an "experiment in international government."

Nguyen Huu Chi, a professor of political studies at Queen's University here, said in a weekend interview that he has been nourishing his scheme for a unified Vietnam since 1952.

He was a special assistant to Dr. Quat, the last civilian prime minister of the country, and was governor in 1956 of the province of Quang Nam near Da Nang. He left Vietnam after surviving the coup that deposed Dr. Quat and becoming "disillusioned with the entire situation."

Dr. Chi said the United Nations is a good organization that has not used its potential.

"I think we should use Vietnam as experimental ground for a system of international government, and if this were a success the UN would have a tremendous future," Dr. Chi said.

He suggested that a representative of the UN secretary-general head a presidium supervising a federation of North and South Vietnam.

Leaders of North and South would act as advisers to the president of the presidium but would have no powers.

The presidium would decide on matters of general interest to a united Vietnam such as foreign policy, security, and monetary policy.

Under this would be a national congress of two houses, the upper house consisting of all ambassadors to Vietnam from every country in the world, and the lower house of North and South Vietnamese elected in proportion to the population in each.

The upper house would have the right to veto, be responsible for such things as the printing of currency and distribution of foreign aid.

"The biggest problem, and the most difficult, is that the big powers agree to the neutrality of the whole area," Dr. Chi said.

Elections to the lower house would be supervised by the UN.

Both North and South regions would have their own executive and legislative bodies.

North Vietnam could remain Communist if necessary, but there should be freedom of movement between the two regions.

Peace Depends on De-escalation Claims Thieu

SAIGON (AP) — President Nguyen Van Thieu said today the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese have failed in every attempt to bring "disastrous consequences" to South Vietnam in 1968.

But he said that for peace to be realized the Hanoi regime must acknowledge its aggression and agree to abandon its take over attempts.

"The most reasonable way to end this war is for both sides to scale down the level of hostilities leading gradually to a ceasefire effectively controlled and guaranteed," Thieu said in a speech to the National Assembly on the first anniversary of the creation of the body.

Hanoi is attempting "to decide international public opinion," Thieu said, by saying the continued bombing of North Vietnam south of the 20th parallel is an obstacle to negotiations.

The basic issue, however, is an end to the war, not an end to the bombing, he said. To confuse the two not only obstructs peace but also risk extending the conflict, the president said.

"We are willing and ready to take any action which can hasten the establishment of a just and honorable peace, but we cannot take any action that will prolong the war or will result in aggression. It now is up to Hanoi to let us know how a total cessation of bombing over the remaining part of North Vietnam will bring both sides closer to peace."

Australian Troops Run Own Viet Show

SAIGON (Reuters) — Australia's fighting force in Vietnam has mushroomed from 100 advisers six years ago to nearly 8,000 battle-hardened troops.

New Zealand, the only other Commonwealth country in the war, has 550 men under arms here—from an initial commitment of an artillery battery in mid-1965.

More than half of the Commonwealth troops in Vietnam are based at a former French rubber plantation cut out of steaming jungle about 45 miles southeast of Saigon.

This base, at Nui Dat in Phuoc Tuy province, houses New Zealand's two infantry companies and an artillery battery which are integrated with the 4,000-strong 1st Australian Task Force.

New Zealand's tough infantrymen, gunners and support troops, are all regular soldiers. The Australian task force is made up of national servicemen and regulars.

From the Nui Dat base Australians and New Zealanders—working independently of Americans—scour the surrounding jungle and swampland for Viet Cong guerrillas.

Sometimes they venture from Phuoc Tuy province—their tactical area of responsibility—into the adjacent Bien Hoa province in operations with U.S. and South Vietnamese forces.

Besides the military aspect, the Commonwealth troops also run a civic action program in which soldiers build schools and market places for peasants.

The Australian force also has a team that works in small groups scattered throughout the county to advise the South Vietnamese in military and other matters.

Backing up the military effort are four civilian surgical teams from Australia tending to the medical and dental needs of the South Vietnamese.

About 15 miles south of Nui Dat the first Australian logistics support group runs supply and communications operations.

The Australian task force relies on air support from two Australian Air Force squadrons.

Nigerian Observers Criticized Roundly

LAGOS (CP-AP) — The foreign observers invited here to watch the conduct of federal troops in the Nigerian civil war seem to have satisfied nobody with their first two reports.

"When I saw their first I thought it had been written by the federal government," said one senior European diplomat.

And the observers, from Britain, Canada, Poland, Sweden, the United Nations and the Organization of African Unity, have upset their hosts as well. The Canadian observer is Maj.-Gen. William A. Milroy, commandant of Canadian Land Forces Command and Staff College, Kingston, Ont.

Their verdict that the killings in Okigwi a week ago of four European relief workers were "unprovoked and unjustified" has drawn a denial from the defence ministry. A civilian spokesman there said the four died as a result of mistaken identity, and suggested they were killed in crossfire.

In Umuahia Saturday, Biafra's head of state was scornful of foreign observers, particularly of Britain's minister of state at the Commonwealth office, Lord Shepherd, who previously stated he had found no evidence of genocide in the war.

The Biafran leader said it was too early to tell what the response would be to the cables he sent to all heads of state two days ago asking them to invoke the genocide convention against Nigeria in the war.

The convention drawn up by the United Nations, outlaws race murder.

In their first interim report, the foreign observers disclosed Wednesday, after a week's tour of one of the three war fronts, that "there is no evidence of any intent by the federal troops to destroy the Ibo people . . . use of the term genocide is in no way justified."

The Red Cross version of the killings says federal soldiers mowed down four of 10 relief workers found in Okigwi after the Biafrans fled. The Red Cross claimed the soldiers robbed and beat the relief workers before shooting them.

Ojukwu has suggested that observers are unable to check 80,000 troops in an area of 30,000 square miles.

Wilson and Smith Flying to Gibraltar

Leaders Seek To Heal Split

LONDON (CP) — Prime Minister Wilson will fly to Gibraltar today to meet with Rhodesian leader Ian Smith Wednesday in their first summit in two years.

Wilson announced his flight plan after a cabinet meeting in which he sought and quickly obtained cabinet approval of his new venture.

It will be the first meeting between Wilson and Smith since their unsuccessful bid for a settlement on the British warship Tiger in December, 1966.

The announcement said the talks are aimed at discovering whether it would be possible to arrive at a settlement of the Rhodesian problem acceptable to both sides.

Wilson will be accompanied by Commonwealth Secretary George Thomson and Attorney-General Elwyn Jones.

Smith will be accompanied by Justice Minister Desmond Lardner Burke and External Affairs Minister John Howman.

The talks will be held aboard the British cruiser Fearless, in Gibraltar harbor.

The governor of Rhodesia, Sir Humphrey Gibbs, who is loyal to Britain, will be in Gibraltar for the talks, the announcement said.

The announcement came immediately after a cabinet meeting at 10 Downing Street which lasted nearly two hours.

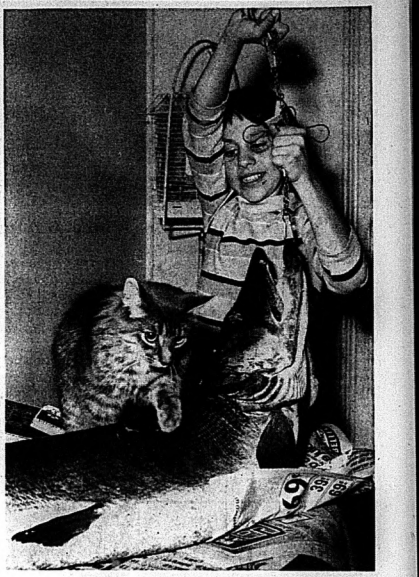
Wilson insists that any settlement must be on the basis of his six principles which include a pledge that there will be no legal independence in Rhesia without majority rule, which means that eventually the blacks, outnumbering the whites 20-to-1, would control the government.

But Wilson has not spelled out a timetable for such a majority rule and Smith has stated publicly there would be no such black control in his lifetime or in the lifetime of his children.

Some compromise on this principle will be required if the new talks are to succeed. But the chance of such success has increased, an informant said, because United Nations sanctions have eaten into the Rhodesian economy. Smith is also seen as moving slightly towards moderation when he slapped down the extreme right wing of his Rhodesian Front party.

With a Commonwealth prime ministers' conference scheduled for next January, a settlement would be a great help for Wilson who came under heavy fire at the last meeting of Commonwealth leaders two years ago.

Wilson has been testing out the Salisbury climate through an aide, James Bottomley, who recently conferred with Smith and with Rhodesian Governor Sir Humphrey Gibbs.



But the speed in which Wilson is reported to have decided to hold new talks with Smith was described in some British newspapers as a petty attempt to divert public attention from the annual Conservative party conference which opens at Blackpool Wednesday.

Wilson's aides have vigorously denied such an intention.

The British government declared Smith's white-minority government illegal when the former colony unilaterally declared independence on Nov. 11, 1965. It has since cut nearly all links with Rhodesia.

United Nations sanctions, approved in a Security Council resolution four months ago, blocked all trade by UN member states with Rhodesia except for certain vital goods.

A glumbling block in past negotiations has been British insistence upon a constitution that would have unimpeded progress to majority rule for a country with 4,000,000 blacks and 220,000 whites.

Trustees Advised To Run Schools

HAMILTON (CP) — An Ontario cabinet minister Monday warned school trustees against passing too much responsibility to professional school board advisers.

"We need dedicated and well-trained personnel to carry out policy and direction of the board," said Provincial Secretary Robert Welch.

"But remember, with every necessary assignment and delegation in staff, please make sure that it is just the function that is being turned over and that you still retain the control and the interest and the concern."

Mr. Welch said in a speech to the Public School Trustees' Association of Ontario that today's school trustee is faced with responsibilities "that cannot be taken up one day and put aside the next, but which demand continuing attention and participation."

He said English and French must be taught as second languages throughout Canada "if, as a country, we are to share the historical and cultural values of the two founding nations."

But all attention cannot be focused on two races in a multi cultural society and "we must consciously prevent children from rejecting the positive values and pride in the traditions of their native lands."

Well, What About It?

All Agree Pensions Inadequate

OTTAWA (CP) — Spokesmen for all Commons parties agreed Monday that Canada's old-age pensioners are in dire need of assistance.

But they differed on how such assistance is to be provided. A motion by NDP House Leader Stanley Knowles that the old age pension be increased to $135 was debated for its alloted maximum of one hour and then went to the bottom of a long list of other private members' motions.

The basic pension now is $75. The maximum supplement is $30.

Norman Cafik (L—Ontario) said problems of the aged demand immediate attention. But perhaps the "real solution" would be to institute a guaranteed annual income which would consolidate welfare services into one program.

Waldo Monteith (PC—Perth), who was health minister in the Diefenbaker government, said he is convinced that the income supplement causes a lot of heartaches and headaches.

Hume Resigns as Industrial Chairman

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Repeter

George Hume, a member of the Belleville Industrial Commission for the past three years and president for the past one-and-a-half years, has resigned from the commission.

Mr. Hume's letter of resignation was received yesterday by Industrial Commissioner Ray Brown and was read last night at city council.

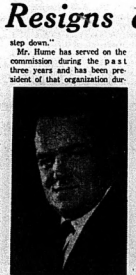
In his letter Mr. Hume stated that "recent changes and added pressure of work in my business organization will leave me no time during the coming months to attend to meetings and other matters of this commission."

He continued that "in fairness to all concerned and not to delay in any way the program of attracting industry to this city, I feel that I should step down."

Mr. Hume has served on the commission during the past three years and has been president of that organization during 1967 and 1968 to date.

A special meeting of the board of directors of the Industrial Commission will be held tomorrow to discuss the receipt of Mr. Hume's resignation.

Mr. Hume, who is at present in hospital, is not available for comment himself, however, commissioner Brown expressed regrets at receiving the resignation.



"During Mr. Hume's tenure on the commission I have found him most capable and energetic and his loss will be felt, not only by myself but by his associate directors and the Belleville Industrial Commission itself."

Alderman E. A. Orr was the only council member to comment on Mr. Hume's resignation.

"I am not surprised," he stated, "I have a feeling there has been strained relations between the Industrial Commission and city council."

To help improve relationships between the two bodies Ald. Orr suggested that an informal meeting between the two be arranged for discussion of policy and other matters.

Council went along with the suggestion the two bodies get together for discussion.

Labor Leader Charges Vested Interests Prevail

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Verbal ructions reared around the Belleville Industrial Commission today.

The flareup, provoked by charges the commission is being steered by a "small, but powerful influencial group" pitted a local labor leader against a city industrialist — both of them commission members.

Antagonists in an angry exchange of statements are Ray Bradshaw, Belleville and District Labor Council president, and Fred Deacon, commission vice-chairman.

The labor group with its statement this morning, hint-

Pilot Flies Bush Plane After Prop Cuts Off Arm

PORT ARTHUR (CP) — With his right arm slashed off four inches from the shoulder, Brian Steed flew his plane 15 miles for help Saturday to write another chapter in the saga of Canadian bush pilots.

After spending a restful night in hospital here, the pilot for Austin Airways of Tornto was listed in satisfactory condition today.

The story came to light Monday after his flight from Green Lake, 60 miles north of here, to the Austin base at Lake Shebandowan.

Bob Gauthier, an engineer for International Nickel Company of Canada and who was a private pilot's licence, said Monday in a telephone interview they were surprised when Mr. Steed's aircraft arrived at the base.

"We didn't know he was coming, he just came in," he said.

"When we opened the door we saw immediately what was wrong."

Mr. Steed's ordeal started moments after he landed his single-engine Beaver aircraft on Green Lake in the rugged bush of northwestern Ontario to deliver equipment for Inco.

He stepped onto the pontoon and slipped into the still-whirling propeller.

Alone at the time, Mr. Steed was knocked into the water by the impact and the combination of shock and cold water revived him.

ed of vested interestes behind commission operations.

Mr. Bradshaw also noted reports alleging an information leak to development speculators involving an industry considering settlement in Belleville.

The sudden controversy, coming in the wake of last night's resignation by BIC chairman George Hume, caught the commission without a formal leader — but not a spokesman.

Mr. Deacon demanded the labor president either document his charges of speculative opportunism or publicly withdraw them.

He also denied there was "clandestine motivation" behind commission membership.

Mr. Bradshaw hinged his protest on the fact that a majority of commission directors were past, or present, officers of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce.

The labor spokesman complained there had been no meeting of the commission's general membership in five months.

"Although there have been progress reports, we point out there has not been a meeting of the entire industrial commission since May 31," said Mr. Bradshaw. The labor council feels that a recent report stating that the industrial commission is interested mainly in three types of industry — chemical, textile and electronics — does not reflect the opinion of the members of the commission and is not in the best interest of the community.

"But it is the opinion of the majority of the (commission's) board of directors, who in turn, are representative of the industrial division of the local Chamber of Commerce.

Commission bylaws permit the chamber to nominate one director.

But, said Mr. Bradshaw, five of the seven present directors "are present or past officers of the local chamber of commerce.

"This we feel is not in the public interest and it does not reflect public opinion, but serves the purpose of a small, but powerful and influential group."

The labor council would desire one representative on the board of directors. (At present Mr. Deacon and two other council members are among the commission's general membership).

"The present formation of our mayor . . . six representatives of the Chamber of Commerce and our able industrial commissioner does not constitute an effective commission," said Mr. Bradshaw.

"The youth of our city are being forced out of our area because of lack of action by those who are supposed to be acting on our behalf."

Mr. Deacon challenged the charges Monday night's session to their hamber.

"The presence of past officers of the chamber of commerce reflects more on the community - minded spirit of those individuals than on any clandestine motivation," he said.

"Similar charges could be made that city council is under the influence of the Rotary Club — and that the United Appeal is controlled by the Knights of Columbus!"

Community effort was vital to the industrial development division of jobs for city's young people and unemployed is a social obligation, said the commission vice - chairman.

Mr. Bradshaw also said the commission was concerned over a "reported leak" from the commission to a group of industrial investors known as "Development Assistance of Belleville . . .

Development, Development Assistance of Belleville, was recently formed to have building lots for sale locally.

"We are concerned because that type of activity could have ruined Belleville's chances of gaining a prospective industry."

Mr. Deacon retorted that Development Assistance is "an asset to this city — and can provide very needed assistance in the location of new industries and the expansion of present industries.

"In my opinion, this company has not taken any action which has placed in jeopardy a prospective industrial development."

The labor council charges require "immediate clarification and investigation," said the commission, spokesman.

"I sincerely hope Mr. Bradshaw will factually document his charges so that proper action might be taken. Failing to back up his charges? I feel that Mr. Bradshaw has an obligation to this community to publicly withdraw them."

SMITH — Mr. and Mrs. Barry Smith, (nee Nicholls) are happy to announce the birth of a boy, Shawn Gerald, at Belleville, on October 7th, 1968, at the Belleville General Hospital. Weight 7 lbs. 9½ ozs.

IN MEMORIAM

DRUMMOND — In loving memory of a dear grandmother, who passed away, who passed away, Oct. 8, 1967.
There's a face that is haunting as ever,
There's a voice that we're longing to hear,
There's a smile we'll remember forever,
There's no way to forget ever but,
There's a sad but sweet remembrance.
There's a memory fond and true,
There's a token of affection, Grandma,
And heartache still for you.
Sadly missed by her grandchildren, Lorraine and Wayne.

CARDS OF THANKS

I express my sincere thanks to Dr. Ellis, Dr. Bowerman, Dr. Mills, nurses and staff, also to Dr. Russell Keenan and Dr. Lecocq for their precise care in Belleville General Hospital.

Don Hogle.

The family of the late Kenneth L. Cherry wish to thank Rev. Mr. Pitt, Rev. Mr. Dr. F. E. Rose, Monsignors Sullivan and Carley; Talbot Lodge, Loyal Orange Lodge; Carty; George O'Brien; Knights of Columbus, Degree Knights; Salvation Army; Canadian Legion, Belleville Branch; friends, neighbors and fellow workers for their sympathy and bereavement. Thank you.

Mrs. Kenneth Fox.

Pilot

who leased the aircraft and the pilot to Bradshaw Aircraft Co., said Mr. Steed, 28, managed to crawl back into the cabin of the aircraft where he fashioned a tourniquet from a piece of rope.

He looped the end around his left leg and, using his right hand, back was able to apply pressure to the torniquet and stem the bleeding.

With this makeshift tourniquet, Mr. Steed managed to take off from Green Lake, fly the 15 miles to Lake Shebandowan and make a good landing.

Mr. Gauthier and personnel at the base decided almost immediately that Mr. Steed would be the easiest to the Lakehead.

He said they did not disturb Mr. Steed's tourniquet "because it was best as it was."

Mr. Gauthier, who has about 4,000 hours experience flying and who has never had above had flown a "pressure-cooker" aircraft, flew the plane to Port Arthur aided by Jim Fennel, an Inco geophysicist-operator.

He said he managed to set the Beaver down with "just one bad bounce."

Officials Discuss Communication

Officials from all over eastern Ontario met over the weekend to discuss the "Y" and communication with its members and the public.

Under the chairmanship of Don Williams, National YMCA Eastern Ontario vice-president, the local "Y" played host to 29 representatives of YMCA's from Orillia to Brockville and also from national headquarters, Toronto.

It was generally felt that if communities do not understand or accept their local "Y" the fault usually lies with the association not interpreting its work adequately.

If its lines of communication are not complete, people cannot be made sufficiently aware of, not only the activities of the "Y", but also its purpose, practice and policy.

Alan S. Crawford, chairman of the national YMCA communications committee and R. J. Torrance of the national YMCA staff directed the discussions and pointed out that the national staff had been reorganized to assist local YMCA's in working toward the goals established at the National YMCA Conference held last June at York University.

Some of these goals were: Increasing the involvement of youth and women in the affairs of the association, developing a new statement of purpose, practice and policy.

Alan S. Crawford, chairman of the national YMCA communications committee and R. J. Torrance of the national YMCA staff directed the discussions and pointed out that the national staff had been reorganized to assist local YMCA's in working toward the goals established at the Saturday's seminar brought representatives of YMCA's together to discuss concrete action at local levels working toward the goals established at the York Conference and how to keep lines of communication open between the "Y" and other organizations and the community in general.

"It would seem that we have failed in some ways in interpreting the activities of the "Y" in this area in some people. We wonder for example how well known is the extension work carried on by the local YMCA," said Mr. Fast. That is the activities directed outside the "Y" building itself.

Programs have been conducted on the west hill for several years and in the Hillcrest area the past year using school facilities, through the co-operation with the Public School Board.

The "Adventures in Living" series of adult interest groups has reached out into the community on both sides of the river. These are just two aspects of "Y" activity taking place outside the building itself.

With extension of services beyond the four walls of the "Y" however comes an increased need for more volunteer assistance from citizens with training in various fields such as swimming, physical fitness, leadership etc.

As an organization becomes more involved in the community so do and should the citizens of that community become involved with the organization.

Another point brought out in the discussions Saturday was that among some young people the "Y" has the reputation of definitely being "square." It is easy to criticize but to date no young people have come forward with a solution to "unsquare it."

The "Y" board of directors is open to suggestions of ways to reach the association more relevant in terms of today's community needs.

Belleville and District Obituaries and Funerals

SAMUEL LAWSON CHERRY

A longtime resident of 20 Pine St. in Belleville, Samuel Lawson Cherry, passed away at Belleville General Hospital yesterday in his 85th year.

Born in Kilwinning, Scotland, to the late Mr. and Mrs. James Cherry he had lived in Belleville for the past 38 years, coming here from Lindsay. His wife, the former Margaret Anne Hunter predeceased him.

Mr. Cherry joined the Grand Trunk Railway in 1904 and became an engineer in 1909 — he retired in 1949.

He was a life member of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers 189, a member of the Canadian National Pensioners Association, ANAF 201 and the Lindsay Odd Fellows 100.

Surviving Mr. Cherry are three daughters, Mrs. K. C. (Mildred) Mott of Onaping, Ont., Mrs. V. H. (Edna) Silver of Belleville and Mrs. J. (Joanne) Craig of Onaping and one son Donald Cherry of Toronto.

He is also survived by six grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday from the chapel of Dafoe Pinkston and Luscombe Funeral residence to St. Thomas Church for Eucharistic celebration. Rev. McConnell will officiate and interment will be in Riverside Cemetery in Lindsay.

MRS. HUGH AUSTIN McKAY

The funeral service for Mrs. Hugh Austin McKay of North Victoria Street in Tweed was held Friday in the chapel of the W. M Bush Funeral Home.

Rev. V. F. Earle officiated. Interment was in the English Line Cemetery in Campbellford.

The bearers were Sam Jones, Harry Thompson, Heath Jones, George Owens Clarence Woods and Cyril Latta.

Mrs. McKay died Wednesday in the Belleville General Hospital following an illness of 13 months. She was in her 78th year.

Born in Campbellford, she was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Peake.

She was an adherent of the Anglican Church. She was a member of the Order of the Eastern Star.

Mrs. McKay is survived by her husband, Hugh Austin McKay; a brother, Samuel in Peake of Whitby; and by several nieces and nephews.

EARL THOMAS WILSON

Earl Thomas Wilson of 34 College Street East died yesterday in the Belleville General Hospital following a lengthy illness. He was in his 73rd year.

Born in Kingston, he was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wilson. He resided in Belleville for 41 years.

Mr. Wilson was employed as an electrician. He was a member of Christ Church.

He served in France with the 21st Battalion of the Royal Canadian Army through World War one. He continued service in the army through World War two as a sergeant of the Army Service Corps.

He was a member of the Army, Navy and Air Force Legion of Belleville.

He is survived by his wife the May Knoll, dear father of Kay, Gwen, Betty, Beulah all of Belleville and Mrs. Ruth St. Joseph, Belleville, Robert, California. He is also survived by one brother Robt. Wilson, Syracuse, N.Y.

The body is resting at the Grant Funeral Home where service will be held Thursday afternoon. Canon R. B. D. Wright will officiate. Interment will be in the Belleville cemetery.

MRS. ANASTASIA (ANNIE) McINNIS

Mrs. Anastasia McInnis of R.R. 1, Read, passed away yesterday at Belleville General Hospital in her 82nd year.

She was born in Newfoundland to the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Ryan and wed Duncan McInnis who predeceased her. She had been a resident of Read for the past five years, coming there from Actinolite.

Mrs. McInnis is survived by her daughter, Mrs. James (Bridget) Mayo of Read and by her brothers Thomas and Edward Ryan of Glace Bay, N.S.

The funeral will be held Thursday from the chapel of the O'Brien Funeral Home to St. Charles Church in Read of which she was a member.

Requiem Mass will be at 10 a.m. and interment will be in St. Charles Cemetery.

What happens to your mileage if you drive with worn spark plugs? Or a faulty choke? Or brakes that are dragging?

Most people don't know.

That's why Shell has written a book. All about mileage. (Mileage is our business.)

The idea is to help you go as far as possible on every gallon of gasoline. That way you can keep your car in top running condition and save money.

Mileage is more than gasoline

This book—32 Secrets—tells the story.

There are facts on driving. (Did you know it takes more gasoline to idle for one minute than it does to switch off and then restart the engine?)

There are facts on air filters, tire pressure, spark plugs. (Did you know that a dirty air filter can cut your mileage by 10%?)

The information comes from Shell research laboratories, Shell dealers across Canada, the automotive industry and professional drivers.

A Shell dealer would like to give you a free copy of 32 Secrets. He'd also like to help you solve your mileage problems.

Mileage is his business, too. After he corrects the little problems, then Super Shell can really show off.

Super Shell for good mileage

Super Shell has five ingredients for good mileage.

(1) Platformate contains petroleum molecules with extra energy built into them.

(2) TCP works to keep spark plugs from misfiring.

(3) Butane helps give fast starts. (The faster you start, the less gasoline you use before you get going.)

(4) A detergent fights deposits that can build up inside the carburetor. These deposits hurt your mileage.

(5) Mixed Pentanes help your engine warm up quickly to prevent misfiring, bucking, coughing and wasted fuel.

You'll get good mileage from Super Shell with these five ingredients. You'll get even better mileage with the help of our book.

See a Shell dealer.

(If you haven't visited Shell before, this would be a good time. The book is free. And there's bound to be a dealer nearby.)

Canada and NATO

If Canada is being forced to economize in various directions these days it ought not to do so at the expense of weakening this country's commitments to the defence of Europe.

Ottawa may be miffed over U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk's recent note suggesting that because of the Soviet occupation of Czechoslovakia, Canada should maintain its present troop strength and nuclear capability in Europe. We do not enjoy being told where our responsibility to NATO lies, any more than President Johnson enjoyed learning that former Prime Minister Pearson a year or two ago had made a speech suggesting that the United States should halt its bombing of North Vietnam.

Yet, the reality of the situation in Europe since the Soviets marched into Czechoslovakia is such that neither the U.S. nor Canada can afford to ignore it. Russia has at least half-a-million troops in Czechoslovakia. This force, believed in number more than like Americans have in Vietnam, is a potential threat to West Germany and Western Europe at large.

There have been suggestions in Ottawa that Canada may reduce its military forces in Europe. But that was prior to the Czech affair. The Soviet re-occupation of the country places a very different complexion on the east-west balance of power in Europe. For this reason Canada should maintain its present commitment there.

A Mayor's Mayor

Mayor Drapeau of Montreal might be described as "a mayor's mayor." Entrepreneur, creative genius, brainstormer and go-getter, Mr. Drapeau is a man for all seasons.

The Drapeau formula for success and happiness is work — and more work. If no man is indispensible, Mr. Drapeau comes as close to that as any. In a recent CBC program he said his last vacation was two weeks about 20 years ago. To survive this awesome schedule the mayor finds a sense of humor essential. A few moments of fun or something to laugh about each day and Mr. Drapeau can keep right on going. He said he even enjoys cartoons of himself provided they are not cruel or malicious.

Another facet of the Drapeau style, and a key to the tremendous success of Expo 67 and the maintenance of the exhibition permanently under the title of Man and His World, is his premise that problems and difficulties exist only to be solved.

The mayor believes in investment, in putting money and creativeness into something tangible. He cited Versailles, the great palace built by Louis XIV, and in our own day, Expo, as monuments to men's genius.

In one respect Mr. Drapeau, modest as he is, revealed himself as akin to lesser mortals. He confessed that October and November, when the days grow short and dark, depress him. That is the way it is with most of us!

Polluted

The Romans may have been a clever and determined lot, what with their penchant for conquest, their creative genius and industrious ways, but as history has shown they also contributed to their own downfall.

And they did so apparently not by loose living, as was hitherto believed, but by spiking their wine with a germ-killing chemical which resulted in lethal doses of lead poisoning.

That is the view of Dr. James Sundmeir, a University of California chemist. In presenting it at a recent meeting of the American Chemical Society, Dr. Sundmeir drew an ominous parallel with modern society.

"Today we do not use lead oxide in wine, but we pour tons of lead into the atmosphere through automobile exhaust. The average concentration of lead in the bloodstream of Americans is one part per four million, approximately a third of the amount found in patients suffering from acute lead poisoning which could result in death."

Let's hope we can profit from these calamities of the early Romans. In one sphere at least we have . . . no Quinte farmer for instance would think of sowing his ground with salt, as was the habit of the Romans when they moved into enemy territory. Plants began to grow again, but they were mainly weeds, burdocks and nettles.

However, if we permit much more concentration of lead from the exhaust of vehicular traffic, the health of our own and future generations will suffer.

Ottawa Offbeat

Enigmatic Trudeau Makes Loneliness of Job Absolute

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — What is he really like, and does anybody actually know what he thinks?

"He," of course, is Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau.

And the double-barrelled question is the biggest one of all that everybody still is asking — visitors, tourists, civil servants in high places and low, Establishment mandarins and filing clerks alike, the Parliament Hill press corps including the score or more of men and women from the French language Quebec newspapers and broadcasting stations, even Senators and MPs of all parties, not excluding — or more accurately, especially — the ruling Liberals.

He came to Parliament Hill less than three years ago.

And if he was not altogether unknown, only a very few knew much about him.

But everyone knew he was somehow different than most of the other politicians. Flashingly brilliant, a fascinating individualist out of a world apart from most people, a world of wealth and privilege, high academic learning and offbeat international travel.

He came here a very private person, and not much of a mixer, remained pretty well a man apart.

Even when he became justice minister — would you believe it was just last year — he remained still very much his own man, quiet, withdrawn, attracting no great attention.

Then suddenly, there he was at the last moment, in the running for the Liberal leadership and the high post of prime minister, and everybody instantly was very much aware of this overwhelming personality phenomenon.

But if few really knew what sort of man he was in the two and a half quiet years he was here before becoming prime minister, there is even less chance now of getting to know.

Like every prime minister, he is protected from intrusion.

But no prime minister has had such a fanatically devoted guard as this. almost praetorian in the jealousy of its vigil, shielding him almost as the Caesar his hair style resembles.

Around this tight protective circle rings down a curtain of secrecy impenetrable by press, parliament and public alike, and the security of privacy is utter.

There is something more, though.

Even if Pierre Elliott Trudeau were an extrovert rather than the introvert he is — even should he want to be more of the public than the private man — he would find it extremely difficult.

For remoteness, even loneliness comes very much "built in" with the post of prime minister.

Some of it, for every prime minister, is a simple matter of self-defence.

For sanity's sake, he must keep the hordes of favor-seekers, not only on the other side of his door but well beyond the bounds of familiarity.

From the record, this quote of a former prime minister:

"Everybody, complete strangers and closest friend alike, wants something from the PM. The only escape is into isolation. Because you are PM they believe you have only to say the word and the thing is done."

How severe can the pressure be?

Still vivid in Parliament Hill memory is the way an importuning favor seeker — actually weeping for an appointment to the Senate—"marooned" Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent in his East Block offices behind a "moat" of tears spilled outside the door.

Each time the prime minister opened it, there was the weeping pleader whose tears, as could only be expected, finally dissolved the resistance of Mr. St. Laurent, a kindly man who simply could not stand to see anyone suffer so.

Something else that drives a prime minister into seclusion within himself is the fact of political life in high places that nobody — but nobody, absolutely — ever comes to him in ultimate candor.

So, as he discovers how difficult if not impossible it is to assemble a circle of close advisers who have the courage to tell him exactly what they think it is, when it comes to depend more and more on his own judgment and hunches, becoming increasingly remote.

They all said it, Mackenzie King, Louis St. Laurent, John Diefenbaker and Lester Pearson, said that being prime minister could be one of the world's loneliest jobs.

Lonely because the prime minister must make the final difficult decisions, and bear the responsibility for them.

Alone.

Pierre Elliott Trudeau, more remote in the beginning than any of them, could become the loneliest one of all.

Letter to the Editor

Local Student Explains 'People-Generated' Classes At Glendon College

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

As a third year student at Glendon College, I read with interest your editorial of Wednesday, "Educational Explosion." In it you mentioned 'people-generated classes'. ("This idea of Glendon College students ran into opposition from college authorities who told them they were indulging in too much introspection and too little study").

Sir, as much as I realize your intentions were good in using the Glendon story in your editorial, it is time that the public realized what really did happen at Glendon College this fall. Most of what the Toronto newspapers published on the subject was a fine example of slanted news coverage."

To begin with, our college received a great deal of bad publicity this fall as a result of certain members of our student body being widely quoted by the news media as favoring non-enrolment in courses and the abolition of formal courses. To their thinking, such formal classes would be replaced by a combination of 'sitting up the university culture' and 'people-generated classes', a sort of wide-open seminar. Now these certain individuals included our student council president and college newspaper editor. However, they were acting as individuals in making their statements, and had no more right to claim to represent the student body in this matter than the news media had to pretend they represented the student body.

However, the press jumped at the chance to give wide publicity to these individuals, to make a sensational story of them, and to pretend that all the students at Glendon College were ardent rebels and student activists.

It would be interesting to note that of a total registration of over 1000 students at Glendon this year, only 15 failed to enrol in courses. This was the small extent of support these so-called student activists received. But what these figures appear in any newspaper? — No, not at all: rather the Toronto newspapers, and now yourself, would like to perpetuate the myth that all university students are "indulging in too much introspection and too little study". It has happened that our newspaper editor himself, widely quoted in the Toronto news media as advocating non-enrolment, enrolled in all his courses. When asked how he could do so after advising others not to enrol, he said, "Come, come now. That stuff is okay for first and second year kids, but third year is different!" So you see, Mr. Editor, there are hypocrites even among the student activists. If your English, a student activist ceases to be a student activist when graduation is near, and future security must be looked after.

As for our people-generated classes, some are still continuing, but others have failed. What is important is that these are going on in conjunction with regular classes, which the great majority of the student body is attending. The people-generated courses which are continuing, are doing so because those participating in them are learning and studying to make them as well as their regular classes a success. Yes, students at Glendon do study.

I fully realize that the news media must report news that they feel is happen. What worries me often is that the news media lazily gives Glendon, one of the outspoken individuals wide publicity, and thus produce big problems to report where none existed before.

Glendon College has no more or less of student radicals than any other college or university. The only difference is that Glendon was established on such high ideals of bilingualism and public service that the media seem to have taken it upon themselves to 'rap us on the knuckles,' if you will, as often as they can. They give over-whelming publicity to anything unfavorable which overshadows almost overlook such things as last year's "Quebec: Year Eight" conference and this year's "Indians of Canada" conference organized entirely by students at the college.

Please continue to report the news responsibly, sir. It is not only misleading to forget about the 99 per cent of the students who are working hard, but it is discouraging to those students and encouraging to the others who need no encouragement at all.

ROSEMARY SODEN,
Economics III, Glendon College.

• • •

EDITOR'S NOTE: In an earlier editorial on the "people-generated" classes at Glendon College we noted that college president Escott Reid warned the college would be "destroyed" if such a program were adopted. The reference to introspection by both students and members of faculty was attributed to Professor Reid. That the college authorities felt it necessary to address the student body on this theme would suggest that some of the students at least required some encouragement to pursue their studies more ardently, and that fostering of unconventional teaching methods at this stage could jeopardize the overall academic program.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

In an effort to give construction contractors and prospective residents of the Parkwood Heights and veterans' rental homes areas some definite idea as to when sewer and water facilities will be available, a special meeting of the Public Utilities and construction men has been called.

An Invasion Of Privacy

Bruce West in The Globe and Mail

All hail the utterly fearless Daily Express of London! After it and other Fleet Street newspapers received word from Buckingham Palace that the Queen hoped no use would be made of some intimate photographs snapped by Snowdon after the birth of Prince Edward the Express promptly ran one of the pictures on its front page.

What possible service was performed for the public by this crude and rather cruel invasion of the Queen's privacy? What does it prove? Well, I suppose it proves, for one thing, that one of the saddest victims of this new passion to tell all and show all about everything is plain, ordinary good taste.

TODAY IN HISTORY

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Oct. 8, 1968 . . .

Henri Christophe, the second Negro emperor of Haiti, shot himself 138 years ago today—in 1829—with a silver bullet and the country became a republic. Dessalines was the last survivor of the three leaders of Haiti's revolt against French rule. Toussaint l'Ouverture died in a French prison and Jean-Jacques Dessalines, the first emperor, was assassinated. Haiti had progressed since Christophe's 14-year reign but he was considered cruel and repressive.

1877—Wilfrid Laurier became minister of inland revenue.

1904—The cities of Edmonton and Prince Albert, Sask., were incorporated.

First World War

Fifty years ago today—in Something else that drives a prime minister into seclusion within himself is the fact of political life in high places that nobody — but nobody, absolutely — ever comes to him in ultimate candor.

So, as he discovers how difficult if not impossible it is to assemble a circle of close advisers who have the courage to tell him exactly what they think it is, when it comes to depend more and more on his own judgment and hunches, becoming increasingly remote.

They all said it, Mackenzie King, Louis St. Laurent, John Diefenbaker and Lester Pearson, said that being prime minister could be one of the world's loneliest jobs.

Lonely because the prime minister must make the final difficult decisions, and bear the responsibility for them.

Alone.

Pierre Elliott Trudeau, more remote in the beginning than any of them, could become the loneliest one of all.

1918—President Wilson declared the evacuation of enemy-held Allied territory as a prerequisite for an armistice: the Seigfried line was broken during the Allied advance on the Western Front; British and American troops made progress between St. Quentin and Cambrai; French forces captured Rethel.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1943—Allied 5th Army troops captured the important communications and air centre of Capua, less than 100 miles from Rome; Allied headquarters announced the Japanese abandonment of the southern half of Kolombangara Island in the Solomons; RCAF bombers attacked Hannover and Bremen.

PM Limits Question Period So Ministers Can Keep Busy

By KEN CLARK

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Trudeau runs the risk of focussing opposition fire upon himself with the limiting of cabinet ministers' attendance during the daily Commons' question period.

Under the new deal, just put into operation, only half the cabinet is present for the question period except on Wednesdays, when all are supposed to be on hand. Previously, all were supposed to be present if possible.

For the four sitting days when only half the cabinet is present, Mr. Trudeau may find himself the recipient of questions that would normally be directed to absent ministers. Mr. Trudeau has promised to try to be present every day.

Queries during the question period, which lasts from 30 minutes to an hour, are supposed to be restricted to those which elicit information. In fact, most are carefully designed to embarrass the government.

If the opposition parties focus their fire on Mr. Trudeau, it will place the Liberal leader on the spot. But he has weapons to extricate himself. He needn't answer at all if he doesn't want to. Or he can promise a questioner to take the matter up with the appropriate minister.

Or he can answer, trying to put the opposition questioner in a sorry light if that is what the questioner was trying to do to the prime minister.

Soon after the new Parliament opened Sept. 12, it seemed evident Mr. Trudeau was trying to downplay himself in the Commons question period.

He referred questions directed to him personally to cabinet colleagues where possible. It seemed to be part of a deliberate move to rebut criticism that he had turned the Liberals into a one-man party.

In any case, Mr. Trudeau seems willing to accept the risk of reversing this situation to give his cabinet ministers more time to minister their departments rather than have them sitting in the House waiting for questions that may never come.

If it develops that the opposition pays increased attention to Mr. Trudeau in question period, the opposition runs its own risk. By directing their fire at Mr. Trudeau, the opposition members may give him the opportunity to achieve prominence by hurling verbal counter-projectiles at the questioners.

Winter Works Cutback Causes Sharp Debate

City council members have different opinions about the decision of the federal government to cancel the winter works program.

Discussion on the winter works cancellation was prompted as a result of a request from the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities inviting suggestions for the development of some proposal for replacement of the program.

Alderman Kenneth Soden said the municipalities should take a sensible attitude on the cancellation.

"You and I know that the winter works program was tainted," he said. "Projects done under winter works often cost more than if they had been completed in the summer.

He took the attitude that the government had made up its mind that cancellation of winter works was to be part of its austerity program and, "there is nothing we can do about it."

But Alderman Donald Williams didn't agree, noting that the city had planned to do certain things under winter works which now it could not do.

"We should have been forewarned," he said. "If enough municipalities objected may be the government would change its mind."

Mayor J. R. Scott agreed that winter work was needed to provide jobs but said it was private works that should be stimulated. In any event, he said, the actual monetary benefit received by the city by way of subsidy was quite limited.

City manager J. R. Reynolds said an amount of $10,000 had been placed in the city's revenue budget from the winter works subsidy.

Alderman E. A. Orr, city representative on the winter works committee said his committee was in a quandry about what to do and said there was some suggestion of disbanding.

Mayor Scott however, felt the committee should be kept alive with the view of encouraging private winter works.

Barbers Change Hours

The petition of local barbers to change their closing day to Monday instead of Wednesday, was not unanimous on the part of local shop operators.

At least one operator, Robert Collins of Robert's Barbershop, would like to see shops closed on Tuesday, and remain open on Thursday and Friday nights.

The request signed by 17 of the 20 local shop operators was brought to council two weeks ago as a notice of motion from Alderman Paul Russell.

In accordance with the request from the majority of operators, council will amend the by-law.

Council Discusses Paintings, Lamps

Is Belleville missing the boat by not displaying paintings of the Couldery collection and the Paul collection of lamps to better advantage?

At least two members of city council, Alderman Douglas Boyle and Mrs. Robin Jeffrey, feel this is the case and council has agreed the matter should be considered.

In a letter to Mayor J. Russell Scott, Alderman Boyle said that many of the paintings in the Couldery collection were in bad state of repair. He urged that the necessary restoration be done and that the paintings be displayed at the city hall, schools or other places to indicate to citizens the extent and scope of the art collection the city owns.

The Couldery — or Salaman — collection of paintings and household furnishings, were willed to the city by a former Belleville woman at the time of her death in England.

Some of the household items and a few of the paintings are on display at the Hastings county museum. Also within the past week arrangements have been made for display of some of the paintings at the opening of the Public Library addition.

Many of them however, are stored in the old county court house building.

Alderman Jeffrey referred to the Couldery collection and the Paul lamp collection as "priceless".

She urged that the Couldery collection be restored and "brought back to life."

Mayor Scott commended Alderman Boyle and Jeffrey for their interest in the art collection and said he had been concerned by the fact the collection was concentrated in one old building which posed a possible fire threat.

He said a one year term of office seriously handicapped council action in planning budgets.

And Alderman Robin Jeffrey was just as emphatic about not wanting an extra year for her term of office unless she had the support of the electors.

She could see no alternative but to hold a municipal election next year.

Mayor Scott said the question under discussion had been one of the matters before council in caucus two weeks ago.

He said it was council's obligation to make a temporary change in the term of office for council and utilities commissioners so elections would co-incide with that for school board.

Earlier in the meeting council approved the report of Carl E. Bateman, county clerk-treasurer administrator respecting membership on the county school board.

Under the terms of the agreement, Belleville will elect five members to the 16 member county board.

Belleville City Police Chief Douglas Crosbie, chats with two "Kin 20" club members, Bill and Tom Belnap, just before a dinner meeting of the Belleville Kinsmen Club last night. Chief Crosbie was speaker for the meeting.

One Year Term Idea Ruled Out by Council

Members of Belleville city council will serve out their full two year term of office but electors this fall will decide whether they favor a three year term so that municipal and school board elections will co-incide in 1972.

This was the council decision yesterday after members ruled out a possible one year term of office and defeated a motion which would have given voters the opportunity to extend the life of the present council to three years.

The question to go before the electors this fall will be "Are you in favor of electing the mayor and aldermen of the City of Belleville and the commissioners of the Public Utilities Commission — for a term of three years in the year 1969 and for a term of two years in the year 1972 and every second year thereafter . . . ."

The decision by council will cost the municipality $8,000 for an election next year, but members felt this was the only democratic way of changing school board and municipal elections in line.

The cause of the entire problem, of course, was the decision of the Ontario Department of Education to this year elect county boards of education for a two year term.

However, it just happened that this year's election for school board didn't co-incide with Belleville's two year term of office for council and public utility commission, members of which have another year of their two year term to serve.

Mayor Russell J. Scott said he would oppose any move to elect council for a one year term which he said would be a retrograde action and a return to horse and buggy days.

Council Approves Traffic Lights

City council yesterday approved the installation of traffic lights at the corner of Church and Dundas Streets.

At the same time councillors were warned that lack of money in the city's traffic budget would rule out consideration of further lights this year.

Council earlier this year had considered installation of the lights but before taking action asked for a report from Chief of Police D. T. Crosbie.

The chief reported that from a study of traffic density and accidents the lights were warranted.

Council also approved of a recommendation from the special traffic committee to allow the parking of school buses on the east side of Church Street between the St. Andrews and St. Thomas church lot boundaries from 3:30 to 4:30 p.m. from Monday to Friday.

The city parking authority will be requested to consult with the special traffic committee before making changes in the parking metered zoned area.

Committee Chairman Ald. Arthur Keegan said that where parking meters are removed his committee would like to know the reason.

Another recommendation approved called for deletion of the four to six p.m. rush hour no parking regulation on both sides of East Bridge Street on Saturdays. The rush hour area extends from Front to Church Streets.

Council also approved installation of water and a septic tank at the Centre Street cork house now taken over by the city as a recreation centre for the Hillcrest area. Cost of the work will be borne by the recreation committee budget.

City United Fund Total Now Stands at $54,000

"Operation Wind-up" begins today for The United Community Fund of Belleville and District. Many of the 150 in-house canvasses have completed their campaigns and report significant increases over 1967.

The fund now stands at $54,000 — 46 per cent of the $118,000 goal.

Mrs. Arthur J. Clare indicated that 200 canvassers have almost completed their task of calling on more than 2,600 selected individuals who are not in the labor market. "The response from older persons, particularly pensioners, has been especially encouraging," she stated. "Our aging citizens continue to be part of the community and they value the opportunity to contribute."

"Generally speaking," said Mrs. A. H. McFarlane, overall campaign chairman, "contributions are well up over last year. We have traditionally taken up to three months to complete our campaign. While our intention to reduce this interval to a couple of weeks this year may be startling to some, we feel it is possible."

Three-foot meteorological balloons have been flown by a large number of firms, industries and schools, indicating that at least 80% of the employees have pledged amounts for $25 per capita. Award plaques and year discs will be presented at the final report meeting shortly.

"We're hoping to finish before Brantford, Ontario," declared Mrs. McFarlane. "For four years now, they've been the first in Canada to close their campaign — successfully — and we'd like to upset their record. However," she admitted, we'll be just as pleased if we come second. After all, they've had 18 years of speed and success."

Burning Rectal Itch Relieved In Minutes

This Special Hemorrhoid Remedy Contains a Unique Healing Substance That Relieves Pain As It Shrinks Hemorrhoids

One of the most common afflictions is a condition known as "itching Piles". It is most embarrassing for the sufferer during the day and especially aggravating at night.

If you want satisfactory relief — here's good news. A scientific research laboratory has found a unique healing substance with the ability to promptly relieve the burning itch and pain. It actually shrinks hemorrhoids. This substance has been shown to produce a most effective rate of healing. Its germ-killing properties also help prevent infection.

In one hemorrhoid case after another "very striking improvement" was reported. This improvement was maintained over a period of months! Among these sufferers were a wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions — from case of long standing.

This was accomplished by a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne)—developed by a world-renowned research institution. This substance is now obtainable in ointment or suppository form known as Preparation H. Ask for Preparation H Suppositories (convenient to carry if away from home) or Preparation H Ointment with special applicator. Available at all drug counters. Satisfaction or your money refunded.

Officials Expect Recreation Centre To Open Soon

The close to two month delay in completion of the new $160,000 Belleville Fairgrounds recreation building has finally been brought up in council, but there is still no definite date for the city to take possession.

And that will not be until a safety certificate is issued by the city's consulting engineer J. H. A. Lassing of Trenton.

However, city manager J. R. Reynolds told council yesterday that the required certification was expected shortly.

The question of the fairgrounds recreation building was raised by Alderman Richard Ellis who said questions were being asked regarding the delay.

Mr. Reynolds said correspondence was still being exchanged between the builder and the consulting engineer.

Mayor Scott said the city manager was stimulating action regarding final completion of the building and acceptance by the city.

He said there had been many requests for use of the building.

Culhane to Be Named New City Fire Chief

Deputy Fire Chief Leo Culhane has been named by city council to head the local fire department on the resignation of Fire Chief Ted Poste.

The appointment ratified by city council at yesterday's meeting will become effective next February 1. Fire Chief Poste will resign January 31.

Deputy Fire Chief Culhane is a 28 year veteran of the local fire department, having won promotion up through the ranks. He has held his present post for the past three years and prior to 1965 was captain instructor.

The appointment of Fire Chief Poste's successor was one of the several items discussed by council in its one and a half hour caucus session two weeks ago.

Yesterday Mayor Russell J. Scott said he disliked holding caucus sessions of council, but pointed out that discussion of personalities and certain other items of business should be done in secret session.

Yesterday's council held no caucus session for the first time in several meetings.

But the session was still a marathon one, lasting for approximately three hours and 45 minutes.

Rotary Club Plans Festival

Belleville Rotary Club is aiming at some 200 entries for its first music festival next February 24, 25 and 26, festival director Linton Read told members yesterday.

The club is seeking young people and adults as well as choirs, orchestral and other groups for the new year event it is sponsoring in co-operation with area music circles.

Rotarians followed up their luncheon meeting with a tour of the Belleville plant of Mead Johnson of Canada Ltd. Highlight of the tour was a visit to the plant's new milk processing department which since its opening in May has meant employment for 17 additional persons.

Prior to the tour the plant's operations were explained to the visitors by vice-president of manufacturing, Gerry Wishart.

Rotary President Ken Wormald welcomed to the meeting company president John J. Rosseel and other officials of Mead Johnson of Canada Ltd.

Zoning Change Requested

Construction of a nine-storey high rise apartment block on Bridge Street in the city's West Hill district is in the planning stage.

But before the building could become a reality a zoning change for the site would be necessary.

Yesterday local businessman T. E. Schwab had an application before council requesting a zoning change for the Harry Parry property on the north side of West Bridge Street to permit construction of the proposed apartment block to be known as the Bay of Quinte Towers.

Volunteers Fill an Estimated 80,000 Jobs

NEW YORK (AP)—They push book carts through hospitals; help clean up slums; teach underprivileged children; ring doorbells for political candidates; iron clothes for orphans; feed foundlings; help in the fight against air pollution; collect money to fight diseases.

They are the women volunteers, not rich and not paid, often joked about and virtually unheralded. They are so numerous it is almost impossible to count them, but they fill an estimated 80,000 jobs in the United States.

Some work two hours a week; others work more. Without them many services in the country would dry up.

There are 28 major health and organizations alone which derive millions of volunteer hours from women each year. The Mothers' March each year involves about 2,000,000 women. In the peak years of the March of Dimes, women volunteers collected $15,000,000 annually for polio research.

Who is the volunteer woman?

Many are middle-age women who have reared their children.

Evelyn Byron, director of the Chicago Volnteer Service Bureau, has placed volunteers for more than 20 years.

"We have every category of woman," she said. "The teacher, the school girl, the career woman, the housewife. We get them all."

Elaine Whitelaw of the National Foundation in New York City said, "More and more young women of childbearing age want to contribute to the social needs of their country."

Mrs. Murray Mellicker of the Women's Auxiliary of the Veterans of Foreign Wars in Kansas City has made some surveys of woman volunteers.

"There is a decline in the lodge type of activity as a source of self-expression for women. Women volunteers are growing increasingly professional. And competition is stiffer for volunteer offices. Once you had to browbeat a woman into taking a local PTA presidency."

Mrs. Mellicker said that "more affluence and leisure has also contributed to the increase of women volunteers."

There are basically two types of volunteer work. One is direct service involving people-to-people contact. The other includes fund-raising, office and clerical duties.

The woman hospital worker is probably the most familiar form of volunteer.

The American Hospital Association reported that in 1964 —the last year for which it has figures-nearly 3,000 of 5,545 hospitals surveyed had auxiliaries comprised of volunteers. The membership totalled more than 1,000,000 persons and 95 per cent were women. Adult volunteers alone contributed 23,000,000 volunteer hours to hospitals in 1964.

Lucille Crawford, the director of volunteers of Chicago's Children's Memorial Hospital, which has 340 day volunteers and 60 night workers, said: "Hospitals tend to concern themselves with the dignity of a patient. The more automation in a hospital, the more it tends to be less humanized. Volunteers can fill this void."

One of the most selfless kinds of personal service is the work of a friendly visitor.

Frances Carter, a retired widow, said: "I got started about 20 years ago when I was sad in the dumps. Someone asking for people to read to elderly persons. My first work was in a nursing home. I used to visit a blind and deaf woman. We'd go for a walk and maybe I'd buy her a sandwich."

She died." Mrs. Carter said. "But I kept going back to the nursing home because I had made friends with other elderly persons."

She also works at a hospital. "I push the book cart. Mostly they don't want books, they just want someone to talk to. It seems to give them so much happiness. It's hard when you start doing this kind of work, but you get into the rhythm of it and it becomes rewarding."

Catholic Women's League Holds Regional Meeting

TWEED — The Regional meeting of the Catholic Women's League was held recently at nearby Stoco.

Don Auty of the Canadian Register explained its aims and objectives and led a lively question and answer period. He stated that CWL presidents can be of assistance to their pastors on subscriptions, and an appointed member would, with the help of her parish priest, see that parish activities are publicized in the Register.

Mr. Auty further sa id, "We like to say we are the missionary arm of the parish priest. We expand on what he tries to get across about the work of parish organizations."

Diocesan director, Father T. J. Boyle, pointed out that since Vatican II, people have to be builders of bridges from themselves to other people, and in doing this, we grow and allow other people to grow. Members of the CWL often meet in small Christian assembly, and in their discussions may come up with a solution on how to get people to read the Catholic press.

Mrs. Herbert Brown, Belleville diocesan president, encouraged members and their families to participate in the Japan poster contest sponsored by the Ontario Provincial Council at the request of the Bishops of Ontario and as part of the 1968 International Human Rights Year project in the interest of children, who are the responsibility of the Children's Aid Societies.

The efforts of the CWL in furthering the objectives of the Canadian Catholic Organization for Development and Peace, were outlined by Mrs. Breen O'Connor, 2nd vice-president. This organization was created by Canadian Bishops in answer to the Pope's plea for help for underdeveloped nations of the world.

In Kingston diocese, Mrs. O'Connor said that councils are asking to collect old gold, which is in the form of old rings, broken watches, pins, or any type of old jewellery. Parish bulletins should be used to ask people to take part in this project, the items should be collected by a CWL member on the last Sunday of December at church and sent to Ed. Logan, Jeweller, 21 Bridge Street East, Belleville.

A presentation was made to Father W. V. Hamilton, outgoing diocesan director, by Mrs. Thomas Kelly of Tweed, past president of the diocesan council. She spoke of his many contributions to the League, and his influence and example to members since his appointment as director in 1963.

In expressing his gratitude Father Hamilton said he had been happy to serve as director as he had gained much experience in this work and made many friends through his association with the league. He felt that other priests should profit the same way, and offered Father Boyle best wishes for happy and fruitful years as director of the CWL.

Mrs. Lou VanderWay, hostess president, welcomed approximately 150 members and many priests from Tweed, Trenton, Belleville, Erinsville, Read, Madawaska, Frankford, Flinton, Marmora, Point Anne, Madoc, Stirling and Stoco attending the conference at St. Edmund's Parish Hall, (just east of Tweed village).

Before lunch served by women of Stoco Council, a noon Mass was celebrated by the Diocesan Director.

St. James ACW Fashion Show

TWEED — The recent fashion show sponsored by the A.C.W. of St. James' Anglican Church, in Tweed, in conjunction with Woodley Furriers of Belleville, was rated as highly successful by the large audience and the sponsoring groups alike.

Mrs. John Poste, the master of ceremonies, welcomed an audience of approximately 190 persons to the show held in St. James' Parish Hall, recently. She also introduced the models, Mrs. Audrey Lett, Mrs. Pat Berry, Mrs. Lois Earle, Mrs. Shirley Hersey, Mrs. Daisy Noseworthy, Mdiss Sandra Goode and Miss Sandra Goode and Tweed.

The door prizes were awarded to: Mrs. Francis Goodall, Mrs. Sybil Fletcher, and Mrs. Mary Wright, Tweed. Favors were donated by a local brush representative.

Make-up was with the compliments of Mrs. Grace Waller, cosmetic representative.

Mrs. Poste thanked all those who had assisted with the show, including the Catholic Women's League of St. Carthagh's Church for the use of tables and chairs, and the Rebekah Lodge No. 236, of Tweed, for the dishes.

UCW Plans House Tour In Kingston

The sixth annual historical and modern house tour planned by Chalmers United Church Women in Kingston will be held on Wednesday October 9. For the tour this year seven homes will be visited and include the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Emmatrick, Sydenham, built in 1867; the home of Dr. and Mrs. H. M. Warner, modern in design; built in 1952; the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. A. McNevin built in 1859.

Other homes to be shown are: the home of Dr. and Mrs. F. J. O'Connor; that of Mr. and Mrs. William Bell, a modern design; the home of Dr. and Mrs. R. F. Hetherington, built in the early 1800's; also the beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Dover built about 1812 and is the residence of the mother and sister of Sir John A. Macdonald. A room in this home was always ready for Sir John when he returned home.

Tickets for the tour which runs from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., may be obtained from Chalmers Church house, 212 Barrie St. Lunch will be served at a minimal charge.

CLUB 4-H NOTES

MOUNTAIN VIEW MODERN MISSES

The second meeting of the Club Girl Entertainers was held at the home of Joyce Wood. The meeting opened with the 4-H pledge followed by the roll call in which ten girls answered.

The minutes were read by Brenda Wood. The business dealt with planning a menu for the third meeting in which a pot luck supper is to be held.

The discussion for the meeting was "the house guest' and Mrs. Barber asked questions on being a guest and entertaining a guest. At the end of the discussion each wrote a thank-you note.

The demonstration for the evening was packing a weekend suitcase which was demonstrated by Mrs. Motley.

The next meeting will be held on Oct. 7.

CARMEL 4-H

The fourth meeting of the Carmel Roolin-Tioolin-Raspberries took place at Carmel Hall.

The meeting opened in the usual manner, and the minutes of the last meeting were read by Janet Ross; later a business discussion was held.

The Misses Janet Ross and Laura Totten gave demonstrations; and Mrs. R. Love demonstrated making a fruit cup while Sherrie Putman demonstrated making an apple pie. All were advised to complete their home assignments before the next meeting.

The fifth meeting of the Carmel Roolin-Tioolin-Raspberries also took place at Carmel Hall. The meeting was opened in the usual manner, and the minutes of the last meeting were read. Business was taken care of, and a discussion was held.

CHURCH GROUPS

ST. MARK'S A.C.W.

DESERONTO — Members of the evening branch of the Anglican Church Women of St. Mark's Church, meeting last week, completed their plans for their annual bazaar, to be held October 23 in the Lions Hall.

As last year, there will be no over - all convener, but one was appointed for each of the several separate projects which will be brought together that day. There will be the usual tables where such things as baked goods, candy, produce, and the customary bazaar items will be on sale.

The women decided on one departure from last year. Instead of the usual afternoon tea with sandwiches and small cakes, they intend to have tea and a variety of desserts to which the guests will help themselves.

It was announced that a workshop in Kingston in October will take the place of the regular deanery meeting. A rummage sale was planned in the White Elephant Store.

At the close of the meeting refreshments were served.

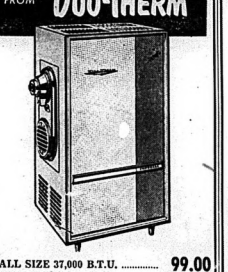
Mr. and Mrs. Harvey C. Dunn, Belleville, announce the engagement of their daughter, Carol Dianne, to Barry Clifford Stickle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Grant Stickle, Belleville. The marriage will take place in Eastminster United Church on Saturday, November 16, 1968, at 2 p.m.

Rebekah Lodge Holds Installation Ceremony

The installation ceremony of Quinteva Rebekah Lodge No. 133 took place in the IOOF Hall recently.



The Noble Grand, Sister Lillian Summers, welcomed the District Deputy President of District No. 4, Sister Eva Judge and the Deputy Marshal, Sister Ila Addy, and her staff. Other guests were Sister Irene Aman, past president Dept. Association of Ontario — LAPM, and Lady Florence Pollitt, vice-president Dept. Association of Ontario — LAPM.

Assisting Sister Eva Judge and Sister Ila Addy with the installation were the following Sisters: Alice Adams, Oreis Adams,; Jill Empey, Irene McMartin, Bernice Hall, Clara Ironside, Bessie Boldrick and Maysell Sills.

The Sisters installed were: JPNG, Lillian Summers; N.G., Nora MacDonald; V.G., Elda Sophia; financial secretary, Lena MacMillan; treasurer, Annis Webb; warden, Merle Empey; conductor, Sally Mossman; chaplain, Doris Clarke; musician, Clara Ironside; color bearer, Gladys Brickman; RSNG, Irene McMartrith LSNG, Ruth Easton; RSVG, Oress Adams; LSVG, Joyce Fish; inside guardian, Gladys Bonsor; outside guardian, Jill Empey.

Sister Dorothy Webber, Quinteva Lodge soloist, rendered two selections during the evening.

After closing, guests and members adjourned to the upper hall for a banquet prepared by Sister Martha Norris and her committee.

Ann Landers

Chances of Happy Marriage Not Likely

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The letter from the woman who married a homosexual and didn't realize it until it was too late opened my eyes. What I see might be completely meaningless, but then again, it could save us from making a horrible mistake. Please guide me.

ANN LANDERS

Rod and I started to date two years ago. I was 20 and he was 24. For the first 18 months our dates were casual — almost platonic. When he asked me to "be his girl" and not to date others, I agreed, because by then I had become very fond of him.

Last night Rod asked me to marry him. I want to say yes, but I'm afraid he might not be normal. This is the story: Those two kisses, to be truthful, were my idea, not his. Also, it was like kissing a marble slab. I'm sure Rod has never had any previous sexual contact with a girl and one could hardly call those two kisses "sexual."

Rod has a male friend who is a known homosexual. He spends more time with this friend than he does with me. When I questioned him about their close relationship, he said he feels sorry for "Mary" (this is the man's nickname and everyone calls him that) and he doesn't care what people say — he is not going to forsake him. What do you think of this, Ann? — Z.X.Y.

DEAR Z: I think you don't need a 26-year-old husband who has kissed you twice in two years and has a boyfriend named Mary.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Sunday, just as we were leaving the church, I glanced at my wife and nearly died. I yelled, "Bertha, you forgot your skirt." She screamed, "You boob, this is my new outfit."

Bertha has added about 20 pounds since we married in 1948. She is also a little bowlegged. Short skirts don't do a thing for her. She claims it is more important for a woman to be in style than to wear something flattering. She won't listen to me. Will you tell her? — AGIN 'EM.

DEAR A: It would be a waste of time. The overaged and overweight dolls who insist on wearing hiked hemlines are hopeless. A woman who refuses to listen to her husband and doesn't believe what the mirror tells her wouldn't pay any attention to me.

* * *

DEAR ANN: It's time Mrs. Housewife, U.S.A. treated her baby sitter like a paid employee instead of "that kid down the street." After all, if we are mature enough to be trusted with her most precious possessions — her children — why shouldn't we be treated like responsible people and not punk kids?

Most of the women I work for are nice, but two women are so rude I don't know what to do about them (their children are terrible, too.) Mrs. A told me not to use the phone "unless you have to call the police or the fire department." Mrs. "B" said to "Please eat at home. I'm not running a boarding House."

Last night Mrs. B told me not to turn on the TV because the tubes were weak. Would I be justified in not sitting for people who don't treat me right? I need the money, but I also need my self-respect. — SALLY.

DEAR SALLY: You should not sit for people who do not treat you properly and I hope you will tell Mrs. A and Mrs. B why you are no longer interested in accepting jobs with them. They might learn something.

Half the appeal of food is visual. Our Jellied Ham Mousse above is creamy white flecked with pink ham and delicate green grapes. Mary Moore gives step-by-step directions to make this eye-catching Jellied mould for your parties.

Jellied Ham Mousse

By MARY MOORE

You girls who have pedestal cake plates will have another occasion for which to use them. Our Jellied Ham Mousse reposed elegantly on Shirley's glass pedestal at a buffet party. Besides its beauty the flavor was great.

File this carefully for your next party and plan to have some ham heldover from a previous meal.

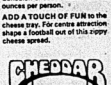
TUESDAY

Dinner Menu

Crumbed Scallops; Tartare Sauce; Oven French Fries; Tomato and Eggplant Casserole; Cucumber Aspic with Mayonnaise; Grape Sponge with Custard Sauce; Coffee.

JELLIED HAM MOUSSE
(8-cup mould)

2½ envelopes plain gelatine
½ cup cold water
2¼ cups boiling water
3 chicken cubes
3 cup dices (¼" or ½") cooked ham
1 cup halved green seedless (Thompson) grapes OR finely chopped inner celery
¼ cup chopped onion
¼ cup green relish
1 cup mayonnaise
1 tablespoon angostura bitters
1 teaspoon salt



Soak gelatine in cold water five minutes. In a large saucepan add chickfix cubes to boiling water and stir until dissolved. Stir in soaked gelatine until dissolved. Remove from heat, cool to room temperature and chill until slightly thickened. Remove from refrigerator and blend in diced ham, halved grapes or chopped celery, onion, relish, mayonnaise, bitters and salt. Turn into an 8-cup mould. (An eight cup tall mould results in an attractive tall mousse, especially on a pedestal plate.) Chill until firm.

This turns out easily onto the serving dish if you run a pointed knife around edge. Immerse mould in hot water while you count steadily to five. Garnish with tomato wedges, parsley and gherkins.

LET CANADIAN CHEESE HELP YOU PLAN TOUCH-DOWN TASTE for gameday entertaining. For your first winning play serve an ever-popular cheese tray stacked with an assortment of cheese, fresh fall fruit and crisp crackers. There are over 40 different types of great Canadian cheese to choose from. Buy at least 5 or 6—make sure you include wonderful Canadian cheddar. Allow 3 or 4 ounces per person.

ADD A TOUCH OF FUN to the cheese tray. For centre attraction shape a football out of this zippy cheese spread.

1 (8-ounce) package soft cream cheese
3 cups grated cheddar cheese
2 tablespoons cream
2 teaspoons horseradish
1 1/2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
1/8 teaspoon paprika
dash of onion and celery salts

Beat cream cheese, blend in remaining ingredients. Chill. Shape into football and chill thoroughly. Use thin strips of pimiento or green onion to make laces and seams. Serve on a field of crackers.

THE BEST CHEESE STRAWS EVER for "time-out" snacking are made with frozen puff pastry. Roll dough into rectangle, sprinkle half the dough with "nippy" old cheddar cheese. Fold in half, pinch edges together, fold again, pinching edges. Roll out about 1/4-inch thick. Cut into 4 x 1/2-inch strips. Sprinkle with salt or poppy seeds. Bake in 450°F oven 10 to 12 minutes.

TEENAGE FANS WILL CHEER FOR JIFFY PIZZAS. Split hamburg rolls; spread with butter and sprinkle with garlic salt. Cover with tomato sauce and slices of Mozzarella cheese, then top with anchovy, pepperoni or salami and a dash of oregano. Bake in a 375°F oven until cheese is bubbly (about 8 minutes).

Piano Playing Aids Stutterer

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: About stuttering. In my case it commenced when I started school. No one but a stutterer realizes the agony of never being sure if you are going to be able to start a sentence.

However, having very understanding parents and a do-or-die attitude myself, I graduated from high school and at the same time spent two hours a day at the piano. I had lost all trace of a stammer.

Later I taught school, then married, raised a fine family, and now I am back teaching. And of all things, I am specializing in teaching speech!

I would suggest to "Grateful" that he put forth a real effort to be active in his district. Working with young people is grand therapy. Also the secret of it all is: forget about yourself, be so involved in doing things for others that you simply ignore your handicap and thus conquer it. — Thankful.

Dear Thankful: You make it sound so simple. Most have taken plenty of pluck; and I'd suspect that many a nervous, tight moment, otherwise expressed in a stammer, worked its way out the ends of your fingers at that blessed piano.

* * *

Dear Doris: I would like to know if it is correct for a lady of 50, who is being married for the second time, to carry a purse or bag of any kind while she is being married?

She is wearing a blue dress with white hat and gloves. Would a medium pink corsage be in order?

Does the bride sit at the groom's right or left side at the reception? This is a big question in our group. No one seems to know for sure. — Second Marriage.

Dear Second: A purse would just be in the way. Her hands are going to be otherwise occupied while the clergyman is tying the knot. Later, a little bag with cosmetics and handkerchief might find a spot handy to her at the reception.

Pink should be perfect with medium blue.

Bride sits at groom's right. Main rules for second wedding include: (1) Not more than 100 guests at the very most. (2) one attendant apiece; (3) no white gown and veil. In general, this repeat performance is less elaborate.

* * *

Confidential to Retiring Secretary: No use pretending the gift is a surprise, when many there will know you were consulted about what you would like. Open it, admire it, say why it will be specially prized.

Make special mention of the office boy or the girl in the next office who has brightened your days or done yeoman service on your behalf. Avoid lengthy sentimental stories; laugh at yourself; take no more than three minutes. Sit down.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "Your father and I work and save to buy nice furniture so you'll be proud of your home. I certainly hate to see you lounging all over things and spilling food on the carpet."

Mother: "Let's buy a sofa and a rug than can be easily cleaned. I don't want to have to be nagging at the children about dirt all the time."

Plan furnishings so your home will be a place of good cheer — where the family can live in reasonable peace and comfort.

XI BETA ZETA CHAPTER

The regular meeting of Xi Beta Zeta Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi was held at the home of Miss Elizabeth Black.

The president explained the aims and purposes of Beta Sigma Phi to the guests present and hoped that they would join the chapter.

Following the business portion of the meeting, Mrs. J. Clarey introduced Mrs. Leo Fortin as the speaker for the evening. She gave a detailed and informative talk on narcotics. Outlining the origin, usage and legal control of the most familiar. Mrs. V. Lewis thanked Mrs. Fortin for her program on this timely subject.

Refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs J. Clarey and Mrs. V. Lewis.

The following week, a social evening was enjoyed by members and guests at the home of Mrs. J. Pringle.

A lively auction sale took place under the direction of Mrs. R. Jeffrey.

The social committee served refreshments.

The Commerce recommends New Canada Savings Bonds. Reason: They pay 6.75%!

All the Way from Dublin to Centennial Auditorium

Guess Who's Coming to Belleville Oct. 18 -- Why It's the Abbey Tavern Singers

Straight from a Dublin Tavern to Belleville come the renowned Abbey Tavern Singers.

They will be appearing for a one night stand at Centennial School Auditorium Oct. 18 to give another rousing performance in their North American tour.

And then it will be "off to Dublin, in the green, in the green."

Those famous words, the beginning of the chorus of one of the singers' most popular songs, sent them on the way to international recognition.

It was not long after the group was formed in 1962 by Mrs. Minnie Scott-Lennon, owner of the Abbey Tavern in Dublin, that a Carling advertising campaign picked up the group on film singing "It's off to Dublin."

Played as an advertisement for Carling the song became so popular that record companies put it on the market in both Canada and the United States.

The record has now sold well over 200,000 copies and was one of the biggest hits in Canada.

The Singers are still appearing at the Abbey Tavern when not on tour and they pull in 450 to 500 people a night — tourists come by the busloads.

And besides the popularity of the record, Carling's commercial was also so popular that they went back to the Abbey Tavern and filmed another one.

The formation of the group was the result of Mrs. Scott-Lennon's belief that something should be done to counteract the image of the "stage Irish".

"I've known a lot about traditional music ever since I was a child," she said, when she decided that musicians and balladeers, playing and singing traditional Irish airs in a relaxed singalong manner would be popular with both local Dublin residents and tourists.

She didn't know then how right she was.

The Abbey Tavern Singers will be performing twice on Oct. 18 at seven and 9:30 p.m. at Centennial School auditorium.

Advance tickets for the performance being sponsored by the Belleville Kinsmen are on sale now at Don Thomas' Cigar Store at $2.50; $2 and $1.50.

Television Wedding Draw Millions of Interested Fans

NEW YORK (AP)—If network television's situation comedies come up suddenly with an epidemic of weddings, don't blame the script writers. It's the romance-loving public.

Several seasons back The Farmer's Daughter, a pleasant show with rather unexciting Nielsen ratings, had Inger Stevens in the title role marrying William Windom who played a congressman. The day the wedding show was aired, the ratings jumped into the top 10.

When Betty Jo of Pettjoat Junction married her croupdutier fiance last season, the same thing happened.

And last month when The Andy Griffith Show turned into Mayberry R.F.D. on CBS, sheriff Andy Taylor—Griffith's character—marched down the aisle with his Helen, the program attracted more than one-third of the 27,000,000 TV homes and was tuned in by more than half the sets in use at that time.

The program, said a Nielsen survey, was the most popular show during the week of Sept. 23 through 29, a period when both ABC and CBS were introducing their new programs.

The audience survey for that week of premiere shows indicated that the mass audience seemed more interested in watching old favorites than inspecting the new crop.

Following Mayberry R.F.D. in the top 10 list were CBS's Here's Lucy—new title for Lucille Ball's show—and Family Affair; NBC's Rowan and Martin's Laugh-In and Bonanza; CBS's Doris Day Show, Carol Burnett Show and Gomer Pyle, and NBC's Bob Hope Comedy Special and Julia.

"Only the Doris Day program and Julia are new series, but now that Andy Griffith will become only an occasional guest star in Mayberry R.F.D. perhaps that, too, should count as a new series when later, more definitive ratings become available.

Ken Berry, as former Sam Jones, is an attractive young man who projects a kind of wholesome, shy charm. He plays a widower with a small boy, and is surrounded by the old crowd from The Andy Griffith Show and has even taken on Aunt Bee—Francis Bavier—as housekeeper.

The series remains warm and pleasant and can only be faulted for the predictability and occasionally the overenthusiastic use of a laugh track.

The British-made Avengers, the last of the tongue-in-cheek superagent series, came back with the same outsize, bizarre plots. On Monday night, the cool, clever team of John Steed and Mrs. Peel confounded some villains who had developed head cold germs to such a diabolic point that one whiff sent the victims into deadly fits of sneezing. Steed and Miss King—played by Patrick Macnee and Linda Thorsen—have such composure they exchange wisecracks when she is dangling from a steam pipe and dead villains surround them.

It's all active and merry, but one somehow feels that they are part of a cycle that ended with the demise of The Man from U.N.C.L.E.

Tweed

TWEED — While on his way enroute to attend a recent teachers meeting in Tweed, Mr. Ezra Ball of Cloyne, reported seeing two bears crossing Highway No. 7 and Sulphide, east of Tweed.

Mr. Wilfred Harkness and son of Ottawa, spent a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Russell Brushey and family of Flinton, and also with Mrs. Mattie Chalifoux, whom he had not seen since 1918.

Mr. Clifford Manion of Ardoch, had the misfortune to crush the end of his fingers at a horse drawing match, at Beechburg, although he was fortunate in coming in third at that match.

Lost Youths Found

SHARBOT LAKE — Two Ottawa teenagers walked out of the bush north of here yesterday afternoon — after their 24-hour disappearance caused an intensive air-ground search.

Provincial police said Peter Philips, 16, and Gordon White, 15, "felt fine — but slightly embarrassed."

An airforce helicopter and a police tracker dog were called in Monday when the pair failed to return home from a Sunday morning walk near the White family cottage on Kashwakmak Lake, 25 miles north of here.

The search ended when both youths came out on the shores of Clarendon Lake, six miles away, and attracted the attention of a cottager on the opposite shore.

Police said the teenagers showed no ill effects despite a night spent shivering in rain-swept bushland.

Administrator Successful in Examinations

James G. Hepburn, administrator of the Lennox and Addington County General Hospital, was received into membership in the American College of Hospital Administrators at the annual convention in Atlantic City, N.J., in September. This is the only professional body in North America recognizing hospital administrators.

Membership is not lightly bestowed. Examinations were written in May in various centres on the continent, and this year involved an oral examination, and a written one which took eight hours. It consisted of 139 pages, containing 238 questions. Only 60 per cent of those who took this examination in North America were successful.

Mr. Hepburn wrote his examination in Montreal.

Canadian Club To Hear Peter Swann

Peter Swann, Director of the Royal Ontario Museum, will be speaking tonight at Sir Winston Churchill School to the Canadian Club at 8.15 p.m.

The noted Oxford graduate was formerly the Keeper of Eastern Art at the Ashmolean Museum at Oxford University and has been editor of Oriental Art, which he restarted, for the past 14 years.

The ROM needs massive support, according to M. Swann, who has been outspoken about the museum's needs in the past.

Because of limited facilities only one-seventh of the museum's collection is on display. Mr. Swann feels that the museum is Canada's greatest, noted for excellence in many departments and should be kept up to the highest possible standards.

Firefighters Attend Course

PICTON (Staff) — Picton town council has endorsed the efforts of two firefighters here to complete extra courses in fire prevention.

Engineer Jimmy Emile Girard completed two weeks of a volunteer officers' fire-fight operation course and engineer Leonard Tripp attended the same course.

The courses were taken during their vacation as council decided some reimbursement should be made concerning expenses. Council provided $50 to that end for each fire-fighter.

Millions of Ducks Make Trek South... And Some Were Banded by Fireman

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

More ducks made it out of Belleville yesterday — joining the millions of fellow feathered-migrants swarming south for the winter.

But their identities won't be lost in the throng.

For the Belleville birds are marked migrants.

Each duck totes a metal leg band suitably stamped with its identification — all in the interests of conservation.

Close to 450 ducks have been so despatched in the past six weeks — yesterday's departures being among the last of the season.

The flight of the last few also meant more relaxation for city firefighter George Woodhouse.

An avid outdoorsman, George channels his hobby into a specific interest in the preservation of wildlife. So much so, he annually turns his backyard into a bird sanctuary at this time of year.

Not that his backyard is the custom-sized suburban strip of lawn.

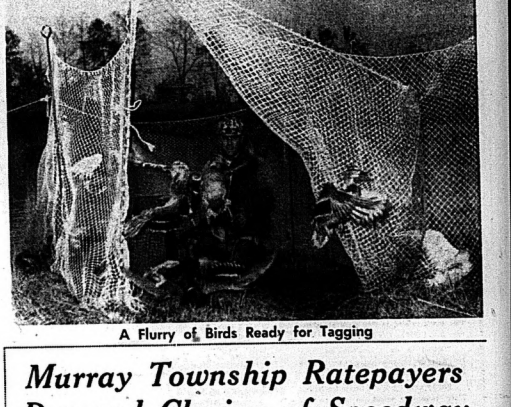
The Woodhouse home on Elmwood Drive flanks a land acreage that includes marsh and ponds — just the thing for ducks.

The sanctuary is part of a project sponsored by the Belleville Fish and Game Club which also caught the attention of the Department of Lands and Forests.

It was the department which suggested George aid in the tagging of migratory ducks.

Small as they are the metal bands play a crucial role in preserving the province's wildlife.

The identity tags help establish flight patterns and the ratio of survival among the duck population.



They also are important to the hunter. On such statistics are hunting limits set.

"It's important that any person finding these tags turn them over to the department," says George. "It helps keep a definite check on the population pattern of our wildlife."

The birds are coaxed onto the Woodhouse property both by domestic ducks and the availability of feed.

George keeps the pond well supplied with corn. Prior to banding the ducks are enticed into a mesh hutch on the marsh shore.

The mesh is made of cloth — wire has often proved injurious to excited birds seeking to slap their way to freedom.

Murray Township Ratepayers Demand Closing of Speedway

TRENTON — Murray Township Council was last night accused of being "unable to represent the people that pay taxes" as a delegation from Pine Acres presented a petition demanding the closing of Riverview Speedway.

The petition, carrying 75 signatures, demanded the track be closed because its operation has devalued property and made living conditions in the subdivision intolerable.

Reeve Gerald Ross said the land on which the track was situated had not yet been zoned and as a result no action could be taken.

"Something must be done", exclaimed William Ellis, spokesman for the group, "the residents cannot listen to television because of the noise and for many the dust from the track fills the house."

Mr. Ellis then asked if the raceway needed a licence to operate. Reeve Ross said "a bylaw will be read tonight to give them one."

"Do you mean cor xcil has been operating all A time without such a bylaw" questioned Mr. Ellis.

"It seems that way", responded the irate Reeve.

Cries of "some council" and "this council is unable to represent the people that pay taxes" were heard in the background.

The Reeve, at this point, had to constantly call for order and remind delegates to address council only through their spokesman.

But if council was angered their wrath could not compare with that of the delegation.

"We never believed that council would let this come into our area," fired Mr. Ellis.

"It's because of council's own stupidity that nothing is being done," said a voice from the delegation.

Seeking another avenue of hope Mr. Ellis asked if a bylaw had been passed allowing Sunday sports, and council said there has been no action taken on this subject.

"Council has never been approached on the subject," said the Reeve.

Mr. Ellis then accused the track of operating illegally as races were held last Sunday.

"I believe council should take some action to prosecute", declared the delegation spokesman.

"This is not council's job", retaliated the Reeve," you must act for yourselves."

The delegation broke out into a number of "boos" and the gavel received heavy use before things were brought back to order.

"Since this speedway has started", continued an exasperated Mr. Ellis," the value on our homes has gone down $2,000."

Council then informed the delegation they had acted too late, saying " . . . you should have done something when the track first appeared in June . . . our hands are tied because you have waited so long."

"Council should know what is going on", fired Mr. Ellis, "we elect you to protect us in such matters."

He added that the residents never knew the track was going to be a public one until operation actually began.

So the best the delegation could do was to obtain from council a promise that they would look into the petition and inform Mr. Ellis on their findings.

Trenton Board Starts Crackdown on Vandals

TRENTON — Board of Education buildings and grounds chairman Lou Aziz served notice last night it was his intention to implement a crackdown on school vandals.

He reported a break-in and theft at the Queen Elizabeth public school as an example of gross porperty damage police had been called in to investigate. "There was little money missing and an enormous amount of unnecessary wreckage to be cleaned up," pointed out.

Chairman Aziz said police had a lead in the case.

Reporting another incident involving property damage chairman Aziz said he witnessed two youngsters smash a swing at the Marmora school grounds. He said he recognized them and was in the process of notifying their parents with a request for restitution.

He said he was suggesting some paddle treatment was in order as a reminder other people's property should be respected.

Education Costs Increase in Trenton

TRENTON—Itseems to be a foregone conclusion town taxpayers will be digging deeper in their pockets for increased education costs.

Board of Education finance chairman Douglas Whitley told a meeting of the board last night the projected spending for elementary schools would be in the red $23,000 this year.

The report on the cost of running the town's high school was more encouraging, however. Mr. Whitley forecast the budget covering this part of the board's operation would "come out just in the black."

The miracle Mr. Whitley talked about could some in the form of provincial grants scheduled to arrive in November, The grants, Mr. Whitley hopes, will be larger for elementary school education. He is looking for them to fall considerably short of the deficit, however.

In the meantime the finance chairman said he had ordered careful scrutiny of all purchases for the schools —in order to keep necessary expenditures at a minimum.

Irate Subdivision Residents Appear at Council Meeting

TRENTON — A delegation from York Subdivision appeared before Murray Township Council last night asking for aid with their drainage problem and in the argument that followed, James Day, subdivider for the area, came close to being ejected from council.

A spokesman for the group said no action had been taken on the drainage problem by sub-divider Day.

Mr. Day, visibly angered, said he realized the problem of surface water in the subdivision but could do nothing until he had the drainage plans.

To this the spokesman responded, "We went all building permits stopped until something is done."

"I have been asking for drainage layouts all summer", shot back Mr. Day, "and it is up to this council to get them."

At this point Reeve Gerald Ross intervened and told Mr. Day to address his comment through the spokesman.

"He isn't my spokesman", shouted Mr. Day, "I'm speaking for for myself."

"I want order", bellowed Reeve Ross, "or I will have to throw you out."

"I'd like to see you try", fired Mr. Day.

"And I'd like to see some one suspend building permits when there are no drainage plans to begin with," added Mr. Day.

Council told the delegation they would look into the matter to find out the cost of an engineering study of the land.

Hospital Opening Postponed - - Again

The official opening of the new $9,000,000 addition to Belleville General Hospital is not going to take place next month after all.

Hospital Board chairman Harlelh Hamilton said over the weekend that last summer's strike of electrical workers had delayed final completion of the hospital addition more than was realized and the official opening has now been re-scheduled for early in January.

However, this doesn't mean that the new hospital facilities will not go into use this year. Mr. Hamilton said sections of the new wing would go into use as soon as they were completed.

"But the official opening will not take place until January," he said.

Strathcona Employees Sign Two Year Contract

NAPANEE — Union and management officials signed a contract Friday, ending an impending strike slated for Oct. 7 at Strathcona Paper Co. Ltd., six miles northeast of here.

About 175 members of Local 492 of the United Papermakers and Paperworkers agreed, in two meeting Thursday, to accept a company offer of a two-year contract.

The contract gives the men an increase of about 22½ cents an hour the first year and 18½ cents the second year, a company spokesman said.

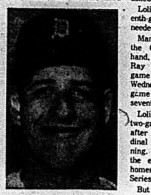
Fringe benefits gained include one-half payment of Ontario Hospital Services premiums by the company for the first year of the contract and 100 per cent the second year.

They Don't Call 'Em Comeback Kids for Nothing

Kaline's Clutch Hit Turns Trick for Tigers

DETROIT (AP) — Bill Freehan, the Detroit Tiger catcher who has gone hitless in this World Series, sat in the dugout and watched Al Kaline go to the plate.

The bases were loaded in the seventh inning of Monday's fifth game, the Tigers were trailing 3-2 and Kaline was getting set to face St. Louis Cardinal reliever Joe Hoerner.



As Freehan watched Kaline, his thoughts went back to Sunday and a comment he heard from Hoerner during the long rain delay.

"Hoerner said the one guy he'd rather not pitch to in our lineup was Kaline," the catcher related. "The rest of us are free swingers, he said, and Kaline isn't."

Then Kaline probably jolted Hoerner's memory, too, as he rapped a two-run single that sparked the Tigers to a 5-3 victory and forced the Series back to St. Louis Wednesday, with the Cardinals' edge now reduced to 3-2.

But it wasn't only Kaline's single that kept the Tigers alive. There also was a crucial play by Freehan on Lou Brock at the plate, Willie Horton's throw to nail Brock and a courageous comeback pitching effort by Mickey Lolich as well as his single that triggered the winning three-run rally.

Tiger manager Mayo Smith now must worry about his sixth-game pitcher. It could be Earl Wilson, who left the third game with a pulled hamstring muscle in his right leg, or Joe Sparma who relieved Denny McLain in Sunday's contest.

MICKEY LOLICH

And Smith didn't rule out the possibility of coming back with McLain, the 31-game winner who lost the first and fourth games.

McLain pitched only 2 2-3 innings Sunday and said after Monday's game he would pitch Wednesday if the manager asked him to.

Lolich is the probable seventh-game starter, if one is needed.

Manager Red Schoendienst of the Cardinals, on the other hand, has his pitching plans set. Ray Washburn, the starter in game No. 2, is ready for Wednesday, and it'll be two-game winner Bob Gibson in the seventh game, if necessary.

Lolich joined Gibson in the two-game victory circle but only after surviving a three-run Cardinal outburst in the first inning. Orlando Cepeda, capped the explosion with a two-run homer, his second homer of the Series.

But Lolich scattered only six hits the rest of the way and allow no more runs.

He almost didn't get the chance to finish the game, though. The turning point for him came in the seventh inning when leadoff batter Don Wert struck out.

Even Lou Brock Can Be Called Out

DETROIT (AP) — Julian Javier rapped a single to left field. Lou Brock stormed toward the plate from second. Detroit left fielder Willie Horton quickly scooped the ball up and fired a strike to catcher Bill Freehan.

Brock didn't touch the plate, umpire Doug Harvey ruled. Brock said the instant replay on a television set in the St. Louis Cardinal dugout showed he was safe.

"In my opinion it was the biggest play of the game," the Cardinals' World Series super-hitter said. "It was the turning point.

"We had the makings of a big inning, and instead of one run, one man on and one out, there were two outs and no runs."

Brock is hitting .324 in the series and holds the highest lifetime batting average in World Series play—.400. But he wasn't talking about his hitting after the game. It was the play at the plate in the fifth inning that drew all the attention.

"I had it beat; I beat the ball to the plate," Brock repeated quietly, but firmly. "There was no doubt about it.

"It wasn't close. He (Harvey) didn't call me out because it was close. He called me out for not touching the plate.

"I touched the middle of the plate.

"Freehan even came up behind me and tagged me while we were arguing," Brock insisted.

"The television replay showed I beat it. I saw it on the monitor in our dugout."

Brock had come in standing up. He barged into Freehan, and both reeled away from the plate.

"I didn't slide," Brock explained, "because I didn't think I'd have to.

"And I thought if I did slide, I would have been out. Everything indicated the play would be close, and when I hit the plate the ball hadn't reached Freehan.

"The umpire called the play immediately, not after the tag. The only time Freehan tagged me was while we were arguing."

The arguing didn't help Nelson Briles, who started for the Cardinals; or reliever Joe Hoerner, who came on in the seventh, faced four men and didn't get any of them out.

"I don't think I ever pitched to four men and didn't get anybody out," Hoerner said. "The ground ball Dick McAuliffe hit could have been at somebody, but it went through.

"I was hoping to get a ground ball and I got it, but it went through. It was just one of those days."

I'll have my fillet of crow just a shade on the rare side, if you please, with a side order of parsnips.

The proverbial dish of atonement for rash remarks is on my menu because of a callous four words printed in this space about five days B.G. ("Before Gibson").

"Detroit in six games," the man said, attributing his choice as much to sentimentality as to common sense.

But by now, the World Series for Detroit Tiger supporters might be just another Halley's Comet — making a brilliant appearance on the scene just once in so many decades, but after all the oohing and aahing, just fading off into a great galaxy of "wait 'til next years."

Before Robert Gibson sawed my protrusitting-branch right out from under me, all augured well for my Tebbies.

After all, didn't they have 170-plus home runs this season, and didn't they have the masterful mound talents of Denny McLain.

Besides awsome Bob, the Cardinals seem to have one over-riding bonus on their side of the Series ledger: they're a National League team.

The superiority of the senior circuit has been made clear since the Yankee dynasty crumbled into the exhaust-filled mists of Manhattan.

They just play a better brand of ball.

It's fast, and exciting, and fun to watch, and that's what separates good baseball from cricket.

"Hour" Hero

Broom Maker's Son Finds Hickory Best

DETROIT (AP) — Al Kaline didn't begin life with a silver spoon. He began it with brooms.

And that's probably why Kaline, the son of a Baltimore broom maker, is fully appreciating his first World Series and the key role he is playing for Detroit Tigers.

"Things mean more to you as a man when you have to wait," Kaline said in the Tiger dressing room Monday after stroking the hit that made him the hero of a 5-3 victory over St. Louis Cardinals.

"You never appreciate anything as much when it's given to you as you do when you have to wait."

And Kaline knows what it is to wait. For it's been 16 years since he started playing for the Tigers, and it's taken them 23 to reach the World Series.

"The Series has been everything I thought it would be," he said. "I never thought I'd be so nervous before the first game, but I was. There's just nothing to compare with the World Series."

But that's probably why Kaline is hitting .381 today, following a two-for-four performance in which he stroked a two-run single with the bases loaded that scored the tying and go-ahead runs and kept Detroit in the Series after they trailed three games to one.

"I always thought I was a better player under circumstances like a World Series," Kaline said. "The big crowd, all the noise. It gives you that extra incentive."

Kaline, of course, got the only real incentive he needed on the last day of the season when another long wait ended. For in a season when the Tigers were running in front of the field and headed for the American League pennant, Kaline seemed headed for a seat on the bench during the World Series.

Slowed by a broken right forearm and a groin pull, he had lost his job in right field. When he began to come around, Mickey Stanley, Willie Horton and Jim Northrup blocked his return to the outfield.

"I don't deserve to play in the Series." Kaline said as the season drew to a close. "It's killing me, but I know what Mayo Smith is up against."

What Mayo Smith, the Detroit manager, was up against was a tough decision in which he had to measure sentiment against reality. When Smith was through measuring, Stanley was at shortstop and Kaline in right field.

But despite the fact Stanley played shortstop the last six games of the regular season, Smith didn't tell Kaline he would be starting in the Series until the final day.

"I knew I shouldn't be thinking about it," Kaline recalled. "But I had a feeling. Someway, somehow, I thought, he (Smith) has to play me."

On to Better Things for Picton

Staff — Fighting on two fronts was a mistake for some armies, but the Picton Intermediate "B" softball crew isn't worried about world history repeating itself on the softball diamond.

The Picton nine are heading into a double showdown next weekend as entering both the OASA finals in Sudbury and the local Trent Valley Senior Softball title playoffs.

Downing the Belleville Trent Valley entry, Woods' Construction, four games to two in the semi - finals put Picton against Madoc in the local loop title tilts. And topping Mt. Hope in two straight games put Picton up against Garson (near Sudbury) for the OASA championship.

Picton solidified its bid in the Trent Valley League Monday night as Scotty Reid — late of the Commercial Softball League championship team, Stinson Construction — hurled in Woods Construction's 2-1 loss in the sixth game of the semi - finals.

Ken Demille tossed for the winners, allowing Belleville's one tally on a homer by Bob Ethier.

Reid had a little better luck as his runs scored against Belleville were unearned.

Reid lost the tilt while allowing five Picton punches while DeMille gave up three hits to Belleville.

DeMille scattered his trio of safeties. After Ethier slammed his third-inning homer, the winning pitcher held Belleville hitless until the seventh when Scotty Woods punched a single. Ethier came up with the only other hit of the game in the ninth. He singled, came around to second on a fielder's choice, and then was cut down trying to steal third.

Reid held Picton hitless until the fifth when Keith McDonald singled. Warren Ostrander scored the same inning when he was hit by a pitched ball and came around on McDonald single and errors. Dave Lockwood's eighth inning hit didn't add anything to the run column, but a flurry brought Marvin Stacey home with the winning Picton run.

Ostrander and Eldon Carson had the other two singles that inning.

Picton opens the five-game finals against Madoc the week of Oct. 14 with the site and times to be announced. The Ontario championship series will open this weekend with the three game series to be played in Sudbury. The opening game will be Saturday at 2 p.m., the second game Sunday at the same time and the third contest, if necessary will be played Sunday evening at seven.

Down Mexico Way

Turmoil May Be Upstaged by "Becky"

MEXICO CITY (CP)—One storm seemed to abate for the moment, giving organizers a feeling of c e n s u r a n c e the Olympic Games will have a peaceful opening Saturday.

But another named Rebecca threatened to disrupt yachting events at Acapulco. The fringes of the tropical storm unleashed torrential rain and heavy winds that forced cancellation of all sailing activities today.

The storm that eased, and the one organizers fear the most, was the one posed by dissident students whose battles against the government have led to bloody civil disorder.

Rebel student leaders met secretly at the National University Monday and announced they will not stage any more mass public demonstrations, at least for the time being.

But the students said they will continue their fight against government policies in other ways.

"This is no declaration of peace," said Roberto Escudero, one of the leaders of the Committee of 210, the rebel student governing body.

Escudero told reporters that fears of further punitive measures by the Mexican Army to put down renewed student rioting led to the rebel students' decision.

Escudero said the committee vetoed any more public demonstrations because "if we do, the army will crush us and kill us with their tanks."

"Without the demonstrations, there should be no more d i s t u r b a n c e s endangering the Olympics," he said.

Instead, the rebel students will form five-man brigades to spread leaflets in the streets of the Mexican capital and other major cities to keep the people informed of the student struggle, Escudero said. The so-called "lightning brigades" also will meet secretly and break up before police can take action.

Student disorders have been going on for 2½ months, but the worst rioting broke out last W e d n e s d a y. Some reports placed the death toll near 50 but the government said 29 were killed Wednesday. The students claimed 200 were killed.

None of the Canadian Olympic team was caught up in the rioting, but that didn't keep the folks back home from worrying, said Dr. Paul Hauch of London, Ont., the team's medical officer.

"We knew nothing about it until we started getting telephone calls from home," Dr. Hauch said. There has been no sign of unrest in the Olympic Village which is several miles from the site of the demonstrations in downtown Mexico City.

Except for a couple of athletes, Dr. Hauch said the 144-strong Canadian squad is in great shape. The cyclists, who trained in France, and the oarsmen, who have been here the longest, are adapting the fastest to the 7,400-foot altitude.

Then come the track and field team and the swimmers.

"But they're all coming along well," Dr. Hauch said. "In almost every case their blood count is up and that is good—it shows the team is responding well to the altitude."

What worries the medical officer most is the way the Canadians are eating. "Our biggest problem is to get the kids to watch their diet," he said.

Canada's team is the largest in Olympic competition since before the Second World War, part of what figures to be the biggest gathering in Olympic history—some 7,000 a t h l e t e s from 119 countries.

There are 19 sports categories in the 16-day Games that end Sunday, Oct. 27.

The 1968 Games have been dubbed by some observers the Problem Olympics.

But Avery Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee, told the IOC congress at its opening session Monday there have been many Olympics in the past where there were arguments over venues. But the problems were overcome and the countries themselves had benefited from the Games.

After Once Over...

Canucks Cleared for Action

MEXICO CITY (CP) — Dr. Paul Hauch of London, Ont., medical officer overseeing the health of the Canadian Olympic team, looked over his charges Monday and pronounced them in great shape—with the odd exception.

Only heavyweight wrestler Harry Geris, from Dr. Hauch's home town, is limping, the result of water on the right knee, a condition which is slowly clearing up.

Cyclist Yves Landry of St. Ramuald, Que., is nursing a bruised and s t r a i n e d right shoulder, suffered when his bike slipped out from under him during a rainswept practice race.

None of the 144 athletes and 34 officials that make up the Canadian squad have been involved in the civil disorders that have swept downtown Mexico City.

"We knew nothing about it until we started getting telephone calls from home," Dr. Hauch said.

"We know some of the kids working in the Olympic village are students and are involved in the movement, but there has been no sign of unrest out here."

The Olympic Village looks to be a cross between Man and His World and Disneyland. Outdoor arenas and practice areas are in cut stone with the finest of synthetic track surfaces. Soft drink vendors wander around with huge space cadet-like containers on their backs.

"The wrestling facilities are about the finest we've seen," said Bill Smith of Pacifica, Calif., Canada's import wrestling coach.

There are 14 practice rings, a separate weighing scale for each weight class, all surrounding a Japanese garden with flowers, shrubs and a lily pond. The boxing facilities are equally spiffy.

Jim Day of King City, Ont., member of the equestrian team who won a gold medal for Canada in jumping at the Pan-American Games in Winnipeg in 1967, worked out on the light punching bag at the boxing building.

"We haven't got this sort of thing where we train," he said.

"But we have got stables, riding rings, a country club, swimming pool, gymnasium with weights, bar bells and a health club."

Al Decarie, boxing manager from Montreal, says his charges are in "top shape," with their weight "about half a pound over their limit."

Dr. Hauch says the cyclists, who trained in France, and the oarsmen who have been here the longest, are adapting fastest to the 7,400-foot altitude. Next in development are the track athletes who trained in Flagstaff, Ariz., and the swimmers who worked out at Banff, Alta.

Some Canadian athletes have come across a binding problem, however. Track suits ordered in Canada are showing up in sizes smaller than expected.

Declared Track "Lifers"

OTTAWA (CP) — Rideau Carleton Raceway Monday slapped life suspensions from the track on two men and barred three others for one-year terms.

A report following the investigation, carried out at the track by officials of the Canadian Trotting Association, the Ontario Racing Commission and track officials, also recommended the suspensions be honored at all Canadian and United States tracks.

The investigation started Friday after a routine check of the stable area uncovered foreign material in samples of horse urine. The material is forbidden in harness racing.

Hit with the lifetime suspensions were Germain Lemay of Montreal, operator of Lemay Harness Racing Equipment Ltd., and John Pauline, a groom from nearby Aylmer, Que.

At Last -- Brock's Out!

Detroit Tigers' catcher Bill Freehan puts the tag on Lou Brock of the St. Louis Cardinals at the plate in the fifth innings of Monday's fifth World Series game in Tiger Stadium. Brock was attempting to score on Julian Javier's single to left, but the Tigers' Willie Horton fired to the plate in time. The Cardinals disputed the call.

Doomsday Philosophy Criticized

Cities' Problems Can Be Solved Paul Hellyer Tells Realtors

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — Paul Hellyer, minister of transport, said Monday that an atmosphere of pessimism and anxiety about Canadian cities has been spread by news media and expert commentators.

He told the annual conference of the Canadian Association of Real Estate Boards that "a doomsday mentality has infected our journalists, our academics, our social critics and far too many politicians."

But in the general haste to despair over urban conditions and in the widespread talk about crisis, he said, "we have forgotten that these problems can be solved."

Mr. Hellyer was interrupting a two-day tour through southwestern and Northern Ontario, which is part of his hearings on housing and urban affairs. The inquiry now is in its fourth week, after visits to Ottawa, Quebec City, Charlottetown, Toronto, and Windsor.

He said the purpose of the hearing was to translate its findings into federal legislation.

"We will have a report by the new year, which means we can have new legislation ready before the 1969 summer construction season."

The report also is to set out long-range policy.

"Our cities right now are, for many, unhappy places. But they needn't be if we decide on the right policies and are prepared to execute them," Mr. Hellyer told the conference.

"Either we start now and move quickly to eliminate the obsolescent practices, to refine our government, and sharpen the instruments for remaking our cities, or there will be serious disbelief in what this country can do."

Discussing evidence given at the hearings, Mr. Hellyer said there was no consensus about the solution to urban problems.

"If the experience of the task force in the last few weeks is any guide, there are many contradictions and many points of view."

But the problem of finding or of holding onto a house has been widely exploited.

"It comes in graphic terms when you hear a young, married couple stand up in a private rental project in Ottawa, and with hardly an exception say they want to own their own home but can't get the money for a down payment."

In a run-down quarter of Toronto, there was an elderly man who had lived in the same community for 40 years but was told he must move because his house was to be demolished.

"The inside of his home is clean, well-repaired and comfortable—and he is naturally wants to stay."

Mr. Hellyer referred to the industrial wasteland in lower town Quebec City, which he called "a monument to the confusion and neglect by the government and private owners."

"Bisected by railway tracks, next to a polluted river—it was valuable land lying idle—while next to it there was a tough, critical need for better housing."

He said there had been no lack of proposals at the hearings, "but they all reflect the same frustration at not being put into effect."

Ronald E. Sanderson, retiring president, told the conference earlier that there is no single solution to Canada's housing problems.

"But I am convinced that private enterprise can produce more for the average individual, although at the moment there are three inhibiting factors," he said.

These are the high cost of land, the scarcity and high cost of mortgage money, and the rising cost of construction.

He said there are hidden costs in residential development close to metropolitan centres, which should take the form of row housing and condominiums. The latter are blocks where everyone owns their apartments.

To encourage more investors to put their money into the mortgage market, he said the National Housing Association interest rate should be free to find its own level.

He suggested that the Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. establish a mortgage bank to raise funds for direct housing loans. This would allow the smallest investor up to the largest pension fund to participate.

World Bank

No String on Aid: Benson

OTTAWA (CP) — Neither Canada nor the World Bank envisages giving federal preferential development loans to countries willing to carry out programs of economic control, Finance Minister Benson said Monday.

He drew a careful line on Canada's aid policy in a Commons statement on his recent trip to meetings of Commonwealth finance ministers, the World Bank and the International Monetary Fund.

Opposition Leader Stanfield had questioned Canadian policy after Mr. Benson addressed the World Bank—IFM meeting in Washington last week.

In reply, Monday, Mr. Benson said his statement had not emanated any new aid policies.

The World Bank's suggestions in dealing with population growth were:

1. To let developing nations know how rapid population growth slows down their potential development.

2. To seek opportunities to finance facilities required by members of the World Bank group to carry out family planning programs.

3. To join with others in programs of research to discover the most effective methods of family planning and of national administration of population control programs.

Mr. Benson said that in endorsing this course of action, "I was addressing myself exclusively to the activities of the World Bank and not those coming under Canada's bilateral aid program."

Max Saltzman (NDP—Waterloo) was concerned about Canada's attitude to purchasing commodities from communist nations. He cited Canada's "refusal" to sign a sugar agreement as part of a soiled record. Canada should commit itself to buy these primary products at a fair price.

CAUGHT OFFENDERS

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — The Newfoundland department of wildlife reports 147 persons were prosecuted for violations of hunting laws last year. A spokesman said 75 persons were charged with illegal possession of firearms.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — Industrials continued to rise while all other major sections of the market declined in active mid-morning trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange today.

The industrial index rose .09 to 190.77. Golds declined .78 to 207.63, after climbing 7.11 to 208.41 Monday. Base metals dropped .20 to 113.48 and western oils .80 to 230.70.

The prospect of a rising free-market price for gold in world markets was thought to be the cause of the advance in golds, which rose 7.11 on index to 208.41.

The free-market price at London soared to $39.87 U.S., nearly $1 more than Friday's closing $38¾.

Golds stock at Toronto were paced by Dome, which rose 2½ to 61¾. Campbell Red Lake was almost as strong, rising 2 to 33½. Kerr Addison gained ¾ to 19¾.

Among industrials, Imperial Oil and Bank of Nova Scotia reached highs for the year. Imperial advanced 1¾ to 83½ and BNS ¾ to 21¼.

Defasco dipped ½ to 22 but White Pass and Yukon gained 1½ to 43 after the company announced a proposed two-for-one stock split and the issuance of new preferred shares.

In base metals, Noranda struck a high of 57¼, up ½. Falconbridge rose 1 to 98½.

About 2,624,000 shares were traded compared with 4,294,000 Friday.

There were 273 advances and 283 declines, with 47 stocks reaching new highs for the year.

College Asks Ottawa Do Housing Research

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Federal government encouragement for long-term university research into the many facets of housing and urban development was urged Monday by the University of Waterloo.

Appearing before the Hellyer housing inquiry here, officials of the university of Waterloo, Ont., said they have already embarked on such a program, but it can be financed only on a year-by-year basis.

Howard Petch, academic vice-president of the university, said there is no central agency in the federal government to which the university can apply for funds, and research grants are made generally only to individual professors, for a year at a time.

But the University of Waterloo has recognized the need for more intensive studies by establishing its Continuing Research Program on Problems of Urbanization in Canada.

Mayor John Wheelton of Windsor, speaking for the city, and for the housing committee of the Association of Ontario Mayors and Reeves, said federal government housing help should be concentrated on low-or-cost houses.

Funds from Central Mortgage and Housing Corp., the federal housing agency, going into $30,000 houses "are not helping the low-income segment of the population."

People building $30,000-plus houses should be allowed to take care of themselves and borrow funds on conventional mortgages without federal guarantees, he said. This would free more money for lower-cost housing.

Transport Minister Hellyer, heading the inquiry, asked what municipal authorities could do to promote low-building and reduce costs if they were not restricted by present laws and regulations.

Mayor Wheelton said Ontario Municipal Board restrictions prevent the municipality from borrowing as much as they would like to service raw land with roads and sewers for new projects.

Gourmet Menus

College Cuts Food Costs

TORONTO (CP) — University of Maryland students can order rainbow trout, Cornish game hen and 12-ounce steaks since disposable kitchen utensils cut food preparation costs dramatically, the university's food director said Monday.

Robert J. Spence, of Laurel, Md., said the university, which will have 75,000 students in 1972, saved as much money with the changeover to convenience feeding that gourmet-type foods were added to the menu.

The students like it too. They bring their families to eat in the dining room—something they never did before, he told the annual convention of the Canadian Frozen Food Industry.

He said the key to convenience feeding is not to think just about the food, but to reorganize the entire food-handling system.

Mr. Spence said when he came to the university in 1961, all food was prepared with kitchen equipment little changed in 40 years.

Costs were rising, the students were dissatisfied and staff quit. And about $25,000 worth of dishes and utensils were stolen or broken each year.

Now, knives, forks, spoons and trays, as well as many foods, are used for cooking, are disposable.

Food suppliers also package precooked meals in disposable pans ready for the oven, reducing food handling in the kitchen.

"After a six-month test, Mr. Spence said, the convenience foods system "was generating too much money."

"We found out the cost of food dropped six per cent.'

Thomas McCormack, president of Dominion Stores Ltd., said the frozen food industry should try to build up public confidence in the industry's processing and distributing system that safeguards against deterioration of the products.

He said demands for date-stamping of frozen foods show that the public does not have confidence in the industry's ability to prevent deterioration, and may eventually lead to expensive standards imposed by the government.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — Industrials continued to rise while all other major sections of the market declined in active mid-morning trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange today.

The industrial index rose .09 to 190.77. Golds declined .78 to 207.63, after climbing 7.11 to 208.41 Monday. Base metals dropped .20 to 113.48 and western oils .80 to 230.70.

Among Industrials Victoria and Grey Trust moved ahead 1 to 17. Wiener and Partners Co. Ltd., statement, are to make an offer for an unnamed purchaser to buy 150,000 of the 2,290,000 outstanding shares of the company before the opening of trading on the exchange Wednesday. Price is $17.50 a share, conditional on 67,500 shares being tendered.

White Pass and Yukon rose 1¼ to 44¼. The company said Monday it would split its shares two-for-one. Home Oil A was up 1 to 28. The company said today it has acquired a working interest on property within 100 miles of the Alaska oil discovery made by Atlantic Richfield Oil Co. recently.

Among other Industrials Imperial Oil climbed ¼ to 84, a record high, and Distillers Seg record high and Bank of Nova In golds Dome fell ¼ to 61¾ and Kerr Addison ¼ to 19¼. Patino moved ahead ½ to 37.

In the base metal list, Noranda declined ¼ to 57¼ and Inco ¼ to 43¼.

Canadian Gridiol rose ¼ to 14¼ among western oils. Canadian Superior was up ½ to 57½ while Hudson Bay Oil and Gas fell ¼ to 38¼.

There were 1,008,000 shares traded to 11 a.m. compared with 926,000 at the same time Monday.

Gold stocks led an advance on the Toronto exchange Monday, making their sharpest single-day surge since August.

(It has also been shown that persons with negative tuberculin tests may become positive after receiving a blood transfusion from a donor who has a positive reaction. This is not unfavorable. It means that the recipient has acquired antibodies from the transfused blood. It does not indicate infection.)

A "negative" skin test means that a person has been exposed to the germ — and if he hasn't been exposed to the germ he cannot have tuberculosis.

Thus, when the skin test is negative, there is no need for a chest X-ray so far as tuberculosis is concerned. But with a positive tuberculin test, there may or may not be active tuberculosis, so it is necessary to use some other means to decide — the chest X-ray.

Once a person's skin test has become positive, it will remain positive therafter, so nothing further is to be learned from any more skin tests. (Even if a person does have active tuberculosis, the skin test is no index of its severity.)

Anyway, when a skin test is positive, then it is wise for the person to have a chest X-ray periodically, say each year.

Incidentally, it also is possible for repeated tuberculin tests to bring about a positive result even though the person has not been exposed to the germ other than in the skin tests. In such a case, even though the patient reacts positively to the skin test, he will not develop tuberculosis from it. It still requires actual exposure to the disease to get it.

But since you cannot know for certain what caused the positive reaction, the tests or actual exposure, again the only safe precaution is to have regular chest X-rays.

Dear Dr. Molner: The skin on my arms and back is blemished with small brown moles. Do too many of them be harmful? Is it true that they can be removed by putting iodine on them? If not, how can they be removed? — S. G.

The number of moles isn't the important thing. The principal risk of a mole is that it may be rather constantly irritated, as from shaving, or the chafing of belt, shoulder strap, bra, or what-not.

If a mole bleeds or changes in size or color, it should be reported to your doctor promptly, as sometimes this can be a sign of malignancy.

Iodine won't remove moles, but your doctor can do it either by cautery or office surgery. Or he may cut out a mole in a location as to make a scar objectionable, have a plastic surgeon or a dermatologist do the removing.

• • •

Note to Mrs. T. L. C.: Yes, polyps in the colon are something to worry about because of the relative frequency with which they ultimately tend to become malignant. The safe thing, therefore, is to have them removed when found. (They have no relationship to hemorrhoids.)

Dear Dr. Molner: My husband had a skin test and chest X-ray this year and also previously. The results were: skin test positive, chest X-ray negative. It was written on his card not to get any more tuberculin skin tests.

Could he have TB with a positive skin test? Why shouldn't he have any more? — Mrs. E. S.

The useful little tuberculin skin test continues to be one of the most misunderstood tests in the book.

A "positive" skin test means that the person has been exposed to the tuberculosis germ and protective antibodies against the germ have formed in the blood. It does not necessarily mean that he has tuberculosis, only that the exposure has occurred.

OFF THE RECORD — BY ED REED

Commons Agrees to Biafra Study But No Quick Decision Likely

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons standing committee on external affairs and national defence was to meet this morning to begin deliberations on the Nigerian civil war.

The decision to convene the committee came as the first major result of a dramatic fact-finding trip to Biafra last week by David MacDonald (PC —Egmont) and Andrew Brewin (NDP—Toronto Greenwood).

Opposition Leader Robert L. Stanfield opened Monday's Commons sitting bb moving an emergency resolution to have the standing committee meet not later than 11 a.m. today to hear evidence on:

—A report by a team of international observers, including Maj-Gen. Q. A. Milroy of Canada, in Nigeria to study federal conduct of the war. The team said last week there was no evidence of genocide:

—"The reported famine conditions in that country." Mr. MacDonald and Mr. Brewin urged fast action by Canada to prevent millions of Biafrans from starving;

—A report from Mr. MacDonald and Mr. Brewin "on the conditions of the civilian population in Nigeria."

Mr. Stanfield said he would be disappointed if the committee failed to report back to the House on the issue within a week.

However, it was unlikely the committee would do much today. Its first task was to assemble, elect a chairman and vice-chairman, choose an executive committee, then set an agenda.

Both Mr. MacDonald and Mr. Brewin left early today for New York and a meeting with External Affairs Minister Sharp, who is at the United Nations general assembly meeting. Maj-Gen. Milroy still is in Nigeria.

The government accepted the resolution and the opposition accepted a government motion that the external affairs spending estimates be referred to the committee as well, thus giving Mr. Sharp a chance to testify before it.

Mr. Stanfield said the committee should look into charges that Maj.-Gen. Milroy "was able to see only model villages."

Prime Minister Trudeau said Gen. Milroy had seen no evidence of genocide but Mr. Sharp was "trying to ensure" that the observer will be allowed to travel as widely as possible in Nigeria.

Mr. Trudeau recalled that the government hadn't accepted at once a Nigerian invitation to send an observer because Canada wanted a guarantee that the observer would not be merely in a position to whitewash the Nigerian government."

During the Commons question period later, R. G. L. Fairweather, the Conservative foreign affairs critic, asked whether Mr. Sharp will take up the question at the United Nations of Britain, Russia and France supplying arms to the African combatants.

Mr. Trudeau replied that Canada does not supply arms to either side and "that should be the position of other friendly powers." However, Mr. Sharp would not make a direct approach on this point.

In legislative business, the House:

—Completed committee study of an act authorizing the CNR to build a 60-mile rail line to the Pan American Petroleum Corp. and Hudson's Bay Gas and Oil Co. Ltd. sulphur recovery plants in northwestern Alberta. The act now requires third reading, which may be given today, and Senate passage to become law. The CNR hopes to begin building the $12,000,000 line once the act is passed by Parliament;

—Gave first reading to amendments to the Judges Act that would add 11 new $26,000-a-year men to Quebec's 74-member superior court and three $19,000-a-year judges to the county and district courts of Ontario, which now has 86 judges. The additional Quebec judges were needed to hear divorce cases, under Quebec rather than federal court jurisdiction since last July. The new Ontario judges were needed to handle the normal increase in litigation in the province;

—Approved in principle amendments to the Farm Improvement Loans Act. The amendments remove the old five-per-cent interest ceiling on government-guaranteed loans and allow not only banks but trust and loan companies, insurance companies and credit unions to lend under the act. Agriculture Minister Olson said the lenders will set their own rates of interest but the rates will be "substantially lower" than the 11-to 14-per-cent some farmers have had to pay recently.

Student Loans "Too Stringent"

TORONTO (CP) — The education critic for the Liberal party in the Ontario legislature said Monday thousands of students may have to quit university at Christmas because of a shortage of funds resulting from changes in the province's student awards program.

The changes, including a stiffer means test on student applicants, were announced by the department of university affairs last April.

In September, the department announced more stringent auditing procedures to eliminate chances of fraudulent applications for awards.

Both actions followed complaints from awards officers at universities that some students were cheating to get the awards.

Tim Reid, Liberal MPP for Scarborough East, said in a statement Education Minister William Davis and his advisers have reduced the 1968 assessment of hundreds of students by amounts up to $1,000.

"They justify these new regulations on the grounds that some students cheat," he said. "Maybe a handful have cheated but there are thousands more who cannot afford a university education, in any way except with the help of the Ontario student awards program."

Mr. Reid said he knows of five families which, under the new regulations, are expected to contribute as much as 13 per cent of gross income ranging from $7,000-$9,000 to finance the education of one child.

Ontario's program is a combination of loans, offered by the federal government and administered by the province, and provincial grants.

The first $150 of an award is a grant and a loan, the next $750 is 60 per cent loan and 40 per cent grant and the remainder of an award beyond $900 is a non-repayable grant. Total allowed for federal loans is $900.

The university affairs department estimated last April that student assistance in 1968-69 would amount to more than $50,000,000.

Bombs Explode

Riot Police Guard Londonderry

LONDONDERRY (AP) — Steel-helmeted riot police guarded strategic areas of Londonderry today after three homemade gasoline bombs exploded in a fresh outburst of sectarian violence gripping Northern Ireland's second largest city.

Prime Minister Terence O'Neill summoned his cabinet to Belfast, the capital, to consider measures tightening security.

The bombs were hurled at two police wagons crashing through a barricade of oil drums and timber that blocked a main approach to the city walls Monday night. The bombs missed.

It was the third successive night of clashes between police and nationalists denouncing "discrimination" against the country's Roman Catholic minority. Nearly 100 persons have been injured.

Police armed with clubs and shields moved in to disperse scores of stone-throwing teenagers taunting them with shouts of "Nazis."

At least 300 police were left guarding key points around Londonderry's nationalist districts. They were advised to brace themselves for more trouble.

P rime Minister O'Neill returned Monday night from a visit to England, where he was invited to confer with Prime Minister Wilson on the situation. But O'Neill preferred to go home first.

"I shall have no hesitation in going to see Mr. Wilson," he told reporters. "In the meantime we will send a full report on the disturbances to the home office in London."

Political sources expect Wilson and O'Neill would get together sometime next week.

Londonderry's nights of violence began Saturday with a march protesting alleged housing discrimination against Roman Catholics and gerrymandering in local politics.

The march had been banned by the government on the ground that its route would be through a predominantly Protestant area.

Street fighting broke out between demonstrators and police. About 30 persons were arrested.

Defending the constabulary against charges of brutality in breaking up the march, O'Neill said: "If the police had not banned it there might have been deaths instead of bruises."

Damage to shops was estimated at many thousands of pounds. More than 90 owners are claiming compensation for shattered windows and fire damages.

Anger over the police action spread to Dublin, capital of the predominantly Roman Catholic Irish Republic in the south. The city council passed a resolution condemning Londonderry authorities for "brutally crushing" the march.

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Republic of Ireland's ambassador to Canada says Irishmen are disappointed the new generation has not helped end the old Roman Catholic Protestant feud.

William Warnock said in an interview Monday the old religious conflict appears to be the cause of the recent rioting in the Northern Ireland city of Londonderry.

Mr. Warnock said he was reluctant to comment on the Londonderry conflict because he hasn't been in Ireland since he took his post in Canada 18 months ago.

"I wouldn't like to embitter the situation," he said. "It is very distressing and unfortunate."

The Irish ambassador was in Vancouver on the start of a one-week visit to British Columbia.

For Oct. 10th.

Your birthday today: The coming year promises many opportunities in increased earnings. Your intuitive powers tend to expand according to your needs. Today's natives often possess personal magnetism that brings them easy public notice.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): It's a lively day in all departments. Beginning with the mental pursuits, get right out and use your own particular abilities.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Things return to normal today. Get an early start; avoid delay. If something has to be done for the first time put it off. (Until tomorrow.)

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Concentrate on activities in progress rather than new plans. Push right ahead despite the tendency of others to take things easy.

CANCER (June 21—July 22): If you have the choice, this is a day to stay in the background. You can get a lot more done outside the glare of public attention. Pick up the pieces and rearrange them for the future.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Use the chance to catch up with details. Personal relationships level out. Find a small party tonight. Prepare for a rush tomorrow.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Important changes are to be put off! Do not complicate matters with new issues! The energetic presentation of these plans is more strongly favored tomorrow.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Your personal activities give you more chance to think what you are doing with your life, and what you may want to do for a future. There is no law that says you have to stay put; quite the contrary.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Planning, rather than action, is the keynote for the day. Check out accounts, so you know precisely where you are. Find a quiet corner, and catch up on serious reading.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Nobody is going to help you do much of anything today. Get out and do something that your sports or pastimes. Your studies are important tonight.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Use the lightness of the day to clear your calendar of left-over items. Tidy up for the change of course which is coming soon.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Allow other people to pursue their courses unhindered at present. In turn, this will give you exceptional freedom to map out some more interesting schemes to try later.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Don't start any fireworks on this day; if you will look carefully at what is going on, you may see it all from a fresh point of view. Use any breaks during the day to gain this perspective.

France Stirs UN Tempers With Strong Stand Favoring Biafra

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—France's dissatisfaction with efforts so far to end the Nigerian civil war was made clear by Foreign Minister Michel Debre Monday in a speech to the 125-country General Assembly.

His words stirred up a hornet's nest in the African membership, which has failed to achieve a Nigerian ceasefire through its regional peacekeeping organization, the Organization of African Unity.

A Nigerian spokesman asked for time at today's assembly session in reply to Debre.

Debre called for self-determination for the Ibo tribesmen who are fighting an apparently hopeless battle to take Biafra out of the Nigerian federation. He denounced "obstacles" that prevented the delivery of aid to starving victims of the civil war and called for a halt "to the shipment of weapons that are prolonging the fighting."

France is one of a handful of countries that have recognized Biafra.

"Each day," said Debre, "it becomes more manifest that only a solution based on the incontestable personality of the Biafran people, and consistent with the principle of self-determination inscribed in our charter, can settle that painful problem."

Foreign Minister Ketenai Yifru of Ethiopia, which has been a leader in OAU efforts to bring about a Nigerian ceasefire, said the conflict should be resolved according to the wishes of the Nigerian people as a whole, on the basis of justice and security for all elements of the population.

Anyone wanting to assist in resolving the Nigerian crisis, said Yifru, should do so on the basis of a Sept. 16, 1968, resolution of the OAU heads of state calling for an immediate cessation of hostilities and a solution "within one Nigerian sovereign personality."

Foreign Minister Ahmed Larabi of Algeria voiced his country's approval of Nigeria's efforts to preserve its unity. He hoped the secessionist leaders would heed the OAU call to end hostilities and co-operate with Nigerian federal authorities.

Meanwhile it was announced in Ottawa that two members of Parliament just back from a Biafra fact-finding trip would ask External Affairs Minister Sharp here today to seek at the UN a Nigerian ceasefire. The two are Andrew Brewin, NDP member for Toronto Greenwood and David MacDonald, Conservative MP for Egmont.

The Canadian external affairs minister will deliver a major speech to the General Assembly Wednesday morning, and it appeared likely that Nigeria would occupy a prominent place in it.

Debre in his speech was consistent in his advocacy of self-determination. Events in Nigeria, Czechoslovakia and Vietnam all illustrated, he said, the world's impotence in the face of violations of the rights of peoples to determine their own futures.

Bars to East-West co-operation in the search for peace could only be removed by termination of the Soviet military occupation of Czechoslovakia, said the French minister.

Debre said it had been suggested the Soviet intervention was spurred by fears of a new militarist resurgence in West Germany. He minimized this danger, saying France trusts the leaders of West Germany.

"The Vietnam war," Debre said, "illustrates a people's difficulty in itself determining its own regime in the presence of foreign interference." He upheld the French position that the United States should halt all bombing of North Vietnam and that the 1954 Geneva agreements should be the basis for a political solution.

On the Middle East he said the best chance for peace rests on carrying out the provisions of the Security Council resolution of November, 1967, calling for a withdrawal of Israeli forces from occupied Arab territory and a settlement establishing conditions for peaceful coexistence between Arab states and Israel.

Humphrey: I'll Be Peace President

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Democrat Hubert H. Humphrey, pledging "I shall be a peace president." If elected Nov. 5, proposed today annual working summit conferences between the United States and Soviet Union.

Republican Richard M. Nixon, meanwhile, says as president he would seek a Vietnam settlement of both honor and generosity—but a settlement that would offer no comfort to Communist hawks and would discourage future wars.

And third-party candidate George C. Wallace, spelling out his foreign affairs goals, says: "I would not consider nuclear warfare at all in Vietnam. I would rather negotiate."

The three presidential candidates made their foreign policy comments in Washington. Nixon and Wallace addressed a United Press International editors meeting Monday and Wallace delivered a major foreign policy speech at the National Press Club.

Annual U.S.-Soviet summit conferences, Humphrey said in remarks prepared for the UPI editors meeting today, could become "forums for a new diplomacy, free of the publicity, free of the high expectations that surround irregular summit meetings."

The vice-president said he has no illusions about the difficulty of dealing with the Soviet Union.

"We may fail," he said, "but we must not fail to try."

Humphrey said he also would urge the Soviets to call on North Vietnam "to start negotiating seriously," and he renewed his pledge to seek a Middle East peace solution.

Nixon said he would not increase bombing of North Vietnam as president, and said the next president should stop the bombing when he is convinced that to do so would result in fewer American deaths, not more.

The Republican candidate said as president he would put more emphasis on non-military aspects of the Vietnam struggle and on training of South Vietnamese.

Wallace said he would seek a negotiated settlement of the war but he said the United States should end a "no win" policy and press for military victory if peace talks fail.

He also said he would be willing to participate in a summit conference with the Soviet Union, said the United States should not subordinate its interests to the United Nations, and proposed an end to economic sanctions against Rhodesia.

Meetings Scheduled

NATO Agrees Balance Shifted

NEW YORK (AP) — Foreign ministers of 13 countries of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization met with State Secretary Dean Rusk of United States Monday night and agreed that the strategic military balance in Europe has changed as a result of the Soviet-led occupation of Czechoslovakia.

As a direct outcome of the meeting, NATO foreign ministers have scheduled a meeting in Europe next month to decide what measures to take to meet the drastic shift in military deployment by Soviet troops.

No specific date was set for the meeting, but it is expected to be Nov. 14-15. It will be followed in December by a meeting of defence ministers of the NATO-member countries.

Only Portugal and Iceland were absent at Monday's ministerial session, which was held during and after dinner in Rusk's hotel suite here.

Although state department spokesman Carl Bartch said it was an informal dinner and no decisions were reached, the critical nature of the discussions was emphasized by the attendance of NATO Secretary-General Manlio Brosio.

At the meeting, Brosio reported on the situation brought about by the Czechoslovak crisis and a general discussion followed.

Mitchell Sharp, Canadian external affairs minister, said: "There was general agreement among the ministers." J. M. A. H. Luns of the Netherlands also stressed the "large measure of agreement."

Rusk is known to feel that the situation created by the Soviet domination of Czechoslovakia presents the United Nations with its most serious issue for many years.

In his address to the General Assembly last week, Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko underscored the basic change in Moscow policy. This is the Soviet Union considers any threat to alter the nature of what it calls the "class struggle" in other Communist nations a threat to itself and says it will use any means to prevent it.

In two meetings Rusk has had with Gromyko, Sunday and last Wednesday, the Soviet leader indicated a hardening of Moscow's position on the European security issue.

Gromyko, who returns to Moscow Tuesday after only one week's attendance at the assembly, met with British Foreign Minister Michael Stewart Monday. The meeting, held at the Soviet mission just before the NATO session, was marked by sharp words on Czechoslovakia on both sides.

Stewart declared that the meeting was anything but cordial.

"I don't think it could have been in the circumstances," he said.

Eric Winch to Run Against Tommy Douglas

OTTAWA (CP)—Stand clear. That politically mixed-up Winch family is getting ready to strike again in Canadian politics.

Eric Winch, 45, a lawyer and former supervising magistrate, is seeking the Liberal nomination in the federal riding of Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands.

He is the brother of Harold Winch, 61, the New Democratic Party MP for Vancouver East since 1953.

If Eric Winch wins the nomination, he will be running against Harold Winch's leader, T. C. Douglas. The Liberal nomination meeting is Oct. 19 but no date has yet been set for the by-election.

Prime Minister Trudeau has until Feb. 7 to name a date.

If Eric Winch wins the nomination and the byelection—the seat was left vacant by the death of the NDP's Colin Cameron—it will likely be the first time in Canadian history that brothers have sat on opposite sides of the Commons.

"In our family, everybody is entitled to his own opinion, political or otherwise," Harold Winch said in an interview Monday night.

"Eric has always been a Liberal. Everybody else in the family is NDP."

With brotherly pride, he added: "Eric has become noted for his decisions as a magistrate, especially decisions dealing with young people."

Harold Winch and his late father, Ernest, formed a unique father-and-son political combination.

Harold was opposition leader in the British Columbia legislature from 1941 to 1953 and his father was deputy leader.

"I can still recall how my father used to intone in the legislature: 'As my leader has said . . .'" Mr. Winch said.

"We didn't always vote the same either. And there would be big headlines, 'Leader repudiates deputy,' or, 'deputy repudiates leader.'"

Mr. Winch, a provincial or federal parliamentarian for 25 years, said: "My brother must be beaten."

Sharp Rebuffs Bid Seeking UN Action

Czechs Won't Change Leaders

PRAGUE (Reuters) — Fears that liberalization policies were dealt a final blow at a Moscow summit last week eased today after Czechoslovak Communist leaders said they will not return to conditions existing before January when the reforms were introduced.

They also denied in a communique there were plans to change party leaders. But they resolved at the same time to "further strengthen" the management of the press media in a "clear-cut socialist spirit."

The communique was issued Tuesday night by the 21-member ruling party presidium after it met to discuss the results of the Moscow talks between Russian and Czechoslovak leaders.

Russia demanded more restriction on liberalization reforms here and although the presidium announcement echoed much of a communique issued after the Moscow summit, observers said it did not bear out the first pessimistic appraisals.

The presidium said in its communique it wished to deny reports, "usually spread by Western sources," that after the Moscow negotiations there were talks on changes in top posts of the party or state.

The communique said Czechoslovak development lay in its alliance with Russia and other socialist countries and from this must proceed all measures in political, economic, cultural and military relations."

Observers said much of Tuesday night's statement had the ring of reform plans which Czechoslovak Communist leaders have been talking about since January when party leader Alexander Dubcek took over from authoritarian Antonin Novotny.

The Czechoslovak Communist leaders said Tuesday night in no case would a return to pre-January conditions be allowed.

Relief Prime Role

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — External Affairs Minister Sharp today declared Canada's intention "to play a full part" in providing relief immediately needed in Nigeria and in reconstruction when peace comes to the strife-torn African country.

He also said the Canadian United Nations delegation "acknowledges and fully understands" the Organization of African Unity request that world governments not take any action which might jeopardize the unity, territorial integrity and peace of Nigeria.

Sharp, delivering for the first time Canada's keynote speech in the General Assembly, also branded the Soviet-bloc invasion of Czechoslovakia as "naked power politics;" called for progress toward world disarmament, and announced a 25-per-cent increase in Canada's contribution to the United Nations Development Program.

Sharp did not ask for UN action to bring about a ceasefire in Nigeria, despite pressure from some Canadians on the Trudeau government to take such a step.

The Liberal government has been adamant in opposing any political intervention in the country where the Ibo tribe is fighting an apparently losing battle for secession from the Nigerian federation.

On Tuesday Sharp rejected appeals here from two opposition MPs that Canada sponsor a UN resolution on Biafra. The appeals were made by David MacDonald, Conservative member for Egmont, and Andrew Brewin, NDP member for Toronto Greenwood, who last week spent 36 hours in Biafra on an unofficial fact-finding mission.

The external affairs minister bore down hard on Canada's willingness to relieve suffering in the country where the United Nations Children's Fund at the end of September estimated be-

Mayor Harvey McFarland was obviously moved — and shows it — when Picton Jaycees declared him Man of the Year last night. Presenting award was former title-holder Dr. Lionel Dockrill, peppery Picton physician, whose outspoken criticisms currently sees him aligned with strikers in Proctor-Silex labor dispute. But even the blunt-spoken physician seems to have caught something of the moment's emotions.

Jaycees Honor McFarland

PICTON (Staff) — A very pale, ill-looking Picton mayor, H. J. McFarland accepted the Jaycee 'Man of the Year Award' yesterday.

The plaque was presented by Dr. Lionel Dockrill, first winner of the award.

Said Mayor MacFarland: "Words can not express my appreciation for the confidence which you have handed me."

He apologized for his late arrival — he showed up almost an hour after the banquet had begun — and explained he was delayed by his illness.

Mr. McFarland has been absent from his duties for several weeks. He explained that a spinal injury incurred in a Montreal automobile accident last year was the source of the trouble. The fracture has again become serious since an accidental fall two weeks ago.

He spoke highly of the Jaycee organization, saying: "Whenever they have been called upon the Jaycees have been there to help out."

Jamaicans Filling Role As Area Apple Pickers

By DONALD MacKENZIE
Staff Reporter

West Indians have replaced Canadian Indians as apple pickers, especially in the Quinte area.

For the past several years large area apple growers have used Canadian Indians to harvest their crops.

This fall things have changed. Glenburnie Farms, a large apple-growing enterprise, are using 30 Jamaicans to pick their crop this year. Manager Ernie Tast as he gave reasons why his company chose West Indians over north Indians, despite the extra expense of bringing them up and getting them home.

"Most of the people who are good workers and well behaved, we don't have to bail them out of jail, we don't have to clean up after fights or worry about the job being done," he said.

"Once you've worked with both groups there is no trouble deciding which group is better," he said.

Another large grower in the Trenton area, Dr. David Zimerman, is using pickers from Trinidad but he refused to make any comment as to why.

However, police forces in the area say they have not noticed any outstanding outbreaks of lawlessness.

Chief Robert Rutherford of Trenton said that he had never heard of any trouble with the Indians. An identical statement came from the Brighton OPP detachment.

Inspector R. L. Bender at the Belleville OPP said "there have been no extenuating problems, nothing that would be worth mentioning anyway.

"However, I guess the growers must have some reason for the action they are taking."

Manager J. K. White of the Canada Manpower office in Trenton said there were no Canadian Indians in the area this year.

He knew, however, of migrant workers who have been brought from the West Indies by various growers.

The Indian employment program was started two to three years ago when 1,000 Indians were brought from northern Ontario to southern farms.

Now Indian farm labor forces across the province have declined to around 300 bringing into focus once, again the underlying problems facing Canadian Indians.

"Sure there are cases when these people have caused problems for the apple-growers" said R. F. Battle, assistant deputy minister of the department of Indian affairs and northern development. "But it would be the same with any group."

Color Bar No Choice - Wilson

GIBRALTAR (AP) — Prime Minister Harold Wilson of Britain meets the leader of breakaway Rhodesia's white-minority government today in a new effort to persuade him to let the black majority rule eventually.

But Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith comes into the meeting, aboard the British assault ship Fearless moored off Gibraltar, committed to preventing black rule "within my lifetime."

Wilson said the talks will be "aimed at discovering whether it would be possible to arrive at a settlement of the Rhodesia problem which would be acceptable to both sides."

The alternative, he said on British television before leaving London Tuesday, could be "a lurch into apartheid, into perhaps even a blood bath in Rhodesia."

In Salisbury, the Rhodesia Herald says: "We think it is no exaggeration to say the fate of Rhodesia depends on the talks.

If the talks fail, Smith is expected to give in to pressure from his party's right wing by proclaiming Rhodesia a republic with no ties to the British Crown and moving closer to South Africa.

Canada to Lend Hercules For Biafra Aid Air Lift

OTTAWA (CP)—Two Canadian air force Hercules transport planes are tentatively scheduled to leave here Thursday to fly relief supplies into Biafra for the International Red Cross.

But whether they will ever reach there is in doubt, informed sources say. Biafra had no suitable airfield left to accommodate the big planes and they might be able to get no farther than Nigeria.

Prime Minister Trudeau announced in the Commons Tuesday that Canada has obtained Nigerian permission to fly food into shrinking Biafra for the Red Cross. Nigeria reportedly had previously withheld such permission.

Mr. Trudeau said the agreement was worked out by External Affairs Minister Sharp and Nigerian officials in New York.

Mr. Sharp is attending the United Nations general assembly.

Under the agreement, Canada will lend planes and crews to the Red Cross to mount a relief airlift into secessionist Biafra, locked in civil war with Nigeria for more than a year.

Previously, the Canadian government had offered the Red Cross one Hercules transport and crew but for flights within Nigerian-controlled territory only.

Mr. Trudeau said he believes the Nigerian change of heart about flights into Biafra might have resulted from Nigeria's desire to show it is not bent on genocide.

Opposition Leader Stanfield said the Canadian government has belatedly discovered that Nigeria had no objection to Canadian relief planes operating in any area affected by the civil war.

He added in an interview on the CBC television program Twenty Million Questions that the agreement with Nigeria appeared to him not so much a matter of negotiation as one of discovering the position of the Nigerian government.

Proctor-Silex Conciliation Talks Start Today in Toronto

PICTON, Ont. (CP) — Conciliation talks are to begin in Toronto today in an effort to settle a strike that has divided this tiny Lake Ontario community, 20 miles southeast of Belleville.

The strike began July 17 when about 100 members of Local 585, International Union of Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers, at the kitchen appliance manufacturing plant of Proctor-Silex, demanded more money.

Since then, says town councillor Dr. Lionel Dockrill, the strike has "opened wounds in this community that will take a long, long time to heal."

Dr. Dockrill is sympathetic to the strikers who are seeking a basic hourly rate of $1.80 for women and $1.80 for men. Basic rate now is 93 cents an hour for women, plus an incentive bonus, and $1.27 for men.

"My credit has been called and merchants have telephoned me demanding payment of bills. . . ." he said in an interview Tuesday.

"It's easy to understand why. . . . Wages in this area are very low and they know if the workers at Proctor-Silex win their battle, wages will have to go up all over the town."

Proctor-Silex has offered the strikers a wage increase of six per cent in piece-work rates, with a minimum of $1.75 an hour for women and a labor rate of $1.52 an hour for men.

A permanent injunction granted the company last week limits picket lines at the plant to eight persons.

During the weekend and earlier this week about 40 pickets paraded in front of plant manager J. V. Finding's home, condemning the company's latest offer.

Other strike developments include reports of threatening telephone calls to those who have started working at the plant.

About 20 workers started assembling toasters, kettles and irons last week after Mr. Findlay transported some through picket lines by helicopter, while others crept into the plant through cornfields at the back.

Sunday, Rev. Robert Stewart, an Anglican minister, said from the pulpit that actions of the strikers are "unchristian."

He said it is wrong that "aged citizens of this town should be bugged on the telephone at all hours of the night."

"When actions like these occur it is time for Picton to say that the Mafia get out of Picton and return to Italy."

Dr. Dockrill said he didn't believe any threatening telephone calls were made by the strikers and attributed them to cranks.

Police Chief George Pitt said he has had no reports of any threatening telephone calls, and "I have no continent to make on anything about the strike."

Mayor H. McFarland, who owns the Proctor-Silex land and building, said he would do anything he could to settle the strike.

Council in Dark On Sewer Issue

City council is still more or less in the dark as to the progress of plans for its proposed sewage plant extension — this despite a request to the Ontario Water Resources Commission for information.

In fact the OWRC reply to the city's request for information has been referred by Alderman E. A. Orr as "a play on words."

The reply said — "We are currently finalizing arrangements associated with the preparation of the final design of the extension to the Belleville sewage treatment plant. . . ."

However, the letter went on, once these arrangements have been made the OWRC would be in a better position to advise of the time required for the preparation of the final design as well as the calling of tenders and awarding the contract.

Since the first of August the city has been collecting an increased sewer charge to help provide funds for the sewage plant extension.

This prompted a question from Alderman Enos Duvall, who noted the city was collecting money at the rate of $450,000 per year for the plant extension. He wanted to know how the money was to be handled until such time as it was required.

City Manager Reynolds said OWRC concerning the sewage plant extension would be dated for August this year with debenture payments also dating from that time.

In the meantime the money being collected was being placed in a special fund.

Picton Delegation Gets Little Information

PICTON (Staff) — The future of Camp Picton still remains closed in secrecy.

A delegation to Ottawa on behalf of Prince Edward County Council learned only that as immediate plans have been made for the base.

The delegation of five was under the guidance of County Warden Gordon DeMore.

They consulted with defence minister Leo Cadieux, who said nothing new, but repeated earlier promises that if the camp is closed by the army the defence department would do everything in its power to aid in any future non-military use of the grounds.

Meetings were arranged by Prince-Edward-Lennox MP George Hees.

An announcement was made last June that the 1st Battalion Canadian Guards would be withdrawn. The effect of such a move on the Picton economy was expected to be disasterous.

A private group of the town's citizens have already proposed that the grounds be taken over for private development by the town.

Stressalyzer Displayed at Batawa

New Stressalyzer Unveiled At Meeting in Batawa

TRENTON — The annual top management meeting of the Industrial Accident Prevention Association was marked last night by the unveiling of an instrument which its inventor claims could reduce accidents in industry by "measuring fatigue" and thus giving warning as to when an individual is most likely to make a serious mistake.

Over 50 representatives from industry in the Quinte area heard Dr. Bernard Gills of the National Research Council speak on the use of his stressalyzer machine.

Those present were looking for new ways and ideas to make industry safer for the employee.

Mrs. Peggy Kerr, secretary for the Central Ontario Branch, labelled the stressalyzer as "what could be a real breakthrough."

"Up until now the machine has been limited to research use in hospitals," said Dr. Gills, "but tonight will be the kickoff of showings which could result in commercial use."

The machine itself consists of a handwheel which a person uses to align a target with a target light that appears in any of five positions on a display panel.

"By trying to guess just what pattern the flashing light will follow," explained Dr. Gills, "we gain an insight not only into a person's physical reactions but into his personality and intelligence."

Speed and accuracy are all measured by three dials which keep a record of all movements made by the person handling the wheel.

And for any doubters, Dr. Gills had a few words.

"I have tested this for a long time, just how long I do not remember exactly, but I wanted to make very sure it worked before I approached the commercial market."

He listed the obvious uses of the machine which included the aspect of law enforcement whereby "the instrument could detect impairment caused by many forms of stress other than alcohol."

But those present had come to hear how it could help them.

"The machine could measure the fatigue of an employee and show just how prone to accidents a worker would be at any given time," he explained.

Also the instrumeng could be used as a supplement to existing job questionnaires.

"In this respect the stressalyzer could aid by assessing personality traits," added the doctor.

No plans have been made for commercial production as last night's showing was the first for industry.

Mrs. Kerr said "the Quinte area has one of the best prevention records in the association and we are interested in keeping it that way."

As a result the stressalyzer created quite a stir at the meeting. "One thing is for sure — Dr. Gills and his machine have stimulated a genuine interest which will have the association discussing the benefits of using the stressalyzer in industry.

G. W. Armstrong.

Bearers were: Kenneth Reid, Ronald Kelly, William Kelly, George MacDonald, Fred Wellman and Arthur Wellman.

Interment took place in White Lake Cemetery.

STANLEY P. LIVERSIDGE
(Brighton)

TRENTON — The funeral for Stanley P. Liversidge was held from the Weaver Funeral Home, Trenton, this Wednesday afternoon.

Rev. W. McDowell of Trenton, assisted by Rev. A. C. McLaren conducted the service in the chapel and also the committal rites in Mount Evergreen cemetery.

The bearers were Edward Beckett, John Schurman, John MacDonald, Archie and William Borland and Gordon Little.

Mr. Liversidge died in Kingston General Hospital after an illness of one week. He was born in Montreal, 84 years ago, a son of Mrs. Margaret Liversidge and the late S. Liversidge. He spent the last 10 years in the Trenton and Brighton area and was operating a business in Brighton at the time of his death.

Mr. Liversidge came to Trenton from Huntingdon, Quebec, where he was associated with the Bissell Dye Works of Canada, Ltd. and was employed with the Canton Dying and Finishing Company and resided in Trenton nearly 10 years before moving to Brighton.

He served with the YMCA overseas during the last world War, attached to the RAF. He was also membership secretary of the Central "Y" of Montreal and former field secretary to the Montreal Boys' Association and also former director of Camp Lewis, a welfare camp.

In the Trenton area Mr. Liversidge was an active member of Trinity St. Andrew's United Church in Brighton and past member of King Street United Church of Trenton, where he was a Sunday school superintendent, Hi-C leader and Elder. He was vice-president of Industrial Management Clubs of Canada.

Surviving are his mother, Mrs. Margaret Liversidge, Montreal, his wife the former Elizabeth Sheddon, and two daughters, Miss Allison Liversidge, Toronto and Mrs. Wendy Liversidge at home.

Also surviving are two sisters, Mrs. E. N. (Vera) Beckett, Ottawa and Mrs. J. B. (Olive) Schurman of Dorval, Quebec.

Jamaicans Pick Apples

"These people have lived in the north all of their lives and there is definitely an adjustment period when they come face to face with life in southern Ontario.

"Adjustment like that must take time, and there are programs in effect both provincially and federally to aid these people in their adjustment."

Quinte farm owners recall what was known as the "Indian Years" as an era of trouble with the police and unreliability because of drunkeness, according to a news report aired yesterday.

But the real problem, according to Ottawa, is not the individual incidents but the underlying reasons why they occur.

Differences in culture, education and even in language were all mentioned as reasons. In some cases, where the Indians spoke only Cree, farmers had to hire interpreters.

Mr. White said that perhaps one of the reasons there are fewer of the Indians now are the farms is that they have been able to find employment closer to home.

However, he too recognizes the problem.

One thing's for certain the farmers in the area prefer to spend the unnecessary extra money to import labor.

"We could get the northern Indians for nothing," said Mr. Tast, "but they cost us in the long run." He indicated that the 30 Jamaicans at Glenburnie farms have been here since Sept. 14 and that they would be returning to Jamaica around the end of October.

"We've had no problems with them."

IN MEMORIAM

HINZE — In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather Charles, who passed away October 9, 1963.

Though from our sight you're hidden
And we cannot touch your hand
Memories keep you with us
Of the one we loved so much.
His memory is our keepsake
With which we'll never part,
God has him in His keeping
We have him in our hearts.
—Sadly missed by Warren, Barbara and family.

Jaycees Told Carmichael Is Victim of Bad Press

PICTON (Staff) — A former Glenora minister spoke out against investment, yesterday at a Jaycee banquet here.

Rev. James Allman is presently a United Church minister in Peterborough.

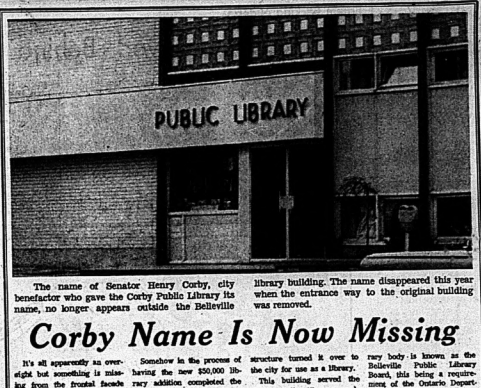
He described his efforts there to provide needed drugs to war victims, in both North and South Vietnam and the reaction to those efforts.

Following a fund drive, which resulted in raising over $6,000 for drug purchases, Rev. Allman said he was threatened and accused of being a communist by-a fellow clergyman.

He described a three day 'starve-in' conducted by students to focus public attention upon hunger and starvation in Vietnam.

The demonstration concluded on a Sunday, he said. Students, dressed in jeans and casual clothes, left the demonstration to attend church but in more than one instance were turned away with words of 'Go away, we don't want trouble makers here'."

The students, argued Rev. Allman, had become involved and were displaying a more Christian attitude than were the churches from which they were turned away.



Rev. Allman said that while in the United States he met Stokely Carmichael, who, he explained, was not an evil man at all but largely the victim of a 'bad press.'

"Involvement in the ghetto means rioting and looting stores." He explained that much of the trouble resulted from the only surroundings that many ghetto children were ever aware of — overcrowded single rooms, where families, ate, and slept in shifts.

He suggested that imprisoning rioters accomplished little and could even be an encouragement to those who had never known any privacy, or a place of their own.

He explained that public housing projects and the proposed boat works will start off providing employment for a minimum of 12 men with a variety of skills.

The bay above location Mr. Schnell asked council to rezone is held by Trireme Investments at the present time. It is reached from 33 Highway enroute to Consecon.

The name of Senator Henry Corby, city benefactor who gave the Corby Public Library its name, no longer appears outside the Belleville library building. The name disappeared this year when the entrance way to the original building was removed.

Crane Plant Under Way

TRENTON — "Today we have added another plant to the coast to coast operation of Crane," said Richard Reade, president of Crane Canada Ltd. as he turned the sod on the site of the new Trenton plant.

The ceremony took place at Trenton's Industrial Park where the $2½ million plant will be located.

For the officials of Crane and Dominion Bridge who had come to the Quinte area this marked the end of a two day visit.

The plant itself will occupy 140,000 square feet on the 21 acre site. Crane, one of many industries which have found Trenton attractive, will employ 90 persons from the area.

It hoped to have the unit in operation by the summer of '69.

Officials see the plant as an answer to "the greatly expanding market in commercial construction and homebuilding "and was a result plumbing supplies will be in great demand.

Construction is being handled by Dominion Bridge.

Ameliasburg Gets A New Industry

AMELIASBURG—The township council intends to keep in stride with neighboring communities as far as procurement of new industry is concerned.

Last night the elected representatives gave the green light to a request by W. Schnell of Southville for rezoning of an area along Weller's Bay, at the present time designated agricultural.

Mr. Schnell, who is a principal of Nassau Cruisers Ltd., revealed to council his plan of establishing a boat building concern on the south-west shore of the township.

He also revealed his company is engaged in building steel-hulled craft in the 40 to 60 foot class.

His reason for moving to the Quinte district, he said, was for water front purposes. The facility he has been using, he explained, is not situated on the water and does not lend itself to a growing operation.

Much of Nassau's work, including government contracts, requires testing under real conditions, which means additional moving costs in many cases in his set-up as it exists now, Mr. Schnell disclosed.

Council anticipates the proposed boat works will start off providing employment for a minimum of 12 men with a variety of skills.

The bay above location Mr. Schnell asked council to rezone is held by Trireme Investments at the present time. It is reached from 33 Highway enroute to Consecon.

Corby Name Is Now Missing

It's all apparently an overnight but something is missing from the frontal facade at the Belleville Public Library.

And until the matter is corrected, one of Belleville's greatest benefactors around the turn of the century — the late Senator Henry Corby — is being slighted.

Possibly only a few of the city's residents have noticed, but what has been known as the Corby Public Library for the past 60 years is now shown merely as the "Public Library."

Somehow in the process of having the new $50,000 library addition completed the Corby "name got omitted from the building nameplate.

"It was all just an oversight," admitted Librarian Olive Delaney. "Actually, I have made a memo to bring the matter up at the first library board meeting."

The local library has been known as the Corby Public Library since back in 1908 when Mr. Corby purchased the Merchants' Bank Building and after renovating the structure turned it over to the city for use as a library.

This building served the city's public library needs until 1959 when a $100,000 addition was added. This year another addition costing $50,000 was added with the frontal appearance being changed to blend in with the original structure.

The name Corby Public Library appeared over the doorway of the original library building but with the construction of the latest addition this was removed.

Officially the local Library body is known as the Belleville Public Library Board, this being a requirement of the Ontario Department of Education to make the library eligible for provincial grants.

But apparently there is nothing which would prevent the building still being called the Corby Public Library and a plaque inside the library main entrance recognizes Mr. Corby as the library's early benefactor.

And Miss Delaney feels it is only right that the Corby name should be continued on the building facade.

Skipper Ernie Colebourne, who yesterday made available his boat to take visiting industrialists around the Bay of Quinte, gets tour under way. Behind him, R. Reade, president of Crane Canada Ltd. and F. Patterson, president of Brook Bond Canada Ltd. are ready for the trip up the bay to Trenton.

Free Calling Possible In Frankford, Stirling

Long distance calling habits, together with requests from telephone users and municipal authorities, indicate the possible need for the expansion of the free calling areas for customers in the Stirling - Frankford - Wooler area.

C. H. Buckley, Bell Canada Manager, announced today that a two week survey of telephone subscribers, to begin October 21 would be undertaken in the three exchanges to determine what proportion of customers want the additional facility.

The proposed extension would eliminate long distance charges between Stirling and Belleville, Frankford and Wooler. Also Frankford and Wooler and Belleville, Brighton and Stirling.

Since telephone rates are based on the number of telephones that can be reached without long distance charges, the monthly service rate for Stirling, Frankford and Wooler would increase slightly in accordance with the wider service area.

"This improvement in telephone service will take place only if a majority of customers indicate support for such a plan," said Mr. Buckley. "If this is found to be the case, the new service will be introduced early in 1971" he added.

One Wheel Makes Difference

First there was one wheel, then there was none.

An industrial sightseeing program yesterday sponsored by Dominion Bridge Company Ltd. in Trenton got off to a harrowing beginning.

The modified Lockheed plane that, brought the executives into Trenton ran into a problem as it approached the landing field.

As it was about to land the pilot found that the landing gear on the starboard side of the plane was only half way down and not locked in place.

On board the plane were R. Reade, president of Crane Canada Ltd., R. B. Hill, vice-president of Crane, F. Patterson president of Brooke Bond Canada Ltd., architect R. M. Dawson, F. Roberts, general manager of the St. Lawrence region CNR and other high powered industrial figures.

The pilot circled around and pulled up the defective landing gear only to find when he tried to put it down again that neither side responded.

Around and around over Trenton the plane circled as the pilot attempted to get the gear down — he had two hours of fuel left.

After an hour of circling and numerous vain attempts to get the landing gear down the pilot was finally successful and the plane landed without further problems.

However, the experience gave most of the passengers butterflies in their stomachs and one of them said that he never thought land would feel so good.

After the men arrived a luncheon was held at the Sir Valley Motel where other local Industrialists and public officials joined the tour, including the mayors of both Belleville and Trenton. There were over 30 men in the tour that went to the Allied Chemical plant site in Belleville to tour the grounds and Belleville's industrial park.

Highlighting the afternoon was a tour of the entire bay of Quinte on a yacht provided by Ernie Colebourne, past commodore of the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club.

Mr. Colebourne and his crew, Jack McFarland current commodore, took the group down the shores of the bay, pointing out industrial sites and buildings and then up the bay to the Trenton Yacht Club.

There, a cocktail hour and dinner was held and various businessmen expressed their opinions of the area.

This morning, Mr. Reade, president of Crane will officiate at a sod-turning ceremony at the site of a new Crane plant to be built in Trenton.

Industrial commissioner Ray Brown of Belleville said this morning that the two day introduction to the Quinte area, was extremely successful.

"We made quite an impression on these men," he said, "and a lot of thanks go to Dominion Bridge who sponsored the entire event."

"It was a chance to indicate to industrialists the type of product we're marketing in the Quinte area and I think they liked it." he concluded.

Deseronto Man Awarded $65,000

NAPANEE, Ont. (CP) — Donald Neal Hill, 21, of Deseronto, was awarded $65,000 damages in an Ontario Supreme Court action Tuesday for injuries suffered in a car accident about three years ago.

Hill suffered permanent brain and physical injuries in the accident Dec. 10, 1965, near Deseronto, about 35 miles west of Kingston.

The jury ruled that Donald Alexander Dewar, 25, driver of the car, was negligent for driving while intoxicated. It said the accident was caused by excessive speed and dangerous driving.

The jury also awarded $7,481 for out-of-pocket expenses to John Hill, Donald's father.

Biafra Muddle

The clamor in this country concerning relief for the starving people of Biafra takes no account of the fact that the food, in some instances at least, is not being distributed to those who need it.

Reports on all aspects of the Nigerian civil war have been conflicting, but one of the most disturbing is frequent reference to the fact that the food is not getting through. Andrew Brewin, New Democratic Party MP for Toronto-Greenwood, who with Conservative member David MacDonald, visited Nigeria recently, has confirmed that this is so. He noted on his return to this country that control of supplies is in the hands of the Nigerian army.

Clearly, civil administration throughout Nigeria has long since broken down. Feeding of the civilian population appears to be on a hit-and-miss basis, according to the whim of local army commanders. If Canada supplies more aircraft and food it must be on the understanding that such beneficence may not be distributed to the people who need it most.

Picton Dispute

The Proctor-Silex dispute in Picton is all the more deplorable for the tensions and personal antagonisms it is engendering among members of the community. When people are on different sides of the fence and the issue is not only bread and butter, but human rights, unpleasant schisms invariably develop.

The same sort of thing occurred in Saskatchewan some years ago when the government there brought in its controversial medical plan. Even family ties were split asunder and neighbor railed against neighbor as the government pursued its intent relentlessly.

It may not have reached this stage in Picton, but emotions are running high just the same. The experience of town councillor Dr. Lionel Dockrill is a case in point. As a supporter of the workers in this union-management dispute, even to the point of joining picket lines at the plant, he says he now faces community backlash. Dr. Dockrill says he has been branded a "Trotskyite and a subversive element," and has been snubbed by friends on the street. He and his wife, who has stood in for him on picket lines, has received phone calls and harsh criticism.

This kind of conduct, involving personal vilification of people who are making a stand for their beliefs, is not only undemocratic but immature. And this apart from the issues and politics involved.

When issues are permitted to influence people to the point that they forget their manners as it were, one against the other, then it is time for reflection, a time to pull back, a time to be calm. Any other course can only worsen an already unfortunate situation.

Self-knowledge

A significant new trend in the promotion of mental health is emphasis on group therapy — individuals coming together to discuss all aspects of the human dilemma, from their own problems to those of society at large. One observer of this technique has gone so far as to say it may push the psychoanalyst's couch into obsolescence.

Vancouver Sun columnist Bob Hunter has described the program as being geared "not to long, complex relationships between psychoanalyst and patient, but open encounters between individuals in a group situation." Results, he says, can be spectacular, such as in cases of parents and children who have been at each other's throats for years and who are suddenly forced to realize the nature of their complaints. The conflict dissolves."

Plainly, such dialogue operates on the premise that it is better to express oneself, get to the core of one's problems and unburden by talking them out with others than to be among the "walking wounded" (which includes practically all of us) nursing all kinds of prejudices, hang-ups and phobias.

As a result of such techniques this could be the age when people get to know themselves — and each other — better.

By the same token men need their privacy. For every man who is gregarious, chatty, and enjoys the company of his fellows, there are many others who are of a solitary nature. They prefer to keep their own counsel — and their own neuroses. Still, where the latter become a handicap — and they do — group discussions can effect a significant improvement in their mental attitude and general outlook on life.

Britain Backing Nigeria

France Believed Behind Gabon's Aid to Biafra

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The former French colony of Gabon appears to be playing a role in world affairs which some Western diplomats view as out of character with its local interests, population and resources.

The sparsely-populated state on Africa's west coast caused uproar in Ottawa last year by inviting Quebec to a conference of French-speaking countries without consulting the Canadian government.

Ottawa later broke diplomatic relations with Gabon, which has a population of about 500,000, mostly French-speaking.

Now authoritative reports claim Gabon is shipping large quantities of French-made automatic weapons to beleaguered Biafrans resisting against hard-pressing federal Nigerian troops.

The view in London is that this will prolong the war and the suffering already evident without offering hope of any fresh ideas for an acceptable peace in which a federated Nigeria can be restored.

It is no secret some British officials suspect Gabon, which may have no real interest in power politics on a grand scale, is being manipulated by French President de Gaulle to pursue his own foreign policy. A similar accusation was aired at the time of the French-language conference, seen by some as an initial attempt to recognize Quebec as a separate state.

The French government has denied it is sending arms to Biafra and, of course, the fact that French-made weapons may be finding their way into Biafra does not necessarily point to a French source of supply.

French officials suggest the only reason why planes are moving between Gabon and Biafra is to provide medical aid. The French defence department is setting up a field hospital for Biafran wounded and refugees at Libreville, Gabon's capital.

Britain is sending large supplies of arms to the federal Nigerian forces, confident the war might soon be over with the defeated Biafrans ready to rejoin the federated Nigeria in which Britain has a great deal of influence and interest.

While France so far has not recognized Biafra, President de Gaulle has stated he will give it all the help he can. The implication of his, words together with events, suggest he may be ready to play a larger role, even though some military strategists conclude Biafra cannot hope to withstand the federal onslaught for any long period.

Letters to the Editor

Residency Issue At Senior Citizens' Homes:

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

This letter relates to a news item in the Intelligencer of Sept. 27 on the rejection of Belleville's request for representation on the Management Board of the Home for the Aged. The basis of such rejection brings up some interesting and puzzling points.

The Homes for the Aged Committee has drawn a definite line of demarcation between city and county, thus upsetting, not only the mental tranquility of the writer, but also pride of his knowledge of Hastings County geography, taught to him many years ago, in a little red school.

In the first place, although Belleville is the capital (the county buildings, in the heart and centre of the city, must also be presumed as not being in the county. Therefore, all business transacted by county officials would be in absentia and ultra vires.

On a more personal basis and because of the application for my wife and self to be admitted to Centennial Manor, Bancroft, I suggest the Committee be asked to clarify the following: (a) Residence; (b) 12 consecutive months residence and (c) the special circumstances under which "some leeway could be expected."

An inflexible application of the rule denoted (b) above, places all war veterans in jeopardy in respect to their eligibility for admittance to either of the two Homes for the Aged.

Although for short periods of hospitalization, local services are accepted, all veterans under the protective wing of the DVA for medical treatment and hospitalization are required to have such treatment at the place of their respective military district, which in this case is Kingston. In the past I have been transferred by ambulance from Bancroft Red Cross Hospital directly to Hotel Dieu in Kingston.

In July of 1967 following a medical examination, Dr. S. S. Lamb of Bancroft, referred me to a doctor in Belleville for consultation and further examination. In the 12 months following I was admitted to one of the other hospitals five times, twice in Kingston and three times in Belleville. In that time I had three operations: a major one involving the removal of a rib with a malignant growth; a second operation for the same cause but in a different area, and the third could be classified as a minor operation.

In August of 1967, when it was ascertained that my hospitalization period would be protracted and indeterminate, my wife relinquished tenancy of our domicile in Bancroft, and engaged, on a week to week basis, a room in a motel directly across from Belleville hospital. This had the added advantage of front door regular bus service to and from Kingston.

In May of 1968, during a postoperative checkup period, applications were filed on behalf of my wife and myself for admittance to either of the two Homes in the county. There being little hope of accommodation in Hastings Manor in the foreseeable future, our application was transferred to Bancroft and promptly rejected. Obviously by an individual. Based on a letter from the county treasurer, the application had subsequently been reviewed by the committee and the rejection confirmed "because I had established residence in Belleville." Further quoting, "your application however has been approved for admission to Hastings Manor, etc."

Just when, of course is conjecture.

It is somewhat puzzling to learn that after some four months sojourn in hospital in another county (Frontenac) and an almost equal period of time in hospital in Belleville, with intermittent post-operative checks in both cities, that I have established residence in Belleville." Because of the pattern of determining "residence" I can think of numerous situations, whereby a war veteran could be left undecided as to which one's admittance to either of the two County Homes. Because of the conflicting requirements of the DVA and the Committee, I can suggest situations whereby a veteran's eligibility would apply only to Frontenac County, and that of his wife would apply only to Centennial Manor at Bancroft. None of us with the status of war veterans expects any special treatment, but at the same time we should not be penalized because of it. When our application was first submitted to the local officials, it was with the full anticipation that transfer to the Centennial Manor would be effected, if, as, and when. News items had dealt with the proposal of transferring 25 from Hastings Manor to Centennial Manor when this latter project was completed and ready for such transfer.

For some reason the illogical logic of the contrive is reminiscent of the Chinese waiter asking the diner what kind of pie he wished for dessert. "What kind of pie have you?" asked the diner, to which the waiter replied, "Two kinds pie, lasin, blueberly. Lasin all gone make blueberly Friday."

Nine like lacrimae.

Fashion Polemics

Ottawa Journal

How fickle fashion! A Montreal clothes designer has returned to fashions of the 30s and 40s to create a look which he says is most beautiful for women.

The late show contradicts him. Short hair plastered down with little kiss-curls, shapeless dresses and a round-eyed look of inanity appear to many a modern man better for kewpie dolls than women.

Fashion, forms, is a necessary evil. If new car styles don't go back to the Pierce-Arrow look. Why must these woolly looks be revived every few years?

Cafe De La Moira

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

It is pleasant to be told that the Cafe de la Moira was a success. Particularly so after making sarcastic remarks about the fruits of "silver spoon charity." The implication was made that the youth would reap the influence of unrealistic business, social and, therefore moral training. Certain so-called public-spirited citizens took offence with the remarks.

So congratulations to all concerned in making this project such a resounding success. Incidental is the fact that most adults seemed afraid to frequent the place. Incidental also is the fact that youth was encouraged to believe that a complete lack of discipline or talent can be art.

The important thing is that eight youths used up their summer of opportunity acquiring $73.35 each. And all of this bounteous success resulted from their clever business efforts — plus such minor side influences as not having to pay for land preparation, rent, taxes, moving costs, platforms, power, furniture and equipment. They also received a great deal of free advertising and all of their coffee.

That sure was success. With such fine examples of the wonders of socialism it is a wonder that youth still knows what free enterprise is — or was.

Sir Wilfred Grenfell, a medical missionary, died 28 years ago today—in 1940. Only 27 years old when he began his medical missions to Labrador's outports, he treated 900 patients in the first two months. His bravery and the need for medical services in the outports led to the founding of the International Grenfell Association to sponsor a hospital and a children's home at St. Anthony, on the northern tip of Newfoundland.

Fifty years ago today—in 1918—Canadian soldiers in the 1st Army were the first forces to enter Cambrai; Anglo-French troops forced a general German retreat from the St. Quentin area; American forces occupied Argonne Wood; since Aug. 21, British soldiers had captured 110,600 prisoners.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1943—a Canadian tank squadron, led by Maj. Ottawa And Provinces Are at Odds

Ottawa Journal

The Mad-Hatter system of unco-ordinated government was known at its worst in speeches of Prime Minister Trudeau and Premier Robarts.

Trudeau said in Calgary that the limitations of federal Government income required that existing expenditure programs be reassessed. He did not name the fresh priorities to be applied to spending.

Robarts in Toronto said that unless there were co-ordination between federal and provincial spending, there could be cuts in amounts available for education, welfare, housing, transportation and pollution control.

What should alarm the taxpayer is that in neither speech was there an assurance that Ontario and Ottawa would get together in cutting spending or agreeing on services to be maintained.

Liquor Laws Under Study

Kitchener-Waterloo Record

"Serious" study is being given to changing Ontario liquor laws, said the responsible minister, Provincial Secretary Robert S. Welch, when he was in Kitchener for a speaking engagement.

Without meaning to be rude, we ask about all the other studies of liquor laws his government has been making for the past 25 years. Were they not serious?

If they are really getting sort of at last, they might try studying the section of the liquor act which says we have to sign your name and address to a piece of paper every time you buy a bottle of booze. That simple do this nonsensical chore every year for no good reason.

It's legal to buy a bottle of wine for dinner. It's legal to buy a chocolate cake for dinner. One purchase should be as simple as the other.

A study doesn't have to get very serious to grasp that point.

First Dialogue Since 1962

Russia Initiates Talks With Brandt

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — United Nations diplomats expressed guarded hope today for an easing of East-West tension in Europe following the surprise meeting between the foreign ministers of the Soviet Union and West Germany.

Delegates were heartened that the half-hour talk Tuesday between Andrei A. Gromyko of the Soviet Union and Willy Brandt of West Germany was initiated by the Soviets.

The meeting was described by Brandt as useful. Later the West German minister in a communique said the talk dealt with "the well-known questions of Germany and Europe which are of interest to both partners." The Russians had nothing to say.

The meeting, first contact between Moscow and Bonn in six years, was seen by some as a possible move by the Kremlin to establish a détente in a Europe still shaken by the Communist bloc thrust into Czechoslovakia.

It was the first such contact since Gromyko met West German Foreign Minister Gerhard Schroeder in Geneva in 1962.

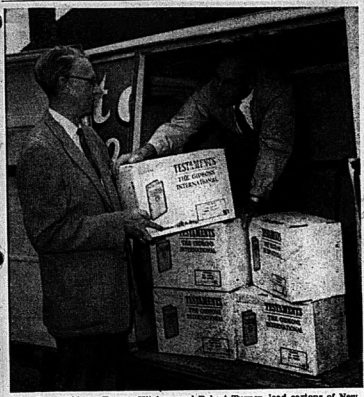
Danish Foreign Minister Poul Hartling echoed the views of many delegates when he said his countrymen follow with sympathy West Germany's desire to negotiate with the Russians.

American officials remained dubious, noting that Moscow had not noticeably changed its threatening posture toward West Germany.

Delegates recalled, however, that Gromyko's comments on West Germany in his policy speech before the General Assembly last week had omitted the usual Soviet reference to UN Charter provisions pertaining to enemy states. The Russians had been citing these articles as justification for any unilateral move against Bonn.

Diplomats also noted a recent speech to the West German parliament by Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger who said that the aim of the Bonn government is to pave the way "for a new political climate of understanding and, whenever posible, co-op eration" with the Kremlin.

The Brandt-Gromyko meeting came a few hours before the Soviet foreign minister returned home.



Meanwhile, hopes for progress toward a Middle East peace settlement remained in the balance as delegates studied a "program for peace" presented to the General Assembly Tuesday by Israel.

Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban called for a renewed effort through UN envoy Gunnar Jarring within the next few weeks.

Eban spelled out in some detail his government's negotiations with Jarring during the last 19 months since Jarring began work under a mandate from the Security Council.

Israel accepted a Jarring proposal to bring about "meetings between Israel and its neighbors under his auspices in fulfilment of his mandate for the purpose of peaceful and accepted settlement," Eban said.

He renewed appeals for a peace treaty with Arab states and pledged that Israeli troops would withdraw from territory seized in the war of June, 1967, to "secure and recognized boundaries."

Local Gideons Eugene Hitchon and Robert Turner, load cartons of New Testaments into truck for distribution to Quinte area grade five pupils.

Guideons Still Providing Area Schools with Bibles

Belleville area Gideons this year are continuing their project of distributing Bibles and New Testaments to schools in the Quinte district.

This year's program is to distribute New Testaments to grade five elementary school children in the area between Deseronto and Brighton and from Lake Ontario to Highway 7.

Local Gideon representative William A. Watson, says the New Testaments are offered as a gift to each grade five student in the area, while Bibles are made available for religious instruction by all pupils from grade four up.

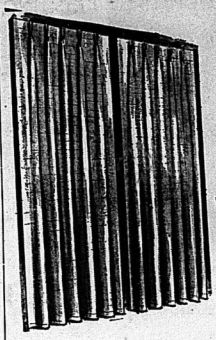
Squadron Leader Donald Ellis, of the Canadian Forces Base at Trenton, is the head of the local Gideon organization.

And Bibles distributed to schools by Gideons do receive good usage.

Mr. Watson said that some years ago Bibles had been distributed to Trenton schools. This year it was brought to their attention that the Bibles had been used so much that the covers and even many of the passages were missing.

"Had we known we would have replaced them before," Mr. Watson said.

Sunday Hunting Approved



A township on the fringes of the Quinte area has made a breakthrough in Southern Ontario's Sunday-hunting prohibition.

The Ontario cabinet has approved hunting on Sundays in Haldimand township near Cobourg says F. A. Walden, supervisor of the Department of Lands and Forests wildlife section.

The Cabinet also will consider applications from two counties for Sunday hunting, he said. The counties were not named.

Earlier this year Hastings County Council sought similar approval from the government. However, it withdrew the application in mid-summer. Council feared it Hastings was the only county with Sunday hunting an influx of hunters — particularly from the metropolitan region — might result, swamping local officials with law enforcement demands.

Schizophrenic Has No Time to Be Sick

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I have suffered from schizophrenia since I was about seven. I can no longer spend my precious time in one institution or another, as I am left without husband and family to raise three beautiful little girls.

Please send me the booklet "schizophrenia" which I believe will help me greatly in understanding myself and caring for my family. Enclosed is a money order for 20 cents and a large stamped envelope. — Schizo.

Dear Schizo: There's nothing wrong with your courage, and that's for sure!

My psychiatric consultant tells me that to be so greatly needed by your lovely family could be the best therapy in the world. At the same time he suggests you get to know your own limits, stress-wise, and allow for frequent relaxing breaks.

I'd add that regular consultations with a social caseworker, when things get complicated, can keep anxieties from piling up and upsetting the applecart.

Today we don't think of schizophrenia as a lifetime disease, but something one may suffer from, off and on. We might compare it to low back pain, which comes and goes; gets worse with overtaxing or poor posture.

In both kinds of trouble, we can have a lot to say in whether it keeps cropping up by heeding warnings that rest or change or an easing of burdens is in order.

* * *

Dear Doris: I am 18. Last summer I got a job working in a dentist's office part time all year after school. I will be leaving the office to take a dental assistant's course. If it wasn't for the wonderful help of the dentist and his wife I do not think I would have been accepted.

I want to give them something to show my appreciation. I at first thought I would write a letter and thank them for helping me get a break in my career but a letter did not seem right. Could you suggest something? — So Grateful.

Dear Grateful: Anything from a homemade batch of fudge to a desk set would rate — just as long as the note that goes with it says how you feel about your benefactors. What you get depends on how much you have to spend and what you think they need and would use. A gift shop would be the place to look, if you feel flush.

The gift and the note are addressed to both of them: the note says in your own words how kind they were to go out of their way to get you launched on a career you will love because they have made you love it.

* * *

Dear Doris: I am writing about your answer to "Disinterested in Sex". I don't agree with the man in the case or you. If he was my husband he would work day and night until he learned self-control and that there are other things in life besides sex.

Give me a man who is interested in his work: buys or builds a home and keeps it up; has a good car and money for travel vacations and all of the other good things in life. He would not have time or energy for sex all the time.

If one half of the girls knew what thef were in for, there would be fewer marriages today. Sad it is that we have to learn by experience. An actress was asked what she would do if she had a million dollars. Her reply was "sleep alone". — Reader.

Dear Reader: Oh, come now. Don't throw out the baby with the bath water.

Ann Landers

Secretary Disturbed By Obscene Literature

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This is a dream job . . . wonderful pay, great hours, ideally located, fine people and I enjoy my work tremendously.

Last week I was promoted. I am now the private secretary to the executive vice-president of the company. Mr. Z is pleasant, though somewhat reserved. His civic and church activities are indeed commendable. He has a fine wife and four attractive children.

ANN LANDERS

Monday, when I straightened out his desk drawer I found pornographic pictures and obscene literature. Shi knocked my eyes out. I never knew such filth existed. My face was red all morning. I couldn't keep my mind on my work.

When Mr. Z strolled in at his dictation at 11:30 a.m. he thanked me for straightening his desk drawers. No mention was made of the material which he knows I saw.

Now I'm uncomfortable around him and don't know what to do about it Can you advise me? — STILL BLUSHING.

DEAR STILL: Stop blushing. There's nothing to do. The boss' taste in "literature and art" should be of no concern to you. Continue to sharpen those pencils, Honey, and ignore his adolescence, self-gratifying techniques.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My sister and I are the youngest of a large family. We are both teen-age girls. Our problem is 10 nieces and nephews under nine years of age. Ever since we have been 12 years old we've been expected to baby sit without pay. We aren't asked — we are told.

Our mother makes these commitments and no matter what else we have planned, we must cancel because, according to mother, "family comes first."

Both my sister and I have had to pass up some groovy school parties and interesting dates because of mother's insistence. She is a great lot of yours, Ann, and we are hoping you will print this letter and set her straight — or us — who ever needs it. — BITTER AND RESENTFUL.

* * *

DEAR B AND R: Teen-agers should not be drafted to sit for relatives. This creates hostility which can turn into full-blown hatred. Some teens offer to sit for members of the family because they want to be of service, but to be forced to do so — without pay yet — is unfair and I hope your mother will rethink this whole situation.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You are supposed to run a love-lorn column but you keep sticking your nose into things that are out of your line. I'm sick of you telling mothers their kids are disturbed when what they really need is an old-fashioned crack in the mouth."

I raised five kids and never took a minute's lip off any of them. All this modern psychology is bunk. People like you do more harm than good. Print this if you dare — WOODSHED FATHER.

DEAR WOOD: I don't believe in permissive upbringing and have said so repeatedly.

Cracking a child in the mouth may be a convenient release for dad's bottled tensions but it doesn't do much good for the child, and you can bet on it. Nature provided

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "Betty, remember to say 'excuse me,' if you walk in front of Aunt Mary, and hold the door for her when she's ready to leave. She's very particular about good manners."

Betty: "Let's have a tea party. I'll be Mrs. Jones and you be Mrs. Black."

Mother: "Your children are so nice about not interrupting when you have a guest, Mrs. Jones. They have lovely manners."

Simple manners are merely habits of graciousness, learned by daily example of parents. Practice and teach in ways that are imaginative and fun so that social grace will be automatic.

CLUB 4-H NOTES

ALBURY JUNIORETTES

The second meeting was held at the home of leader Barbar Peck on October 1 at 7 p.m., with 11 girls present. The next meeting will be held on October 7.

Discussion topics included: entertaining a guest; behavior as a guest; and the thank you note. Leader Barbara Peck demonstrated how to pack a suitcase for a weekend visit to a friend.

Group work included a thank you note to Mrs. Bowerman; and also a thank you note for a weekend visit at a friend's home.

Campbellford Kinsmen Club Installs Officers

CAMPBELLFORD — The 1968-69 officers of Campbellford Kinsmen Club were installed by Deputy Governor Ron Hotston of Picton. Other guests at the meeting included Mr. Bud Hoyst of Cleveland and Deputy Governor Joe Lindsay of Belleville.

Officers elected were as follows: president — Glen Craig; vice-president — Doug Linn and Bill Campbell; treasurer — Bill Churchill; secretary — Cliff Farmer; directors — Gerald Locke, Bud Stephens, Glen Splaine; bulletin editor Bill Patton.

Kinsman Charles Wickens was proposed as a candidate for life membership and it was unanimously endorsed by members in attendance. The award for Kinsman of the year was given to Gerald Locke for his fine work in club projects.

Kinsman Garry Cracknell walked for the Club in the Walk-to-Save-Life in Belleville and received $76.50 from his sponsors for the project. The lucky draw was won by Kinsman Forrest Dennis.

The meeting concluded with Deputy Governor Joe Lindsay addressing the members of the Kinsman expansion program.

Cheese Omelette for Two

By MARY MOORE

Call me a billetier, it seems I cannot resist billeting young people who attend conferences in our city. So when two young people, Miriam Owen and Linda Harman, both sixteen years old and in Grade 12 in Espanola, Ontario, were attending an organizational conference of Youth Activities Committee on Mental Retardation at our Y.M.C.A.

My assignment was to give them bed and breakfast but they pulled a switch — they charmed me with their enthusiasm and dedication to a cause they h o p e will mushroom all throughout the land. So young folks, from fifteen to twenty-one, jump on the bandwagon and get your local program for our metally retarded away to a fast start.

For one breakfast I served them a Cheese Omelette and they wanted the recipe and I want you to have it too.

CHEESE OMELETTE (2 or 3 servings)

4 large eggs
one-third cup milk
½ teaspoon salt
shake of pepper
1½ to 2 tablespoons butter
½ to two-thirds cup finely diced or coarsely shredded Canadian Swiss or process cheese
1 tablespoon chopped chives or freeze-dried chives

In a mixing bowl combine eggs, milk, salt and pepper with rotary beater until mixed and frothy. In 8" heavy fry pan over high heat melt butter until it is bubbly and pale gold. Immediately pour in egg mixture. As soon as it sets at edges reduce heat and sprinkle cheese over top. As omelette sets run spatula around edge, tilting pan to allow uncooked portion to flow underneath. Run spatula around edge again and tilt pan to hasten flow of any uncooked underneath. Increase heat to brown bottom a little. Tilting pan again and using spatula, carefully fold over one third of omelette starting at handle side of pan. Have preheated platter at hand and slant pan to a sharp angle and coaxing omelette to roll into a second fold, slide omelette out of pan having edges folded under. Sprinkle with chopped chives and serve at once with hot crisp buttered toast.

Observer, Norma Waters; Outer Observer, Kathryn Allin; musician, Susan Coward; choir director, Susan Thompson; Mother Advisor, Mrs. Bessie Marsh; choir, Bonnie Bedford, Vicky Clarke, Vickie Lynn Craft, Elaine Montaigue, Janet Wetherall, Debbie Wiles and Josephine Skinkle.

Soloist for the ceremony was Mrs. B. Pettingill of Wellington, Mrs. Lil Jordan, organist of Minerva Chapter, presided at the piano.

The new assembly received many gifts, flags, rituals, furnishings, record books, and other items needed for their work from other assemblies and from Eastern Star Chapters and friends throughout the district.

The assembly was honored by having their new Worthy Advisor, Orinda Best, named as a Grand Page for the Grand Assembly to be held in Toronto, October 18 and 19. Advisory board members: Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Calvert, Mr. and Mrs. Adam Stalker, Mr. and Mrs. Allan Weese, Mr H. McConnell, Mr. F. Furmidge, Mrs. B. Pettingill, Mrs. R. Henning, Mrs. R. Chaplin, Mrs. A. Ashbury, Mrs. L. Coward, Mrs. V. Greatrix, Mrs. L. Hogle, Mrs. E. Lazenby and Mrs. B. Marsh.

Baskets of rainbow hued gladioli added to the decor but the girls in their long white dresses made a picture that will long be remembered.

SOPHISTICATION FOR COCKTAILS — This sophisticated tunic-dress and trousers set with a fascinating oriental look was part of the unusual collection revealed in Britain by the Associated Fashion Designers of London at their recent mid-season fashion show. The eye-catching cocktail wear, designed in Chinese symbolic flower brocade of rich gold and magnolia, is a dual-purpose garment — when the occasion demands, the tunic-dress can be worn independently.

Women's Institutes

BONARLAW W.I.

The W.I. held their regular meeting at the home of Mrs. Cyril McKeown on Wednesday afternoon, September 25, with 15 members present. Mrs. George Williams was in charge of the meeting.

Following the minutes, the delegates were appointed to the district area convention — Mrs. Cyril McKeown, Mrs. W. J. Barlow and Mrs. M. Cassidy. Happy birthday was sung for two members.

Mrs. Myrtle Cassidy gave a splendid address on Canadian Industries. A reading was given by Mrs. C. Burkitt, each member giving a current event, followed by two contests. Community singing was enjoyed followed by a touch and take table.

The meeting ended with the serving of refreshments by the hostess and her assistants.

CNIB Announces Canvass Dates

The Canadian National Institute for the Blind held a meeting with the Campbellford Branch recently at which it was announced that the annual canvass in the area would be held October 13th to October 20th.

The meeting was held at the home of Fred Palliser with Mr. Clare Hilborn, field secretary present. Also attending was Mrs. Helen Anderson and Mrs. Joan Donnely, of the Campbellford Lionettes, who have been active in the interests of the blind in the area.

Mr. Hilborn advised those present that he had made several calls in the area and had called on Mr. Foster, an active member of the CNIB in Toronto and British Columbia, now living here.

Several members had received canes, and two people have received a talking book machine of the new design. Royal Bank Manager, Mr. Jack Gall gave the treasurer's report.

Mrs. Thomas Main reported that she called on a new member in September and attended the dinner meeting of the Pine Ridge Club at Bowmanville accompanied by Mrs. James Heffernan.

The next meeting will be held before the start of the campaign at which time the Hastings village and area will hold a canvass.

Home and School News

QUEEN VICTORIA SCHOOL

The first general meeting of the Queen Victoria Home and School Association for the new term was held Tuesday evening in the school auditorium with a large attendance.

The meeting was opened by the president, Mrs. R. Shrill and following a short business meeting the principal, Miss Lockyer introduced the teaching staff for 1968-69 after which he took over control.

An announcement was made that the annual shoe sale will be held October 22 with convener Mrs. J. Murray. Mrs. Shrill outlined the U.N.I.C.E.F. campaign for Hallowe'en in the absence of the convener Mrs. E. Brenot.

Mr. John Luscombe program convener gave an outline of the programs for the coming year. One being a pilot project at Queen Victoria School "Family Life Education."

Mr. John Luscombe introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. R. Ross Provincial executive (membership chairman) for the Ontario Federation of Home and School Association, who gave an interesting talk on Home and School and its aims and objects.

Lunch was combined with the meeting which everyone enjoyed.

Horticultural Society Holds Fall Meeting

STIRLING — The first fall meeting of the Stirling Horticultural Society was held Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Lillian Hermon, Foxboro, with an attendance of 37.

Mrs. Floyd Armstrong presided and read a message re September. Reports were presented by Mrs. Raymond McConnell, Mrs. Harry Waite and Mrs. Grant Hubble.

Sixty dollars has been given to the treasurer of the Stirling Fair Board to pay for the Horticultural prizes.

This year no delegate was sent to the 62nd annual meeting of the Ontario Horticultural Society held at Windsor. Mrs. Morley Ayrhart read a copy prepared by a friend who had been a delegate from another group. This gave a very interesting description of the various sessions and bus trips. The 1969 convention will be held in Hamilton.

Mrs. Harry Morrow read an article re dividing a Christmas cactus and Mrs. Ray Rose displayed a unique bouquet of asters. Mrs. Percy MacMullen donated a number of various gourds as souvenir of the day; the president also displayed odd-shaped gourds and Indian corn.

The hostess and Mrs. Ashley Brooks distributed flower slips. The next meeting will be held in the afternoon on Monday, October 21, at the home of Mrs. Percy Craighead.

CLUB 4-H NOTES

CENTRE VICTORIA TEA-SERS

Th eascond meeting of the "Centre - Victoria Tea-sers," was held on September 26, at the home of Mrs. D. Cairns.

The meeting was begun in the usual manner, with the 4-H Club pledge, followed by the treasurer and secretarial reports. The roll-call was read, and the secretary and press reporter chosen — these are Cindy Cairns and Jennifer Staveley respectively.

Mrs. B. Cairns discussed the topic of the "housegoat," with Mrs. R. Cairns discussed and demonstrated the proper packing of a suitcase.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Elaine Wetherell, on October 6 from 7 to 9 in the evening.

OPENED NEW SCHOOLS

INUVIK, N. W. T. CP — Thirty-six schools opened in the Mackenzie district in September with 296 teachers-up 20 from 1967, and more than 7,000 students - up nine per cent. New schools were opened in Inuvik, 1,200 miles north of Edmonton, and at nearby Sachs Harbor.

DUTCH DELIGHTS — These two creations in brocade were designed by Dick Holthaus of Amsterdam. At left is a dress with a V-neck and at right is a heavily-brocaded blouse worn with Bermuda shorts in a similar pattern. There is such a flourishing ready-to-wear-fashion industry in Amsterdam that a group of buildings have been constructed to house the showroom and factories of individual companies. (CP Photo)

Clothing Industry Grows in Amsterdam

AMSTERDAM (CP) — There is such a flourishing ready-to-wear industry here that just last March a whole group of buildings sprang up to house it, called Confectiecentrum or Fashion Mart.

The main building has two towers, with 16 floors of some 200 showrooms for women's fashion manufacturers and 12 floors devoted to men's. Other buildings house the showrooms and factories of individual firms.

One of these is Brocker and Brocker, well known for their young, medium-priced dresses. Last February the firm introduced a new line, called Nickie Trend, to capitalize on the "total" look. They design hats, boots and accessories for the Nickie styles, to be manufactured by other firms.

The idea is that you buy the whole look as Brocker and Brocker sees it, instead of just buying the dress and adding the accessories yourself.

This reporter was invited to see the winter collection of the Nickie Trend at an Amsterdam hotel in a fast-paced cocktail-hour presentation for buyers from across The Netherlands. During the next few days the buyers would, on appointment, see the line in the showrooms in the Confectiecentrum and place their orders.

Top colors in the show were black, red, purple and gold. Plaids, leather and chain-belt accents were prominent for daytime, with a few gaucho-style pants in tweeds.

For evening wear lighted candelabra were placed along the T-shaped runway. Black was the dominant color. Velvet and crepe were popular. Several maxi-lengths as well as formal gowns were included. One floor-length flattered at elbows and been with ostrich feathers.

Another of the large buildings at Confectiecentrum was occupied by Berghaus International, with four other factories elsewhere in the city and a total production of 15,000 garments a week.

The firm sells under two brand names, Flash and Creation de Paris. The latter collection is designed in Paris and produced in Amsterdam. Their winter coat collection is being shown in six showrooms to store buyers. Plaids are important and one attractive style had one patch pocket and a cluster of pleats on the other side.

One surprising angle was that the collections being shown are for winter, only a few weeks away. But in Amsterdam, the garments are already made up and can be delivered immediately, as soon as a store buyer places an order.

In Canada, a manufacturer shows his fall-winter sample models to the buyers in early spring and then makes up the styles for shipment some months later.

The Netherlands also has several excellent haute couture designers. One of the best-known, Dick Holthaus, confesses he was "sent home" from the Beaux Arts school after only half a year because he simply couldn't sketch anything. Naturally, no one would hire him.

"I had no diploma, only good taste," he says. But he was determined to go into the fashion business so he started a hat shop with one milliner. "I batted my ideas to her; she tried to capture them: I made new suggestions," he explains. Between them they managed five hats a week.

Then 17 years ago Holthaus took the plunge and opened his own atelier, with dresses only. Two years ago he added coats, recently introduced a men's line and, this September, one for children. With the opening of the Fashion Mart, he rented a showroom for his year-old boutique collection, called Collection 17. The odd name refers to the general age group of the customers for whom he is designing. It's not a swinging young collection.

His haute couture winter collection was presented the first week in September and also included some advance styles for spring, 1969. His top colors for daytime include black, brown and grey. For evening black and matchy soft colors prevail.

Holthaus is showing a lot of pants, teamed with tunics and matching coats. For late-day he features bermuda shorts in cloque with a billowing-sleeve blouse in satin.

Since boutique collections are often in the haute couture classification and never sold as widely as is ready-to-wear the Holthaus collection for the Confectiecentrum was shown to buyers in mid-September and will be geared for next summer. Here he seems partial to culottess and shirt styles.

Eclipse of the Moon to Be Watched by Canadian Rockets

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadian scientists will use rockets launched from Nova Scotia's southeast coast to measure upper atmosphere changes during the 1970 eclipse of the moon, the National Research Council announced today.

Four Canadian-built Black Brant-1 rockets will be launched in a southerly direction from a site in the area of Port Dufferin. Rockets and payload of scientific instruments will come down about 45 miles to sea.

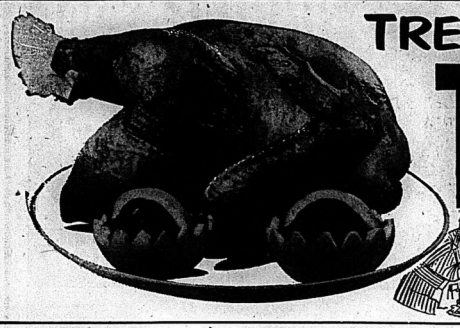
The launchings will be the first of sounding rockets fired from an eastern Canadian launch site. Other upper atmosphere research rockets are fired from NRC's research range at Churchill, Man., from Cold Lake, Alta., and from a site at Resolute on Cornwallis Islargi in the Canadian arctic.

The scientists want to know what happens to the atmosphere 100 miles up when the sun's radiation is cut off by the moon during the eclipse March 7, 1970.

The moon will block out the sun for a 75-mile-wide path covering half Nova Scotia and extending well out to sea. The eclipse shadow will move along the east coast of the province, across Cape Breton Island and on to Newfoundland.

Measurements recorded by the rockets' instrument payload will be radioed to a ground receiving and recording station at the launch site.

Additional data on radio waves will be measured at the launch site and at the Defence Research Telecommunications Establishment in Ottawa, which is roughly on the same latitude as the Port Dufferin area. This will make possible correlation of the measurements.



The first rocket will be fired six minutes before the moon begins to pass in front of the sun. Its measurements of the undisturbed daytime ionization of the upper atmosphere will provide a basis for comparison of recordings in the later three firings.

The other rockets will go aloft at six minute intervals about an hour after the first firing. By then the sun will be more than 80 per cent obscured by the moon. This is the period when maximum ionization changes are believed to occur in the upper atmosphere.

The three rockets will span the time interval just before the sun is totally obscured and when it starts to reappear. During the eclipse, the sun will be completely obscured for two minutes 20 seconds.

Dr. R. S. Rettie, head of NRC's space research facilities branch, heads a team of scientists who are in Halifax today to make arrangements for the launch site.

Work on the site will begin next summer, including installation of telephone and power lines, construction of concrete launch pads and erection of temporary building for rocket preparation, instrument checks, radio telemetry reception and launch control.

Plane and Fancy Testing

Forward fuselage section of the mammoth C-5 Galaxy transport airplane is shown being readied for static testing in specially constructed water tank at Lockheed — Georgia. When fully instrumented with some 8,000 electronic strain gauges, the tank will be closed and water will be pumped in to cover the fuselage. During testing, data from the strain gauges is monitored from a central console. (CP Photo)

Onus Likely to Be on Voter To See His Name on List

TORONTO (CP) —The Ontario legislature's select committee on election laws agreed Tuesday the voter should be made responsible for getting his name on voters' lists in provincial elections.

The 13 members of the committee agreed generally that a system by which neighbors can vouch for the eligibility of a rural resident should be eliminated and that voters should be eligible only if their names appear on a revised voters' list.

The committee will reconsider these and other proposals when they have been discussed in party caucuses and put into draft form by committee counsel D. Donald Diplock of Ottawa.

The committee was formed at the last session of the legislature to suggest revisions of provincial election law and make it confirm with provincial and municipal laws wherever possible.

In their second meeting the committee plodded through only 18 items of a 44-item agenda as political considerations split the three Liberal and two New Democratic Party members from the eight Conservatives on several controversial items.

—Changes in election procedures to make the voter responsible for his eligibility to vote, a common system of enumeration for the province and improved techniques for voter-list revisions;

—Legislation to force apartment owners to admit election enumerators in to their buildings;

Selection of a fixed day for all provincial elections, probably in the latter half of the week;

—Fixed qualifications for election officials at the riding level, including a voting-age limit for all except enumerators who would have to be at least 18;

—Elimination of penalty section of the Elections Act which lawyers have advised are ultra vires in that they are contrary to the Criminal Code;

—A full review of the Controverted Elections Act, which spells out procedures for challenging elections but which has not been used in Ontario for about 40 years.

Some preliminary proposals made by Roderick Lewis, Ontario's chief elections officer, were opposed by members from all parties.

Others, however, were supported by members of the two opposition parties but rejected by Conservatives.

The latter group included a suggestion that riding returning officers be made permanent appointees.

The eight Conservative members voted down a proposal, supported by four of the combined opposition members, that the committee should give immediate consideration to a lower minimum voting age.

The Conservative majority agreed with Syl Apps (PC—Kingston—the Islands that the voting age should be considered in the second half of the committee's study, for which a report is not due until 1970.

MDs Study Exercise Value

TORONTO (CP) — Two Toronto doctors are heading a study of post-coronary patients to determine whether a patient who has had a heart attack should exercise or relax to prevent another attack.

Dr. Roy J. Shepard, professor of applied physiology at the school of hygiene, University of Toronto, said Tuesday during the convention of the Ontario chapter of the College of Family Physicians of Canada that the question of exercise for patients after their heart attacks has not been fully answered.

To carry out the experiment, he said about 20 or 30 post-coronary patients will be asked to volunteer for an intensive study. Half would exercise and the other half, taught by a hypnotist, would try to relax.

Dr. Shepard said the studies will be a collaborative effort between his department and Dr. Terance Kavanagh, medical director of the Toronto Rehabilitation Centre.

He said the volunteers will be patients who had heart attacks at least six months before.

Dr. Shepard also said a world-wide study is being planned which will follow 1,000 people for five to 10 years. Five thousand will exercise and 5,000, who are overweight, heavy smokers and have high blood pressure, will not.

DAVID CROLL

Welfare Measures "Bankrupt"

OTTAWA (CP) — A guaranteed annual income should be studied as a way to eliminate poverty in Canada, Senator David Croll (L—Ontario) told the Senate Tuesday.

The Toronto senator told the upper chamber that present welfare measures are "bankrupt of social purposes." They were born in the depression of the '30s to serve in an emergency.

Introducing a motion to set up a Senate committee on poverty, Senator Croll said a guaranteed income could help the poor directly.

It would treat people as responsible individuals rather than as wards of the state and would provide the poor with the incentive to help themselves.

Senator Croll said the poverty committee would have to study various pilot projects in the United States and Sweden which "are trying to find out if the guaranteed income is an incentive or a crutch."

Canada had the capacity to do away with poverty but "it takes guts to grapple with this problem."

He called present welfare schemes "a hodge-podge of gaps and inadequacies."

Replaces Laurendeau

Former Newspaper Editor Co-chairman of B-B Commission

OTTAWA (CP)—Jean-Louis Gagnon, former managing editor of the Montreal French-language newspaper, La Presse, will replace Andre Laurendeau as co-chairman of the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism.

Announcement of the appointment was made in the Commons Tuesday by Prime Minister Trudeau.

Mr. Gagnon, 55, has been serving as a member of the 10-member commission. The other co-chairman is A. Davidson Dunton, president of Ottawa's Carleton University.

The commission has been without a French-speaking co-chairman since Mr. Laurendeau, editor-in-chief of Montreal Le Devoir, died last spring.

Added to the commission to take Mr. Gagnon's place is Prof. Andre Raynauld, 40, head of the University of Montreal's economics department for nine years until 1967, who has been on leave of absence with the federal finance department.

Mr. Trudeau's announcement was made in response to a question by George Hees (PC—Prince Edward-Hastings). Answering a question by Robert Thompson (PC—Red Deer), the prime minister said the commission is continuing its work under the original terms of reference.

The government had indicated that it would like to see the work terminated as soon as possible, "but every time the commission comes to us with a request for a delay, we have to decide whether we shall give it a further extention of time."

The second volume of the commission's report, dealing with education, has been expected to appear this fall. It had been scheduled for release nearly three months ago, but Mr. Laurendeau's death caused a delay.

The first volume, issued last December, recommended various moves to give French and English equal status in public affairs and in dealings between citizens and government.

An official languages bill, implementing some of the commission's recommendations, is expected to come before this session of Parliament.

Mr. Gagnon, a member of the French Canadian Academy and of the Quebec Arts Council, is a believer in the concept of Quebec as protector of French culture in North America.

During the royal commission's preliminary Canadian tour in 1964, Mr. Gagnon told an Ontario audience some French-Canadians believed all Canada must become bilingual or the country would be shattered.

In another speech that year, he said Quebec wanted nothing in confederation it couldn't earn.

Parents Say Don't, Don't Then Drive with Bald Tires

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

The fatuity and stupidity of the human race was neatly and sadly illustrated last month by Mr. Big-Brain himself — the fellow you are reading.

I was driving home from the country with my two sons, and when I garaged the car in town, the mechanic took a look at my tires and exclaimed "You know, your rubber is almost completely gone. You've been riding on bald tires for quite a time."

For nearly 300 miles, I had been clipping along at 70 mph with the boys in the back seat cautioning them not to hang their hands out of the window or engage in any other "unsafe" behavior.

And all summer long, of course, "safety" was the big watchword. Don't get in the boat without a life-preserver on. Don't bike through the village on busy weekend. Don't dive off the dock where there might be rocks in the water. Don't, don't, don't.

During the whole long admonitory period, I had never once troubled myself to inspect my tires, even though I had been driving with them more than two years. Who looks at tires until you get a flat or a blowout? A few drivers, but not the great majority of us chowderheads. We're too busy warning the children against dangers.

Yet, hardly anything they could have done all summer was potentially more fatal than driving home with me on Old Baldies at the absolute limit — and sometimes beyond it. Trust yourself to dear dad, my boys.

This inconsistency of attitude on the part of parents — vigilance over their children's activities, and negligence over their own — is in large part responsible for much of the disenchantment displayed by the younger generation, who are keen enough to recognize the discrepancy between our preachments and our practices.

Obviously, the only way to produce better children is to be better parents — not "better" in a pamby-pamby, moralistic way, but in terms of fundamental human decency, of self-honesty, or self-criticism that is at least as acute as the criticism we level at them.

The parent who drinks himself into a stupor at a party and then is "shocked" if his youngster is experimenting with marijuana has no grounds for dismay.

Most of what is called youth "revolt" and "dissent" is, in my opinion, a cry for higher standards, not a nihilistic demand for the abandonment of all standards. It is more a dissatisfaction with our slackness than resistance against our firmness — for even our so-called "firmness" is usually a double-edged weapon, composed of sharp criticism on the one side and blunted self-indulgence on the other.

Details of Development Revealed to Planners

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

Details of a professionally designed development at the west end of Belleville were revealed last night by a Toronto planner.

Plans for Hastings Park, a 450 acre subdivision in Sidney township, were outlined to Belleville and Suburban Planning Board by D. J. Cootes, a representative of The Twomin town planning firm of Marshall, Macklin and Monaghan Ltd.

Planning board gave its agreement in principle to the development, referred to by members as "imaginative" and "sophisticated."

Hallcraft Developments Ltd. has assembled a parcel of land between Avonlea and Alvondough Roads, north of Toffers' supermarket and Hastings Manor, for the planned community. Principals are the Tatham Company, Maurice Rollins and Sidney Shores Ltd.

The proposed subdivision, to be developed over a period of 10 years, will include single family dwellings, town houses and apartments,8 three schools, a ten-acre shopping centre and 29 acres of parks.

When completed, the community will house 10,500 people.

Maurice Rollins told planning board his firm was "very fortunate" to be involved in the undertaking.

"We have never been involved in anything this elaborate before," he said.

After the meeting he said the first phase of the development could not begin until late in 1969 or early in 1970, when, it is expected, city water will be available.

Phase one of Hallcraft's plans call for development of 50 acres at the south-east corner of the Hastings Park area. Row houses would form the major part of the planned construction, but single family houses and apartments would also be included. About 250 housing units would be built.

Further development of the area hinges on the provision of water and sewers.

In his presentation, Mr. Cootes suggested that Sidney township provide trunk sewers and a disposal plant for the area.

Should the Ontario Water Resources Commission refuse permission, the planner suggested that Belleville extend a trunk sewer from the present disposal plant along Bridge St. West to the development.

The 1966 report of consulting engineers Gore and Storrie gave the cost of such a trunk sewer as $1,500,000.

Assistant planning director Frank Stokmans took exception to the Bridge St. West trunk sewer suggestion.

"Because this sewer would be of use only to Sidney township and Hastings Park, the city engineer feels you should not assume Belleville will put in the services," he said.

"I knew this problem would come up in the near future when I suggested a meeting with planning board and Sidney council to discuss sewer and water services," commented Ald. E. A. Orr.

The meeting has been arranged by Sidney Reeve Ernest Kells for Oct. 15.

Mr. Rollins said later that the matter of sewer services was a question of negotiation between Sidney and Belleville and he was hopeful that an agreement could be reached to permit completion of Hastings Park within 10 years of its start.

Sidney Reeve Ernest Kells (left) looks over plans for Hastings Park with Maurice Rollins, one of the developers associated with the area's promoters, Hallcraft Developments Ltd. The proposed 450 acre subdivision will eventually house 10,500 people.

Happy to Be in the Quinte Area These Newcomers Are House Hunting

More Czech Refugees Arrive in City

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Three young refugee Czech families who hopefully chose Canada as their sanctuary and new permanent home have run into a familiar Canadian problem — the housing shortage.

Not that they have any complaints. In fact, they have nothing but happy words to say of Canada and Canadians.

But the accommodation problem is a new — and ticklish — poser for federal government officials in Belleville charged with the well being of the new immigrants.

Otherwise, the government officers have fulfilled their stewardship well.

The families, including five young children, arrived last weekend in Belleville.

Already, one is self-supporting.

Ivan Bures, 27-year-old engineering technologist and father of a 23-month-old daughter, yesterday started work as a machinist at Deloro Stellite.

Jim Stavely, the Canada Manpower officer assigned as their official shepherd, is confident of placing the other wage-earners — 30-year-old engineering technician Ivo Makros and Karel Fatrdla, 24, a communications lineman. Both are fathers of two small sons.

On their arrival Mr. Stavely boarded them at the Belvedere Hotel in downtown Belleville.

He has obviously become a reassuring figure to the refugees, regularly shuttling back and forth to the hotel to keep them informed of his progress.

A familiar figure to local employers, he has an intimate knowledge of the Quinte district and its employment opportunities.

But the most wearying stumbling block is still accommodation.

Initial settlement of the new immigrants "is going to be very difficult," he confesses. That is, unless we can get some decent accommodation."

Ivan Bures speaks four languages including Russian and unlike the many Canadians — both English and French.

His fellow Czechs are not so linguistically self - sufficinet. Ivo also speaks Esperanto — the international language — but it is an exotic accomplishment, of little use, particularly in an area like the Quinte district.

Therefore, both the Makros and Fatrdla families are anxious to stay together.

Mr. Staveley is anxious to accommodate their wish — if he can find suitable house or apartment accommodation.

Both families made a common decision to come to Canada.

They were on holidays in neighboring Austria when the Russians put the iron clamps of dictatorship to Czech freedom in late August.

They drove west — to Switzerland — and there, watching developments defined by a free press, decided not to return. They applied for certification as Canadian immigrants, received it, left their cars parked outside a hotel in Basle and took off for their new home.

Ivan's dash to freedom was slightly more dramatic. The Bures' were in Prague when the invasion came, and watched Russian tanks trundle into menacing positions behind their apartment block.

Ivan watched developments for three weeks. Then, convinced the Czech way of life had been forceably changed for the worst, took his wife and daughter to the airport. They boarded an airliner — for Vienna.

In the Austrian capital, foreign consulates of countries immediately accepting refugees were jammed with applicants.

The Buret family travelled on to Holland, where Ivan has an uncle and made application to Canadian officials there.

Why Canada?

It was one of the few countries apparently which readily responded to the plight of alienated Czechs, willing to speedily process immigration procedures, Ivan indicates.

So far, the trio of families have not been disappointed with their choice. Through Ivan, all indicated they were satisfied with the results of their arrival here and the caretaking Manpower and immigration authorities.

However, the last major hurdle has yet to be taken. The families have a new home — but they still need a house, or an apartment.

Jim Stavely says he will welcome any proposals that might solve the problem.

Chairman Is Concerned About Board Image

Chairman G. G. Bussey is concerned about Belleville and Suburban Planning Board's image.

"At a time when we are asking people to help Belleville grow, we should not be asked to act as a road block to progress," he told board members last night.

Mr. Bussey was referring to a proposed public hearing on re-zoning of the Harry Parry property on the north side of Bridge Street West at the brow of the hill.

T. E. Schwab has applied to council for the zoning change to permit him to demolish the present Murney house on the site and erect an 80 suite, 90-foot-high apartment building.

"Since the area is already zoned for apartments, must we re-zone for this building?" Mr. Bussey asked. "If we have to send out letters of notification of a special re-zoning hearing to adjacent property owners, people will object for the sake of objecting."

Ralph Plumpton objected to the idea planning board might be considered a "road block".

"Certain legal rules and procedures must be followed," he noted.

Assistant planning director Frank Stokmans told the board the apartment Mr. Schwab intends to build is larger than present zoning permits.

"Under the present by-laws, the 90-foot high building he proposes requires 75-foot side yards. There is room on the property for only 40-foot side yards," Mr. Stokmans said.

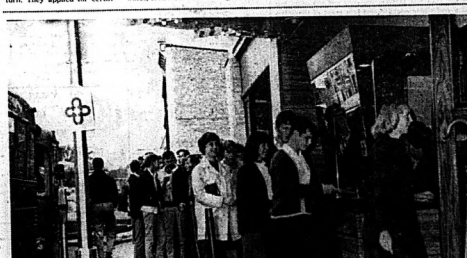
He added that the underground parking planned by Mr. Schwab was "a good feature," and would eliminate the necessity for wide side yards in his opinion.

However, a zoning change was the only legal recourse if the apartment construction was to go ahead.

Because a formal re-zoning application has not yet been submitted to the board, Ald. E. A. Orr suggested the discussion be postponed.

Mr. Stokmans told the board there was "little money left in the budget for special meetings" and suggested the hearings be held at the same time as a regular meeting.

Picton Orders $2,500 Panel



PICTON (Staff) — A new direct fire alarm panel is to be installed at the Picton fire hall.

The panel will cost $2,500 but the expenditure was felt to be necessary by Picton Town Council last night.

B. C. Hepburn, Picton Reeve, commented on the increased efficiency provided by fire panels. It was reported by James Bird, fire committee chairman, that the present panel at the fire hall was overloaded.

Installation of the new panel will not be possible before the end of the year. Cost will be added to next year's budget.

Mr. Bird meanwhile requested council to take a "new look" at the need to purchase a new fire truck. The issue came up earlier this year.

Brighton area high school students line up for special movie showing at Belle Theatre yesterday, to view film of Thomas Hardy novel. Trip was aimed at making Victorian novelist's work more vivid for students.

It's Off to Class--in Theatre

More than 200 high school students dropped classes and drove 30 miles to the movies yesterday — with the blessing of school officials.

In fact, authorities were so enthusiastic the school board even footed the transportation costs!

In actual fact, the excursion was an extension study for upper-grade Brighton-area high school students, that turned the Belle Theatre into a temporary visual-aid classroom.

What the students saw was a special matinee showing of Far From the Madding Crowd the film version of the Thomas Hardy novel.

The arrival of 240 Brighton-area students from Northumberland High School also was something of a new departure that may become standard practice says the school's English department head, Martin Halloran.

Thomas Hardy novels this year are on the curriculum for students in grade 12-13.

Yesterday's matinee showing of the filmed Hardy epic is actually part of school studies.

Hardy's Victorian prose, with pages of inaction, can be "extremely boring" for students, says Mr. Halloran.

And anyway, modern communications techniques have usurped the impact of pure prose.

The solution is to transfer the message to a different medium — movies, for instance.

The idea was tested two weeks ago when Mr. Halloran took 130 students to Stratford's Shakespearean festival.

Then came the Madding Crowd venture — and Belle Theatre manager Mrs. Stella Culhane agreed to the special showing. So did the school board.

The students paid their own admission while the board hired five buses for the trip.

Next on the list will be the filmed version of Laurence Olivier's Othello, says Mr. Halloran.

The theatre management also is co-operating in seeking out suitable upcoming movies.

Already, Mr. Halloran is eyeing chances of getting a new version of Romeo and Juliet into the area.

Aging Armstrong Quits Leafs; Says He Means It This Time

TORONTO (CP) — Right winger George Armstrong, veteran captain of Toronto Maple Leafs, retired Tuesday from the National Hockey League club for the second time.

The 36-year-old forward made the decision after skipping an afternoon practice Tuesday and failing to show for the team's annual picture taking session.

He planned to quit after the 1966-67 season but changed his mind and returned to the Maple Leafs last season.

"Quitting isn't easy," Armstrong said in an interview. "It takes guts and I hope I have enough.

"It's official as far as I'm concerned but down at the Gardens it's unofficial. They hope I might change my mind.

Armstrong said the Maple Leaf manager-coach Punch Imlach tried to talk him out of retiring during a discussion Tuesday.

"They (team officials) told me to take a couple of days off and think about it. I guess they hope I'll change my mind. I could. The easiest thing in the world to change is your mind. But right now my mind is more or less made up—I'm through."

A native of Skead, Ont., Armstrong scored 13 goals and had 21 assists in 63 games with the Leafs last season. He has 265 lifetime goals in 17 NHL seasons and 26 playoff goals.

"Punch thinks I'm crazy to quit. Maybe I am. But as far as I'm concerned I don't want to wear out my welcome at Maple Leaf Gardens, with the fans or anybody.

"Listen, I'm not looking for ink or money. Money doesn't have anything to do with this. One more year of hockey isn't going to make me a rich man, or even a poor one.

"But it gets tougher to keep going on," he said.

Mayo Kept Selection Secret For the All-Important Game

ST. LOUIS (AP) — When Mayo Smith, manager of Detroit Tigers, arrived at Busch Memorial Stadium for today's sixth game of the World Series, he knew who his starting pitcher would be. But he was the only one.

Smith was due to announce his starter when the Tigers arrived at the park and it was to be one of three hurlers—31-game winner Denny McLain, Earl Wilson or Joe Sparma.

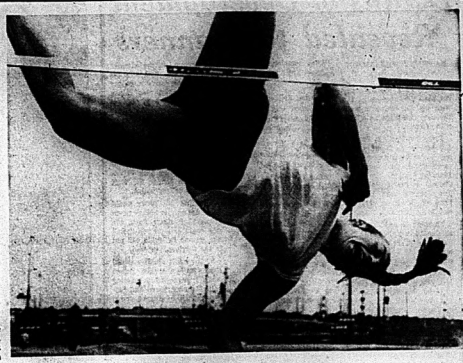
McLain, shelled in his first two Series starts, had a control-zone shot Monday to treat an ailing shoulder and pronounced himself ready after a workout in Detroit Tuesday.

Wilson, loser in the third game, is nursing a pulled hamstring muscle in his right leg. He also worked out Tuesday and reported some improvement.

Sparma, hit hard in relief in the fourth game, has spent much of the season in Smith's doghouse.

"Mayo told me earlier if Jamestone got hurt, I would be the fourth pitcher," Sparma said during the workout. "But he hasn't said anything."

The Tigers prolonged the Series with a 5-3 victory in the fifth game. Now they face another problem, even if they win today's sixth game.



In the wings for the Cardinals is Bob Gibson, the right-hander who already has beaten them twice and tied a Series record with seven consecutive victories and set another with a 17-strikeout performance in the opener.

"I don't want to pitch anymore," said Gibson, obviously hoping the Cardinals don't need a seventh game to clinch their second consecutive world championship.

Both teams went into the sixth game with two regulars in slumps which bordered on Series records. Bill Freehan, Detroit's slugging catcher, and Dal Maxvill, the Cardinals' smooth-fielding shortstop, are both 6-for-16 and closing in on the 0-for-21 frustration record set by Gil Hodges with Brooklyn Dodgers in 1952.

Lou Brock of the Cardinals has been the major thorn in the side of the Tigers. He is hitting .534 with 11 hits in 21 at bats, including two homers. He has stolen a record-tying seven bases and pledged to go for an eighth if he gets an opportunity.

The Series was following the pattern set in 1967 when St. Louis and Boston Red Sox split the first two games and then the Cards took two straight, leaving the Red Sox on the brink of elimination.

Czech Runner Describes Race for Life

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Czechoslovakia's Emil Zatopek, one of the all-time sports heroes of the Communist world, told today how he risked imprisonment and perhaps death in speaking out against the Soviet-led occupation of his country six weeks ago.

"I talked on the street corners and on television," he said. "My friends warned me of the danger — that the intruders had been instructed to shoot to kill at the rise of any demonstration.

"I was not afraid. I told my friends that the Russians were more frightened than we were. They were acting out of fear. They were afraid that their political system might fall under the weight of freedom and social progress.

Zatopek in 1952 at Helsinki captured gold medals in the 5,000 and 10,000-metre runs and the marathon — a feat never equalled. He is a guest of the International Olympic Committee at the 1968 Games here.

He and his wife, Dana, winner of the women's javelin in 1952, are reluctant to go to the Olympic Village.

"It is very bad for me," Zatopek said. "The Russians were my friends and fellow competitors in many Olympics. They come up to me and say, 'Emil, we are glad to see you. Come visit with us.'

"The Soviet track coach, Gabriel Korobkov, visits me and wants to talk. I can't say, 'go away.' I am a sportsman, I smile and try to be nice.

"One of the heads of the Soviet delegation says, 'Emil, Vladimir Kuts (famed Russian distance runner) is coming into the airport Thursday. He is most anxious to see you.' Vladimir and I are in many races together. But I cannot be seen at the airport greeting him. Then I am a collaborator."

Zatopek is a major in the Czechoslovakian Army and an important member of the Ministry. He now is bald and at 154, 20 pounds heavier than when he broke the tape at Helsinki with thousands yelling in unison: "Zato-pek! Zato-pek!"

His blue eyes welled up a bit with water as he talked of his harrowing experiences after Warsaw pact tanks rolled into Prague Aug. 21.

"I was instructed that I might be a marked man," he recalled. "I went to the home of a friend and dropped from sight for three days.

"After three days, it became obvious that there was not too much danger. The Czechs were united. 'Don't worry, Emil, a Ministry official told me, 'if the Russians try to arrest you, we will arrest them.'

"The Russians were very grim and tough at first. Then they changed. They bet their tanks and tried to be friendly. Not a single Czech picked up a weapon. It would have been useless. Our army is small. They could overpower us."

Sport Briefs

LONDON (AP) — American pro Billy Casper said Tuesday he has applied for membership in the British Professional Golfers Association and would like some time to play a whole season on the British circuit. Casper, 37-year-old former U.S. Open champion and the leading money-winner on the U.S. tour, said: "I simply like playing golf in Britain. I like the people in the game."

OTTAWA (CP) — John Diefenbaker (PC-Prince Albert) charged Tuesday that recruiting practices of the National Hockey League have all the appearances of a monopoly operating without control. He asked Health Minister John Munro in the Commons whether a three-member study group on amateur sport is taking evidence about contracts signed by young players. He described the contracts as "binding beyond anything within the legal definition of responsibility."

Look to Liske

Stamps Go Airborne In Bid for WFC Lead

CALGARY (CP) — Calgary Stampeders will rely heavily on Peter Liske's passing accuracy tonight when they attempt to regain the lead in the Western Football Conference.

Liske threw four touchdown passes and set a WFC passing record of 533 yards last week when Calgary defeated Saskatchewan Roughriders to move temporarily into first place. The Stampeders would like a comparable performance from Liske tonight in their Canadian Football League game against Montreal Alouettes.

A victory for Calgary would put the Stampeders one point ahead of Saskatchewan which moved into first place by defeating Montreal 11-7.

The Stampeders have been inactive since the Roughrider encounter, but have added a quarterback and cut a running back. Ron Vanderkelen, who played in the National Football League for five years, will be dressed as back-up to Liske. He will be designated as the 14th import, but is not expected to see any action. Bob Parenmore, who joined Calgary from the Alouettes two years ago, was cut.

The Alouettes, who cut defensive back Billy Woods Sunday, will only dress 13 imports.

Coach Kay Dalton said Tuesday that Andy Walton, a halfback activated after Wood's dismissal, has been dropped.

The coach said Walton wanted a no-cut contract for the rest of the year and pay for the game he sat out Sunday. Dalton said these terms were unacceptable.

He now is "an unemployed free-agent football player," said the coach.

The only member of the Alouettes not in good physical condition is end Roger Murphy who still favors a knee injured in training camp. But he definitely will play.

The Stampeders, also fielding a healthy team, have the most productive offence in the WFC this year with 292 points. The defence has also been the toughest, allowing only 155.

The Alouettes' offensive squad has managed only 155 points and their defence has allowed 219, both the worst in the Eastern Conference.

The weather, expected to be about 35 degrees, should take a little edge off the Calgary passing attack and slightly dull the Montreal offensive thrust, said Dalton.

Move Over Series—Hockey Days Are Here Again!

MONTREAL (CP) — With the growing pains of expansion one year behind it, the National Hockey League opens its 52nd season Friday night with an expanded 76-game schedule for each of the 12 teams in the two-division loop.

The six teams in each division play teams from their own section a total of eight times, including four times at home. They play the six teams in the other division six times, including three at home.

Last season, with a 74-game schedule, the ratio was 10-4.

As was the case last season, the 24-week schedule runs through 25 weekends, ending with 10 of the 12 teams playing Sunday, March 30.

Friday night's openers have Detroit Red Wings at Boston Bruins, St. Louis Blues at Chicago Black Hawks and Minnesota North Stars at Oakland Seals.

The other six teams swing into action Saturday and Sunday.

Last year the league added Minnesota, St. Louis, Oakland, Los Angeles Kings, Pittsburgh Penguins and Philadelphia Flyers as a Western Division.

The Hawks, Wings, Penguins, Montreal Canadiens, Toronto Maple Leafs and New York Rangers represent the established Eastern Division.

Clarence Campbell, NHL president, predicts the coming season will add stability to the sophomore division clubs.

"I'm amazed at the development of the organizations of all the new clubs after just one year of operation," Campbell says of the office personnel recruited in the new division. "They've taken hold in amazing fashion."

With the six teams of the old division playing to capacity crowds and turning away prospective customers, Campbell has his attention focused mainly on a pair of soft spots that appeared on last season's expansion terrain.

The Pittsburgh franchise now is in the hands of Don Parsons and a group of seven associates, while Peter Palmer heads a group of three at Oakland—in place of the cumbersome 53 partners of last season.

The Penguins and Seals last year finished out of the Western Division playoffs, and had difficulties at the box office—a problem Campbell feels will be overcome by solid playing performances and good promotion.

However, he doesn't think the division will be able to accumulate as good a won-lost record against the established teams as it did last season.

The newcomers won 40, lost 86 and tied 18 season games against the old division.

"They will be fortunate if they achieve as good a record this season," Campbell says. "They have sacrificed points for the opportunity to play (more games) against the old division."

Last season the old division clubs were the major drawing cards in the Western Division arenas. However, the NHL president says the early disparity in attendance tapered off toward the season's end.

"Certain rivalries were generated between the teams in the expansion cities—natural rivalries that will carry over into the coming season."

Campbell says each of the new clubs has expanded regional television coverage of its games and the added exposure will build an interest which will eventually show at the box office.

Last season two clubs—Los Angeles and Philadelphia—experienced arena difficulties. The Kings were unable to get into their new Forum until late in the season, while the Flyers were ousted from the Philadelphia Spectrum late in the season by wind damage to the roof.

There will be several innovations this season.

Each division will play for its own championship trophy over the regular season, before entering the post-season playoffs leading to the Stanley Cup.

The Eastern Division will continue to battle for the Prince of Wales Trophy as in the past, but the Western Division teams will be striving for a new award —the Clarence S. Campbell Bowl.

The format for this season's All-Star game, scheduled for Montreal Jan. 21, has also been changed.

The East will play the West, with 12 members of each division being selected by members of the news media to take part in the annual affair. In the past the selected All-Stars met the defending cup champions.

The Blake coach of last season's Canadiens before his retirement, and now an executive with the club, and Scotty Bowman of St. Louis, have agreed to be bench opponents once again. Blake's Canadiens eliminated Bowman's Blues to win the Stanley Cup last spring.

Each coach will select the remainder of the players he will use in the contest. The players will be paid for participation in the game for the first time this season with $500 going to each member of the winning team and $250 to each of the losers.

In addition to new players, the league will be graced by four fledgling coaches.

Claude Ruel, the NHL's youngest coach at 30, succeeds Blake at Montreal. Bill Gadsby will pilot Detroit and Bernie Geoffrion takes over the Rangers. Fred Glover moves into the Oakland slot, succeeding Bert Olmstead.

Geoffrion and Gadsby take over coaching positions from Emile Francis and Syd Abel at New York and Detroit respectively. Francis and Abel previously carried the dual responsibilities of coach and general manager. Both now retain only the latter position.

Flame Fright

Farmer's Daughter Carries Historic Torch

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexico's "Torch Girl" is a slim, raven-haired senorita completely awed—and a bit frightened—at being chosen as the first woman ever to light the Olympic flame.

"I could not believe it—I thought it was a big joke when they told me," Norma Enriqueta Basilio, a 20-year-old farmer's daughter from the small community of Mexicali, on the California border, said Tuesday in Spanish. She speaks no English.

Saturday, with 80,000 gathered in Olympic Stadium and millions of others watching on television, Miss Basilio will take the Torch. This signals the opening the track and run up 99 steps to put the fire to the Eternal Torch. This signal sthe opening of the 19th Olympic Games.

Mexico newspapers reported —without confirmation—that a wireless device will be strapped to her chest so that her heart beat may be amplified and heard by every pair of ears in the stands.

"I have heard that, but I don't know," Miss Basilio says. "Imagine so many people knowing what my heart is doing."

The "Torch Girl" is a member of the Mexican team, a runner and a hurdler.

Miss Basilio is a dark, svelte beauty, 5-foot-8½ inches tall and 118 pounds. One of six children, she began athletics five years ago.

"I am a farm girl," she says with a broad smile. "I pick cotton and I drive a tractor."

Crothers Eliminates Canada's '800' Hopes

MEXICO CITY (CP) — An ailing Achilles tendon has forced Bill Crothers of Markham, Ont., to withdraw from the Olympic 800 metres, leaving the Canadian men's track team apparently without an entry in the qualifying heats of the event Sunday.

The 27-year-old pharmacist said Tuesday he has not been able to get into shape in the 7,400-foot altitude of Mexico City. But Crothers said he will try for the 1,500-metre relay later next week.

Crothers won the silver medal in the 800 at the Tokyo Games four years ago. He finished second behind Peter Snell of New Zealand in a sizzling 1:45.6.

Crothers ran a mile Tuesday and later said it felt like 10.

It also was disclosed that three members of the Canadian shooting team have an eye inflammation—shotgunners Harry Willsie of Westmount, Que., and Ed Shaske of Edmonton and rifleman Rudy Schulte of Waterloo, Ont.

BILL CROTHERS

Bob Todd of Brampton, Ont., manager of the shooting team, said that with medication the ailment should clear up in "a day or two."

With the Saturday Games opening just three days away, most of the 7,200-odd athletes from 118 countries entered in the two-week Games already have arrived. Iraq pulled out of the Games earlier in the week.

It will be the biggest gathering of athletes in Olympic history, surpassing the record 5,558 from 94 countries who competed at Tokyo.

Canada's team of 144 athletes is its largest in the Games since before the Second World War.

The opening ceremony in the 80,000-seat Olympic Stadium has long been sold out. Authorities Tuesday arrested 12 persons in a campaign to stamp out scalpers who were getting up to 20 times the original prices of tickets.

Armed guards continued to maintain their security cordon around the Olympic Village. The Mexican government kept its armed vigil also in the Plaza of Three Cultures in downtown Mexico City where civil disorders last week led to scores of deaths. Armored cars guarded the area.

Sport Briefs

TORONTO (CP) — Foster Hewitt announced Tuesday veteran broadcaster Fred Sgambati will provide radio coverage of a third of Toronto Maple Leafs' Sunday night road games this season. Hewitt, who has been doing Leaf games on network radio since 1931, said he and his son Bill also will do a third each. Sgambati has been a color man on Leaf Sunday night radio broadcasts for the last two seasons.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Baltimore Clippers scored three times in the third period Tuesday night to defeat Cleveland Barons 3-1 in the opening game of the American Hockey League season.

Mikita, Hull Yet to Sign

CHICAGO (AP) —Two of the National Hockey League's top players, Bobby Hull and Stan Mikita of Chicago Black Hawks, still are unsigned as the start of the 1968-69 season approaches.

The Hawks will open Friday at home against St. Louis Blues.

Negotiations are secret, with Hull, Mikita and general manager Tommy Ivan giving few hints.

"You can say that negotiations are progressing," said a Hawks' spokesman. "All we can say now is that if Bobby and Stan are not on the ice Friday, you'll know they haven't signed."

Both players are reluctant to say much.

"We're just plugging away," said Hull. "Looks like we're making some progress."

Hull is reported seeking $100,000 a year, or at least enough to become the league's top-salaried player. Mikita, some observers say, isn't shooting quite that high. Both are negotiating for the first time in three years, their contracts for that time having expired after last season.

No one has made much of a guess that they have been receiving.

HILDA'S COLUMN

HILDA HELPS THE LOBLAW FAMILY TO SAY THANKS.

I guess everyone can find something to be thankful for this weekend. I checked around "Inside Loblaws" and came up with this special Thanksgiving list:

Al Hargreaves, Director of Advertising, is thankful for the "new look" in our advertising. (The ad you are reading right now is a pretty good example of Al's creative genius.)

Al Wallace, Director of Market Operations, is grateful to head office, warehouse and store staff who have pitched in so enthusiastically these past few weeks. (Every price change or advertised special sends them scurrying around to get organized for their customers). He's grateful for the computer that keeps track of everything, too.

George Astle, Merchandising Manager, is thankful for all the new lines he has been able to add to his buying list. (There are over 6,000 items on his shopping list now.)

Alex Agnew, Vice-President, Meat Operations, is thankful to be buying the best, naturally aged, red and blue brand meat on the market. (Alex is also responsible for making the famous Butterball turkey available to us for Thanksgiving Day. So we thank you, Alex.)

Ed Rainey, Director of Produce Operations, is thankful for the Bounties of the Harvest, and the opportunity to bring them at the peak of perfection to so many Loblaw "regulars."

Bill Miller, Manager Dairy Products, is thankful for 300,000 chickens throughout Ontario who passed up the chance to be somebody's "Thanksgiving Day" feast so they could lay farm fresh, wholesome eggs for Bill's grading and packing station.

Bill Scott, Executive Vice-President is thankful for the co-operation and patience of everyone during the hectic period of changing over to the "New Look" at Loblaws.

Mrs. Alden Kenny, the President's secretary, is thankful for the best boss in the world. (And her boss says he has the best secretary too.)

Bob McCutcheon, Superintendent of Warehousing is thankful for a day off from the round-the-clock job of getting supplies out of the warehouse and into the stores on time.

Leon Weinstein, President, is grateful to the thousands of people who have expressed their personal good wishes through letters, phone calls and in person —and who have demonstrated their encouragement by being "regulars" at Loblaws.

Happy Thanksgiving Day!

Hilda Wilson

P.S. My mother is thankful that I'm learning something about food at long last. She thought my work at Loblaws would at least teach me the prices of various items, but every time I learn a new price, Mr. Weinstein lowers it.

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League Eastern Ontario Club

QUESTION: When is the best time to travel in Ohio for viewing the leaf coloring changes?

ANSWER: The first two weeks of October should be the peak of coloration for Southern Ohio. The predominate colors will be red, yellow and orange as most of the trees are of the maple, oak, sumac and poplar varieties.

QUESTION: Is there a reciprocal agreement between Ontario and New York State by which a speeding ticket obtained in that state could be pursued in Ontario?

ANSWER: Yes, if the department of transport in Ontario receives a certificate of conviction from a New York court for speeding over 10 mph. above the speed limit, they will assess the driver the required number of demerit points. Also, if an Ontario driver is convicted of any offence in New York State, which in Ontario would mean the loss of demerit points or the suspension of his licence, he will lose his points or have his licence suspended here. This is a reciprocal arrangement.

QUESTION: We are interested in visiting the 1000 Islands Skydeck on Hill Island. Could you please tell us something about it?

ANSWER: The 1000 Islands Skydeck, located between the spans of the 1000 Island Bridge on Hill Island, is Ontario's newest and most spectacular tourist attraction. The Skydeck, 400 feet above the St. Lawrence River, is reached by express elevator. From this vantage point you can see a distance of 24 miles in any direction. High powered binoculars are available for use from the Skydeck. From the Skydeck visitors can enjoy a panoramic view of the beautiful 1000 Islands, one of nature's scenic wonders . . . that is breath taking. The Skydeck is open until the middle of October. Admission — Adults $1.25 — Children .35 cents.

QUESTION: I am driving to Mexico next month, would you please tell me what are my requirements for entry? I am a Canadian Citizen.

ANSWER: You will need a passport, smallpox certificate and a tourist card. The tourist card can be obtained at the Mexican Embassy in Ottawa by writing.

QUESTION: Is there a children's fairy land park on Hill Island, and is it free?

ANSWER: Never - Never Land, on Hill Island, features colorful reproductions of storybook characters from favourite nursery rhymes and fables in a beautiful woodland setting. Free children's rides. Open weekends to mid October. Admission .75 cents children 12 years and under .35 cents.

SCENIC HIGHWAY 33 — from Glenora to Collins Bay follows an old Indian trail, later a settler's trail. This drive, skirting Bay of Quinte and Lake Ontario, with rolling cultivated fields on one side, and homes dating back to the early 1800s is a good introduction to the county. There are picnic tables, plaques, which tell the background of the area and cairns.

Dental Procedure Criticized

TORONTO (CP) — Refusal of Ontario's Royal College of Dental Surgeons to relax admission procedures to allow qualified Czechoslovakian refugees to practice dentistry in the province was described Tuesday as "a damned foolish piece of nonsense."

The description was offered by Vernon Singer, deputy provincial Liberal leader, on learning that five Czech dentists who arrived in Toronto last month will not be able to practise in Ontario without spending two or three years in university.

"This hidebound approach by professional organizations passes all understanding," Mr. Singer said in an interview.

Mr. Singer said qualified professionals from overseas should submit to a period of familiarization so they can learn procedures unique to Canada but "this shouldn't take any great length of time."

One Czech dentist had been willing to practice in Hearst, where the town's last dentist is leaving next month. The town of 8,000 'is 40 miles northwest of Timmins.

Hearst Mayor Rene Lafontaine said Tuesday he is angry at the college's refusal to bend its rules.

"What's the difference between pulling a tooth in Europe and in Canada?" he asked in a telephone interview. "A tooth is a tooth."

Replied Dean Roy Ellis of the University of Toronto's dental school:

"The standards of dentists coming in from other countries are so varied that the college insists they obtain a North American doctor of dental surgery degree."

Meanwhile, the dentist who had been prepared to go to Hearst, 29-year-old Dr. Jan Vavra, is working here as a $75-a-week clerk.

THE BETTER HALF By Bob Barnes

"What a rough week! . . . Get out my pajamas and set the alarm for Monday."

McCarthy Adamant

NEW YORK (AP) — Senator Eugene McCarthy, in his first major political speech since losing the Democratic presidential nomination to Hubert H. Humphrey in August, declined again Tuesday night to support Humphrey's campaign.

"The call goes out for party unity, just as it did a year ago," McCarthy said. "It was not acceptable then, and it's not any more acceptable today."

The Minnesota senator spoke at a fund-raising dinner for New York Democratic senatorial candidate Paul O'Dwyer, a peace candidate who also has consistently refused support to Humphrey.

McCarthy said his efforts to change the direction of the Democratic party were not aimed at getting anybody elected.

But he said he saw "no reason why the direction of the party could not be changed with a presidential candidate this year."

Indians at Hearst Charge Discrimination

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Human Rights Commission Tuesday announced it will investigate charges that French-speaking residents of Hearst, Ont., are discriminating against Indians of the Constance Lake band.

Louis Bird, 24, a Cree, said fellow Indians from the reserve took up a collection to send him here so he could tell officials their troubles.

The Hearst sawmill, he said, pays Indians $2 an hour and brings them to work in open trucks while other employees earn $2.30 and French-Canadian workers ride in buses. Indians are given the most dangerous jobs and are not allowed to share cafeteria facilities with other workers, he said.

Indians could not go into town without "being beaten up, or thrown into jail."

In Timmins, J. R. Glover, Indian affairs department area superintendent, said an investigation was conducted "within the last six weeks" at Callstock, where most of the Indians work.

He said no discrimination was found and that all the men doing the same work were receiving the same pay.

He said none of the paybooks made any reference to whether a man was an Indian or white.

Double 'Hanging' Delayed

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau Tuesday unveiled in the concourse outside the great doors of the Commons a portrait of a continuing adversary—former Conservative prime minister John Diefenbaker.

The portrait, by Cleve Horne of Toronto, will hang in Confederation Hall in the Centre Block.

There was, in Mr. Diefenbaker's words, to have been a double hanging Tuesday along with Lester Pearson but the former PM was filling a longstanding engagement to address the Canadian Club in Toronto.

WALKER'S

Thanksgiving's

DOMINION pauses as Thanksgiving approaches, to contemplate the many blessings bestowed upon our great land, and to return our thanks for the foods it so abundantly produces, for all men to enjoy. The traditional family gathering... the love of family and friends... stand foremost in our personal listing of blessings. Indeed, as Canadians, there are many reasons to be thankful. We at Dominion are also thankful for the privilege of serving you... our friends and neighbours across Canada.

Thank you for your loyalty!

Ready to Go

The Apollo 7 astronauts, Air Force Maj. Donn F. Eisele, Navy Capt. Walter M. Schirra Jr., the command pilot, and civilian Walter Cunningham began final preparations for soaring into orbit Friday on the first U.S. three-man space mission. The earth orbit trip is scheduled to last nearly 11 days. (AP Photo)

Salute Or Fight Rescinded

WASHINGTON (AP) — A United States Army division commander's salute-or-fight order in South Vietnam has been cancelled, an army spokesman said Tuesday.

The cancellation was announced a day after Maj.-Gen. Charles P. Stone confirmed his 4th Infantry Division has such a policy.

The army spokesman said the order "has been rescinded by the 4th Infantry Division."

There was no word on who brought about the cancellation of the order providing that soldiers could be shipped to the front lines from rear-echelon jobs for not saluting officers.

Renwick Seeks Leadership Of NDP Provincial Party

TORONTO (CP) — James Renwick surprised everyone, including his wife, when he announced Tuesday he will challenge Donald MacDonald for the leadership of the Ontario New Democratic Party.

Mr. Renwick, national NDP president and legislature member for Toronto Riverdale, announced at a news conference that he would seek the leadership at the provincial party's biennial conference in Kitchener Nov. 15 to 17.

His wife, Margaret, the provincial member for Scarborough Centre, said she was as surprised as her colleagues when she heard her 51-year-old husband's announcement.

"I just had no idea. I don't even know how he found the time to think about it."

Mr. MacDonald, 53, has been leader for 15 years, succeeding E. B. Joliffe.

"If there is any feeling that the NDP leadership should be reviewed, now is the year to do it," said Mr. MacDonald in a statement.

"Within six weeks the issue will be settled and the decks cleared for a full concentration of our energies in the next three years' preparations for the 1971 election," he said.

Mr. Renwick, who will continue as national president, said he believes he could lead the party to victory in the next provincial election.

The party now has 20 of the legislature's 117 seats. The Conservatives have 69 and the Liberals have 28.

One NDP member—Walter Pitman of Peterborough, has committed himself to back Mr. MacDonald.

Five others said they favored Mr. MacDonald but all stressed they had made no decision.

William Ferrier, member for Cochrane South, said he was inclined to stay with Mr. MacDonald.

"The boys in the North have a high regard for both of them but I think the North will stick with Don," he said. "There is a feeling that Don understands the north."

Two other members, Mrs. Renwick and Dr. Morton Shulman, member for Toronto High Park, said they would support Mr. Renwick.

Tall, round-faced and scholarly with a penchant for conservative business suits, the 51-year-old corporation lawyer is the son of a white-collar railway employee. He received his education at University of Toronto Schools and Trinity College.

After obtaining his BA he got sidetracked on a course that would have led to a master's degree in philosophy before his studies were interrupted by the Second World War.

After three weeks of fighting and nine months in a prisoner-of-war camp, he resumed his education at Osgoode Hall law school, where one of his classmates was John Robarts, now Ontario's Progressive Conservative premier.

Mr. Renwick practised corporation law for 13 years with the Toronto firm of Borden, Elliot, Kelley and Palmer and later joined the law partnership of Daniel Lang, now a Liberal senator, and Roland Michener, Canada's Governor-General.

He had worked on Conservative election campaigns before joining the Lang Michener firm but a year later attended a Liberal "thinkers" conference in Kingston. The invitation came from Mitchell Sharp but he found little to his liking and before the year was out had undergone radical personal and political changes of heart.

He left his home in Toronto's exclusive Rosedale district and remarried following a divorce from his first wife. His second wife, Margaret, last year was elected New Democrat legislature member for Scarborough Centre.

He joined the NDP in 1962 and contested his first election in 1963, losing to Trade and Development Minister Stanley Randall in Toronto Don Mills riding.

Two years later he won an upset victory in a byelection in Toronto Riverdale and last year managed an equivalent upset when he won the NDP's national presidency at the party's biennial convention here.

Carriers To Get Pay

ORILLIA (CP) —Rural mail carriers who lost wages during the 22-day postal strike in the summer will be paid, Postmaster-General Eric Kierans said Tuesday.

Mr. Kierans, says in his letter all rural mail carriers and small service contractors who had contracts with the post office will receive full pay.

It's the little things like the comfortable top of the line Frigidaire equipped kitchen, (stove, double sink, built-in oven, washer and dryer, 30 cubic foot fridge and freezer) counters and exhaust fan that make this four bedroom home overlooking Quinte's Island Park worth looking into. You may see it and buy it at a discount for cash. Open to reasonable offers.

Like hitting the jackpot if you purchase this exclusive Health Food Store in Belleville. This building is a rental with lovely three bedroom living quarters and full sized basement. With a reasonable down payment you can earn a comfortable living and pay off the small balance.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — Prices were mixed in active mid-morning trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange today.

Industrials and western oils fell slightly,"but golds and base metals climbed.

Among blue-chip industrials, Imperial Oil, which reached a record high of 85¾ Tuesday, slipped ¼. Shell Oil, joint owner with Imperial and British American Oil of a well off the Arctic coast where drill results are reported promising, added ¼ to 23¼. B-A was unchanged at 47.

Victoria and Grey Trust for which an unnamed buyer is bidding for about 10 per cent of the shares outstanding, added ½ to 17½. This is the price being offered for the share block. About 8,300 shares were tendered and taken up today. The buyer says he will bid for the remainder Thursday.

Slater Steel added ¾ to 14 and Salada ¾ to 33¾. The parent company, Slater, said today it had turned down an offer from Imperial Tobacco of Montreal for its controlling interest in Salada.

Bank of Montreal added ¼ to 14⅝ while Imperial-Commerce slipped ¼ to 17⅛. The CPR lost ¼ to 69. Great West Life was up ½ to 77¼.

In base metals Denison added ¼ to 76½, Noranda ⅜ to 57¼ and Falconbridge ¼ to 90.

Golds traded lightly. Upper Canada reached a high of $2.94, up 7 cents. Camflo lost 10 cents to $4.90.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

Your birthday today: Achievement seems to be your main goal. The prerequisite will be the spending of much time alone, in meditation and planning. You must also be willing to apply a great deal of determined effort. Occasional inconvenience turns out to be well worth sacrifice. Today's natives tend to be talented in metaphysics and religion.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Be enthusiastic but not reckless! Unsettled conditions make it essential to manage joint funds conservatively. Make it a light, pleasant evening without pressure.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Resistance from your mate continues. Any trifle can be blown up to dismaying proportions. Can't it? Take the circumstances into account: make your decisions with care. Above all, don't complain!

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Express yourself modestly to avert a reaction from your fellows: Go directly to the point, having first made sure of your facts. During the day you cannot escape the ill effects of carelessness or boasting.

CANCER (June 21—July 22): Anything that relates to money can breed dissension today! The less discussion the better. Concentrate on some diversion, your hobbies, or a show.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Business improves as the day wears on. Use your utmost charm in personal relations. Confirm your emotional balance with a meditative pause from time to time.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): The time is right for consultations with specialists. Line up appointments. Tact with fellows is always a good idea; on this day it is essential!

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Financial improvement is promised (but not through speculation). There are assets you have never fully used. Now is a good time to seek them out. Use your intuition!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Cooperation begins to flow your way again. By now people have had a chance to see your earlier ideas work out in reality. Be definite: be accurate.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): New opportunity for earnings is near at hand. Consult professional advisers. Make all your proposals explicit. This requires you know what you want: if you don't, wait for another day.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Your best help is your own judgment. Friends mix things up, or go off on tangents. Your main target today is people beyond your immediate reach.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Patience comes in for further testing but is worth it. Family problems arising now are, generally, passing phases. Your future welfare, however, may depend on how you handle a home situation today.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar 20): Aside from possibly misleading information, your day is successful. The afternoon and evening develop favorable moods for planning further arrangements.

Bottle of Wine

An amateur wine maker carries away a demijohn from a Toronto grape-importing company. There are a growing number of home wine makers in Canada and grape-importing companies and wine-art clubs have opened in major cities across the country. Once the correct equipment has been purchased it is estimated that the production cost is about $2 a gallon, or about 30 cents a bottle. (CP Photo)

Bad News for Publishers

Magazine Mail Rates to Increase: Kierans

OTTAWA (CP) — Proposed wholesale increases in the mail rates for publications, hitting hardest at trade magazines, throw-away sheets and Canadian issues of foreign magazines, were placed before the Commons Tuesday night.

The bad news for publishers was set out in a bill introduced by Postmaster-General Eric Kierans and given first reading after standing vote.

The new rates will more than double some second-class rates for newspapers and periodicals.

They also will probably bump such magazines as the Canadian issues of Time and Reader's Digest from the preferred second-class category.

The bill provides that rates may be set by regulation for periodicals published in Canada with substantially the same features as a foreign issue.

In effect, this means the postmaster-general could set and change the rates at will.

A resolution preceding Mr. Kierans' bill was passed on a count of 79 to 48, with 32 Conservatives, 15 New Democrats and one Creditiste opposing all Liberals present.

Standing in the 264-seat House is: Liberal 135, Conservative 72, NDP 21, Creditiste 14, Independent 1, vacant 1.

As previously disclosed, the legislation would also raise the rate for all letters to six cents, up from the present four cents for local delivery and five cents for out-of-town mail.

It would also make a number of changes in the handling of postal contracts and would give the postmaster-general "clear authority" to establish a standing force of post office investigators.

Mail rates for dailies under the new schedule would go up to five cents a pound for the non-advertisement portion and 15 cents for the advertising portion.

At present the comparable rates are 2½ and four cents, with lower rates for dailies with circulation of less than 10,000.

For all other newspapers and magazines coming under the definition Canadian, the new rate would be five cents a pound.

Current rates range from three cents a pound for weeklies of more than 10,000 circulation to 1½ cents for those with less.

For periodicals, the rate would be 1½ cents a pound for those with circulation of more than 10,000 and 1½ cents for those under 10,000.

Rates for third-class mail, recently increased, will continue to be set by regulation.

Debate on the postal resolution occupied the full Commons sitting as opposition members complained of higher rates and decreased service.

There were also unhappy rumblings about the dropping of Saturday mail service next Feb. 1 and higher rates for newspapers and periodicals.

Liberal Ray Perrault (Burnaby-Seymour) argued on the other hand that the changes simply will put "one of the world's great postal systems" on a paying basis.

"I think it's time junk mail paid its way."

Mr. Kierans himself, opening the debate, said forecasts showed the department would have a deficit of $99,500,000 in this fiscal year with the present fees and postage rates.

Along with the higher rates, he said, the department will continue making changes to increase efficiency.

"Cutting out the fat is painful, but it is also necessary."

The postmaster-general offered a spoonful of sugar to help members swallow their medicine.

He said the post office plans to remove the eight-ounce weight limit from its "all-up" service, under which all mail is sent by air where this will speed delivery.

Reports from Biafra:

Lewis Sees Civilian Atrocities; Hospital Patients Burned

TORONTO (CP) — An Ontario legislature member now visiting Biafra says he has visited the scene of "unspeakable civilian atrocities" in the war-torn African state.

Stephen Lewis, New Democratic NDP for Scarborough West, says in a bylined story published in The Star that if genocide is defined as "the deliberate, indiscriminate killing of a people or tribe, then there is concrete evidence to be found in the terrible Nigerian-Biafran civil war."

Writing from Umuhia, Biafra, Mr. Lewis said that last Friday the village of Urualnyang at the southernmost tip of Biafra was the scene of a "dreadful massacre."

"The Biafran troops were three to four miles away, inching forward to the outskirts. Urualnyang had already changed hands three times during the course of the war.

"At approximately 11:30 a.m. more than 800 people were shot, shelled and mortared in cold blood by federal troops."

Mr. Lewis said several survivors of the attack escaped to the home of A. E. Passey, district commissioner of Annang province.

He quoted the commissioner as having given this account of the attack on the basis of the survivor's stories:

"The federal troops took the village completely by surprise. Mortar shells landed right in the centre of the market and when the shelters collapsed the zinc roofs pinned the women and children underneath.

"As the crowd scattered a Land Rover came upon the midway through the market. It had a large 106-mm. gun mounted on the back and it shot steadily, first in one direction, then the other. When it came to the end of the market it turned around and started again. . . ."

OWERRI (Reuters) — The stench of decaying flesh hung over this Nigerian town's deserted general hospital.

Nine bodies—some of them hurriedly burned—were scattered through wards and corridors.

A six-man team of international observers touring the hospital Wednesday found the scorched remains of an elderly woman beneath a barred window. She was hanging by her dress.

Other bodies on pillows, mattresses and clothing appeared to have been shot.

Two corpses lay on stretchers, their faces and torsos burned, and traces of gasoline on concrete floors beside them.

In one ward, the badly decomposed bodies of two children were on beds.

The observers, including Maj.-Gen. William A. Milroy of Kingston, Ont., and others from Britain, Ethiopia, Sweden, Poland, and the United Nations, were expected to mention the hospital in their next report on the 15-month-old civil war.

How the nine died probably will never be revealed. Federal Nigerian officers seemed to be unaware of what happened.

Federal troops captured Owerri Sept. 14; two days after Biafran forces retreated. Some observers said the bodies could not have been at the hospital for more than three weeks.

Smith Claims UK Agreement "First Prize"

GIBRALTAR (AP) — The prime ministers of Britain and Rhodesia started negotiating today after declaring uncompromising stands on Britain's demand for "unimpeded progress" toward black majority rule in Rhodesia.

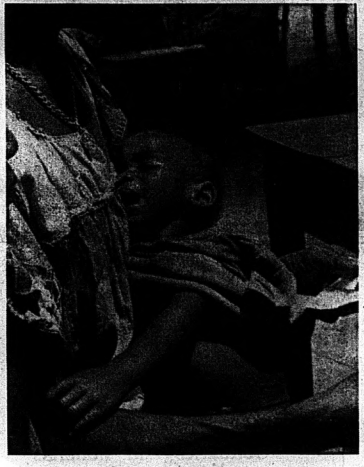
Despite the positions they outlined Wednesday, Harold Wilson of Britain and Ian Smith, head of the white-minority government in breakaway Rhodesia, both said they were hopeful for a settlement.

Smith said Wednesday that given the choice between a settlement with Britain and a breakaway state, he still considers agreement with Britain as "the first prize."

The meeting, aboard the HMS Fearless in Gibraltar harbor, is considered a last-ditch attempt to settle the three-year-old crisis.

They met for two hours Wednesday night to set the ground rules in what sides were unable to describe as anything better than "a fairly amiable" atmosphere "certainly not hostile."

These sources said two major points were expected to be raised at the outset. Both have been demanded repeatedly by Wilson and rejected by Smith.



Britain is seeking guarantee of unimpeded progress toward majority rule for Rhodesia's 4,- 250,000 black Africans, now virtually denied voting rights by a white minority of 220,000.

The British also are insisting on assurances that nothing will be written into a new Rhodesia constitution that would allow the whites to take back black rights at a later date—a so-called braking mechanism.

Smith, however, has insisted on a braking mechanism and declared that there will be no majority rule in his lifetime. Asked at a separate news conference after his arrival here if he still held these views, he replied, "very definitely."

Air Force Crews On Biafra Planes

Details On Lift Sketchy

OTTAWA (CP)—It may be several days before any Canadian aircraft takes part in the Biafra relief airlift, officials here report.

After Nigeria's surprise move in agreeing to let Canadian aircraft fly into Biafra under Red Cross markings, the government is seeking details on how the airlift will work.

Prime Minister Trudeau announced Nigeria's agreement Tuesday and later it was reported that two big Hercules air craft were tentatively scheduled to leave today.

But officials said Wednesday night a number of points still are being clarified about flights into the blockaded territory.

The Red Cross was being asked the type and location of landing fields that will be used, what unloading equipment and support staff would be needed and how the supplies would be sent to forward relief areas.

The officials said they want to be sure the airfields can handle the $2,500,000, four-engined planes which can carry up to 40 tons of supplies.

The defence department announced today that a second Hercules plane now has been placed on 48-hour standby alert for service with the International Red Cross.

The two planes are among the 10 at 425 squadron at Nanao, Alta. Red Cross markings were to be painted on the first there today.

Also unclear is whether the planes will take relief supplies from Canada when they go. The officials said as many as 33 men might have to go, along with loading and support equipment.

The planes along with any others put into the service, would carry a double crew of 14 men to cope with the high probability of disease.

Once in Nigeria they presumably would remain some time flying a shuttle service within the country, the officials said.

This Biafran baby crying in the arms of its mother is doing so because of a deficiency of protein in his diet. Nigeria has agreed to allow Canada to supply the Red Cross with planes to bring food into the beleaguered breakaway state. (CP Photo)

Department Blocks Tweed School Sale

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
(Staff Reporter)

Sale of Tweed-Hungerford High School to St. Carthagh's separate school board has been blocked by the Ontario department of education.

Fate of the 13-room secondary school rests with the Hastings County Interim School Organization Committee.

Committee members James Clarke and Frank Tate wrote to the department of education protesting the sale on the grounds of difficulties in accommodating Tweed's 235 students next year.

The decision to sell the school was reached at a meeting of the Tweed High School Board Sept. 9. Four members favored a motion that "the Tweed High School is no longer required," effective June, 1968. Two voted against the motion and one abstained.

Simon Merew, chairman of St. Carthagh's Separate School Board later said his board had offered $38,000 for the school. "If we can't buy the school we'll have to build an addition on our present school. Also, if we can't buy the school we won't offer prices 9 and 10," he added.

George Sinclair, a member of the Tweed - Hungerford High School Board said this morning his board had received a copy of a letter sent from the department of education to the St. Carthagh's board.

Canada Has Ingredients To Spawn Unrest; Munro

HAMILTON (CP) — The same conflicts that are convulsing American society can happen in Canada, Health and Welfare Minister John Munro said Wednesday night.

It is tempting but mistaken to believe the same troubles can not occur here, the 37-year-old minister told a Chamber of Commerce meeting.

"The changing conditions which have produced the American agony will surely happen here. The question is what our response to these changes will be."

Canadians have been proud of saying that they have no Negro problem, he observed.

"But we do have a Negro problem. And we also have an Indian problem and Eskimo problem and a Metis problem.

Today's Chuckle

You can never plow a field by just turning it over in your mind.

"If we continue to ignore the legitimate grievances of these groups we will be inviting the spawning of Canadian counterparts to the Black Power movement in the United States."

Student radicals, hippies, farmers' tractor demonstrations and wildcat strikes all are part of a "frustration explosion" he said.

The new role of "welfare" must be a human development role, meeting the new needs of the whole man and not just the physical man, he said.

MONTREAL (AP) — Universities should de-emphasize specialization and give vent to students' desire for general and philosophical knowledge Dr. J. A. Corry, visiting professor told a McGill University audience Wednesday. Students now are on the verge of revolt because universities have not been responsive to students' concerns, he said.

MEXICO CITY (Reuters) — Student leaders met secretly with government representatives Wednesday night in the first move to ease tensions before the opening of the Olympic Games Saturday, informed sources said today.

NEW YORK (CP) — American art collector Norton Simon paid $1,500,000 for Pierre-August Renoir's Le Pont des Arts, Paris, 1868 at an auction at the Parke-Bernet Galleries. It was the highest price ever paid for an impressionist painting.

Revolutionary and Imaginative

B. C. Considers Proposal to Insure Driver, Not Car

VICTORIA (CP) A revolutionary compulsory system of insuring the man instead of the machine was proposed Wednesday by British Columbia's royal commission on automobile insurance.

The plan would bar all civil legal actions involving car accidents under what the commission calls the "no-fault" principle. Each driver would carry his own insurance and damages to himself and his passengers would be paid from that.

There would then be no need to prove fault on the part of the other driver.

The commission also recommends abolition of the principle of one policy for one car. Every driver of that car would be required to have his own policy, the cost of which would be based on his individual driving record.

The basic policy, issued annually, would cost from $16.76 to $26.48, depending on the driver's record. It would cover the driver and his passengers for up to $20,000 for death and $50 a week for life for disability.

Coverage beyond $20,000, a policy for damage to the vehicle and third-party insurance when driving outside the province would be voluntary extras.

The commission estimates the collision section would cost about 36 per cent more than at present, but this would be more than offset by the cheaper basic policy.

It gives no figures for the extras.

Issuing the report, Attorney-General Leslie Peterson said it would require "extensive study by several branches of government before any consideration can be given to implementing it."

The attorney-general termed it "revolutionary and imaginative."

Bob Strachan, B.C. Opposition and New Democratic Party leader, said it would be wrong to make insurance compulsory and then leave private industry, rather than government, to operate it.

The report does not propose a government takeover of car insurance, unless the industry "shows a disinclination" to participate in the proposed system.

The report also suggests:

Increasing the minimum age for drivers to 18 from 16, unless the under 18s can produce a certificate of graduation from an approved driving school.

Creation of a fund that would compensate persons not covered by the basic policy, including out-of-province visitors.

All New Plaza Needs Is OMB Approval Says Elliott

The Ontario Municipal Board willing, Belleville may have a new shopping bloc by late 1969.

The forecast comes from George Elliott, Toronto manager of Cambridge Leaseholds, now awaiting an OMB hearing that would allow construction of a shopping plaza in north end Belleville.

Mr. Elliott was in Belleville today and met with two council representatives — Mayor Scott and Alderman Arthur Keegan.

His visit comes prior to a Nov. 4 OMB hearing on a city application to rezone the area for commercial construction.

The rezoning, contested by the big Towers shopping centre on the city's western outskirts, would signal as immediate start on the plaza project, says Mr. Elliott.

"We would proceed immediately . . . full speed ahead," he said.

The result would be a $2-$3-million shopping complex spread around 18½ acres.

Mr. Elliott believes it would house about 30 retail units — all competing for the business of a trading-area population of 127,000.

Mr. Elliott also took a non-committal look at another possible problem that may challenge the plaza's operations — city store hours.

Already, Belleville retailers, through downtown and suburban organizations, have left little doubt they will contest any change in present city bylaws.

Belleville regulations permit merchants to open two nights a week. The rival Towers organization, outside the city limits, opens six nights a week and on statutory holidays.

At the moment, the way Mr. Elliott shapes the problem, any changes would be a matter for tenants, leasing the plaza.

"We, as Cambridge Leaseholds, would not be the ones approaching the city. We have not — and we would not."

Mayor Scott also was forceful on the point: "Let's make that clear. Cambridge has made no approach to the city, formally or informally on store hours."

Mr. Elliott says some prospective tenants have suggested they would like store - hour changes but "that is their position, not ours."

Meantime, the major obstacle now in Belleville is the contested rezoning.

Without that development, Mr. Elliott believes, the plaza might have been in business next summer. The event delayed the project about six months.

School Sale Blocked

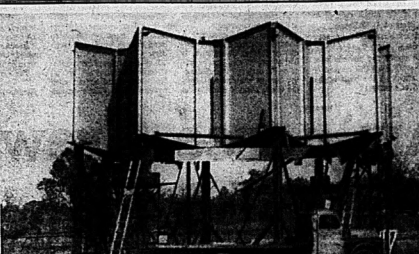
Mr. Sinclair, who chaired a school board meeting last night in the absence of chairman R. J. Hunt, said the department put responsibility for the school on the yet-to-be-elected county board.



"The tone of the letter was that since our tenure ends Dec. 31, we must hand over the entire matter to the county board," Mr. Sinclair said.

He added that the letter quoted section 38 of the Secondary Schools Act which states that a board can sell buildings and grounds, "provided the property is no longer required for high school purposes."

The letter from the department also quoted section 30 of the Act, to the effect that the board was responsible for accommodation of students.

According to information given the interim committee at its last meeting by Mr. Clarke, who is also chairman of Bay of Quinte District High School Board, the Quinte board could not accomodate the 235 Tweed students in its already overcrowded Madoc school next year.

Mr. Merwe said this morning that St. Carthagh's board had received a letter from the department of education, but he would make no comment on its contents.

Society Holds Banquet

Following a successful five day fair last August, members of the Belleville Agricultural Society along with their wives and invited guests last night enjoyed their annual fair board banquet and social evening.

The banquet, held at the Centenary Church Hall in Sidney township, was attended by approximately 125 persons who were welcomed by Fair Board president Cam Bennett and Sidney Reeve Ernest Kells, acting for county warden Calvin White.

Speaking briefly at the banquet party were Bell ville Mayor Dr. J. Russell Scott, MP Lou Potter; MPP for Prince Edward - Lennox and Phil Dodds, as district fairs director.

IN MEMORIAM

CROOK — In loving memory of a dear friend, Mrs. Mary Ellen Crook, who passed away Oct. 20, 1961.

Always a smile instead of a frown,
Always a kind word instead of a cross down.
Always true, thoughtful and kind,
Wonderful memories she left behind.
—Lovingly remembered by her friend (Woody).

DEVER — In loving memory of a dear father, John Edward Andy, who passed away October 19th, 1967.

Sadly we think of you today,
Gently we gather our treasures
Unseen, unheard, yet always near,
Still loved, still missed yet, always dear.
—Sadly remembered by son Wallace, daughter-in-law Dorothy and grandchildren Cindy and Kevan.

DEVER — In loving memory of a dear "father" Andy Dever, who passed away Oct. 19, 1966.

What memory gives to mortals,
Memory keeps.

"Hello Dear", in the same old way.
To hear your voice and see your smile.
And sit and talk with you awhile,
We were there to say goodbye.
Perhaps we were best as well,
We never could have said goodbye.
To a dad we loved so well.
We mourn for you in silence,
No eyes can see us weep,
But deep within our hearts we shed,
While others are unaware.
—Sadly missed and always remembered, daughter Barbara, son-in-law Cameron, and grandchildren Randy, Rhonda, Debbie and Angela.

DEVER — In loving memory of my dear husband John Andrew (Andy) who passed away October 19th, 1966.

It is sad to walk the road alone,
Instead of side by side,
To think of you in a moment,
Is the ways of life divide.
You gave me years of happiness,
Then came sorrow and tears,
But you left me beautiful memories,
While others are unaware.
—Sadly missed and always remembered, daughter Barbara, son-in-law Cameron, and grandchildren Randy, Rhonda, Debbie and Angela.

KISER — In loving memory of a dear husband and father George Mitchell Kiser who passed away Oct. 19, 1967.

Remembrance is a golden chain,
That death can break, but all in vain.
To have, to love, and then to part,
Is the greatest sorrow of one's heart.
The years may wipe out many things,
But this they wipe out never,
The memory of those happy days,
When we were all together,
—Sadly remembered by wife May, sons Joseph, Clarence and Allan.

STORMS — In loving memory of a dear brother, Mr. Joseph Storms, who passed away 4 years ago, Oct. 19th, 1964.

Nothing can ever take away,
The love we have for you today.
Fond memories we hold dear,
Remembrance keeps him near.
—Always remembered by sister Maudie, brother-in-law, Everton.

CARDS OF THANKS

I would like to express my sincere thanks to Dr. H. Bruce Miller, Dr. Horne, nurses and staff of the Belleville and District Hospital for their kindness and excellent care and kindness to our mother, also for cards, gifts to friends and neighbors for their many kindnesses to Archdeacon and Mrs. Connell and to Thompson Funeral Home.
—Mrs. Ivy Willsie.

I wish to express my sincere thanks and appreciation for the cards, gifts and flowers which I received for my birthday.
—Mrs. Ethel Hollingsworth, R.R.#1

We would like to take this opportunity, to thank all our family and friends for the cards, gifts and flowers received on our fifth silver anniversary. For the many wonderful gifts, also for the lovely corsage and bouquet. They were so beautifully decorated. This was a day we will remember for a long time. Thank you very much and once again we say many thanks to all.
—Reg. and Edward Fobert, Lena and Jodie Coulter.

I wish to express my deepest thanks to all my friends for the beautiful flowers, boxes of fruit, candy, cards, money and gifts and the many beautiful gifts. To Dr. R. Industrial Development

Co-operation Needed: Bradshaw

Belleville needs closer co-operation between its various civic administration groups if the city is to progress, Ray Bradshaw, Belleville and District Labor Council president said today.

A greater common effort is needed to boost city industrialization in an area where 10 per cent of the work force is unemployed, he warned.

The labor leader two days ago touched off a reaction when he charged the city's industrial commission was being steered by a small powerful group predominantly linked to the Chamber of Commerce.

His statements were angrily challenged by Fred Deacon, commission vice-chairman.

Mr. Bradshaw's statement today made only oblique reference to Tuesday's furor.

He said he agreed with Mr. Deacon that a community effort was needed to enhance industrial development.

"There is a definite need for closer communication and closer co-operation between all groups, civic bodies, boards and commissions in Belleville."

"We emphasize that the day has gone when any self - appointed group or individual, no matter how worthy their intention, will dictate policy to the people of this city."

Approximately one person in 10 in the Belleville area is unemployed, said Mr. Bradshaw.

I'd call on Mr. Deacon — and I don't care whether he represents the Industrial commission or the Chamber of Commerce — to exercise his convictions and encourage full participation and involvement from all walks of life," added the council president. "There is no room for self-interest groups."

Man Injured in Accident

PICTON (Staff) — A Picton youth is under observation in Picton Memorial Hospital following a single car accident yesterday afternoon.

A hospital spokesman said that David Manley, 16, of R. R. 2 Picton is in "good" condition.

Ontario Provincial Police said that no details were available on the accident but that the Manley vehicle suffered $600 damages.

In another accident yesterday at 3.30 p.m. a Wellington man Earl Marvin, 67 was involved in a two - car collision when he stopped for a school bus.

Obituaries and Funerals

JAMES ADAMS

The funeral for James Adams was held from the Thompson Funeral Chapel on Wednesday afternoon.

Rev. Laurie Sutherland conducted the service in the chapel and also said the graveside prayers in Belleville cemetery.

The bearers, all members of the ANAF, were George Christopher, Percy Kelly, Kenneth Williams, John Atell, Arthur Hobbs, Howard Calnan and David Kyd.

SAMUEL L. CHERRY

The funeral for Samuel L. Cherry, retired CNR engineer, was held from the Pinkston and Lascombe Funeral Home to St. Thomas' church on Wednesday morning.

Archdeacon A. S. McConnell conducted the service in the church and also said the graveside prayers at Riverside cemetery at Lindsay.

On Tuesday evening the members of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, local No. 189, held a memorial service at the Funeral Home with L. A. Daugherty, Percy Kerr and Norman Meldrum conducting the service.

The bearers were Court Miller, Thomas Stovell, Ernest Hunter, Joseph Gallagher, Robert Boyce and Arthur Doyle. At Lindsay former fellow engineers acted as bearers.

MRS. SIMON GENEREAUX

TRENTON — The funeral for Mrs. Maude (Dolly) Genereaux, formerly of the Green Acres Nursing Home, was held from the Weaver Funeral Home, Trenton, on Wednesday afternoon.

Rev. J. A. Payton conducted the service in the chapel and also the committal rites at Mount Evergreen cemetery.

The bearers were Wilfred Webb, Harold Hunt, Kenneth and James Hanrahan.

Mrs. Genereaux died in hospital on Monday after a lengthy illness. She was in her 64th year.

She was born in Trenton, a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Mountenay and lived her entire life in the Trenton district.

Surviving are four sisters, Mrs. Pearl Webb, Mrs. Mary Selwood and Mrs. Kenneth (Vera) Hanrahan, all of Trenton, Mrs. Harold (Margarete) Hunt, Carrying Place and one brother, Edward (Tom) Mountenay of Trenton.

Her husband, Simon Genereaux, died some years ago.

Development of 450 Acre 'Hastings Park' Greeted with Enthusiasm by Officials

Plans for development of the 450-acre Hastings Park residential subdivision in Sidney township at the west end of Belleville have been greeted with enthusiasm in the district.

But the project's success depends upon co-operation between the city and the township in the provision of water and sewer services.

"Sidney council is pretty well agreed that we will have to get into a costly utilities project there or lose the Hastings Park development," Reeve Ernest Kells of Sidney said this morning.

"Sidney can either provide these services itself, or reach an agreement with Belleville for extension of city services. If we do neither, we face annexation of the developed area," he warned.

Fear of annexation has colored thinking in Sidney township since the city took over parts of both Sidney and Thurlow in 1950.

"After annexation the city said it would permit no further extension of city services into the township," Reeve Kells commented. "In the last year, the city has expressed some willingness to extend services."

Sidney residents are of two minds about the situation, the reeve indicated.

"Some feel the city wants to extend services so it can later annex part of the township," he said. "Others feel that if the township finances installation of water mains and sewers and builds a disposal plant, it would all be lost eventually by annexation to the city."

"According to press releases I have read, senior city officials are saying one thing and doing another as far as co-operation with Sidney is concerned," was the curt comment of Sidney township clerk R. J. Harder.

Sidney's deputy-reeve, Jack M. Bush agreed that "there has always been a feeling that the city would annex any development area of the township".

"The provision of services, either by Sidney alone, or through agreement with Belleville, would affect only the people living in Hastings Park," he said.

"If the development is declared a water area, debentures for services would be issued, and payment on them would be made by Hastings Park residents through a tax levy," Mr. Bush added.

He said this was the method used to pay for a complete sewage treatment plant in Batawa.

The most logical solution of the utilities' problem in Mr. Bush's opinion, is extension of city services.

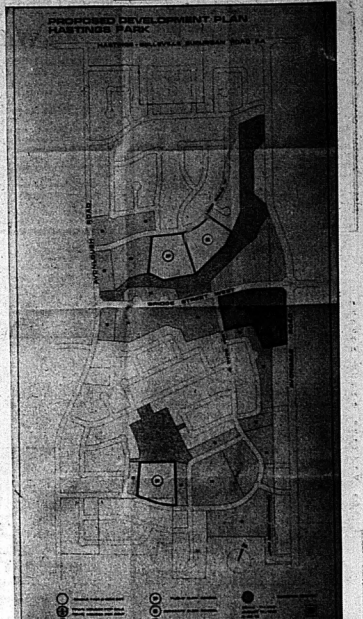
"The development is well planned and should be a profitable business," Mr. Bush continued.

He said the high residential density (31 people per acre) would offset the lack of industrial assessment in Hastings Park.

"Although this is an entirely residential development, there are 10 acres set aside for stores, and the area will be no detriment to the township," Mr. Bush said.

Gross residential density in Belleville varies from 5 people per acre in the Selina Drive area to 25 people per acre in the wartime housing area of Dundas Street and east of the hospital.

Everyone contacted this morning agreed with the Sidney township clerk's comment that "this is the best laid out subdivision plan I have ever seen."



"It is encouraging that the promoters have so much faith in the future growth of this township and the city that they are willing to invest so much in the area," said Belleville and Suburban Planning Board chairman G. G. Bussey.

Planning board Tuesday night gave agreement in principle to the development.

"This will be a shot in the arm to the whole Quinte area," commented Belleville Real Estate Board president Frank Follwell.

"The promoters are to be congratulated on their enterprise," he added, "We look forward to real co-operation between the city and the township in the provision of the necessary utilities."

"In principle, any development in the area is good," Mayor Russell Scott said. "But until I see a complete study of Hastings Park I can't comment on details."

New Subdivision Plan Presented

Ratepayers Take First Step -- Inquiry Into Council Actions

TRENTON — A meeting of 40 Murray Township ratepayers last night saw the first steps taken towards what could result in a board of Inquiry into the actions of Murray Township Council.

What initiated the proposed inquiry was a battle concerning the operation of Riverview Speedway.

Dr. Douglas Burt of Pine Acres subdivision labelled the speedway as "something which must be investigated."

"We cannot let this council operate in this manner any longer," he declared as he addressed the ratepayers. "It must be stopped."

The residents of Pine Acres are objecting to the operation of the track as it makes living conditions "intolerable" in the area.

"This council was elected by passiveness," fired Dr. Burt, "and they have taken full advantage of this as they themselves have remained passive in office."

In Dr. Burt's opinion council was "unfit for office."

Mrs. Fred Miller, a resident of Pine Acres told the gathering she had phoned Reeve Gerald Rose to ask what could be done about the race track.

"The reeve told me that nothing could be done and if I didn't like it I should pack up and move out," she stated.

With such a Reeve as this, Dr. Burt said, he had "lost all faith in council" and said he didn't see "one member who was useful" on the council.

"We must hire a lawyer and take this to Queen's Park," he said, "it is time for action."

William Ellis, spokesman for the residents of Pine Acres at Monday's meeting of council, said he had been talking to a lawyer to see just what can be done about the racetrack situation.

Both Dr. Burt and Mr. Ellis said action will be taken on both these matters at a Thursday meeting next week at the home of Dr. Burt.

"The time has stopped for talking," said Dr. Burt, "because I was at Monday's council meeting and I would have felt more at home in a POW camp."

Dr. Burt added that "I want to know who works for the council and how many are relatives."

And William Ellis best summed up the situation that has been plaguing residents of Pine Acres by saying, "we can't sleep when the races are on, we can't talk in our homes because of the noise, and we can't breathe because of the dust."

But the residents at Murray Township won't be the only ones taking action.

Cliff Stillman, co-owner of the track, said today "it depends upon what action they take, but if we have to we will go to our lawyer."

When asked if he thought the residents of Pine Acres had a legitimate complaint he said "No, I don't think so."

"I don't think the race track is too close to the subdivision. If I did I wouldn't have built it there."

So far $25,000 has been invested in the track and grandstands are planned for next year. The cost of these will be approximately $10,000.

Mr. Stillman said "there will not be much more Sunday racing this year and next year events will take place mostly on Saturday nights."

He said the track averages 2,500 spectators each race night and takes in $3,000. Of this, Mr. Stillman said, $1,800 goes into overhead and expenses.

Recreation Advisory Board Gets Committee Approval

Formation of a recreation committee advisory board to correlate recreational activities with available facilities, received approval of the city recreation - arena committee.

Formation of the advisory committee was proposed several weeks ago by Mayor Dr. J. R. Scott who stressed the need for co-ordinating all recreational groups and facilities involved in recreation.

Mayor Scott's proposal was for an advisory committee consisting of at least 24 members, including appointees from the Hastings county board of education and separate school boards, along with representatives from each of the high schools in the city and from all recreational groups.

The committee, to be appointed for 1969 and subsequent years, would be expected to meet monthly except during July and August. Chairman of the advisory committee would be the chairman of the recreation committee or a person designated by him.

Mayor Scott attended yesterday's meeting and stressed that greater usage of school recreational facilities should be sought.

He felt that under some sort of a central registry system schools or even churches could conceivably be used every night of the week by some recreational group.

Board member Alderman Donald Williams agreed there should be a study of recreational needs and available facilities but felt a committee of 24 or more members would be too unwieldy. For efficiency, he said the committee should not consist of more than 10 members.

He said he would be in favor of a workshop seminar.

Recreation committee members approved in principal with the advisory board and the special board will be set up by city council.

Rental Requests Deferred

The Belleville Recreation Committee will not approve rental receipts for the new fairgrounds recreational building until the structure has been officially accepted by the city.

Members of the committee were told yesterday by parks administrator Lorne Williams that a number of rental requests for building had been received, including a recent one from the Belleville Archery Club for use two nights per week and for a farm conference next spring.

City council was told Monday that the building had still not been officially accepted by the city although this was expected within a short time.

Until then rental requests for the structure will be filed.

Three Year Term?

A "Yes" by Belleville voters to the question of electing members of council for a three-year term starting 1969 would make sense in the circumstances outlined at council earlier this week.

The question, "are you in favor of electing the mayor and aldermen of the City of Belleville and the commissioners of the Public Utilities Commission for a term of three years in the year 1969 and for a term of two years in the year 1972 and every second year thereafter . . . " is being presented at this time as a means of bringing school board and municipal elections in line. This in turn stems from the decision of the Ontario Department of Education this year to elect county boards of education for a two-year term.

Belleville citizens are being afforded an opportunity this fall to vote on the issue. The question is at once both practical as well as political. From a practical point of view the wisdom of permitting a three year term, in the circumstances, is obvious. On the other hand, from the political standpoint, is three years too long?

These are questions the voters must decide, but it would be surprising if the people of Belleville were not to sanction such a move, especially as it is only a temporary expedient. Moreover, it would be to the city's advantage in terms of both expense and convenience.

Status of Women

Now that the Royal Commission on the Status of Women has concluded its hearings, the Canadian public scene is somewhat poorer. Until the Commission's report is released the cause of women must be left to other standard-bearers.

And standard-bearers there are. Like the ample young women who have been transfixing crowds, mostly men, in New York's financial district with their modelling capers. One of them had flown from California in an effort to prove that she had the "mostest."

California was also the scene of another headline-hitting escapade — this time by a Stockton housewife of 23. Mother of three, the eldest seven, the youngest 18 months, Sandra Wagner decided that 120 hours' work a week without pay deserved some recognition from her husband, a 40-hour a week man who naturally gets paid.

Mrs. Wagner picketed her home, inspiring mixed emotions in her husband as well as nationwide publicity. Her husband was at first amused, then angry and he decided to go fishing. Interviewed, he fired off at least one bristling observation on male-female relationships. "The best way," he said, "to cope with a woman is to ignore her." Finally, the two sat down and talked over the situation. They are likely all the wiser for their experience. Mrs. Wagner, her work stoppage over, has struck a blow for hardworking housewives everywhere.

Harking back for a moment to the status of women generally, there is one male pressure that the fair sex might cash in on public's advantage. And that is the CBC. The television people managed to find a woman commentator, Gail Scott, to sum up the commission's final hearings in Ottawa last week. However, her kind are few and fat between: The British Broadcasting Corporation on the other hand, as well as NZBC (New Zealand) are two that come to mind which employ women announcers. The Canadian system would also be enhanced if women were employed in a similar capacity.

Orator

Abba Eban, Israel's erudite foreign minister with the Churchillian touch, is remembered by many for his impressive oratory during United Nations deliberations on the Arab-Israeli war last year. Speaking recently at the same forum and on the same delicate subject of tension between Arab and Jew in the Middle East, Mr. Eban made this memorable observation: "The hour is ripe for the creative venture of peace."

Life's Like That!

Exhorting members to an all out effort in support of a new project, a local service club committee chairman described their task in a circular thus: "This is a complex, difficult, time-demanding, exasperating and highly-satisfying project." It looks as if they are going to have their hands full. But will it be exasperating . . . or highly-satisfying? Certainly it will not be both at one and the same time!

Ottawa Offbeat

Winter Works 'Out' and Lavish Decorating 'In'

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — So Energy Minister Joe Greene screams in protest that wastebaskets in his completely redecorated 12-office suite did not really cost $38 per copy.

The desks did not come at $900 each either, he proclaims in righteous indignation.

But all the rugs are new, all deep rich green pile, wall to wall.

And the phones, all new, are green too, replacing all the black ones.

The color scheme — green for Greene — was not his idea, he explains with a touching earnestness.

Some "silly secretary" just got "carried away."

And so there is poor Joe, amid the green-based splendor, trying to convince all concerned that it was just a little innocent "put-on" by one of his Girl Fridays who let interior decorating go to her head — and the taxpayers' pocket.

And anyway, what the heck, grins Joe Greene, wall-to-wall broadloom is "only good economy."

It sort of sets off the scatter rugs and all the nifty new walnut.

Well, could be. Maybe in a $12 billion national budget, 12 offices full of new rugs and drapes and desks and chairs and stuff is really a nothing.

A nothing, except that when Joe's office housekeeping comes up in the Commons, Prime Minister Trudeau shrugged and grinned, other members of the cabinet nervously twitched, refurnishing's all the rage — and Greene turned rosy red.

A nothing, except also that such luxurious comfort was not the way it used to be with Joe.

For not many in these parliamentary parts have come so far so fast.

It was little more than three years ago that Joe, a humble backbencher, was sharing a single small office — a "broom-closet," he called it — and his antiquated furniture and equipment with one secretary.

When Joe wanted a confidential moment with a fellow-MP or a constituent, the secretary had to scuttle out — usually to kill time and a few cups of coffee in the Commons cafeteria — returning, he used to chuckle, so full of brew "she gurgled and listed coming around the corridor corners."

Then he got along with an ancient typewriter he brought down from his Arnprior law office, a machine a decade or two younger, he grinned, than the mill the government gave him "which must have come over with Jacques Cartier."

Then Joe made the cabinet, and the creaking old typewriter gave way to a bank of nifty electrics.

The "broomcloset" was transformed into departmental offices on suite with a staff of six, three rubber plants, and windowsful of African violets.

And that was in addition to Joe's posh diggings in the Commons with two rooms, two secretaries, office boys and public relations whiz-kid.

How good did Joe have it, really?

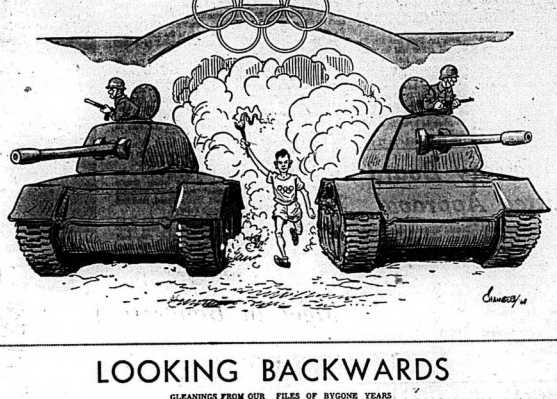
Well, down from McNabb Township, up Arnprior way in Joe's former Ottawa Valley constituency, came "14 lovely ladies," as the diminutive charmer called them, of the local Women's Institute.

They feigned the drapes, felt the rugs, eyed the new walnut and inspected the rubber plants for dust and figured Joe was doing alright.

Maybe a bit luxury-wise, they guessed, but after all Joe was "helping to run the country," and, suggested Mrs. G. Ross Campbell, their leader, entitled to a mile of comfort.

If they thought Joe was doing alright then, they should pay him another call now.

They would love those green rugs with their matching phones.



Those drapes, the slick new apostolostery desk blotter, wastebaskets which, priced at $38 or 38 cents, created such a to-do as to fill a couple of pages of the Commons Order Paper with questions about just who in the cabinet was guilty of such reckless decorating and refurnishing sprees and how much was it costing?

It may be small potatoes in the overall multi-million-dollar-financing of the federal government. But there are getting to be an awful lot of small potatoes in the government's bin.

Like the Senator who ordered his new filing cabinets be repainted because he didn't like their factory-fresh color.

Too green, they were.

Maybe he should have tried them out with Joe. They would have matched the new rugs and phones.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

October 10, 1948.

Ald. Claude D. Tice, chairman of the arena committee, was elected a director and public relations officer of the Ontario Arenas' Association at the annual meeting of the association held in Welland. Ald. Weston C. Wilbur, member of the commission was also in attendance.

The 75th Anniversary of Victoria Avenue Baptist Church was observed on Sunday in the appropriate atmosphere of Thanksgiving, with large congregations in attendance at both morning and evening services. Rev. N. S. McKechnie, D. D., a much-loved former pastor, was special speaker at the morning service.

Mrs. Anne Campbell, of Toronto, was a guest over the Thanksgiving weekend of her uncle, Scott D. Cameron, of this city.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Doyle, Bridge St. have just returned home after spending the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. H. V. Doyle at Hull, Quebec.

30 YEARS AGO

October 10, 1938.

Nina M. DiCola spent the weekend in Perth and Stanleyville.

Mrs. Lena Handley of Rochester, formerly of this city, is visiting friends here.

Mr. and Mrs. James Jervis of Ottawa spent Thanksgiving here with friends.

Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Liddle and daughter, Lois, and Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Fairman spent the weekend in Utica.

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Frawley celebrated their 55th anniversary.

40 YEARS AGO

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Rogers of Toronto are visiting the latter's cousin, Mrs. Harold Niles, Bleecker Ave.

Frank G. Cushing, barrister, has returned home after an extended visit to New York City and Washington.

Jack Ackerman was home from St. Andrew's College, Toronto, to spend the weekend with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Ackerman, Ann St.

Fred E. Seale, Dundas St., has joined the staff of the Bank of Montreal in Kingston.

50 YEARS AGO

October 10, 1918.

Everton Bell of Bath is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Hollis, Foster Ave.

Lily Craig is spending a few days with Miss DeMille, Trent Road.

Mrs. Ella M. G. Smith of Cobourg is the guest of Mrs. W. P. Ruttan in this city.

With the closing of the schools owing to the influenza epidemic, many of the boys who were engaged during the summer on farms as "soldiers of the soil", will return to farm labor. Mr. Brockel, secretary of the local YMCA, will be glad to put farmers in touch with boys who are willing to resume farm work.

Smoking on School Premises

Peterborough Examiner

Students of a Toronto suburban school deserve little support for their campaign to remove a smoking ban while on school premises. The students are attempting to drum up support among those who sympathize with pupils who have been ordered to trim their locks, sideburns and whiskers.

Smoking is banned as a health measure by the school authorities. Their decision is supported by recent medical reports. It is a sensible position for the school to take since it is not the responsibility of school authorities to make the decision as to who may or may not smoke. What if a 13-year-old is permitted to smoke at home? Should permission be granted for him to smoke at school?

Instead the decision to permit a student to smoke is one to be made by the parents and the student. However, the student cannot expect that permission to be applicable at school. The complaint that teachers are permitted to smoke in their common room is not valid since they are mature people. The further demand that common rooms be made available for students to use as smoke rooms is unreasonable because it would establish a pecking order with many non-smokers taking to the habit so that they could be with the "big men on campus".

One-two Punch in Parliament

Peterborough Examiner

Perhaps because Tory leader Robert Stanfield does not have his gift for expression, deposed Conservative chief John Diefenbaker continues to act as de facto spokesman for his party on many matters calling for comment. Provided Mr. Stanfield has no objections, this might not be a bad arrangement. In fact, it gives the Tories a one-two punch — the reasonableness of Stanfield, coupled with the thunder of Mr. Diefenbaker. It might be compared to the custom among football teams of having two quarterbacks, each with a different style of play, to keep the opposition off-stride.

Varsity 'Satire'

Bruce West in the Globe and Mail

Apologists for the absolutely revolting filth published last year in the McGill Daily about President Lyndon Johnson and the late President John Kennedy explained that it was actually an extremely clever satire and suggested they felt sorry for those of us who failed to recognize its brilliance. I have seen much more brilliant things written on washroom walls.

Later, parts of this product of a sick mind were published in the Varsity at the University of Toronto. The explanation, of course, was that it was printed as a public service, so Toronto students could see what the uproar in Montreal was all about. The action of the Varsity's editors received some criticism in the Toronto daily press. Not long after this, I was chatting with a group of students at the U of T. One of them asked me why the large Toronto newspapers were trying to interfere with the "freedom" of a university newspaper. I told him that although we would defend such a newspaper's real freedom to the utmost of our ability, we still reserved the right to criticize its bad taste.

U.S. Foreign Aid Program Bogs Down

Military Regimes Dominate Latin American Scene

By ARCH MacKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP)—Events south of the Rio Grande River foretell continuing tensions for the U.S. in its Latin American backyard.

The U.S. Congress has not helped by cutting foreign aid to the lowest level since the program began more than 20 years ago. The Alliance for Progress had been running out of steam anyway, its critics said, and the new American president will have his hands full cranking it up again.

Peru, the fourth-largest country in Latin America, with 13,000,000 people, has ended five years of democracy by another military coup.

This violates what the U.S. says is its policy of encouraging democracies.

The success of that policy can be measured by the fact that about three-quarters of Latin Americans now live under regimes controlled or directly run by the military.

Chile, Mexico, Uruguay and Venezuela are exceptions.

Peru's new rulers apparently are anti-American, intent on clamping down on U.S. petroleum investment and turning to Europe for trade and military aid.

Less cut-and-dried is the turbulence that began in Mexico City in late July and that reached a peak last week when police said at least 39 persons died.

Superficially, it was an outgrowth of one of those showdowns between students and police and troops that have characterized events in Europe and the U.S. this year.

Mexican authorities have encouraged the view that outside influences, the Communists by inference, had a large role in the troubles. The underlying causes seem to be more complex than that.

There is a temptation to believe that the Mexican authorities over-reacted to demonstrations in much the same way as Mayor Richard Daley's Chicago police and the Democratic convention business. The Olympic Games start in Mexico City Saturday.

Lingering trouble with demonstrators has been bad for the national image, officials have said.

Hence the attacks by 2,000 troops last Wednesday.

Mexico has enjoyed the greatest economic growth in Latin America and the greatest economic stability. It has an entrenched one-party system that appears to work.

The government has imposed sharp limits on the degree of American ownership in the economy and insisted, like Canada, on maintaining cool but correct relations with Premier Fidel Castro of Cuba.

The troubles really began back on July 23 when riot police broke up fights between juvenile gangs and students. But the police then went on to attack nearby trade schools and the teachers, students and janitors within.

That touched off protests, new attacks, new protests. The upshot is a firmer grip by the forces of reaction within Mexico and more smouldering resentment being driven underground.

Indian Affairs Official Comments on Situation

A government official yesterday cited other reasons for the replacement of Canadian Indians by West Indians in local apple orchards.

"I'm not sure that it's not a good sign as far as our objectives are concerned," said Robert Battle, who is responsible for the Indian relocation program within the education directorate of the department of Indian Affairs and Northern Development, Ottawa.

"Quite a few of them are finding regular jobs which makes this seasonal temporary employment in the orchards unnecessary."

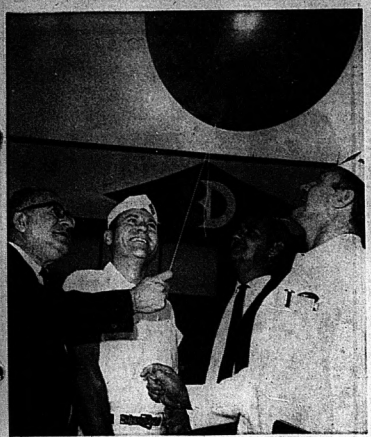
Quinte area farmers have replaced the Canadian Indians in the orchards by bringing pickers up from Jamaica, Trinidad and other Carribean Islands.

According to the farmers the reason for the switch was the unreliability of the Canadian Indians caused by drunkenness, fighting and laziness.

Mr. Battle disagreed that these were all the reasons why northern Indians were no longer coming down to work Quinte orchards.

"The availability of employment in the north has greatly improved over the past few years," said Mr. Battle.

He mentioned that the government has embarked on several programs of reforestration as well as other interior development plans that are providing jobs for the Indians closer at home.



"I doubt if they'd be in the area whether the farmers would hire them or not."

Mr. Battle said that Indians coming to the Quinte area were from around Peterborough and north of it.

"It's not typical of them to get into trouble like that. Perhaps it would be different if they were going from a hunting and fishing economy to a wage economy but they're not."

The area that is still using the Canadian Indian farm worker is the Niagara Peninsula.

James Stavely of the Canada Manpower office in Belleville says that he has heard from Manpower officials in the Niagara area that farm owners have been extremely pleased by the performance and behavior of their Canadian Indian farm workers.

Thurlow Council Changes Election, Nomination Dates

Thurlow Township Council passed a by-law at its regular monthly meeting yesterday which will move a councillor's one-year term of office to two years.

Public school board trustees will now serve a two-year term as well — the result of the department of education's decree that new county boards serve two-year terms.

The new set-up means that councillors and school board trustees will be nominated at the same meeting and elected the same day. The nominations and election will take place every two years.

Previously school board trustees were elected in a staggered manner with three being elected every year to a two-year term.

Thurlow's nomination meeting this year will be Nov. 18 at 7.30 p.m. The by-law also indicates that elections shall be every two years on the first Monday in December.

Thurlow council also passed a by-law yesterday officially appointing James A. Logue as part time building, plumbing and licence inspector for the township.

Mr. Logue is replacing Alex Beaudrie who resigned as a full-time inspector.

Mr. Logue who previously served as township constable will still maintain that position.

In other council action yesterday two members of a new organization interested in initiating a network of snowmobile trails in Hastings, V. A. McMurray and G. F. Bradley, spoke to councillors about the project.

At the Sept. meeting two councillors, Garnet Denyes and Donald McKeown, were appointed to look into the project.

Mr. Bradley, secretary-manager of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce and president of the Highlands of Hastings Tourist Association, and Mr. Murray, chairman of the committee initiating the project, came to council to explain the plan.

The project is designed to supply winter tourist trade to the county.

Defective Pipes, Appliances Cause Fires Says Poste

"Defective chimneys, fire places, smoke pipes and heating appliances are a cause of a great many fires," said fire chief Ted Poste this morning.

"I would recommend to all home owners and tenants that they have their heating systems inspected once a year before heat is required. It may save your life."

Chief Poste also cautioned homeowners to not be careless in the home with flammable materials and electricity.

"Today, with the speed up in all our activities at work and play we do not take time to think," he said.

"We may be so absorbed in our activities that we fail to think about fire and what causes fires to occur."

He warned people against using flammable materials for cleaning. "Sure, somebody told you that it would do the job, but they failed to warn you that it might cost you and your loved ones their lives."

Chief Poste added, "If the fuse in your electrical panel blows out do you replace it with a 15 ampere fuse or do you improvise the fuse so it will work?"

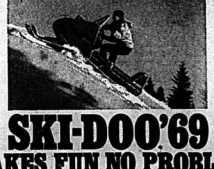
"This could cause you to become one more fire victim to be added to the year's count."

Separate Group Meet in Bancroft

The Interim Separate School Organizational Committee for Prince Edward and Hastings Counties and the District of Nipissing met last night in Bancroft Parish Hall.

Members representing 13 separate school boards received reports on the operation of the 20 schools to be run by one amalgamated board after Jan. 1.

Members decided that the administrative techniques for the take-over by the large board would be those followed in planning the amalgamation of small industrial corporations into one corporation.



R. A. Dunsmore, area superintendent for the inspectorates of Hastings 2, Northumberland 3 and Prince Edward 2, was appointed to the ISSOC secretariat. Glen Watson, superintendent of Hastings' School Area No. 2 in Bracebridge also became a member of the secretariat.

ISSOC was told that over 4,000 separate school pupils and about 203 teachers would come under the jurisdiction of the new board.

Members also learned that Whitney will be the nomination centre for North Ward for the school board elections Dec. 2. Tyendinaga Township Hall will be the nomination centre for South Hastings and Prince Edward Ward. Nomination centres for the remainder of the county wards have yet to be selected.

Centre Needs Repairs

City council this week voted to have water, kitchen sinks and a hot water tank installed in the former Centre Street Church now taken over by the city as a recreational centre for the Hillcrest area.

But yesterday it was learned the building is also in need of other costly repairs.

Needed are washrooms and toilet facilities, a holding tank, floor repairs, a complete new roof and heavy duty electric wiring — total cost approximately $3,000.

In approving the water and sink installation Monday, council directed the cost be paid out of the city recreational committee budget. But an expenditure of $3,000 wasn't anticipated and yesterday the committee was told unused budget funds would amount to only $1,300.

City manager J. R. Reynolds said that a community centres grant of 25 per cent could be expected to assist in the repairs.

Accordingly the committee authorized a contribution of $1,300 which the 25 per cent grant, was felt would be sufficient to install water, toilet facilities and the holding tank.

The balance of the work needed will be postponed until the money is available.

Alderman Arthur Keegan as member of the Hillcrest Community Centre Board said area residents had donated much volunteer labor in cleaning and painting the former church building and were now in the process of building tables and other furniture.

They are determined to make a go of this as a community centre project," he said.

"I like this wine... but it's not imported!"

What's more important—the wine inside the bottle or the label on the bottle?

Brights fine Canadian wines are the result of millions of dollars and a generation of time invested in a vast program of viniculturral improvement. This program has seen 20 outstanding Canadian wines developed that are as good as, or better than the great majority of wines imported from anywhere in the world.

If you like these wines—say so, loudly and proudly. They're just as proud of being Canadian as you are.

Try these:

- President Champagne • Canada's prize Champagne.
- President Burgundy • A great dry red table wine.
- President Sauterne • A delicate light white wine.
- President Sherry • Ideal before lunch or dinner.
- President Extra Dry • A dry white wine of quality.
- President Port • A distinguished dessert wine.

A memorable gift Introduce friends to a wine experience they will cherish: send them a President wine "cellar".

Successful Living

Talking Situation Over Helps in Marriage

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: The following is written for Betrayer and others in the same boat.

Some time ago I failed to respond to my husband's demands, and this got worse on my part and naturally got him terribly frustrated.

Well, my husband decided to have it out with me once and for all. (He tried on numerous occasions, but would not listen to my side.) This particular evening we went out with friends and he made a few out-of-turn cracks about me so I made him look like a heel.

We were no sooner home than bingo, he let me have it — in words. I may add that materially my husband has been most kind. But he, as well as other men, seemed to forget after six years of marriage that women are a fickle lot. Yes, we are. We must be wooed for the rest of our lives. No extravaganzas, but where is that love tap, that unexpected hug while doing dishes, etc?

Instead of coming home at night and beefing because junior has some toys about, or the girls are playing Barbie's — Think of all the little wife does for them and you.

Now my husband understands a woman's point of view — thank heaven! — we women folk love to be cuddled and caressed. After all, you did before you proposed; and men it is a necessary part of a woman's make-up if you want her to respond to your lovemaking.

Don't expect miracles — but it will come; give it a good try before going to someone else's arms. My husband and I wish that everyone could straighten out their troubles and be as happy as we are. — No Longer Taken For Granted.

Dear Not For Granted: So the miracle happened because you finally came to blows verbally. And you listened to each other. Congratulations!

Where there is love regard, both partners will move heaven and earth to understand each other's need. (There are books about this, and I can supply a list.)

Dear Doris: I read a letter in your column of a mother who had a grown-up son who had a reading problem. I have a nephew 21 who has a fine singing voice. I started him at singing lessons but soon stopped because he said he didn't know the words to all the songs and found it very embarrassing to try and learn them when his reading is so poor.

Is there any way I could help him without hurting his feelings? He has no other problems. He manages business transactions well, but stumbles in the case of his shyness with girls. — Auntie.

Dear Auntie: It is possible that a good tutor could work with him and greatly improve his reading ability, depends on the basic difficulty. Your source of help is the Canadian Association for Children with Learning Disabilities, 88 Eglinton East, Toronto 12, Canada. They will send you a contact for this kind of help where you are.

My 20-cent leaflet of reference material for the help of such people is in the mail to you.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Repeat Recipe for Italian Pizza

By MARY MOORE

Note From Enem: In one mail there were three requests for Italian Pizza. Although it is only a year since I first gave you this recipe I am repeating it for the benefit of our new readers and those who have lost their copy.

ANSWER: (to several readers)

GENUINE ITALIAN PIZZA (two 12")

Dough:
1 cup lukewarm water
1 teaspoon sugar
1 package granular yeast
1 teaspoon salt
¼ cup cooking or salad oil
2¼ cups sifted all-purpose flour

Topping:
1 teaspoon oregano
1 teaspoon salt
one 6-oz. can (two-thirds cup) tomato paste
½ cup water
½ pound sliced or cubed Mozzarella cheese
two-thirds pound sliced Polish sausage (or cooked pork sausage)
one-third pound sliced mushrooms (gently sauteed 3 minutes in 1 tablespoon butter)
12 sliced stuffed olives (for salad olives)
2 or 3 tablespoons chopped green pepper
2 tablespoons olive or cooking oil
2 tablespoons grated Parmesan or old Cheddar cheese

To make Pizza dough add the 1 teaspoon sugar to the 1 cup lukewarm water in large mixing bowl and sprinkle yeast over top, give it one stir and let soak for 10 minutes. Then add the salt and oil and all but ¼ cup of the flour. Mix as well as you can, then turn out on board floured with the remaining ¼ cup flour and knead 100 times. Return to greased bowl and let rise covered until doubled. Punch down, dough and with floured hands divide into two balls. Have ready two large oiled baking sheets or proper 12" pizza pans and on each press a ball of dough with palms to form a very thin uniform circle 12" in diameter, slightly thicker at edges.

To make Topping, in a little bowl mix together the oregano salt, tomato paste and water (using water to rinse out tomato paste can). Set aside. Then on each round of dough arrange all over in rings the Mozzarella cheese, then the sausage, mushrooms, green pepper and olives. They will overlap. Spoon half of the tomato sauce mixture evenly over each. Sprinkle half of the oil and half of the grated cheese over each. By this time the dough has risen a little and it is ready to be baked. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. about 25 or 30 minutes until dough is well baked on bottom, cheese is melted and top is bubbling hot. Serve hot if possible.

NOTES: 1) I liked this variation: use one small can drained sardines instead of the sausage. 2) If you use pork sausage sprinkle a little garlic salt over pizzas before baking.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Daughter: "I'm the only girl in the sixth grade who can't wear eye-makeup. All the other mothers are nicer than you."

Mother: "Well, go ahead and wear it if it's so important to you, but you're too young. You look cheap and coarse."

Some actions — such as those involving safety or morals — should be forbidden, even if "everyone else does it." Parents, however, may benefit by discussing other problems with parents of their children's friends.

Ann Landers

Two Letters Dealing With Permissiveness

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am 20 years old, in my second year at college and I am the only virgin in our crowd. I date a lot but never seem to get asked out more than three or four dates. When I say "no" they don't call me any more.

Now I've met a guy who intrigues me. He is the only fellow I've ever dated that I would like to marry. We've gone out together four times and he hasn't asked me to go to bed yet but I have a hunch the question will come up soon. Do you believe that if he does ask me, he is not the hero I've been waiting for? Should I say "yes" and take a chance that he won't drop me? Should I say "no" and hope he will respect me?? — A WHITE FLOWER IN WHITE PLAINS.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR FLOWER: When a fellow asks The Big Question it doesn't necessarily mean he is not the hero you have been waiting for. Even heroes ask. If the girl says "yes," however, he may well decide she is not the heroine he has been waiting for. Read the next letter. This lady has an important message for you:

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am 19, a sophomore in a mid-western university and considered good-looking and reasonably bright by my peers. I've been dating since I was 15 and, with boasting, I can truthfully say I've had more than my share of male attention.

All through high school I maintained top grades and top moral standards. Instead of being a Touch-Me-Not and wearing my purity like a medal I conveyed the message that I was not available as an outlet for male sexual aggressions. A few fellows let me know they were not interested in future dates unless I gave some tangible evidence that "I cared." (Translated in plain English this means "If you don't put out I am not spending any more money on you.")

During the summer, I met my ideal. We dated several times and I found myself saying "No" to others in the hope he would call. It loved being with him. On August 2nd he was leaving for his vacation. We both hated to part and sat in the park for two hours saying good night. For some mysterious reason all my modesty and good intentions vanished and I gave in. I told myself "This is love. Why did I deny him a true expression of my feelings??"

He sent a few postcards along the way but did not telephone me as I had hoped he would. Last night he returned — a changed man. He took me to supper and informed me that it would probably be our last date. These were his words: "You are not the girl I had hoped you were. Our last night together was a nightmare. You made me ashamed of myself. I could never marry you after that. I would always wonder if there had been others. This has been the greatest disappointment of my life."

So there's my story, Ann. I am trying to keep my chin up but it isn't easy. I tell myself no decent man would treat a girl this way, but deep down I know it was my decision, not his — and all the rationalization in the world doesn't make it right. — YESTERDAY'S FOOL.

U.C.W. Meetings

CENTENARY UCW

The president, Mrs. Douglas opened the October meeting by reading a "thanksgiving" poem.

Mrs. L. Pearson conducted the devotional period with an appropriate poem and the singing of a hymn. The Scripture was read by Mrs. J. Empey; her topic was a missionary reading on China. Mrs. Pearson then closed this part of the meeting with another hymn and prayer.

Several items of business were discussed, and plans were made to cater to a banquet for the Fair Board on October 9th. Mrs. F. Means conducted the study book on "the people of the Republic of China." Invitations were read to several forthcoming teas and bazaars.

The meeting closed with the serving of lunch by Mrs. G. Waite and Mrs. W. Denyes.

Physicians' Wives Meet

The regular monthly meeting of the Belleville and District Physicians' Wives Association was held recently at the home of Dr. and Mrs. J. Dolan.

During business a letter was read by the corresponding secretary Mrs. W. Totten, thanking the group for its donation to the Salvation Army's summer camp for under privileged children.

The remainder of the meeting was used for the final arrangements of the fashion show to be held next Wednesday at the Collegiate. Convenor of the show is Mrs. J. R. Scott and co-convener, Mrs. R. S. Morphy.

The meeting adjourned and refreshments were served by the hostess.

SOCIALS

Mr. Clare Oehley, National Weightlifting chairman from South Africa, with Mrs. Oehley, spent four days visiting Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Carr - Bruint while on their way to the Olympic games in Mexico where Mr. Oehley is a delegate.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Mawdsley of England spent the past week with Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Mawdsley, 2 Alfred Drive.

Bride Honored At Shower

FRANKFORD — Friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Mrs. Wayne Nelson on King St. North on Saturday evening at 8 p.m. to honor Mrs. Ron Helm of Picton at a surprise miscellaneous shower.

Pink and white streamers and white wedding bells decorated the dining room.

Mrs. Keith Bates conducted the evening's activities. A spoon race proved very successful as last unscrambled wedding word contest was won by Mrs. Thorburt Smith.

Rockdoll game concluded the program.

Mrs. Helm was called upon to open her lovely gifts. A bridal bas made out of pompoms was placed on her head.

She thanked her many friends and neighbors for the many useful gifts.

Refreshments were served by the hostess, Mrs. Nelson, assisted by co-hostesses, Mrs. Keith Helm and Mrs. Nathan Helm.

UCW Presents Fashions for the Younger Set

Three Beautiful Belles . . .

Here are just three of the beauties that were a part of the Fall Fantasy Fashion Show, held under the auspices of Unit Eight of the U.C.W. of Tabernacle Church last evening. Left is Glenda Valleau, centre, Cleyta Parry, and right is Jean Simpson.

Children do love to dress. The evidence was plainly in view at last evening's children's fashion show, presented under the auspices of the UCW at Tabernacle United Church. Fashions were from Tots 'n Teens of Belleville, and all proceeds of the event will be used towards church work.

Sixteen models took part in the show, ranging in ages from 3 to 17 years.

Providing appropriate commentary was Mrs. Hudson; additional commentary and assistance was given by Mrs. Parry. Lighting effects were made possible by Mr. Glynn Reynolds. Convener of unit sight of the UCW was Mrs. J. Cornell.

The stage was adorned in the "trappings" of autumn. Backed by a scarecrow, sporting red patch and a matching tie; pumpkins and stalks of corn made a perfect background for the "fall fantasy of fashions."

Commentator Mrs. Hudson adroitly summed up the fashion season as one of "warm, vibrant colors, with materials that are hand and machine washable, and styles that are easy and comfortable to wear."

Some of the fashions presented fell in the categories of daytime and playtime wear, fun in the snow, and outfits for these special occasions.

Every model was charming, but the younger they were the more charm they had.

One of the best examples of charm was two year old Kristin Reynolds. She captured the hearts of everyone when she appeared in a party dress of silk organdy. Her shy smile enhanced the short sleeves, long waist and outline check of her outfit.

The male models, on the other hand seemed uncomfortable and unsure. A few smiles for the audience, but the main observation could be that they were unhappy in their work.

There was a great emphasis on the nehru style, and military buttons. These dominated a number of styles. Model Jean Simpson wore a dress epitomizing this influence — featuring soft colors, nehru collar, globe buttons down the front and a medallion chain which was worn around the neckline.

Leather is "in" this season, asserted the commentator. "It not longer belongs exclusively the rugged outdoor man".

Miss Cleritha Stock modelled a beautiful leather coat, of antelope tan, full length and double breasted with a modified princess line completed by a fox fur collar.

Climax to the show was 4 lovely silver lame dress as worn by Cleyta Parry. It was of the low-waisted style, with pleats in the front of the skirt. Long sleeves and a round neck, outlined in extravagant emerald green jewelled braid was a beautiful finishing touch.

Student Power Next?

Principals' Veto Power Resented

By BARRY GRILLS
Staff Reporter

The new student parliament at Quinte Secondary School is making history as the first parliament to be elected totally by the students themselves. But . . .

. . . "If things go on the way they are there will be a student power movement," says Jim Dafoe, prime minister of Quinte's student parliament.

Despite the ground gained by Quinte with its parliament this year, Jim and other students are not happy with many of the rulings of the school.

The school's parliament is made up of 35 students and a "senate" of five teachers. The latter is actually a team of advisors, or in Jim's words, a "neutralizing force".

Each class at Quinte Secondary is represented by a "member of parliament." There is a cabinet of eight more students.

There are ministers of boys' athletics, girls athletics, social affairs, cultural affairs, and technical affairs, as well as ministers of finance, publicity and external-student affairs. Finally there is the prime minister, the leader of the opposition and the governor - general — actually the principal.

The members of parliament and the prime minister are all elected by the students.

There is an individual party election campaign in the spring from which each party — there are two parties—has three names chosen.

Any student with 60 per cent or over and with 25 supporting students may run for prime minister.

In the fall, there is a two-party election and students are asked to put their first, second, and third choices for prime minister.

This year the grey party is in power at Quinte. Before the election the campaign was climaxed by a long assembly in which each party had an equal chance to make its cabinet and its platform.

The grey party won the election and consequently the blue party is in opposition in the students parliament.

Basically the parliament takes care of student wishes by having a meeting every two weeks with a cabinet meeting during the off weeks.

Any student in the school has the option of attending a parliamentary or cabinet meeting.

If school rules come into play as the result of a "bill" being introduced, the principal (governor-general) is consulted.

So what's the matter with that?

According to Jim Dafoe and Henry Kafka, last year's prime minister and this year's minister of publicity, the principal's power of veto is the problem.

"He can look at all the bills and the platforms and he has the power to have sections removed," says Jim.

Indirectly the students are against the school boards power of veto.

Says Henry Kafka, "The principal has a job to do. Sometimes the principal is governed by the school board."

Jim and Henry will admit that the principal's veto has not been officially used since 1964, but/. . .

. . . Jim Dafoe remembers an example of his authority being used.

According to Jim a school club once had the opportunity to go to Quebec for three days and "the principal said no".

He consulted the board.

It is 15 cents for eight ounces. We're paying 45 cents for meals that aren't nutritious."

Jim Dafoe frowns and lowers his voice. "Meals had better be better or we'll support a boycott if things are not changed."

Other beefs with the students include the fact, that that grade 13 students are not allowed to smoke in their lounge and that no one is allowed to chew gum.

"If you want to chew gum — chew gum," says Jim.

Concerning the veto again, Jim believes a responsible prime minister of the students parliament should have the power of veto.

Would all the students support a student power movement at Quinte and in Belleville?

"I'm not too sure," says Jim.

Henry says, "They're too used to teachers standing over them."

Jim Dafoe announced, "We are trying to get the support of all high school students in the area who feel the way that Quinte students do."

Informal Debate

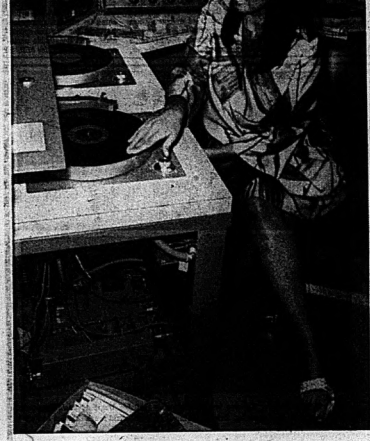
Jim Dafoe, prime minister, and Henry Kafka, minister of publicity, in Quinte's student parliament talk things over in the school's corridors between classes.

At Quinte

Fines Raise Funds for Club

By SUE BOARDMAN

Another week has flown by and as usual the different clubs and their members have been working quite hard at Quinte.



The Girls Athletic Association has been busy the last few weeks thinking up ways to make your extra change theirs. They've come up with some good solutions. Now there is no excuse for not having a gym suit in Phys. Ed., because you can now rent them for five cents a day. Articles of clothing or jewellery lost in the gym or change rooms will be turned into the lost and found and may be obtained by its owner for the cost of one thin dime. They are considering selling buttons and beanies with Quinte slogans written on them. If you like this idea, let your form rep. know, and this idea will be carried out.

Yesterday the track was officially opened, and its first races run. The completion of this track as you may remember, was our centennial project, and, with help from the school board, we managed to raise the money for it. The school was let out at 3 p.m. so that the students could watch this ceremony. Mr. Clarke, board chairman, spoke to us.

Quinte has been quite active in sports this past week too. Last Friday, the school was let out early, and after a short pep rally in the gym, the students went out to watch the juniors and seniors play football against BCI. Our junior and senior soccer teams have been on the go, and doing quite well.

This week girls' basketball starts, and I'm SURE it will be a good season for both the junior and senior teams and their coaches, Miss Frost and Mrs. Burris.

Tomorrow night, Quinte is having another one of her fantastic dances. This one will be sponsored by the Keyettes and is their initiation dance; that is going to be good for laughs, you'll see what I mean if you're there. The music will be by the Sands of Time from 8.30 'til 11.30.

Campaign Ends At Nicholson

By JUDY SCHRIEDER

V-I-C-T-O-R-Y: Last week Nicholson Seniors scored an outstanding victory over Albert College, the defending COSSA football champions. Having suffered defeat at the hands of Albert paces, N. C. C.'s determination resulted in a final score of 13-6.

Albert seemingly sought revenge as their senior girls defeated Nicholson 25-24 in the first scheduled game of the basketball season. NCC played hard and kept Albert on her toes throughout the whole game. Anyway, Nicholson has already left its mark on the portals of Albert College.

Nicholson's magazine campaign has come to an end. No more this year will our fair city see enthusiastic students, braving all kinds of weather for the sake of obtaining one subscription. Although we fell short of our goal, sales exceeded last year's by over $200.

Last week, on a day dubbed "weigh and pay day", the room bringing in the highest amount of subscriptions was awarded the number of chocolate bars equal to the weight in pounds of their teacher. The students of 10-C captured this prize.

This Friday, the graduates of NCC will return to their Alma Mater to receive their diplomas and attend the At Home which is to be held after the exercises. Since this affair is the biggest event of the Nicholson school year, next week's entire column will be dedicated to it.

BCI Plans Newspaper

By ANN McCORQUODALE

Some time in the next few weeks, BCI's newspaper will be published. There will be a contest among the students (and maybe teachers) to see who can invent the most original name. So let's put all our rusty thinkers to work and see who wins the grand prize.

Friday evening students' council sponsored a football victory dance featuring the Wendigo, a relatively new group but with good sound. The dance was an outstanding success. The Keyettes deluded their services in selling drinks and the prefects kept an eye on things but the students were well-behaved as usual. From last Friday's success, it looks as though school dances are back to stay.

If you were downtown last Thursday evening, you probably saw a group of weird looking boys, some in burlap bags covered with peanut butter and other equally delightful odds and ends, prancing and cavorting along the street. Perhaps you saw them as they vigorously performed their prescribed stage and pep talk ups — with a raw egg in their mouths. This and other equally hilarious pranks comprised the annual initiation rites of our Key Club. Honestly, what some people will go through to join this club.

Thursday evening, both girls' basketball teams defeated Moire. Let's hope they continue this way for the rest of the season.

Coalition Rules at CSS

By CHRIS PALUMBO

The elections are over. The results tabulated and CSS has now not one, but two Prime Ministers. The Sept. 25 election resulted in a deadlock, from which a coalition government was formed.

Jim Fulfield of the Gold Party and Jim Howard of the Green Party are our Prime Ministers and will select their cabinet from both parties.

CSS students participated in the Belleville Theatre Guild production of Mary, Mary. Our students were ushers, usherettes, stage hands, lighting and technicians. Mr. Holland, head of the English department, was house manager.

CSS plans a kick-off dance soon, featuring Belleville's own Sands of Time. Definite plans will be announced soon.

CSS is fortunate this year to have the opportunity of using the guidance overlay system. This replaces the one period a week previously held in grades 9 and 12 for guidance, with blocks of periods at critical times in the year.

The new system also introduces guidance as a class to grades 10 and 11. The regular periods taken by a class are replaced at various times in the year by guidance. It is important for students under this system to take part in these classes since the idea is mainly to answer questions posed by the students and also to conduct discussions pertaining to the students' future and present progress.

Club Marks Birthday

The Key Club of Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School came of age this month.

In an impressive ceremony Saturday night, the club marked its 21st anniversary.

At a reception at the Kiwanis Centre, Key Clubbers from as far away as Cornwall met Jack Kuntze, first president of BCI Key Club in 1947. More than 50 people attended a banquet following the reception, when former Key Clubber and Kiwanis advisor Donald G. Rose was speaker.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard E. Kuntze, parents of the charter president, presented the BCI club with a framed photograph of the original members.

Rain Plagues Prairie Farmers

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Frustrated by a cold, wet autumn, many Prairie wheat farmers are running out of time in which to bring in the 1968 crop before the first heavy snowfall.

Some farmers are waiting for a break in the weather but others are threshing wet grain rather than risk having their crop snowed under.

A survey by The Canadian Press shows Alberta the hardest hit.

A mid-September estimate of yield by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics placed the 1968 Prairie wheat crop at 607,000,000 bushels, about 33,000,000 bushels or six per cent more than the 1967 crop.

But it is unlikely that a full harvest will be realized.

A recent Alberta wheat pool estimate says 70 per cent of the province's wheat is still in the field. Saskatchewan and Manitoba have 60 and 70 per cent of their respective crops harvested.

An official of the Saskatchewan wheat pool said of the farmers:

"They've got the jitters and I think they're going to get that crop in by hook or by crook."

Paul Babey, president of the Alberta Farmer's Union said that in many instances the Alberta harvest has become a "salvage operation."

He said wheat in some parts of Alberta is "dripping wet" and, barring an early break in the weather, harvesting is almost at an end.

The department of agriculture in Manitoba reports that some areas need at least three weeks of ideal weather to complete a proper harvest.

R. L. Kristjanson, Canadian Wheat Board commissioner, said terminals will probably give priority to damp grain.

The commissioner also said the carryover of grain and the grain handlers' strike have not affected storage at the Lakehead. Much grain has been shipped out since the end of the strike, leaving space in the interior terminals.

Labor Saving Operation Offsets Increased Business

TORONTO (CP) — A federal government study indicates that more labor-saving machines and an upgrading of the productivity of present personnel is contributing to the slow increase of employment opportunities in Ontario.

The study of the Ontario manpower situation, conducted by the department of manpower and immigration, says that although business expects rising sales and higher profits in the second half of 1968, work forces will remain at their present level.

"In order to remain competitive in the face of rising labor costs, many companies . . . will accelerate the substitution of labor-saving machinery for manpower," says the report, made public Wednesday.

"Additional recruitment will be kept to a minimum, with emphasis on selective hiring of highly qualified, experienced staff and on upgrading the productivity of their present personnel.

Despite a quickening of business activity in the province, there will be only a moderate fall in the unemployment rate, the report says.

The report predicts that about 118,000, or four per cent of the labor force, will be unemployed in the second half of 1968. This is less than the 121,000 jobless in the first half, but 18,000 more than the jobless total for the same period last year.

The report says the decline in job opportunities stems in part from continued large wage demands and labor costs rising more rapidly than productivity.

The analysis attributes the pressure to two pattern-setting strike settlements earlier in the year—one at Chrysler Canada Ltd., and the other for seaway employees.

The United Auto Workers union in February won an agreement from Chrysler to retain Canadian work practices while raising wage levels, in stages, to full parity with U.S. workers by June 1, 1970.

In July, after a 24-day strike, the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority agreed to give its 1,200 workers a 19-per-cent pay increase over three years.

The report says both settlements had exerted pressure on later labor disputes.

Coup or No Coup? That Is Question

SAIGON (CP) — A communique issued today by President Nguyen Van Thieu denied that a South Vietnamese troop alert Wednesday was called to ward off an attempted coup.

Meanwhile, government spokesmen contradicted each other as to whether there had been a coup attempt on the Thieu government.

"You can say that a government spokesman confirmed that there was an attempted coup but that it failed," said an official spokesman.

But a spokesman for Thieu, Col. Tran Van Lam, insisted that the alert was a "normal precaution" and was not connected with an attempt against the government. Lam also denied reports that there had been several arrests.

The communique from the president's office also denied that army officers or members of the former Can Lao party, which supported the late president Ngo Dinh Diem, were arrested.

A highly-reliable government informant, who reported a thwarted coup attempt, said again: "There have been arrests."

The source, who is in a position to know, said more arrests, both civilian and military, could be expected in the next two days.

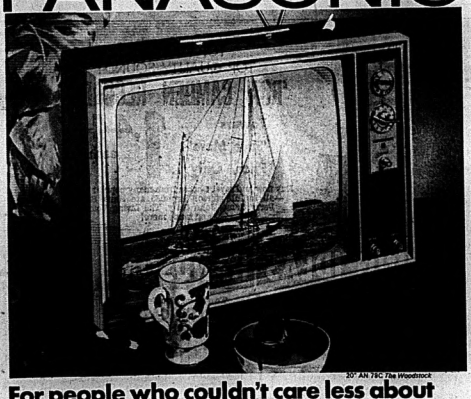
Sorry I'm Closed Bank Robber Told

HAMILTON (CP) — A cool bank clerk foiled a bandit Wednesday by telling him: "Sorry, I'm closed." The man walked across the street and held up another bank.

The bandit walked into a Bank of Nova Scotia on the Hamilton mountain and handed a note to Mrs. Marion Smith stating: "I have a gun. If you want to live, give me all your $5s, $10s and $20s."



"I couldn't see any gun," Mrs. Smith said later. "So I put my closed sign in front of him and just said: 'Sorry, I'm closed.'"

The bandit left the bank, walked 20 yards to the Bank of Montreal and handed a similar note to clerk Debbie Beamer. She handed over $2,000.

However, the manager and accountant of the Bank of Nova Scotia branch, O. M. Baker and Fred Pilcher, bars into the Bank of Montreal and grabbed the man as he was about to leave and wrestled him into the manager's office.

Police arrested a man. He was identified as a patient at the Ontario Psychiatric Hospital here and returned to the hospital. Police said he would not be charged.

For people who couldn't care less about color TV-but want the best black and white money can buy.

So you're not going to buy color TV. Pity. All is not lost however. For us as well as you. In addition to making the finest color sets on the market, Panasonic makes the best black and white TV your money can buy. And because most people want a portable, we play things your way by offering a complete line of portables. 12 different models in all.

The choice starts with The Woodstock, one of our deluxe 20" portables with a furniture-styled Walnutgrain cabinet and the kind of precision circuitry that's made Panasonic famous. All-Channel VHF/UHF tuning means The Woodstock will never become obsolete and "set-and-forget" fine tuning on VHF channels means once a station's tuned, it stays tuned. If our big set is too big, Panasonic gives you eleven other choices. Like The 16" Porchester—weighs only 21 lbs. so, without feeling guilty, you can ask your wife, while she's up, to bring it out to the patio. Or The Valley View—our dandy, fully transistorized 9" portable with its own built-in battery. You can tote The Valley View anywhere. And overnight it'll automatically recharge itself on household current—ready for the beach, car or boat next day.

But rather than us tell you Panasonic makes the best TV set you can buy, see your local dealer. He's got the proof. In black and white.

Chretien Asks Changes In Text Book References

NORTH BATTLEFORD, Sask. (CP) — Indian Affairs Minister Chretien told a group of Indian mothers Wednesday night he has written to the 10 provincial ministers of education asking them to change "unfortunate references" to Indians in history books.

Mr. Chretien was replying to a question from one mother who criticized school textbooks for calling Indians savages.

He said French Canadians also got rough treatment in some history books and he sympathized with the mother's complaint.

"I have written to all of the education ministers, telling them the unfortunate references to Indians should be corrected," the minister said.

Speaking to the Homemakers' Club of Saskatchewan, Mr. Chretien said he is considering proposals for setting aside funds for industrial development of reserves.

He also renewed his promise to consult Indians on major policy and key legislation affecting them. But he said he would not ask Indians to make decisions which were the government's responsibility and said some decisions were his alone to make.

"If I do things which are clearly my responsibility, I must take the blame if I am wrong.

"This includes decisions about promotions, appointments and the basic structure of the department."

Opposition MPs and others outside the Commons took issue with Mr. Chretien last week for making changes in the department without first telling the Indians.

JEAN CHRETIEN

In a question period following his speech, Mr. Chretien admitted he and minister-without-portfolio Robert Andras had had "a difference" about the need of consulting Indians on the changes.

But Mr. Andras agrees now my decision was right."

The women, from most reserves in the province, also complained about the small number of Indians working in the Indian affairs department. And they said few women had a chance to air their opinions at consultation meetings on proposed Indian Act changes.

Mr. Chretien agreed the department did not employ enough Indians and added this was an area of great concern to him. He also said a second round of consultations on the Indian Act changes will be held after a bill has been drafted. He hoped the women would at least present briefs at this second round.

He also assured the meeting that the Indian Claims Commission will be in operation within six months and said he is convinced from talking with Health Minister Munroe there will be no cutbacks in Indian health services.

Apollo 7 Countdown Begins

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — With green lights flashing for all aspects of the flight, the final countdown begins today for Friday's scheduled launching of the three Apollo 7 astronauts on an 11-day space journey.

The 300-man launch crew planned to start the critical final hours of the count by feeding electrical power to a 224-foot-high Saturn rocket.

As the launch team prepared the rocket and the Apollo 7 spaceship, navy Capt. Walter M. Schirra Jr., Air Force Maj. Donn F. Eisele and civilian astronaut Walter Cunningham expected to relax after a morning meeting in their quarters with key project officials.

The space trio is to ride the Saturn rocket into orbit at 11 a.m. EDT Friday on a mission that could put the United States back on course toward its goal of a manned lunar landing next year.

If Apollo 7 demonstrates that the spaceship can function long enough for a 500,000-mile round trip to the moon, the Apollo 8 crew may attempt to orbit the moon in December.

Separatist Leader Convicted

MONTREAL (CP) — Charles Gagnon, avowed member of the front de liberation Quebecois, was sentenced Wednesday to two years in penitentiary on a charge of conspiring with six other persons to commit a robbery in August, 1966.

Gagnon, 29, told Mr. Justice Antoine Lacoursiere before sentence was passed that he would not plead for clemency since he considered the assizes jury verdict unjust, but he would appeal.

It was Gagnon's second trial this year, the first ending in a hung jury June 7.

A further trial for Gagnon on a murder charge is scheduled for November in connection with the May, 1966, death of a woman when a time-bomb exploded in a northend shoe factory office.

Scouting activities

2nd BELLEVILLE LA

The 2nd Belleville Ladies' Aux. held the first meeting of the season in Christ Church Parish Hall with president Marian Madden presiding.

Mrs. Madden gave an outline of the past season G and A events. She also thanked all the women for their cooperation for another successful year.

Mrs. Madden gave in her resignation, as she is moving to the Foshore area. The group was also informed that Scouter Ed Ingraham was leaving the city, to move to Ottawa.

The meeting was brought to a close with Mrs. Ingreham serving lunch.

1ST CUB PACK

TWEED — The Tweed 1st Cub Pack has once again been organized under the leadership of Jack McMurray, Wayne Brennan, Brian Jones and Frank Cole.

To date, 55 boys have shown an interest in joining the Cub pack which includes ages 8 to 10 years. Only 36 boys will be accepted for cubs, unfortunately several boys will not be able to participate in Scouting unless a Scout Troop is organized.

The Tweed Kiwanis Club, sponsors of the Scout movement in Tweed, will sponsor a Boy Scout troop if leaders are available.

Anyone interested in leadership for the Scouts may call Jack McMurray, or Clarence Woods, group committee chairman.

Around the "Cat"

Wally Lavergne will guide the destinies of the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club for another year. At the annual meeting held recently at the clubhouse, he was re-elected for the ensuing year and will have as an executive, Honorary president, L. E. McLean, Past President, William Wright, Treasurer, Owen Gray, Secretary, George Fisher, and directors, G. B. Hyde, Orlo Smith, Gordon Vince, Jack Avery, Ken Ashley, C. D. Ross, Frank Morrell, William VanTassel and Robert Semple.

The directors will meet in the near future to elect a general chairman and secretary-treasurer of the Corbin Gold Cup—tournament. Mr. VanTassel and Mr. Hyde efficiently held these offices last year and in the report to the meeting Mr. Hyde showed that this year's journey was equal or a little better than preceding ones.

The president and Herb McIntyre were elected to represent the club at the district meeting to be held next week. At this time the dates for tournaments of all clubs in the district will be set.

G. B. Hyde, Jack Avery and William Wright were appointed trustees of the Bowling Club. Reports from the various committees showed the club in a healthy condition. The membership remained constant with other years but the membership was concerned about ways to get new members for the club.

In order to get better and faster greens it has been decided to place about ten tons of sharp sand on each green after they have been thoroughly spiked. This will allow the sand to run into the ditch holes to retain the moisture through the winter and will also allow the greens to become more level.

The greenskeeper, Jack Smith, who gave successful and efficient service through many years was given a life membership in the club.

PRETTY BUT DANGEROUS

The lily of the valley's juice contains a drug similar to digitalis, a powerful heart stimulant.

On Defensive

Cocktails with Russians Far Different Now

OTTAWA (CP) — In the old cold war days of the 1950s, the Russian diplomats were hardnosed if not sometimes just a little fat nasty.

"Imperialists," they used to say undiplomatically and didn't seem to care two canapes whether Canadians turned up at their embassy receptions. As a result, the Canadians used to stay away.

Gradually, as East-West tensions eased off, cocktails with the Soviets became the biggest attraction in town on the diplomatic circuit.

Has Czechoslovakia put the clock back?

Soviet Ambassador Ivan F. Spedko held a farewell reception Wednesday night at his embassy. He leaves here Oct. 16 after 5½ years and will be succeeded later in the year by Boris Mirashnichenko.

Several Canadian MPs turned up. Perhaps not as many as would have before the Aug. 20 Soviet occupation of Czechoslovakia. But still a fair sprinkling.

Senator Paul Martin, government leader in the Senate and former external affairs minister, and Works Minister Arthur Laing attended.

The Russian diplomats eschewed any nasty comment—or any comment at all—on NATO's response to the continuing presence of Soviet troops in Czechoslovakia.

Rather, they were more concerned with damping down any Western resentment.

"A contemporary problem," said Mr. Spedko when asked whether Czechoslovakia has changed Canada-Russia relations.

Another Russian diplomat said:

"The problem is still Germany, as it has been for 30 years. What must always be remember is that we lost 20,000,000 people in the war. We fear a rearmed West Germany and West Germany is rearmed and West Germany borders on Czechoslovakia."

He added: "And nothing can be done about Germany until Vietnam is settled."

There seems to be something almost pathetic about the Russians trying to explain away Czechoslovakia. Unlike the old cold war days, they are on the defensive, almost pleading their case like a mendicant seeking bail.

The bywords are: Please forget Czechoslovakia. Business as usual.

Real Estate Broker Has "Vital Role"

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) Dennis Stewart, 44, newly-elected president of the Canadian Association of Real Estate Boards, says the real estate industry is "trying to create a new type of real estate man."

"He (the real estate broker) has to play a much greater part in the larger financial picture than ever before, occupying a more vital role in the business world," Mr. Stewart said Wednesday in an interview after he was elected to head the 22,000-member association.

"He has a responsibility to the country to play this larger role because the wealth of the nation is founded on real estate and what is under it."

Mr. Stewart, from Edmonton, has played a big part in the real estate business since October, 1958, when he borrowed $400 and bought himself a 1938 car.

Now he is the president or Vice-president and director of nine financial companies in development, investment, mutual funds, savings and trust and life insurance.

Mr. Stewart was elected president at the association's annual convention here. He succeeds Ronald Sanderson of Oakville, Ont.

In his acceptance speech he said CAREB could become a meaningful force for the improvement of all business and as adviser to government on issues of housing expropriation and community planning.

He also said Canada needs a federal securities act to encourage economic growth and economic health.

Before becoming president of the national association, Mr. Stewart was president of the Edmonton Real Estate Board in 1959 and 1960 and, in 1964, president of the Alberta Real Estate Association.

Condominiums Said Next Popular Move

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — Condominium housing will overtake any previously-known form of building development in Canada, Toronto lawyer John A. Geisler told the annual conference of the Canadian Association of Real Estate Boards Wednesday.

He said condominiums, buildings in which each occupant is the freehold owner of his own apartment, may soon be extended to offices and shopping centres.

In this way, a man could own his own home above an office which belongs to his company or his partners, he said.

Mr. Geisler said present condominium legislation in Canada is derived from Australia and the United States.

British Columbia and Alberta passed legislation in 1966 on the Australian model, while Ontario followed last year with a different act which is closer to some American states.

So far there have been 150 condominium units built in British Columbia, more than 50 in Alberta and about 100 in Ontario.

Paul H. Rittle of Pittsburgh, a vice-president of the U.S. Institute of Real Estate Management, said of condominiums: "This type of real estate development has more need of professional management."

He said that although all the occupants of a block can enjoy home ownership, the scheme has some disadvantages.

These were the continual payments for keeping up the building, which the occupants had to share with each other, and the fact that property taxes were often assessed at a higher rate than if the block were treated as a single unit.

County Library Proposed

PICTON (Staff) — Picton is the proposed centre of a new county-wide public library. The system is at present being considered by county council.

It is necessary that 75 per cent of all local municipalities in the county agree to the system.

The advantage of a county-wide system is a largely increased government grant. During the first year of establishment the Provincial Government provides 20c per capita which in the county would amount to $5,800.

A second grant is provided under the Lake Ontario Regional Library System which totals $5,000. In addition $15,000 would be available to the county system.

As well as a maintenance grant of about 30 per cent of operation costs. That grant would be made every year.

The library board would consist of seven members, four of which must be members of the county council. It is conditional in any county agreement that existing libraries cannot be closed without the consent of the local municipality.

Having the largest library in the county, Picton would be headquarters for the organization. Books would be shuttled from Picton to various other centres.

By joining forces at sharing books a great many more would be available to each member of the library.

Medical Research Faces U. S. Cuts

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Killing is more important than curing, in the new U.S. budget; for cuts in scientific and medical research have eliminated public projects seeking a therapy for cancer, while armament appropriations continue to expand.

Campbellford Still Has Bridge Problem

CAMPBELLFORD — As has been usual for the last year or more the building of a new bridge in Campbellford still presents problems. The old bridge has now been torn down and the detour over the planked railway bridge has caused traffic congestion.

The Counties Road Commission was asked to review the situation in detail and came up with the following suggestions: first, that an extra Bailey bridge for one way traffic was too expensive; secondly, that approaches at both ends of railway bridge be enlarged and paved.

This is to be done by Counties Road Commission and the end of Saskatoon Street is to be enlarged and paved. A traffic control officer is to be on duty at certain times of the day, as for traffic lights on the detours they would be responsibility of town itself.

Traffic control signals will provide effective method of controlling traffic. The suggestion of a single lane detour over the back channel was not recommended as it would have to be built sufficiently strong to withstand peak flood conditions.

It was felt the present traffic disruption was of a temporary nature and will be eliminated some time in 1969 so any undue expense at this time was uncalled for.

Counties Council Road Commission estimated the cost of installing traffic lights at $4,000 and the expense was the responsibility of the town.

Counter argument of the local Council was that Bailey bridges had previously been used in construction of permanent bridges at Trent River, Healy Falls and Hastings, all in the immediate area this fall.

The request of a resident for a sidewalk on Ranney St., Councillor A. C. Newman said the expense was beyond the limit of the 1968 budget and in his opinion should be inspected and determined by a qualified engineer.

Campbellford District High School, year book committee asked that Council again carry the advertisement as in former years.

Police Chief Baird was given permission to employ five extra men and two walkie-talkies to control activies on Hallowe'en.

In regard to Fire Chief C. Cork's request that one fire truck be stationed on west side of river due to traffic congestion at present time Chief Cork was asked to investigate storing facilities and report in next meeting.

Mayor Tanner asked that because of deer hunting opening that the next Council meeting be held on October 28 instead of regular November date.

Mr. Bradley of O.W.C. said the Commission would require two small tracts of land previous to building of sewage disposal plant, one 40'x30' on Trent Drive with price estimated at $150 and the other on industrial site on which plant proper will be built at a cost of $500 per measured acre and $300 for easement cost. These prices were confirmed by Council.

Clerk E. M. Ibey said W. C. Stapley account for finishing work at arena was $7,300 and also stated the debenture issue for the arena would be $125,000 instead of $164,000 as at first estimated.

The county engineer reported that bicycle riding on the pedestrian Bailey bridge was the responsibility of local authority. Police Chief Baird has had police attend the three public schools and speak to the children regarding this; also has had two signs erected advising children to walk over the bridge with their bicycles.

The approach at one end of the bridge also came under discussion, steps are placed there making it difficult for some residents. Council moved to ask the Counties Road Commission to install a ramp to make a suitable egress. Lights are also to be installed on footbridge.

Campbellford Legion asked permission to hold a tag day November 8th and November 9th. Permission was granted.

Town Planner Speaks To Members of Council

CAMPBELLFORD — Campbellford Municipal Council was addressed by Mr. E. Little of a firm of permanent town planners, an organization operating out of Toronto with a staff of 18. Over 80 municipalities in Ontario have employed this firm in their town planning in the last few years.

When questioned whether definite planning altered growth, Mr. Little stated much municipal functions involved long-range planning and where zoning bylaws provide for industrial lands, not necessarily industry follows, but industries have located in areas where planning has been done.

When asked specifically about the services provided, he said it was to provide professional assistance to municipalities and town planning boards on a long term basis where zoning bylaws were more immediate provisions.

The fees were based on a fee schedule of professional engineers, per diem or project dependent on category of employed.

Council members want more detailed information and asked Mr. Little to have an estimate at planning cost at no expense to the municipality.

Two by-laws were passed at Campbellford Council, one to provide biennial term for Council and P.U.C., the nomination meeting to be held last Monday in November and polling date the first Monday in December and advance poll to be held.

The second by-law provided conveyance of a small square of land adjacent to present building of Superior Silo at a cost of $500.

Not Satisfactory Alternative

UK Squelches Idea of North Atlantic Free Trade Area

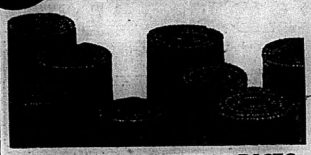
LONDON (CP) — The British government Wednesday trampled firmly on the idea of participation in a North Atlantic free-trade area that would include Canada.

Lord Chalfont, the government's chief negotiator for Britain's entry into the European Common Market, told the Canadian Chamber of Commerce that such an association would not be "a satisfactory alternative" to the ECM.

The North Atlantic concept has been widely touted in some political and newspaper circles here in recent months. Politicians of all parties have been enlisted to support it, but the government itself has remained cool despite rebuffs from France on its ECM entry bid.

As envisaged by its supporters, the North Atlantic area would take in at the start such countries as Britain, the United States, Canada and Britain's partners in the European Free Trade Association. It might be extended later much more broadly, such as to Australia, New Zealand and Japan.

Lord Chalfont, a junior minister for foreign affairs, spoke out against it more plainly than the government has ever done.



"There is no sign that any U.S. government would support it," he said. "It would perpetuate the divisions in Western Europe. It would lead to technological domination by the U.S. It would have no political content.

Mo-Hawks Brace for Orillia Encounter

LARRY HOLMES

Spare goalie for last winter's version of the Belleville Mo-Hawks, Larry Holmes has earned the No. 1 spot in the nets this year. He's the probable starter in Friday night's OHA Senior "A" schedule opener when the Mo-Hawks play host to a powerful Orillia entry.

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

The puckbug that holds the proof of the Belleville Mo-Hawks may be their Friday night season's opener against what should be a stacked Orillia Senior "A" entry.

And playing-coach Davey Jones hopes he has been able to pick enough roster plums during a rushed 12-day training camp to meet the formidable Orillia challenge.

"I understand Orillia still be carrying about 10 ex-Marlboroe (the Toronto entry folded prior to this season), and our game with them should give us a pretty good indication of where we stand," Jones said.

"If we can skate with them, we should be able to keep up with anybody in this year's league; if we can't, well, it's still early in the season."

Jones has signed 13 players to Mo-Hawk contracts to date, including newcomers Jack Wilson, who played defence last winter for the senior Oakville Oaks, forward Stu Muirhead, hustling winger "Moe" Hunter, left-side man Ron Riley, who skated with the London Jr. "A" entry last year, and Gary Goyer.

Goyer has been working at centre between Muirhead and Wayne McConnell during practice sessions, about the only definite line commitment coach Jones has made until he has a few more signatures.

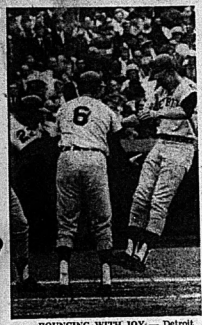
Goalie Larry Holmes, defencemen Lionel Botty, Doug Murray, and Eddie Marinelli, and forwards Wayne McConnell, John Baker, and Bob Taylor are the signees to date with Mo-Hawk roster experience.

Newcomer "Moe" Hunter may be sidelined from tomorrow night's game with a knee injury suffered in the Mo-Hawks' 9-5 exhibition loss in Kingston Sunday night.

That Jones hopes permanent gaps in the Mo-Hawk lineup won't be left by hard-rock defencemen Greg Marchen and slick centre George Godson.

The Peterborough imports, both of whom played for the local seniors last winter, have yet to come to contract terms, and are "very doubtful" starters for the Orillia opener.

Game time at the arena is the usual 9 p.m.



WAYNE McCONNELL

The flashy Mo-Hawk winger is one of 13 players to sign with this year's local seniors to date.

Tigers Bury Cards Beneath Avalanche of 13 Runs

BOUNCING WITH JOY — Detroit Tigers' Jim Northrup jumps on home plate after hitting a grand slam homer in the third inning of sixth game of World Series with the St. Louis Cardinals at Busch Stadium in St. Louis.

Lolich vs. Gibson In the Rubber Match

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Mickey Lolich and Bob Gibson went into their seventh game World Series date today with a bit of apprehension. But neither was backing off from the confrontation.

Gibson, ace of St. Louis pitching staff, was to work the deciding game with three days rest instead of his customary four between starts, while Detroit's Lolich was coming back with only two days off—one less than he is used to.

Both were going for their third Series' victory and were less than delighted to be working with short rest.

"Anytime you break a routine . . . do something out of the ordinary, or something you're not used to, it will affect you somewhat," said Gibson, who beat the Tigers in the fourth game with just three days rest.

"I couldn't judge from that game what difference the short rest had. The weather was so bad. With conditions like that, you can't compare a game with any other one."

* * *

Sunday's fourth game was played in a steady rain.

Lolich, who won the second and fifth games, said he was surprised to be working again.

"I figured the fifth game was it," he said after the Tigers had tied the Series with a 13-1 romp behind Denny McLain Wednesday.

"I'll be able to go out there and throw," Lolich continued, "but I won't be as strong as with three days rest. It depends on what kind of game it is."

"Pitching with two days rest," said Lolich, "I'd prefer a bigger ball park."

Busch Stadium wasn't big enough to hold the Tigers Wednesday.

They exploded for a record-tying 10-run third inning and McLain coasted to his first Series victory after two losses.

Jim Northrup walloped a grand slam homer—the 11th in World Series history—and Al Kaline stroked two singles, driving in three runs in the big inning. Kaline later added a homer, lifting his average in his first World Series to .440.

Kaline, with 11 hits, and Lou Brock of St. Louis with 12 both had a shot at the record for most hits in a series—13 held by Bobby Richardson of New York Yankees, and Gibson was after a record-shattering eighth straight Series victory.

* * *

McLain, who expects his 31 regular season victories will bring him a pay hike to $100,000 or more next year, admitted he hadn't figured to get another shot at the Cardinals.

"Truthfully, I really didn't think we'd be coming back to St. Louis," he said.

"It looked like we were demoralized after Sunday's game," a 10-1 loss to Bob Gibson in which McLain lasted only 2 2-3 innings.

"But that's the way his team's been all year. Remember, it took 25 guys to get us here, not one guy."

The McLain - Northrup Act

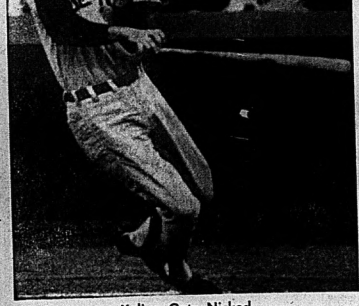
A Heyday on Payday?

McLain's Effort Could Cost the Tigers

ST. LOUIS (AP) — When Denny McLain makes his pitch for a six-figure baseball contract in 1969, Jim Northrup would like to go along for the ride.

McLain would be happy to have him aboard—along with all the rest of Detroit Tigers.

"I want to thank everyone on this club," McLain said Wednesday after going from twice a World Series goat to just-in-time hero as the Tigers pummeled St. Louis Cardinals 13-1 with the help of Northrup's grand slam homer.



"I wish I could take the whole gang into salary negotiations with me," said the Tigers' sore-armed pitching ace, who scattered nine hits while atoning for two Series beatings and setting up a seventh game showdown Thursday.

McLain, working with two days' rest on a cool, rain-marred afternoon and bolstered by a cortisone injection that relieved the pain in his right shoulder, shut out the Cards until the ninth.

Northrup, meanwhile, keyed a record-tying 10-run Detroit burst in the third with a bases-loaded blast into the upper deck in right field.

"Do you know that this guy has hit five grand slam homers this year and four of them have come while I was pitching," McLain said.

"I want to say something in Denny's behalf," Northrup said. "I was playing behind him both times before in this Series and I could tell there was something wrong. He wasn't throwing right. He told me in the locker room his arm was hurting. But he didn't want to use it as an alibi."

Liske Tosses Stamps to 26-10 Win

CALGARY (CP) — First place in the Western Football Conference standings went back to Calgary Stampeders Wednesday night after an easy 26-10 victory in a Canadian Football League game against Montreal Alouettes.

Calgary quarterback Peter Liske took to the air for three touchdown passes, connecting on 17 of 29 tries. He now has 200 completions for the season, 20 for touchdowns.

The win, before 18,450 fans, gave Calgary a total of 18 points, one more than Saskatchewan Roughriders and seven ahead of third-place Edmonton Eskimos. British Columbia has five points and Winnipeg four.

The loss put Montreal—with six points—deeper into the Eastern Football Conference cellar. League-leading Ottawa has 13 points while Hamilton and Toronto each have 12. All teams in the Eastern Conference have played 10 games.

Ted Woods, Gerry Shaw and Herman Harrison scored touchdowns on passes from Liske. Larry Robinson led individual scoring with three converts, a 25-yard field goal and a single. Ron Stewart scored a single.

Is Chalmers Eligible ?

Quinte Falters In Second Loss

Things are pretty grim in the Quinte Secondary senior football team's dressing room.

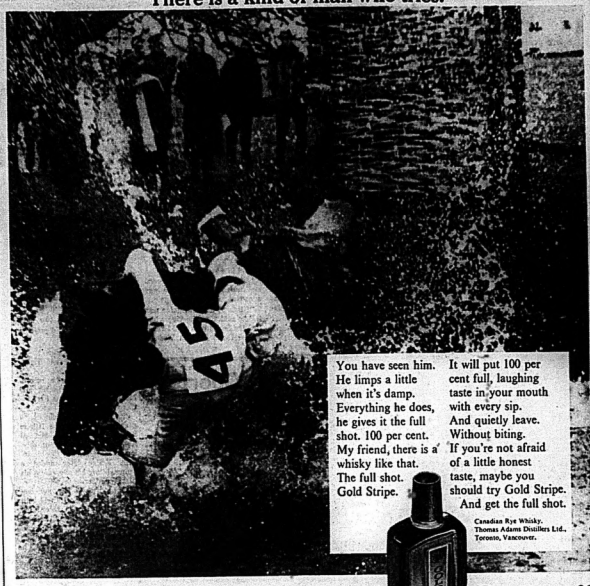
The 1967 COSSA champs have dropped two in a row, the first to their traditional rivals BCI last Friday and the second to Trenton High School yesterday. The Trenton seniors topped the blue and gray 7-0.

"What can you do when you just can't score?" moaned one linebacker. "We stopped Trenton again and again and turned over the ball to the offence within five yards of where they gave it up, but they just could not move it in."

Quinte's loss puts the big seniors in a bad spot. Even if, as rumor has it, BCI's big end John Chalmers is declared ineligible and all victories in which he's played are forfeited, the best Quinte can hope for with two defeats in a play-off bid in the league finals.

The word in the locker rooms is that Chalmers has attended BCI seven years — the added two because of a change in courses. The local ruling on eligibility states players are eligible for only six years in school.

In Wednesday's tilt with Trenton, the winners, controlling the ball in mid-field, still couldn't break Quinte's defence for a solid ground drive to paydirt. The big break for the winners came in the second quarter when Trenton's Tim Howard recovered a QSS fumble in his own half of the field.



Lee Nicholson scored the winning major on a 35-yd. bomb and a 30-yd. run.

Harness Boosters Boast Best Summer Yet

This year's final card in the races sponsored by the Quinte Riding and Driving Association was run Saturday night.

After the ninth race of the evening, the crowd watched Guy LaRush and John Huntbach awarded trophies for their driving during the season. LaRush of Trent River was awarded the trophy for leading dash driver and Huntback was feted as leading driver on points.

In 40-degree weather, the harness event still drew a crowd of more than 600 people. The president of the Quinte Riding and Driving Club, Jack Jeffrey, explains that the popularity of the sport is dependent on both the spectators and the officials controlling the races.

"It's a cycle," he said. "The more people we get out betting, the better races we're able to have because the purses for the drivers are a partake. And the better the purses, the better the horses and centage of the pari mutuel drivers are. That means better racing which in turn brings out more people."

The 1968 season was the best in the history of the club, Jeffrey said.

"Another thing which will help us next year," Jeffrey continued, "is that with the size of the crowds we've drawn this year, we've got a good hard core of fans who've gotten their betting education.

That educated betting made the Belleville track one of the best paying tracks around for purse-winning drivers in 1968. The new money rolling in enabled the club to increase purses twice this year.

A good number of those purses were won by three horses — all of them locally owned. Nida Dillard, owned by Al and Gloria Vance, Belleville and driven by Al, was the year's top winner with a total of $1,900 brought home. Forjar and Elly Mae were also high in the total winnings column with $900 each.

Forjar is owned by LaVerne Cook of Marlbank, Ont., and is driven by Paul Oulette, Elly Mae was owned and driven by Bernard Hunt of Tweed at the beginning of the season, but was sold to R. W. Gibson of Kingston in mid-season. The mare was driven by Ben Wemp after the sale.

The three horses will continue their track rivalry this Saturday night at the Awards Dinner at Club Canara.

The Quinte Riding and Driving Club will present the William Kenny Memorial Trophy to the most consistent money winner of the 1968 season and all three horses are in close competition.

Ed Logan Jewellers' Trophy will be shared by Rosedale Cal of the Peters Racing Stables, Trent River, and Elly Mae. Both were clocked with the year's fastest mile — 2:10.3.

Nida Dillard is also in the running for the most wins at the track with seven season victories.

Ben Wemp, leading track driver on an average of starts and times placed in the money, will be honored as the track's leading 1968 driver on average. Wemp, injured in a track spill in Kingston last month, hails from Harrowsmith and has been one of the most consistent winners on the Belleville oval in 1968.

FOREST ON THE TRACK are actually shafts of joggers retired until the spring when Belleville's harness racing will re-open on the Fairgrounds track. Looking over the exercise carts which have been retired for the season are Gerald Vance and Jack Jeffrey, president of the Quinte Riding and Driving Club.

Departmental Entries To Dine Out

The final playoffs are over, the tensions are gone, the winners have proven themselves, and only one thing remains to be done in the Departmental League's 1968 season.

Just deserts must be presented the loop champions.

Presentation of the Mel Barrinage trophy to the title-winning Fire Department team and individual trophies to each member of the team will be made at a dance and banquet at 9 p.m. Friday, Oct. 11, at Club Canara.

The festivities are open to all players and officials in the league and the public is also invited.

A "Corny" Start

City Lifter Boasts Empire Mark

By JERRY HOFF
(Staff Sportswriter)

Nineteen-year-old Bob Walt doesn't know his own strength — but the young Belleville weightlifter has broken the British Commonwealth Junior Record for the snatch twice on his way to finding out.

His most recent record was recognized this week by an official certificate and was duly recorded in the athletic marks of the Commonwealth.

Bob picked up and held 226 pounds in an Olympic-style two-hand snatch at the Ontario Team Weightlifting contest at Quinte Secondary School in June to establish his record in the lightweight division. The BCI graduate weighs 145 pounds.

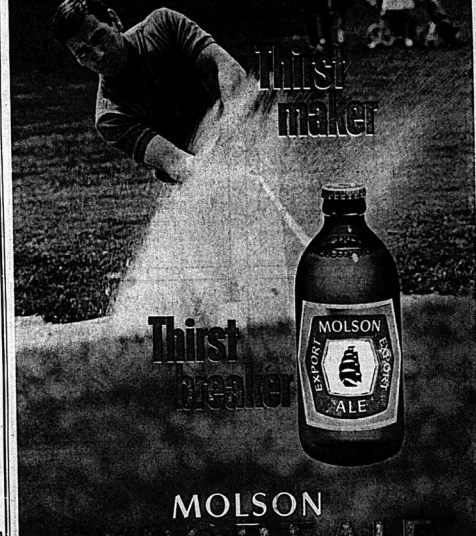
Bob's weightlifting history sounds like something out of the Charles Atlas advertisements on the back of old comic books.

Coach Ken Carr-Brainf of the Apollo Barbell Club in Belleville remembers Bob's first appearance around the club workout room.

"He was 14 years old when he first came here." "Frankly," he laughed, "this sounds too corny to believe but he was skinny, underdeveloped, and not very strong. But he had the will to work and he did have good speed and coordination. He worked hard and it's paid off."

The payoff started in 1966 when the young lifter snatched 205 lbs. for his first British Commonwealth Junior record.

That record stood until his present effort. Last week, Bob entered the Olympic trials for the Canadian weightlifting team. He didn't make it but Coach Carr-Brainf wasn't disappointed.



"It usually takes seven or eight years of training for a boy to be able to lift the weight which qualifies him for the trials. Bob made it in four years. You can't beat that. And remember he's a junior and he was lifting against the seniors for that Olympic berth."

With two of the world's top records set and broken at 19, lots of athletes have either slowed down or quit. Bob's not doing either. "I've got to get ready for the Ontario vs. Quebec Team Match in January and then the trials for the World Championships in Poland," he said. "And then I've heard something about those Olympic games in 1972. I'd sure like to see the Olympics — from the inside."

Sawchuk to Wings

Season Here, Hawks Lack Dynamic Duo

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

With the opening of the National Hockey League season less than 48 hours away, Toronto Maple Leafs have no captain and Chicago Black Hawks have no superstars.

Maple Leaf captain George Armstrong has retired and coach Punch Imlach has yet to name a successor.

However, if Maple Leaf Garden president Stafford Smythe has his way Armstrong will be a non-playing captain.

He suggested this Wednesday, apparently on the assumption the veteran right winger would stay in shape and be able to play if the team ran into injuries.

Imlach said he has been grooming Ron Ellis for Captain, but thought Armstrong would be around for another couple of years.

"I don't know what I'll do. Maybe I'll go without a captain," Imlach said.

Meanwhile, Imlach learned Wednesday that the Leafs, fifth-place finishers in the Eastern Division last year, will have to open the season in Detroit Sunday without winger Wayne Carleton. He has a hairline fracture of the wrist and will be out of action for about two weeks.

Chicago still hasn't been able to sign superstars Bobby Hull and Stan Mikita. The Black Hawks open against St. Louis in Chicago Friday.

It appears the club will have to come through with a large chunk of money to get their signatures.

Terry Sawchuk returned to Detroit Red Wings Wednesday after a four-year absence while he played for the Maple Leafs and Los Angeles Kings.

The Wings gave up Jim Peters for the veteran goalie.

It will be Sawchuk's third stint with the Wings. He was with them from 1950—when he won the Calder Trophy as Rookie of the Year—until 1955 and was an All-Star in each of the five years.

Traded, he stayed with Boston Bruins for two years, and returned to the Wings in 1957. He remained with the Wings until 1964 when he was drafted by Toronto. Then he was picked by the Kings in the expansion draft.

TERRY SAWCHUK

A four-time winner of the Vezina Trophy—he shared it with Johnny Bower of the Maple Leafs in 1965—he has a record 102 NHL shutouts.

The Red Wings now have three goalies in camp, but general manager Sid Abel said he intends to open the season in Boston Friday with Roger Crozier and Roy Edwards.

Elsewhere, coach Red Sullivan of Pittsburgh Penguins of the Western Division, said his club's pre-season record of one win and one tie in seven starts is no cause for concern.

He said much of the time was spent experimenting and this year the Penguins have improved offensively and defensively. Last year they finished fifth in the six-team expansion division.

In Minneapolis, North Star coach Wren Blair reduced his roster to 19, including three goalies. Sent down to the minors were Ken Broderick, former goalie for Canada's national team, and left winger Joey Johnston.

Although an NHL team can dress only 18 players for a game, Blair said he would start the season with 19, sitting out a goalie in each game.

Protest May Come on Foot

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The threatened demonstration by U.S. Negro athletes on behalf of civil rights may involve nothing more than 25 cents' worth of shoe dye.

"As far as I know the only action the Negro boys might take is to color all their shoes black," said Stan Wright, assistant coach of the U.S. track and field team in charge of the sprinters, Wednesday.

'Working Paper' Not Binding

Quebec to Study Proposal Canada Become A Republic

QUEBEC (CP) — A proposal that Quebec become a republic within a larger Canadian republic is to be studied by the Quebec legislative assembly's constitutional committee, Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand announced Wednesday.

The premier said at a news conference the proposal, contained in a "working paper," had also suggested name for the Canadian republic—The Canadian Union.

The constitutional committee, which likely will meet after the opening of the provincial legislature Oct. 22, includes Liberal leader Jean Lesage and Rene Levesque, leader of the separatist Mouvement Souveraineté-Association.

Mr. Bertrand said the "working paper" was not binding on the province's Union Nationale government.

The paper suggests Canada become an association of two nations or a federation of 10 states—any member of which could choose republic status—while remaining within Commonwealth and possibly maintaining the "monarchical system" with a Canadian president.

Mr. Bertrand said the 52-page document was submitted July 24 to the permanent federal-provincial committee of the constitution by the provincial conference established early this year.

The document was also sent Oct. 2 to Prime Minister Trudeau and the provincial premiers and had been distributed to members of the Quebec legislature.

He said it would be discussed in the assembly, and he had no objection to the assembly's constitutional committee discussing it prior to the proposed Dec. 9-11 provincial leaders' constitutional conference in Ottawa. Quebec has agreed to such a conference on the dates already proposed by Mr. Trudeau.

The document says it would be "preferable" for the Canadian Union to become a republic within the Commonwealth, but it adds also the following points:

1. "At this point, a Canadian president heading the union would be more conducive to Canadian unity than is the British Crown.

2. "Because it is more easily associated with sovereignty of the people, the republican form of government is more closely allied with most Canadians' conception of the nature of their political institutions.

3. "Adoption of a republican form of government would provide the ideal opportunity to reform several of our political institutions so as to make them more effective.

4. "A republican form of government would render Canada's sovereignty and independence more evident to the rest of the world.

5. "However, this reform at the union level is not of such importance that an over-all priority should be attached to it.

6. "As for Quebec, she would like to have the power immediately to become a republic within the Canadian union."

Ontario Student Awards Up

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario department of university affairs Wednesday issued statistics showing that the average award made to students under the university awards program is higher this year than in 1967.

The department release followed by one day a statement from Tim Reid, education spokesman for the Liberal party in the legislature, which was critical of new regulations applied to the award program this year.

Mr. Reid said thousands of students may drop out of university at Christmas because their government awards had been cut through application of more stringent regulations.

The department release said 27,172 students have received awards totalling $27,793,749 this year, made up of $14,990,039 in federal government loans and $13,697,410 in provincial grants.

The average total award per student has been $1,023 this year, compared with $963 in 1967. Loans have average $519 compared with $529 and provincial grants $504 to $434.

Wallbridge

WALLBRIDGE — Wallbridge UOW held a pot-luck dinner on Wednesday with a good attendance. After the dinner the UOW meeting was held in the church with president Mrs. Clifford Clapp taking charge of the meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Clysdale entertained her mother Mrs. Harry Green of Peterborough and sister, Mrs. Terry O'Keefe and Miss Mary Zieroff of Toronto, and their grandchildren on the occasion of her mother's birthday.

Several from Wallbridge attended the 100th church anniversary services at Centenary Church.

Mrs. Sam Nicolson is visiting her daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Don Doolittle in Toronto.

A large number of people attended the farm sale of Mr. Douglas Thompson on Saturday afternoon. The Wallbridge UOW members served coffee, and refreshments.

On Tuesday, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Harris entertained a number of guests, the occasion being the 80th birthday of Mr. Harris. A beautifully decorated cake and other refreshments were served. The many friends of Mr. Harris in the community offered congratulations and continued good health and many happy returns. Mrs. Edith Tucker spent a few days at their home on this occasion.

Apollo Shot, Olympics Featured on Television

NEW YORK (AP) — Network television, with a new season just launched, is more concerned with current events than in the usual assortment of entertainment programs.

With the windup of the World Series, all three major networks will be homing their cameras and using a big chunk of their news staffs on the launching Friday of the Apollo 7 spacecraft and its three man crew on an 11-day journey around the earth.

Then, on Saturday, ABC will start getting some returns on the reported $4,500,000 it paid for broadcast rights to the summer Olympic Games in Mexico — two weeks of broadcasts on the track, field, swimming, diving, basketball and equestrian events.

Events following the Apollo launching will lend themselves to television for the first time because a television camera will be in the space capsule and, hopefully, will transmit pictures for broadcast for about 12 minutes daily during the flight.

Since 1962 when the space program took off, launchings and recoveries have been covered with the aid of simultaneous verbal descriptions and mock-ups of equipment. The networks have correspondents so familiar with their subject that they talk of details and machinery with the expertise—and lack of emotion— of the astronauts and their backup men.

NBC, in an inspired moment, has signed a new kind of space expert—Rene Carpenter, wife of one of the original astronauts, navy Cmdr. M. Scott Carpenter. She will work with David Brinkley, New York anchorman, during the take-off coverage and during the recovery, expected Oct. 27.

Mrs. Carpenter, an attractive blonde, has emerged as a personality in her own right through her writings—first about astronauts and their families and later as author of a syndicated column.

Mrs. Carpenter, whose four teen-age children are away at school, was not sure Wednesday what her contribution to the coverage would be, but it is certain to be an explanation of the feelings and emotions of the people—including wives and children—concerned.

"The wives know when we marry these men that the demands of the job come first," she said. "Scott and I have been separated about half of our married life by his job.

"And I think that the wives think about the flights just about the way their husbands do—part of the job. We're conditioned, in our way, that astronauts are in theirs. What other people don't realize is that all these men feel that death is an integral part of life and accept it."

Busman's Holiday

The result of 33 months of spare time labor and an outlay of $3,000 is this attractive two-place Sirocco aircraft built by Canadian Pacific Air captain Graeme McKeen. McKeen, who has been with the airline for 17 years, spends his spare time flying the 150-mile-an-hour aircraft around British Columbia. At work he flies 600-mile-an-hour jetliners. (CP Photo)

SOLUNAR TABLES WHEN TO FISH OR HUNT

by Richard Alden Knight

The schedule of Solunar Periods, as printed below, has been taken from Richard Alden Knight's Solunar Tables. Plan your days so that you will be fishing in good territory or hunting in good cover during these times, if you wish to find the best sport that each day has to offer.

The Major Periods are shown in boldface type. These begin at the times shown and last for an hour and a half or two hours thereafter. The Minor Periods, shown in regular type, are of somewhat shorter duration.

Eastern Daylight Saving time. (For Oct. 12 - 20.)

Quarter Turned in "13"

A big Harley Davidson X-Dragster ridden by Al Dryden of Belleville turned a 13-second quarter Sunday at the Pinion Pushers Motorcycle Club's "Bikes-Only" drag races in Deseronto.

Dryden's time was the fastest of the meet and served to shut down John Cameron of Hamilton whose Triumph turned a 14.1 second quarter.

In the B-Modified, Ron Gryce of Belleville took his big Harley up the strip in 14 seconds flat for the class win over George Juett's Norton. Juett of Hamilton turned 14.4 seconds.

Toronto dominated the D-Stock runs with Dennis Greshaw's BSA tying with a bike of the same make ridden by Dan Graham in 14.4 seconds. Both are from the big city. Greshaw was awarded the class win and Graham, who made two runs in the same time, took the trophy for fastest stock time.

The E-Stock class saw William Schultz of Belleville turn a 15.5 on his Suzuki with Art Cash of Toronto second in 15.6 on a Honda.

Tom Lane of Montreal took his Bridgestone up the strip in 16 seconds to win over Fred Kolman of Ottawa on a Kawasaki. Kolman made the trip in 16.4 seconds.

Kolman switched to a Bultaco in the G-Stock class and won it in 15.5 seconds. Bill Blakely of Belleville was second in 15.1 seconds.

Tom Rotor of Montreal won the H-Stock class in 19.5 seconds on a Bridgestone and John McLean of Port Hope was second in 21.3 seconds on a Yamaha.

Tom Rotor of Montreal won the H-Stock class in 19.5 seconds on a Bridgestone and John McLean of Port Hope was second in 21.3 seconds on a Yamaha.
